University Confers Degree on Alumna

Miss Petry to Be Awarded Sc.D. at Convocation Here

The first alumna of the University of Delaware ever awarded an honorary degree by her alma mater will be acclaimed here Wednesday, September 21, when a Doctor of Science degree is conferred upon Miss Lucile Petry.

Miss Petry, a graduate of Delaware in the class of 1924, is the assistant surgeon general in the U. S. Public Health Service. With a rank corresponding to that of a brigadier general, she is the first woman to hold the position in the 150-year history of the service, and she will be the fourth woman ever to receive an honorary degree at Delaware. Annie Jump Cannon and Violet Gray were honored in 1918, and Meta Glass was cited in 1934.

The Sc.D. conferred upon Miss Petry will be awarded at convocation exercises when about 130 seniors and graduate students will receive diplomas.

Miss Petry, a graduate of Selbyville High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Petry of Felton. Her father is a former principal of the Felton School.

After receiving her A.B. at the former Women's College of the University in 1924, Miss Petry entered Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and obtained her diploma in nursing in 1927. She served briefly on the staff at Johns Hopkins and at the Yale University School of Nursing until 1929, when she took her Master's degree at Teachers College, Columbia University. She was instructor and associate professor, as well as assistant director, at the School of Nursing, University of Minnesota, until 1941.

Just before the war, she was appointed nurse education consultant in the U. S. Public Service, the first woman administrator of the service. In 1943 she was named to organize the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps, as its director, in charge of 65,000 student nurses—the largest group of women then in wartime service. In 1945, she was commissioned as nurse director in the Regular Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service. Three years later she was appointed assistant surgeon general in June. She represents the United States in setting up a world health service under the United Nations.

For the past 10 years, Miss Petry has been a member of the Board of the National League of Nursing Education, and is president of the board for the "American Journal of Nursing" and chairman of the committee of the six national nursing organizations to establish a new National Nursing Accrediting Service. She is editorial adviser on nursing to a book publisher, and has contributed numerous articles on her field to professional journals.

As a Women's College student, Miss Petry was active in campus affairs. She was vice president of her class as a sophomore; edited the year book; served on "The Review," the board of "The Blue Kettle," then the literary magazine; was president of The Forum; was a member of the Press Club; was active in the YWCA; and took part in the class hockey, basketball and rifle teams. The yearbook when she graduated noted that "a quaint precision rules her days."

The President's Message

The entire University family joins me in welcoming our Class of 1953.

I am sure that you will find, in the days ahead, a ready acceptance in your associations with your fellow-students, your teachers, and all other members of the administration and staff.

In return, they and I will ask only that you let yourself live up to your own abilities in every sense of the word. Even in our great democracy, it is still a relatively privileged few who may attend a college and glean its countless benefits.

To your families who are sacrificing to gain you these benefits, to the citizens and the State of Delaware, you owe the earnest honest effort to make the most of this opportunity.

Here is the challenge. The helping hand of all of the rest of us who make up this University is extended that you may always meet it.

WILLIAM S. CARLSON,
President

18-Year-Olds May Register With Local Draft Board Here

College and university students who become 18 years of age after the school term starts need not return to their homes to register under the Selective Service Law, Delaware State Director, Dr. Victor D. Washburn said, but may register at the local board most convenient to them, as may others when they reach the age of 18.

"The law requires registration of all young men—with very few exceptions—within five days after their eighteenth birthday," Dr. Washburn said, "but there still seems to be some misunderstanding as to the place of registration. All the young man has to do is present himself to the local board or registration place designated in that particular area most convenient in the place he happens to be when he becomes 18. The registration process is simple and requires only a short time. The data thus gathered is sent to the local board of the community he terms his home and which has jurisdiction over him."

When the registrant has a permanent home, the permanent home address should be given to registration officials, Dr. Washburn said. For this purpose "home" is the place with which the registrant normally identifies himself and at which he would wish to be classified.

Dr. Washburn pointed out that there is no liability for service under the Act until the age of 19 is reached, but he emphasized the obligation to register at 18.

"The law is specific," he said, "and provides severe penalty for failure to comply."

Dr. Washburn added that the law is also specific in its requirements concerning obligation of a registrant to keep his local board informed as to any change in his address—where he may be reached by mail, that is—or change in his status under the Act.

"That applies after the registrant becomes 20 as well as before," Dr. Washburn said, "and it means that college and university students, as well as other registrants, should notify their respective local boards when they leave their homes. There is no form for this. It may be done by mail or by personally appearing at the board office."

Dr. Washburn emphasized that the requirements to register and legal obligations of registrants were in no way altered because there have been no inductions within the past few months.

All Review Staffs Have Openings for Interested Frosh

This special Freshman Week edition of the Review is designed to introduce the Freshman Class to this, the Undergraduate Weekly of the University of Delaware. The Review serves you in a dual capacity. It publishes the news of the campus as it affects the student body and also serves as a workshop where those interested in journalism can obtain a working knowledge of the craft.

At the present time there are many openings on the staff of the Review. For those interested in writing, a berth on the news, feature, or sports staff is waiting. If you would like to work on the Review, but not in a writing capacity, then the copy, headline, or photography staffs can use you. There are also positions on the circulation and other business staffs to be filled.

Former experience is not a necessary factor. Within a few weeks after you first report to the Review office, you will have picked up the skill for the positions you have chosen, and within a year, you will be familiar with the complete workings of the paper. The only requisite is an interest in the Review and in the University of Delaware. In reward for your work, you will gain the feeling of belonging to the group, which, perhaps, more than any other, has its finger on the pulse of University life.

Your Freshman year is the best time of your college career to become affiliated with extra-curricular groups on campus. This is especially true in the case of the literary publications, where every year of experience makes you more valuable. In the case of the Review, there is no apprenticeship to serve; promotions are made according to proven ability. The Review office, which is located opposite the mail boxes in the basement of the Memorial Library, and the staff will be on hand there every Monday and Tuesday evening, once the semester begins. There will be a full staff meeting Thursday, September 22 at 7:30 p.m. which you are invited and urged to attend if interested in any phase of the Review work. At this time, the staff will be on hand to answer any questions you may have and to sign you up for the department in which you are interested.

Frosh Swamp Del. Campus As Freshman Week Begins

'53 Class Represents Most Delaware Schools

According to figures received here, almost every secondary school in Delaware—private and parochial as well as public—is represented in the Freshman Class of approximately five hundred fifty which entered the University Thursday, September 15.

Freshmen Asked to Buy Books Monday

Mr. J. Fred Mitchell, manager of the University Book Store, located in the basement of the Memorial Library, has requested that all Freshmen arrange to buy their textbooks after they have registered for classes on Monday, September 19. After Monday, the regular rush for books and supplies will be in full swing, with some two thousand returning students waiting to buy their texts and supplies. By appearing at the Book Store on Monday, Freshmen will be able to avoid the rush and confusion involved on Tuesday and Wednesday. There will be lists posted for the convenience of students outside the Book Store of the required books for every class given at the University.

The Book Store is operated on a strictly cash basis. There will be no credit given. It is suggested that students do not write their names in texts until they are certain that they will continue in a course, as no books with marks of any sort may be returned. All books sold in the Book Store are new; there are no sales of second-hand books. Books may be returned only if it is necessary that a student not continue in a course.

In addition to textbooks, the University Book Store carries a fairly complete stock of general supplies and a limited supply of novelty items. After registration is over, the "Trade Book" section of the store will be in operation. Anyone is free at any time to browse through this supply of general and specialized works which are not part of any specific course. The trade book section will order any book or books that a student wishes on receipt of the title, author, and publishing house of the work.

E-52 Players Plan Four Productions

For the first time in the 26-year history of the University of Delaware's E-52 Players, four major productions have been scheduled for the Mitchell Hall stage, it was disclosed today in the theatre calendar released by Dr. C. Robert Kase, director of dramatics. Customarily three big productions, plus the shorter productions, have constituted the yearly offerings.

The first major play will be a comedy, "The Show-off," to be presented by the Players on Oct. 20, 21 and 22, Dr. Kase said. Other major productions on the balance of the schedule are: the 45th of the E-52 series, on Dec. 8, 9 and 10; the 46th, on March 9, 10 and 11; and the 47th, on May 11, 12 and 13.

Altogether, nearly a score of events are on the University's theatre calendar for 1949-50. The opening play arranged was "The Pot-boiler," a one-act comedy special. (Continued on Page 4)

The 33 Delaware schools which are represented include: Wilmington High School, Pierre S. duPont High School, Brown Vocational School, Salesianum Catholic High School, Ursuline Academy, St. Elizabeth's High School, Tatnall School, Tower Hill School, and Friends School, in Wilmington, and the following in New Castle County: Alexis I. duPont, Henry C. Conrad, William Penn (New Castle), Newark, Claymont and Middletown High Schools; Archmere Academy, Sanford Preparatory and St. Andrew's School. In Kent County, John Bassett Moore (Smyrna), Dover, and Caesar Rodney (Camden) are represented, while those in Sussex County which have sent Freshmen to Delaware are Lord Baltimore (Ocean View), Seaford, Milford, Laurel, Lewes, Rehoboth, Bridgeville, Delmar, Georgetown, Millsboro, Selbyville, and Greenwood.

Fifteen states are represented in the entering class. Pennsylvania contributes the most freshmen, followed by New Jersey, Maryland, New York, Massachusetts, Florida, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Connecticut, Ohio, Indiana, Maine, Texas, Louisiana, and the District of Columbia. The class is, nevertheless, largely composed of Delawareans. Among the out-of-state students are several sons and daughters of alumni with outstanding scholastic records.

The new students also include representatives of Argentina, France, Greece and India.

Social Committee Plan Full Calendar

The Student Government Association, in cooperation with the University, plans a full calendar of social events and entertainment for the school year. Some of the leading bands in the country will be booked to play at the major dances throughout the year, and other dances will feature the outstanding bands of this area. Among other social events planned are performances by leading vaudeville artists, a general field day between Sophomore and Freshman classes, and recording dances after every pep fest. Anyone interested in working on the Social Committee may contact Wayne Pollari through University Mail.

A tentative schedule of social events follows:

- Sept. 23—Pep Fest.
 - 24—P. M. C.—home game—night.
 - 25—Pep Fest—tentative Tag Dance.
 - Oct. 1—Univ. of Richmond—7—Send Off.
 - 8—Bucknell game—Lewisburg, Pa.
 - Freshman Lawn Party.
 - 15—Rollins Game—home.
 - Float Parade in Wilmington.
 - 21—E-52 Major Production.
 - 22—Lafayette Game—Easton, Pa.
 - 29—Muhlenberg Game—Allentown, Pa.

Strictly Personal

It's the custom, at this time, for the Review to break forth into a long and flowery welcome to the new Freshman class. Such a welcome, even if read in entirety, is immediately forgotten. So this year we're going to cut the thing down a little, omit flowers, and say simply what we mean—Hi! Look at that word carefully—two letters, one syllable, with an exclamation mark at the end. It's said with a smile—and answered with one. Look at it carefully; you'll be hearing—and using—it a great deal. Doesn't look difficult, does it? It's not. In fact, it takes no effort at all.

You know that as Freshman you are required to speak to all upper classmen. Failure to comply results in your being reported to the Sophomore Court, which is no fun at all, believe us. The Sophs aren't trying to assert themselves or put on airs. Enforcing Freshman regulations is their job—and they will do it well. At times, they'd just as soon forget all about the Frosh and go on about their own business—especially at eight o'clock in the morning. But they went through Freshman training too; they realize the necessity for it. And they will enforce the rules.

Freshman regulations at the University of Delaware are not strict or hard to comply with. If you don't believe it, ask some of your high school friends who are going to other colleges—or look up some of the guys who were here before the war, when things were really rough for Frosh. They'll tell you what they went through or are going through—and you can thank your lucky stars that you're in the class of '53, U. of D.

Everybody wants to make a hit on campus—with his own classmates and with upper classmen too. You could, it's true, attract a lot of attention by dyeing your hair green, but that would hardly be a clever step toward insuring your popularity. It's the same story with Freshman regulations. You may attract attention by becoming a rule-breaker, but it won't be favorable attention. Delaware is no boarding school, nor it is a "country club" University. We have a lot of fun here, but we also do a great deal of good hard work. Our campus and our campus life are very important to us; we're proud of them and we want you to be proud of them too. Treat the campus with respect; treat our institutions with respect; and above all, treat yourself, as a part of the University, with respect. If you do, you'll do all right—we'll be proud of you and you of us. And when we meet you on campus, we'll mean the smile we use when we say, "Hi, Frosh!"

People You Should Know

Wray Hushebeck—the smiling, newly-elected president of the Student Government Association. Wray was graduated from Wilmington High School. On the Delaware campus, he has participated in varsity football until his Sophomore year, when he was injured in the Gettysburg game of that year. Wray is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity, of which he is now vice-president and is vice president of the Interfraternity Council. He is a member of the Varsity Club, the Scabbard and Blade, honorary military society, and Omicron Delta Kappa, the honorary leadership fraternity.

Jane Raymond—vice-prexy in charge of confusion in the SGA. Jane calls Havertown, Pa. home and Friends Central School mater. Jane is an English major and has been active on student committees on campus—we won't list them; any committee she hasn't been on has not been reported here. She has been a member of the Women's Athletic Association for the past three years, participating in hockey, basketball and softball. She is a member of the Canterbury Club and is working for official membership in the E-52 Players.

Lois Deiss—another Pennsylvanian (Lansdowne, this time) is a Business Major and an honor student. She is a W. A. A. hockey and volley ball star and also lends her height to the home team in inter-dorm basketball. She was co-chairman of her Freshman class and is one of the steady slaves at a student organization of ill (occasionally) repute called the Review. She is secretary of the Student Government Association this year.

Tom Runk—wiry mainstay of the University's wrestling team and captain of the tennis team. Tom is currently embroiled in the many duties of Chairman of Men's Affairs. A graduate of Newark High School, Tom entered the U. of D. after a sojourn in the U. S. Navy. Since entrance, he has been a member of the Cauldron staff, treasurer of the Junior Class and president of the Social Club. During the past summer he has been in training for this year's Freshman Class, having spent the vacation working at the Ferris Industrial School. Be on your good behaviour, Frosh; this man's experienced at enforcing regulations!

The Dean of Men

There are many new experiences in store for those entering college for the first time. One should expect this and come prepared to meet them. There will be many who are ready and willing to give all kinds of advice. It will be necessary for you to decide how much and what to take.

Don't judge instructors or courses on hearsay. Have courage to find out for yourself and develop your own opinions. If you feel you need advice and counseling, go to some one qualified through training and experience to give you proper guidance.

Always bear in mind that the reason for coming to college is to improve oneself for the tasks that come with growing up. In order to achieve this, it is necessary that you grow mentally, physically, and spiritually. The academic work is pretty well mapped out for you. Some of you know now what you want to be. Those who are in doubt should endeavor very soon to find out what their goal is to be and start at once toward attaining that goal.

One should also choose some extra-curricular activity in which he is interested and seriously work at it. There are many clubs and activities for students to select from. These things are also important for your proper growth.

There are several religious clubs on Campus and you would do well to affiliate with the one of your choice. This again is a factor in your overall development.

The important thing is to establish the proper balance between these and not become over-developed in any one.

I am here to be of service to you in any way that I can. I want you to feel free to come and see me when you feel you want to talk something over. I do not have all the answers, but I assure you I will be ready to listen and help wherever I can.

The Dean of Women

To the Women Students
University of Delaware:

Greetings and the heartiest of welcomes to all of you, especially to those who are entering college for the first time. I hope this year of 1949-50 will prove one of the most enjoyable and worthwhile you have ever spent.

The opportunities for education, both formal and informal, which the University offers are limited only by your capacity and efforts to take full advantage of them. Many look upon college as a succession of classes to be attended, tests to be passed, and study to be done. This is a very meager conception of the purpose of college. Most of you will never again have so much leisure as in the years here to read, to hear noted speakers, to listen to good music, to cultivate friends who are unlike the ones you had at home—do make the most of the extras offered you here. They make the difference between college and a correspondence course or independent study.

I urge you women students to take an active part in Student Government, through your hearty support of the Dormitory Councils and of your Women's Affairs Committee. Women are needed in public life today, from the PTA and Civic Clubs up to national politics. Participation in college organizations and politics will train you for participation and leadership in wider fields after college. Much is expected of college graduates, for they have had many more advantages than the average person. Your homes will be the better for your education, for in no place in our daily lives is there still more dependence on hearsay, prejudice, or outdated information.

This office exists for the welfare of the women students, commuter and resident alike. Let me help you in any way I can to make your college years truly worthwhile.

Amy Rextrew
Dean of Women.

1953

It was a bright blue day in September. The bells were ringing 8:10. Oswald O'Shaughnessy slipped quickly through the doors of U Hall, his knees shaking, and his heart pounding wildly. Having climbed the stairs, he searched the empty corridors for a room marked 210.

The unloiled doorknob screeched as he turned it. Oswald stepped in quietly as the professor, his head buried in the roll book, peered at the newcomer out of the sinister corner of his eye. A roar pierced the silence.

"O'Shaughnessy?"
Oswald bolted from the desk into which he had slipped.

Another roar: "You're late!"
A chilly murmur spread through the classroom. Oswald O'Shaughnessy was a marked man.

Because he had committed his first Educime, he was liable to be watched at all times. His name had resounded so that it was heard by all members of the Soph-Police. His name might even now be brought before the Big Sophomore, and that, as all persons in the class of Nineteen Fifty-Three knew, meant not only punishment, but often, hazation.

Oswald had entered the realm of the University of Delaware (in U-Speak, Udelia) a blithe young man, eager to take part in all that Udelia had to offer. He came from Delmar (the Delaware side) leaving behind him the peace, quiet, and chickens of downstate. The rosy thoughts of harness races, chicken-houses, and more chicken houses were immediately blotted from his mind after the experience in Room 210. His life thereafter became one of fear and horror.

The day of reckoning came one morning when Oswald, lifting his dink in courtesy to a shapely blonde (chick, in U-Speak), and pausing to scratch his crew-cut scalp, was spotted by a member of the Soph-Police. One could never

It's back to school at last—ah, for a rest after that vacation. You freshmen will like it here I'm sure. Of course it isn't the big city—you have to go to Wilmington for that. In fact, Newark is so small that there are hardly any places to go where you shouldn't be.

Hope you-all had a good summer.

I spent the summer as any red blooded American girl would—well, any anemic American girl. I raised a garden to while away the time. It was really a gem—eighteen carrots. There was almost a tomato, but some scroungy worm beat me to it. But it was so big he almost choked on it. I went horseback riding, too. I didn't know that anything filled with hay could be that hard. What a secret weapon—those things may replace autos, yet. Did some swimming, too. Can't say I enjoyed it too much—it's just a means of getting off a boat that you're sleeping on in case it starts to sink. I won't say I'm the laziest gal on earth, but I'm a contender for the crown.

And speaking of sinking, don't get mired down by worry about all those classes you have—they aren't so bad. Just because all the upper-classmen wear glasses that look like milk bottle bottoms, and the guys and gals who work in the labs are all round shouldered, and every once in a while they have to be carried out of a class frothing at the mouth—why that doesn't mean a thing. They're just conscientious.

I decided to give up all this life of study and work and live by my wits alone, once, but I almost starved. I've been told that I have a winning smile, though—it's just too bad that I have a losing face. You gals should be warned about the campus wolves—habitat: Lower Campus—Are most often seen between the hours of eight and ten. Are seen at other times away from usual hunting grounds—try the DeLuxe. Prey: single or groups of girls. They can usually be recognized at sight by upper classwomen, most of whom have had previous experience with them. Their usual call: "Hi there, you're new on campus, aren't you?" Some variations are used. Of course you have to develop some savoir-faire about the whole thing—or you'll never go out. Don't be too standoffish. Like this girl—

She frowned and called him Mr. Because in sport he kr. And so, for spite, That very night, This Mr. kr. sr.!

So, if things go as planned, you'll graduate in '53 much the wiser for experience, and much the happier for new friends made. Friends are easy to make here—so good luck, and remember keep smiling.

tell when a Soph-Policeman was in sight. He might be a grizzled veteran or a youngster anxiously awaiting his first whisker, a studious gentleman or a Joe-College.

Oswald's captor was a football player, tall and brawny, sporting a three-day growth of beard on his cleft chin. His great bulk pushed Oswald from the walk onto the green. "Ha!" cried the Soph-Policeman. "Walking on the grass, without a dink, and flirting with my best buddie's chick. Follow me, peon—we have a date with Big Sophomore."

Oswald's knees turned to water. He was led trembling into a room marked Seminar "B". There, he was confronted by the hydra, Big Sophomore. Many heads peered at the culprit. Behind him, a poster screamed the slogans of Soph-Class.

Dinks Are Chic
Sidewalks Are Necessary
Ain't Life Wonderful

The many heads converged in consultation, then dispersed to place themselves around the table. Oswald quaked in horror. In a single voice, all the heads of Big Sophomore delivered their verdict. Oswald was doomed—to HAZATION!

With apologies to Mr. George Orwell—'84.

1949 Edition of Blue Hens Promises Winning Season

Gridders Hard at Work To Turn Out Top Team

Three weeks of intensive two-a-day practice drills and a three-hour combat melee with the University of Maryland gridders have kept Bill Murray's Blue Hens busy since the opening of practice on August 29th, and although it's still too early to size up the current edition of the Birds, it appears that Murray and his staff are putting together another winning Delaware team.

Delaware students will be interested to know that Murray has made several innovations in the attack this year that represent a drastic departure from the offensive of previous years. The staff has balanced the line in contrast to the old style unbalanced forward wall to the left, and squared up the quarterback behind the center in T-formation style. It would be inaccurate to state flatly that Murray has switched to the T, because he'll keep his halfbacks out wide behind the ends in double-wing style, and the closest you can come to tagging the pattern would be "wing-T".

Several reasons have prompted the about face. Faced with the toughest schedule they've ever had, the Hens have had to add more deception to their attack, and the straight power plays famous in former days will be giving way to a speedier offensive marshalled by the quarterback. Passing, too, will profit by the switch, and the tossers will find it much easier to fling the pigskin behind the added protection of the balanced line. The same thing applies, of course, to the punting.

All in all, you can look for more deception, a speedier development of plays, more passing, and a flock of jack-rabbit backs operating behind a 200-pound-plus line utilizing brush blocks on the line and better down field protection.

Just who is going to supply the punch in the new look is a problem that's had the staff closeted late of nights. Fortunately, six veterans from the starting eleven of last year will be on hand again, and a host of promising newcomers will be backing them up. Reserve strength in several departments still has Murray commuting between field and aspirin, but the combat performances of several of the sophomores and juniors at Maryland last Saturday took lots of the pressure off this department.

At this stage of the game, it appears that all six of the '48 veterans will be back to claim their old jobs. Jack Gallagher, the rugged Celt from Athens, Pa., will hold down the right end spot, and he'll pair with Sam Macrum, the pass-snatching left flanker who pulled the Gettysburg and Rollins games out of the fire last year. Rocky Carzo, the likeable giant from Chester has moved into the left tackle spot after a spirited bid for honors here, and he'll team with big Moon Mullin at the gun. Co-captain Jack Miller, destined to become an all-time great as line-men go, gets the post position at left guard, and Teddy Youngling, the rough and rugged scrapper from Long Island, will be his running mate. Bulldog Murray will straddle the ball at center.

Charley Smith, the ex-Marine from Abington, Pa., will be directing the traffic from the quarterback slot, although he's being pressed hard by peppery Frank Guthridge. Smitty will handle the ball-handling, passing, and some of the kicking, and is a key man in the Murray plans. Hank Paris, the chunky speed boy from Freeport, retains his monopoly on the left halfback post, and he'll have as a running mate Larry O'Toole. Larry moves up after three years apprenticeship in the lower echelons, and he's looked good to date.

Co-captain Mariano "Nine" Stalloni, the Rocking Roman from Chester who led the backs in yardage last fall, returns to batter opposing lines from the plunging spot.

You've probably heard that Murray has installed the two-platoon system this year. That means separate offensive and defensive units, one to rest while the other's in action. It's still in the test pilot stage, but looks like it'll be the order of the day through the season.

The staff has been putting plenty of time on the make-up of this defensive unit, and at present it appears that the line will look something like this: Jack Gallagher and Stan Bilski at end, Miller and Phil Genthner at tackle, Tom Silk and Kappy Kaplowitz at guard, and Emil Milner and Bill Butler backing up the line. Ducky Carmichael and Johnny DeGasperis, a couple of sophomores that you'll be hearing plenty of, will pair at defensive halfback, and Joe Lank, another capable graduate of Marty Pierson's yearling eleven, is being groomed for the safety duties.

You may also expect plenty of action, both offensive and defensive, from such standouts as Eddie Samocki, Harry Stringer, Fred Schenck, Bill Grotzinger, Archie Rapposelli, Ray Wright, Dick Wells, Ray McCarthy, Don Boorse, and Bill Shockley, the last a quarterback with no previous experience who is going to do a lot of passing this fall.

Coach Murray Greets

It gives me a great deal of pleasure to welcome to the University on behalf of the Division of Health, Physical Education, and Athletics, the class of 1953. You have become a part of an institution that is prepared to offer you the best in educational opportunities, and I feel sure that you will want to avail yourselves of the excellent facilities that can be found on campus.

Certainly not the least of these opportunities, both from an educational and recreational point of view, are those made available by the Division of Health, Physical Education, and Athletics. Some-time during your stay at Delaware, you will come into contact with the University athletic program, and through the many avenues of association that are offered, you will find the staff ready and willing to serve your needs.

The University is represented in intercollegiate athletics by varsity teams in thirteen sports and by freshman teams in at least ten. One of the most pleasant experiences in the college life of a Delaware man is the honor of wearing the varsity "D". For those unable to participate in varsity and freshman sports, there is a vast intra-mural program offering competition between students in almost every activity.

Physical education classes, required in the first three years to enable your body to keep pace with the advance of your mind, are designed to afford a maximum of pleasure along with the dividends of healthful exercise. In addition, our well-equipped University dispensary, located at Delaware and South College avenue and supervised by Dr. Robert Duennen, stands ready to serve your emergency and clinical needs.

You will also find yourselves taking part in our program in another capacity, that of the spectator, or the "rooter". This less tangible association is one that is of great concern to us, and will in time be of some concern to you. One of the few opportunities that we have to compare ourselves or for others to compare us with other colleges and universities is in the athletic arena. We have learned from experience that the esteem or disfavor which an institution commands from the public and from other institutions very often is a result of their actions at athletic contests. All of us desire to be proud of that to which we belong, and you will always be proud of Delaware if you contribute to the feeling of sportsmanship and solidarity that is being built on our campus.

May we wish all of you success at Delaware, and we feel sure that by 1953 you will have enriched both ourselves and the University.

Most sincerely,
WILLIAM D. MURRAY,
Director of Health,
Physical Education, and Athletics

From the I. F. C. President

The Inter-Fraternity Council takes great pleasure in welcoming to the University the class of 1953. The Council is the representative regulatory body of the nine national fraternities on campus, and our welcome is the greeting of over four hundred fraternity men at Delaware.

The Inter-Fraternity Council has performed an important function in college affairs since its inception early in the century. Ever since the first nationally recognized fraternities appeared on campus, representatives from those groups have met periodically to coordinate their efforts, settle their differences, and plan tangible contributions to campus life. The Council has become a market place of ideas and cooperation, but not at the expense of a healthy rivalry that continues to sustain each individual fraternity.

The Council at present includes two representatives from each of the nine nationally known and well established fraternities. Such projects as inter-fraternity athletic competition, the inter-fraternity song and dramatic festival, sponsorship of war orphans, sponsorship of the annual Inter-Fraternity Ball, and the supervision of rushing currently furnish us with the majority of our work.

In addition, the Council takes an active interest in the social and political affairs of the campus, and you will discover that many of the important roles in campus life are played by fraternity men.

Many of you will certainly be interested in becoming part of the fraternity life at Delaware. The benefits which can be derived through association with a small, workable unit of closely knit friends cannot be emphasized enough. Most of the fraternities on campus are housed in comfortable homes, and all of them offer a full round of social activity, mutual academic effort, and an interest in University affairs that will stand you in good stead throughout your college career.

It is important to remember that you must have a "C" average for your first term work before you can be initiated into a fraternity. Should you fail to make this in February, you may still be eligible for pledging, but you may not become an active member until you either attain an overall average of 2.00 or an average of 2.00 for the term preceding initiation. The time to begin work on your average is now.

It is forbidden of fraternity men to speak to you of prospective membership in any way before the beginning of rushing. Rush weeks ly presented for Freshman Week, on the night of Sept. 16.

There will be two Laboratory Theatre programs, in which experiments in play selection, staging, casting and lighting as well as other phases of production, are tried. These will be on the nights of Oct. 27 and March 23. A Playbill, to consist of two or three one-act plays, will be seen on Feb. 23.

On several occasions, plays will be taken from Mitchell Hall to other auditoriums of the state, or visiting troupes of professional or amateur actors will entertain at Newark. On Oct. 24 there will be a drama clinic for Kent and Sussex Counties, and a clinic for New Castle County will be held on Oct. 31.

The state dramatic conference is scheduled for Dec. 3 and 4, and the finals of the state play festival is to be held April 28 and 29.

The annual Children's Theatre play will be staged at Mitchell Hall on March 31 and April 1, and then taken on tour on April 20, 21 and 22.

Newark's community theatre, the University Drama Group, will present two "guest-productions" at Mitchell Hall on Nov. 10, 11 and 12, and on Feb. 9, 10 and 11.

Marking the midway point of the year will be the presentation of "Julius Caesar" and "The Taming of the Shrew" by the Margaret Webster Shakespeare Company on Jan. 9.

NOTICE

Any experienced persons interested in working in the Soda Fountain may contact Mr. Ray Mortimer, manager. There are still a few positions open.

will be designated soon. It is to your advantage to avoid premature rushing.

The members of the Council are looking forward to meeting you at their rush parties and social functions. Until then, they wish you success and good luck.

current football season. Nine is co-captain of the varsity football team, has racked up a terrific athletic record in the past three years at Delaware. As varsity fullback, he has picked up well over a mile of ground in his three seasons to date, in addition to which he broke the javelin record in his Freshman year with a mighty toss of some 202 feet. A Business Ad. student. Nine hails from Chester, Pa. and shows a proud record of Air Corps service. He is a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

John "Bongo" Miller—our other co-captain of the Blue Hen Grid-ders this year has been called one of the best leaders the Delaware team has ever had. You will see him performing at guard position on offense and tackle at defense. An alumni of the Dover and Chester schools, this former Marine plays in rightfield position on the Hen baseball squad and is also an outstanding track man. He is a member of the Theta Chi fraternity.

Barbie Shafer—this pint-sized bundle of personality is at home anywhere, but gives allegiance to Allentown, Pa. She holds the reins on women's activities this year as Chairman of Women's Affairs. The position is one she is well-fitted for, having taken time off from her studies in the Home Economics Department last year to serve as Social Chairman of New Castle Hall.

Wayne Pollari—This is the boy who holds the position of Elsa Maxwell of the Delaware campus—our Social Chairman. Wayne is a Newark High grad, class of '43. Went from there to the U. S. Navy, where he spent two and a half years before matriculating at the U. of D. On campus, he has run up a notable record in extra-curricular life, starting it off with three years of varsity football. A member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, he was president of his Junior class last year and is now a member of ODK honorary fraternity and of the Intramural Athletic Council.

Bill Hughes—the guy who's said to have the biggest mouth on campus—the Review. A Junior this year, majoring in history, he is a member of the Kappa Alpha Order and Canterbury Club. After serving on the Review for two years in the comparative safety of the copy desk, he was made Editor-in-Chief—but don't let it worry you—his term will be over in April.

WARNING TO FROSH

The Sophomores are coming! Tuesday and Wednesday of next week will mark the return of all Sophomore and other upper-class students. Be sure to know your Freshman handbook thoroughly by then—you may be questioned!
