Castle backs improved child care services

by Cathy Thomas

DOVER — A $5.8 million package to ease child care woes in Delaware has been proposed by Gov. Michael N. Castle. The package, unveiled last week, is designed to increase the availability of child care for working parents in the state. "This is one of the most important issues facing American families today, and I feel the state should take the lead in solving the child care dilemma," said Castle. "I think it is up to the private sector to try to work with us to put it together. I have a lot of confidence in the private sector in Delaware. I'm convinced that it will take place."

Castle's proposal would underwrite new child care space for pre-schoolers and latch-key children in local schools, pay for child care training courses, convert the existing child care tax deduction to a tax credit and provide financial assistance for Delawareans who need help paying for child care. The demand for child care in Delaware exceeds the supply by some 6,000 slots for pre-schoolers and an estimated 20,000 slots for school-age children. Castle's package was presented to state legislators last week. "We're very pleased with the reception so far from legislators and people in the community," said Castle. "This clearly is a major problem in this country. We've gone on record as making a significant commitment." Included in the package are the following proposals:

- Schools will be asked to make space available to non-profit community agencies, providing latchkey or extended day care. The space would be provided at no cost so the care can be offered at a reasonable fee.
- Castle has proposed spending $200,000 in fiscal 1989 to help local school districts in program start-up.
- In the Christina School District, several agencies are making use of space in elementary schools to provide latch-key programs.
- School districts will be asked to identify unneeded space in their schools where a non-profit agency might provide full-day child care. $1.14 million has been proposed in the fiscal 1989 budget to renovate existing space, train child care providers and cover other costs to the schools.
- The current state tax deduction for child care would be changed to a tax credit and the percentage allowed would be increased from 25 percent to 50 percent of the federal deduction. The change would mean a loss of $2.5 million in revenue to the state.

- Child care subsidies would be provided to low income families. Non-profit child care providers in the school space would be asked to offer a number of slots at a reduced rate for eligible families. $1.24 million has been proposed in the new budget for this program. An additional $580,000 is requested to maintain current eligibility criteria for child care subsidies.

Newark Nite is a hit

On a typical Saturday night, it is not a very good idea to take a family stroll down the middle of Newark's Main Street. You'll likely get run over. But last Saturday was an exception, what with the street turned into a pedestrian mall for the third annual Newark Nite festival. Huge crowds filled Main Street, replacing the normal weekend traffic congestion. "My biggest thrill of Newark Nite is standing in the middle of Main Street and seeing the crowd. It's a big thrill," said Marguerite Ashley, economic development coordinator of the Newark Business Association, which sponsored the event. About six o'clock Saturday evening, Main Street was closed off to traffic so the festival could begin. Despite the threat of some rain and slightly cool temperatures, the event was well attended. "We had a sprinkle of rain at 4 o'clock, but it went real well," said Ashley. Visitors to Newark Nite were treated to all kinds of entertainment. Music was provided by the Newark Community Band, the North Street Four and Generations swing band, among others. About eight o'clock, the Juniata Park String Band, northeast Philadelphia mumpers, strutted their stuff down Main Street to the delight of Newark Nite visitors. Juniata Park performs in Philadelphia's annual New Year's Day Mummer's Parade. Ashley was particularly pleased

DuPont parkland deadline nears

Sussex Countians oppose purchase

by Cathy Thomas

DOVER — With a July 1 deadline nearing, several issues have yet to be resolved in the state's proposed purchase of 300 acres of duPont family property near Newark. "The state is not as prepared to move rapidly as developers. We have to go through a whole legislative process, approval process. So it is more difficult for us," said Gov. Michael N. Castle during a press conference here last week. DuPont family members have asked for a decision from the state by July 1 on the purchase of 300 acres of land located along Paper Mill Road northeast of Newark. The 300 acres would serve as a land bridge connecting the White Clay Creek Preserve, Carpenter State Park and the Middle Run Natural Area. The land bridge would allow wildlife to migrate among the natural areas. It would also allow people to visit all of the parks without crossing private property. Some concerns over the proposed land bridge have been expressed by Sussex County residents, who fear the expensive land in New Castle County would be purchased at the sacrifice of other proposed state parkland. "I think it's fairly evident to anyone who's watched the system here...that we're probably not going to purchase land in one part of the state without purchasing it in all parts of the state," said Castle. "You may have a different amount of acreage. You may have a different valuation. We're trying to look at a balanced program to help all parts of the state." The 300 acres of proposed parkland is part of a 1,000-acre tract to be developed by the duPont family. Office and residential development is planned on that property which is not set aside for parkland. The duPont family has offered nearly half of the proposed parkland to the state at a reduced rate, possibly as low as $10,000 an acre, if other parts of the site receive New Castle County zoning approval for office development. The rest of the land would have to be purchased at market value, which is approximately $50,000 an acre.

Storm swipes Newark

Greater Newark narrowly missed the ravages of a severe storm which struck neighboring Cecil County, Md. and caused heavy damage in and around Smyrna. The storm, which formed in Pennsylvania, carried sharp lightning, heavy rain, hail and powerful tornado-like winds. It struck Cecil County, just west of Newark, about 3:45 p.m. then moved southeast through Kent County, where it wreaked havoc on homes and property. Although Newark missed the brunt of the storm, it did receive heavy rains and suffered power outages which tied up rush hour traffic.

FYI

Eating breakfast can help you lose weight and live longer, according to University of Delaware Extension food and nutrition specialist Dr. Sue Snider. Citing a Minnesota study of six people, Snider said it was found that when the subjects consumed 2,000 calories at breakfast, all six lost weight. On the other hand, when they ate 2,000 calories at dinner, four of the six gained weight. A 10-year study of 7,000 people by the University of California at Los Angeles found that those who ate breakfast regularly lived longer. Snider said skipping breakfast and eating only two meals a day makes it difficult to obtain all the daily requirements of vitamins and minerals.

Harmony Rd. will be closed to through traffic

by Cathy Thomas

When Tony Iezzi moved into his house at 601 Harmony Road twenty years ago, he lived on a quiet residential street. Today, Harmony Road is a heavily traveled connector route, and each day carries nearly twice the number of vehicles that it was designed to service. "Every year, it (traffic) gets heavier," said Iezzi. Iezzi and other Harmony Road residents now have a glimmer of hope. New Castle County Councilman Mike Purzycki, D-Newark, announced Tuesday that negotiation with the Delaware Department of Transportation has resulted in a proposal to make a cul-de-sac of Harmony Road near Del. 273. The move would prevent motorists from using Harmony Road as a connector to and from Interstate 95. However, the cul-de-sac still is only a proposal and must receive the support of all the residents in the area during public hearings to be held in coming weeks.

If approved, the cul-de-sac will not be created for at least a couple of years, when DELDOT finishes work on the new Olgetown interchange which will facilitate motorists trying to reach I-95. A cul-de-sac at Harmony Road would force motorists coming from the Pike Creek Valley to travel west on Del. 4 and then take Del. 273 south to I-95. Motorists exiting the interstate highway would have to take the same route to go back to the Pike Creek Valley. Vic Singer, a New Castle County Civic League leader and a resident in the area, is pleased with the plan. "I think it (the cul-de-sac) is marvelous. I think that is the way it ought to be." Purzycki stood at the corner of Harmony and Brownleaf roads Tuesday evening, using the heavy traffic as a backdrop for his announcement. "I think the nightmare is over," said Purzycki. "It (Harmony Road) is a community road that is used as a major thoroughfare. I think it (the cul-de-sac) is quite an accomplishment. I hope the community supports it."

Mike Purzycki

Woo opens Senate campaign

by Cathy Thomas

WILMINGTON — Saying that America needs a new generation of political leaders, Delaware Lt. Gov. S.B. Woo of Newark formally announced his candidacy for U.S. Senate during a Democratic rally here Monday evening.

Woo will face Democratic opponent Samuel Beard in a September primary. The primary winner will campaign against Republican U.S. Senator William V. Roth, who is seeking a fourth six-year term in office.

Woo made no mention of Beard during the spirited rally, which began with a prayer and a performance of "America the Beautiful" by a local gospel singer.

However, Woo did acknowledge the past contributions of Roth, saying he was a decent man but not the right senator to do the job during the next six years.

"I believe that he (Roth) is

honest, though that does not mean I agree with him. I also believe that he has been dutiful, though that does not mean he has been innovative or that he is in tune with the times."

In his announcement, Woo said new skills would be required to deal with the changing world. He outlined what he referred to as three vital issues — global economic competition, technology and high-paying jobs and education.

"Our children are born as smart as any in the world. The responsibility of this generation of Americans is to make sure our children graduate ahead of, not behind, the rest of the world," said Woo. "When elected I will act to seek a more effective federal role to help Delaware and other states establish the best educational system possible for our children."

New Newark development plans being made available to public

by Cathy Thomas

Newarkers may find some interesting reading in the city's Comprehensive Development Plan II.

Although the plan was approved nearly a year ago, copies of the plan were not available for distribution until now.

The new plan updates the city's first comprehensive plan, which was written in 1969. Similar to the earlier efforts, Plan II outlines the city's general goals for the future with more detailed recommendations on specific city concerns.

"Recognizing the comprehensive plan as a guide, we still believe it ought to be relatively specific," said Roy Lopata, city planning director. "If it's too general, it gets ignored almost immediately."

Although the plan includes several recommendations on development matters, the final decision on any issue will still be up to the City Council.

"These are not the words of wisdom of the Ayatollah Lopata for the Council," said Lopata. "It is up to Council to make the final decision. Hopefully, City Council will use the plan as a guide."

Interest in the new plan is expected to grow as city property owners begin getting notices about rezoning proposals. Included in the new plan are recommendations to change some property zonings throughout the city.

While in one sense many of the rezoning proposals are considered housekeeping matters, Lopata said many zoning changes will reflect what is actually happening on the property.

Even if Council approves a plan recommendation to re-zone a piece of property, the existing use of the property will be allowed to continue under a non-conforming use permit.

Zoning changes proposed in the plan will be coming before Council later this summer. It will take several months for Council to consider all the zoning proposals included in the plan.

Much like other government comprehensive plans, issues of population, the environment, transportation, housing, economics and infrastructure are addressed. In many of the areas, Lopata said the city "hit the ground running" with the plan, already implementing many of the recommendations for improvements.

A unique area of the city plan deals with parkland. The plan stresses the need for the city to preserve open space.

"That's a very unusual thing for a city to do," said Lopata. "That (open space) is part of what makes Newark a nice city. We have open space. We don't want to blacktop the city from border to border."

The plan recommends the city set aside money in the capital improvement budget for the future acquisition of open space as it becomes available. The city's proposed capital improvement budget includes $25,000 for future land purchases.

Copies of the new comprehensive plan are in the Newark and the University of Delaware libraries. Individual copies of the plan may be purchased at the city planning department for $10 a copy.

PUBLIC NOTICES

• Summer day camp scholarships for the Newark Center YWCA program are available. The scholarships are funded by the City of Newark, and are for city residents only. The YWCA camp is for youths 4-14. For details, call 368-9173.

• Birchwood Park-Fox Chase Civic Association will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, June 13 in Gallaher Elementary School. Theme of the meeting will be an anniversary celebration, marking the accomplishments of the association since it was reorganized one year ago. On hand will be Gary Jones of Delmarva Power and Light Company, to discuss street lights, and a New Castle County complaints officer to answer questions about junk cars, high grass, trash and other concerns.

• Christina School District board of education will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 14 at Bayard Elementary School in Wilmington.

• A state Department of Insurance representative will be on hand 1-4 p.m. Tuesday, June 21 in the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd., to discuss insurance consumers' problems with policies or claims.

CORRECTION

• In the June 2 issue, the St. Mark's High School baseball team was mistakenly identified as the defending state champion. The Spartans were actually runner-up in the 1987 state tournament. But they did win this year's title. See page 1b.

• Also in the June 2 issue, a headline about the Johns Hopkins University talent search mistakenly identified that prestigious institution as John Hopkins. The Post regrets the error.

State police adopt no-warning policy

If you commit a dangerous moving violation while driving your vehicle this summer, don't expect any sympathy from the Delaware State Police.

From now through Labor Day weekend, the police will not issue any warning tickets for moving violations.

"Any type of moving violation that can cause an accident, you can expect to be cited for that," said Cpl. William Eubank, State Police spokesman.

Eubank said the strong stance on traffic violations is an effort to reduce the highway death toll. Accidents have claimed 71 lives so far this year compared to 48 at this time in 1987.

Eubank said not only has the death toll risen, but the number of crashes have also increased this year.

The "no warning ticket" policy follows other police efforts at reducing the number of accidents. Special enforcement projects, such as sobriety checkpoints, are being conducted by the police.

Also, during the next two months, the state police will add 1,200 manhours of patrol. This will be accomplished by administrative officers working four hours on patrol every week.

The administrative officers will be working in high accident areas at high accident times. They will be watching for speeders and hope to make their presence known to motorists.

Although state police officers will not issue warning tickets for moving violations during the summer, Eubank said it will still be up to the officer's discretion whether to issue warning tickets for minor equipment problems.

Fatal crash

Motorcyclist dies

A 23-year-old Newark man was killed Sunday, June 5, when he lost control of his motorcycle on Del. 273 near Eagle Run Road.

Eric J. Walker, of 21 Martindale Dr., was pronounced dead on arrival at Christiana Hospital shortly after the 12:25 a.m. accident.

According to Delaware State Police, Walker was traveling west on Del. 273 at a high rate of speed when he lost control of his motorcycle. The motorcycle struck a concrete curb before hitting a utility pole.

Walker, who was not wearing a helmet, was thrown from the motorcycle.

Walker's death brings to 77 the number of highway fatalities in Delaware this year compared to 53 during the same period in 1987.

Crash

Teen injured

A 16-year-old Newark teen suffered serious injuries in a two-car crash Friday, June 3, on Old Cooch's Bridge Road.

Mark Kortas, 312 Deerfield Road, was listed in serious condition Tuesday at Christiana Hospital.

According to New Castle County Police, Kortas was driving on Old Cooch's Bridge Road near Del. 896 when he lost control of his vehicle and collided with a car driven by Barbara Runner, 31, of Middletown.

Runner received minor injuries in the accident.

Tiffany Broomer, a first grade student at Gallaher Elementary School, represents the United States in the march of nations held last week as part of the school Olympics. A similar event was held today at Wilson Elementary.

Vincent A. Lofink, an account executive with National Office Supply Company, said he decided to run for the office because he is concerned about the pace and direction of new development in the district, which includes a portion of southern Newark.

"I don't think residents are happy with the way the development is occurring. If elected, I intend to use my office and my technical skills to promote a high quality of life for residents."

Lofink said he is also interested in combatting drug abuse, attracting and keeping qualified teachers in Delaware classrooms and tax relief for Lofink's career includes work as an industrial engineer, a planning analyst, systems analyst and a marketing account executive.

Chicken thieves at-large

Still on the loose are the chicken thieves who stole a seven-foot fiberglass fowl from a New Jersey food store and left it Newark.

Newark police suspect that Frank, as the bird is known, was taken from Fisher's Food Center in Bridgeton, N.J. last month and brought to Newark by college students who wanted to paint the chicken as a Delaware Blue Hen.

Police officers say they have identified suspects in the case and do expect to make some arrests.

Frank, who is somewhat of a tourist attraction in his hometown of Bridgeton, was taken from his perch in the early morning hours of May 23. About a week later, several citizens called the Newark police department with reports of the seven-foot chicken in the 100 block of West Main Street.

Serious damage was inflicted on the bird. Its head and legs were cut off and it has a gaping hole in its chest.

Owners of Fisher's Food Center hope to reclaim the bird and restore it to its perch in front of the store.

In the meantime, Newark police and New Jersey police officials are continuing their investigation.

Medical Center shifts cardiac surgery program

Some of the services offered to heart patients at the Medical Center of Delaware's Christiana Hospital near Newark will be permanently relocated to their Wilmington Hospital within the next couple of years.

The announcement follows a year of study by medical center officials and a hospital consulting firm.

The decision stems from the need to expand the cardiac surgery program and the high volume of other surgical cases at the Christiana Hospital. Space at the Wilmington Hospital has been earmarked for cardiac surgery and balloon angioplasty.

"Moving cardiac surgery allows greater operating efficiency at the Medical Center and represents the best utilization of our center-wide resources," said Medical Center President Allen L. Johnson. "We're at full capacity at Christiana, for the most part, but we have some room to expand services at Wilmington."

Johnson also said expansion of the heart program could not wait for the completion of new construction at the Christiana Hospital, which could take up to five years.

The move, which will cost about $4.5 million, will include all open heart surgery services, balloon angioplasty, cardiovascular intensive care and the opening of a cardiac catheterization lab. In addition, cardiac-related services at the Wilmington Hospital are to be enhanced.

Wilmington Hospital has undergone extensive interior renovations in recent years. Operating rooms have been upgraded with new technology and facilities.

In addition, proposals have been sought for the major redevelopment of the 10-acre Wilmington Hospital site. Real estate developers are expected to submit those proposals later this year.

Shue School

Fire damage

Two portable classrooms outside the Wilmer E. Shue Middle School were scorched by a small blaze late Monday afternoon.

No children were in the area of the fire, which damaged two walls of the classrooms in the school, located on Kirkwood Highway.

Although the cause of the fire has not been determined, authorities believe the fire is suspicious in nature.

"It (the fire) started in a partition between the two classrooms," said Dr. Hugh Ferguson, school principal.

The portable classrooms are located away from the main school building.

Volunteers from Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder and Mill Creek Fire Company fought the blaze, which was extinguished in a few minutes.

No dollar estimate of the damage has yet been determined. The state fire marshal's office is investigating the blaze.

Hair cuts to benefit Van for Judy drive

Judy Jones of Newark will be getting a new van later this month.

While the prospects of a new vehicle would excite just about anyone, for Judy the van means more than just a new set of wheels. It means new-found freedom.

A 38-year-old victim of cerebral palsy, Judy's mobility has been declining. Her father, who has been transporting her in a regular vehicle, has found it increasingly difficult to travel with Judy.

The new Chrysler Corporation van, purchased through a fund raising campaign of the Newark Working Partners Program, will enable Judy and her father to travel with greater ease.

Earlier fund raising efforts were successful. However, the campaign is still in need of $2,700 to completely pay for the $22,000 van.

Working Partners, a Republican organization, is joining forces with several local beauty salons for a fund raising Newark Haircutathon Saturday, June 11, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Proceeds from the sale of haircuts at several local salons will go to pay for the rest of the van.

Participating businesses include the New U at 170 E. Main St., the Beauty Spa, 44 E. Main St., Douglas-Schilling Hair Academy, 70 Amstel Ave., Bilcyn's Hair Company, 26 Haines St., and Hair Fixxors and Tanning, 83 1/2 S. Chapel St.

People are invited to walk in or make an appointment with any of the businesses participating in the event.

Better Newark

The A Better Newark Award for the month of June goes to Thomas and Georgia Wampler for their property at 39 East Park Place in the city.

The property was nominated for the award because of extensive renovations that have been made to the site.

The city's Conservation Advisory Commission established this monthly award to recognize owners of homes and businesses who attempt to improve the appearance of their properties through structural renovation and landscaping.

Nominations for the award can be submitted to the City Secretary in the Newark Municipal Building on Elkton Road.

Winner

Highway safety

A Newark student, Jackie Croy of Jennie Smith Elementary School, was named a winner Tuesday in a statewide highway safety contest.

The contest, sponsored by the Delaware Office of Highway Safety, asked students in kindergarten through third grade to design posters or write essays about Wonder Lady. The cartoon character is "spokesman" for a safety belt education program.

Croy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Croy of Lynch Farm Drive, was essay contest winner among first graders.

She was presented a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

CARE

The rate of state reimbursement to day care providers would be increased to continue availability of child care for income eligible families. $150,000 has been proposed in the new budget to fund the increased reimbursement.

Small employers, who alone cannot provide on-site day care, would be encouraged to develop a child care consortium with other employers.

While most of the proposals address the cost and availability of child care, Castle has also called on new standards to improve the quality of child care. Regulations for day care facilities have been updated to assure adequate health and safety standards for children.

Olde England, Newark High-style

by Nancy Turner

The inner courtyard of Newark High School was the stage for the 12th annual Royal Progress, held May 28-29.

The reenactment of the 16th Century English open air feast with its "ambrosial blanket" of period-authentic foods, Madrigal singers and Commedia presentation was a special treat for the 300 area "lords and ladies" who attended the two night production.

May's Royal Progress, like its December counterpart, the Elizabethan Rout, marks the climax of months of period music and theatrical studies of talented Newark High School student performers. The brainstorm of its producer, Donald Rittenhouse of the school's music department, it is unquestionably an impressive seasonal highlight.

The students and their sponsors began the task of transforming the school's 20th century inner courtyard into an Elizabethan village three days prior to the opening night performance.

Their 150 guests were seated at rustically dressed tables in the courtyard's perimeter, positioned beneath a continuous shelter of a dozen multicolored canopies. As the evening sun disappeared behind the school's large maple trees, the golden glow from oil torches and a hundred lighted table candles danced in the dusk.

In the center of the courtyard, to the entertainment pleasure of her majesty, Queen Elizabeth I and the Earl of Leicester, the Madrigal Consort shared their straw strewn natural stage with the Newark-Upon-Christina Players, heralding trumpeters, royal artisans, magicians, jugglers, a lively jester, a calf, and two small sheep.

Since the traditional collection of show-stopping chickens had "flown the coop" at an earlier performance, a newly-recruited piglet, with unusual vocal prowess, named Hamlet, wasted no time in gathering his share of the Madrigal limelight.

While mimes and tumblers frolicked, beautiful young ladies with floral crowns and their lords sang and danced around a colorful Maypole. Later, actors accustomed to performing in "Pageants and masques of the most spectacular kind," provided "a right pithy, pleasaunt and mekie comedie" entitled, "Gammer Gurton's Nedle," by Mr. S, circa 1550.

Guests enjoyed a luscious outdoor banquet that the students began preparing at 9 o'clock on the morning of each Progress, under the supervision of Loretta Rittenhouse, wife of Don Rittenhouse and long time food researcher.

Their feast included a reception of mead punch, baby beef ribs and marinated mushrooms, "gourdes in potage," "fillet of freshly caught fishe" with asparagus, "salade of fresh fruits" with poppy seed dressing and muffins, "broasted small hen in oranges," and an assortment of tarts, pears in ale and rum raisin pudding.

Rittenhouse explained that the recipes used in the Newark High School Royal Progress were as authentic to Elizabethan England as possible. A couple were prepared directly according to descriptions, found in a very old parchment book in the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

The Royal Progress is a work night for the students, so they do not have time to sit and enjoy the foods, but "stealing food from wenches is permitted if you don't get caught" said one young thespian.

For many Newark High School seniors, this spring's Royal Progress marks the end of their Madrigal careers as well as the end of a semester.

Patrick Huff, one of those seniors, played the role of Diccon, the Bedlam in "Gammer Gurton's Nedle." After appearing in a number of Routs and Progresses during the past three years he says he will miss performing, even the preparation involved with learning and memorizing Old English. But there is consolation.

"The way I look at it," said Huff, "next year we seniors are gonna be back and we're gonna eat!"

A $25,000 donation has been made to The Independence School by Dr. and Mrs. William Schmidt.

The Schmidts were winners of the Independence Parents' Association first fantasy raffle, held during the annual school May Fair.

As raffle winners, they were to receive either a 1988 Mercedes or $25,000 in cash. They accepted the cash, then donated the entire amount to the Annual Giving Fund in honor of the Independence faculty and their dedication to the education of the school's students.

That money placed the fund over its goal, and enables Independence to provides for its faculty enrichment fund.

The Schmidts are parents of two students at the school, Robbie and Benjamin.

Bill Daugherty and Robin Field, a new vaudeville duo, will perform at 8:15 p.m. Friday, June 17 in Bacchus Theatre in the University of Delaware's Perkins Student Center on Academy Street. Tickets cost $6. Call 451-2631.

Summer study trips

University program features opera, ballet, art and history

Indulge in a day of opera, ballet, art, theatre or history on a University of Delaware summer study trip, sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education.

Travel to the Philadelphia Academy of Music on Saturday June 11. The group will have lunch at a city restaurant before a matinee performance of "Swan Lake," by the Pennsylvania/Milwaukee Ballet. Registration fee is $80.

On Saturday, June 18, visit restored South Street Seaport, considered the birthplace of New York City. The day's activities will include a cruise on a 19th century-style "paddleboat" and a tour of the historic seaport, its fleet of ships and maritime museum. An alternate cruise on a fully-masted 19th century schooner is available, however, space is limited to eight passengers. Registration fee is $65.

Another New York trip, on Saturday, July 9, will feature the award-winning play "Fences," starring Billy Dee Williams. Written by August Wilson, the play has won a Tony Award, a Pulitzer Prize and the New York Drama Critics Circle Award. Participants will have the morning free for sightseeing and lunch before the matinee performance. Fee is $85.

If a weekend getaway is more to your liking, try the "Glimmerglass" opera adventure, scheduled Friday through Sunday, Aug. 5-7. The destination is Cooperstown, N.Y., the setting of the lake James Fenimore Cooper described as "glimmerglass" in his "Leather Stocking Tales."

After checking into an elegant family resort hotel, participants will tour Fenimore House and view one of the finest collections of American folk art in the country. After dinner, a gala evening performance of Offenbach's "Grand Duchess of Gerolstein," will be presented by the Glimmerglass Opera Co.

Saturday's activities will include a tour of the Farmers' Museum, a narrated yacht excursion on Lake Otsego and a backstage tour and recital at the opera house.

Sunday morning is open for sports, browsing the galleries or just relaxing. Before returning home, the group will visit the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum.

Registration fee, which includes selected meals, three museum admissions, the opera, recital, transportation and two nights' twin accommodations, is $375. Additional fee for a single room is $36. Fees include an advance illustrated faculty lecture.

Wind down the summer with a trip to New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art on Saturday, Aug. 20. Participate in a private guided tour of the Met's new permanent collection of ancient Chinese art, ranging from 2500 B.C. to the end of the T'ang Dynasty.

The afternoon will include another guided tour at the Asia Society Galleries. On view will be the collection of John D. Rockefeller III, representing more than 3,500 years and major Asian art traditions from Afghanistan to Japan. Trip fee is $80.

Participants will receive advance study notes for each excursion and distinguished University faculty will serve as study trip leaders.

Round-trip bus service from Clayton Hall in Newark and the Westcliffe Center in Wilmington is provided.

For more information or to register for any of the study trips, contact Judy Garry at the University's Division of Continuing Education, telephone 451-8840.

UNIVERSITY CALENDAR

• Ice skating classes will be offered in two five-week sessions starting Tuesday, June 14 at the University Ice Arena on South College Avenue. Precision skating — skating formations with groups in time to music — will be taught in one 10-week session. The classes are for all ages, from four-year-olds to adults, and each student will be allowed to progress at his or her own rate. For details and fees, call the Arena at 451-2668.

• A summer skating sampler will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays beginning June 15 at the University Ice Arena on South College Avenue. The free program will demonstrate the many kinds of programs available at the Arena, with skating professionals in ice dance, hockey, freestyle, precision skating and stroking classes. The samplers will be followed at 8 p.m. by public skating sessions. Cost of the public skating session is $2.50, and skate rental is $1.

• The University of Delaware Alumni Association is accepting reservations for a weekend trip to Annapolis Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 10-11. Focus of the trip will be the Delaware-Navy football game. In addition, there will be a tailgate luncheon, a cruise of Annapolis harbor, and a two-hour guided tour of historic Annapolis. Cost is $168 per person, and deadline is June 24. For details, call 451-2341.

UD English Language Institute seeks families to serve as hosts

The University of Delaware's English Language Institute is looking for families or individuals interested in meeting foreign students and becoming Host Families. Host Families do not provide housing but serve as friends to students visiting the United States.

Approximately 45 students are expected for the institute's session beginning Jan. 4. Institute students, most of whom are college-age or older, are in this country to study English only.

Many Japanese students attend the institute, so for those who have been to Japan or are interested in Japanese culture, this is an excellent opportunity to spend time with someone from that country. Many of the institute's students are career changers, specifically Japanese women who have worked for several years but have decided that they can get better jobs if they are bilingual or have had an American experience. As a result, they are highly motivated to study and to meet Americans.

These students are interested in getting to know Americans, seeing their homes, meeting their children and learning all about American life, everything from cooking to sports.

Families do not provide any financial support or commit great amounts of time. Those interested in becoming Host Families should be able to meet their student at least once every two weeks. This frequency allows the student and the family to become comfortable and makes the student feel welcomed and at ease.

The English Language Institute will assign a student to each family or individual, based on mutual interests. The institute does not want families to alter their routines in any way. A student should not be a burden by a new friend.

When the family meets the student, they can do anything from having dinner to going shopping to seeing a film — whatever the family normally does.

The Host Family program is not residential, but families interested in having students live in their homes should call the institute and ask about its Homestay Program.

To find out more about the Host Family program, contact Wendy Bulkowski or Dave Keifer at the University's English Language Institute in Newark, telephone 451-2675.

WHO EARNS WHAT

The gender gap is closing: working women earned 70 percent as much as working men last year, according to figures released by the Labor Department, up from the 62.5 percent of men's earnings they earned in 1979, when this data was first collected.

Young women did particularly well. Those in their 20s earned more than 80 percent of their male colleagues' salaries, and they're expected to have fewer work interruptions than their mothers did, keeping earnings high. Highest-paid women were the professionals and those employed as mechanics.

Black workers also closed a pay gap, moving up to 78 percent of the earnings of whites. Black women got the biggest increases in dollars in 1987.

For all full-time workers, median earnings rose from $366 in 1986 to $381 in 1987. Unfortunately, consumer prices rose more than pay, so that workers' buying power declined by $2 a week.

Child care is key concern across America

by Gov. Michael N. Castle

City deserves credit

The City of Newark is to be commended for its efforts in the battle against alcohol abuse.

Newark has long had a "drinking problem," largely because of the numbers of students, both from the University of Delaware and high schools in the region, who congregate downtown.

Drunkenness has often led to disturbances, unpleasantness and even crime.

The city is taking a multi-level approach to the problem, working in a positive manner with merchants who make their livings by selling alcoholic beverages while also beefing up police patrols to cut down on alcohol-related problems.

Of particular note are the Responsible Beverage Service Program (RBS) and the plain-clothes enforcement efforts.

Plain-clothes officers have been working outside bars, taverns and package stores to stop consumption by minors. The project sends a strong message to young drinkers that this community does not condone law-breaking.

In the long run, it can be hoped the project will make a dent in the underage drinking problem.

The RBS is administered by the city in cooperation with business owners. It is designed to ease the problem of overconsumption by offering alternatives. Businesses and individual employees are trained to spot intoxicated customers and encourage consumption of food and non-alcoholic beverages.

RBS is a unique program and one which, given time, should have a profound effect.

One of the most pressing concerns for Americans in the workforce today is not one we would have expected twenty years ago. It isn't salary or working conditions — although they are important — but, instead, what to do about child care.

By considering what's happening in our state, it's easy to see the significance of this issue. For example:

• Today, 120,000 working Delawareans, or more than one third of the work force, rely on some type of child care so they can go to work.

• There are 75,000 children between the ages of 0 and 13 living in Delaware households where both parents or the only parent work.

• Demands for child care slots exceed supply by an estimated

STATE SIDE

6,000 slots for pre-schoolers and an estimated 20,000 slots for school-age children in Delaware.

And, by 1995, the number of children in child care is expected to double.

Clearly, this is one of the most important issues facing Delawareans today, and I feel strongly that the state should take the lead in solving the child care dilemma.

This week, I presented a proposal designed to increase the availability of child care for working parents in Delaware.

It is a far-reaching proposal and is one of the most comprehensive offered by any state in the country. The proposal would underwrite new child-care space for pre-schoolers and latch-key children in local schools; pay for child-care training courses; convert the existing child care tax deduction to a tax credit; and provide financial assistance for Delawareans who need help paying for child care.

We are prepared to commit $5.8 million to putting this plan into action.

In the long run, we must rely on the private sector to develop innovative approaches to this problem, and on employers to join in the effort to provide good, economical care for the children of working parents. The state's role is to act in the short term, and to encourage efforts in private industry.

State should buy land

The state has a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to improve the quality of life of a significant number of Delawareans through the purchase of parkland offered by the duPont family.

It is an opportunity which must not be squandered.

The duPont family has offered to sell the state 100-to-300 acres, some at a cut rate and some at full market value, to create a land bridge linking Middle Run Natural Area, White Clay Creek Preserve and Carpenter State Park.

It is a wonderful concept, preserving a precious slice of land in an area in which the pressure to develop is tremendous.

Wildlife would benefit by being able to wander freely amongst the four areas. Humans would benefit by having access to a unique grouping of natural areas. And, diverging briefly from sheer practicality, let us not underestimate the importance of such open green space to the soul.

Some Sussex Countians have been barking that the state should not purchase this land, that it will do so at their expense. Nonsense. The state has been more than generous with Sussex County, and will continue to be so.

The fact is, this land is very important. By its purchase, Delaware could prove itself a leader in parks and recreation. The land bridge is a novel idea, and one which could become a model for other states to follow.

But the bottom line is, acquisition of this land is vital to the quality of life of Delaware residents.

Delaware has more than its share of road hogs

by Cathy Thomas

As of the end of May, I have been a Delaware resident for a year.

Moving here from the Midwest has meant a lot of changes in my life, mostly for the better. Delaware is enjoying good economic times, which is quite a contrast to the depressed economy of Tulsa, Okla., where I had lived.

Entertainment, travel and cultural opportunities abound in Delaware, as its central location makes it convenient to several major cities.

Life is different and in many ways, better, on the East Coast. But as a Delaware resident, I feel compelled to comment on the traffic situation here.

As of Wednesday, June 8, traffic accidents have resulted in the deaths of 77 people this year compared to 53 during the same period last year. It is a rather shocking statistic for such a small state.

Several factors may have contributed to the increased highway death toll. Alcohol is involved in nearly half of all accidents on the highway. Also, our state highway system has not been able to keep pace with the influx of cars on the roadways.

Another factor in the fatal crashes may simply be the total disregard for the laws designed to make our highways safe.

Travel 55 miles per hour on Interstate 95 and you may be putting your life in danger. Posted speed limits are ignored, turn signals are not used and some drivers follow so closely, they seem to be hooked onto your car.

Traveling 55-60 miles per hour down I-95 is obviously not fast enough for some motorists, who feel they own the road. The first time I had a driver flash his lights at me, I thought something was wrong with my car. Later, a state police officer explained to me that I was just in his way. Never mind that he could get around me and continue his high rate of speed; the fact of the matter was I was in his lane and he expected me to get out of his way.

As a radio traffic reporter in Missouri, I saw enough evidence that speed is a killer to last me for the rest of my life. I also saw how stupid and foolish acts by motorists resulted in undue pain and suffering for the victims and their families.

When I complained to a colleague about the traffic problems, their reaction was "welcome to the northeast corridor."

Delaware police officers are doing their job. The summer policy of no warning tickets for dangerous moving violations is a good one and may hopefully slow down the number of fatal crashes.

On a recent national television news program, a New Jersey state trooper said many drivers today consider driving much like a contest.

As far as I'm concerned, the games played by some motorists has no winners, only losers.

POSTBOX

Brookside

Center deteriorating

Shortly after Louis Capano purchased the Brookside Shopping Center, one of his representatives attended a Brookside Community Inc. meeting to enlighten the residents as to plans for the future of the shopping center.

The plans, as presented at the time, were very promising. However, they did not include the continued deterioration that the residents have been subjected to ever since the purchase.

Brookside, on the whole, take pride in their development and, with the addition of Texaco and McAroos and the renovation of Brookside Exxon — all very appealing looking businesses — the area is taking on a more modern, well-kept appearance.

Then we have the Brookside Shopping Center, a whole different world. It looks like the remnants of a war.

Since County Executive Rita Justice has declared a moratorium on building on U.S. 202, it's about time Mr. Capano made an effort to bring his existing properties up to par. Why are developers allowed to continue building when they don't maintain what they already own?

Obviously, there's no big money to be made in Brookside, but the residents deserve a little consideration.

To the Editor:

On May 25, 1988, my wife and I had the pleasure of seeing our second son graduate from Hodgson Vocational-Technical High School, a school committed to teaching those necessary skills for earning a living upon graduation from high school.

Christopher will be going to Kansas City, Kansas June 20-21 to represent Delaware in technical drafting in the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America contest. It is a contest of "our best" against the best from other states.

It is unfortunate, however, there are almost no scholarships given by corporate America for those deserving them who go on to trade schools or two-year colleges.

If we have a commitment to quality products from our workplaces, we must have quality-trained workers to regain our competitive position in the world marketplace.

To Christopher and the rest of the Delaware contingent, we know you all will represent us well. God speed.

Crash

Car hits house

A Newark woman received facial injuries in a crash early Tuesday, June 7.

According to New Castle County Police, Delores J. Daniels, 49, 33 Stature Dr., was injured when the car in which she was riding ran off of Memorial Drive in New Castle and struck a residence.

Police said Daniels was a passenger in a car driven by Ben L. Cobb, 35, of Elsmere. Cobb was traveling on Memorial Drive when his car struck a parked vehicle and then went off the road and struck a house.

Daniels was taken to Christiana Hospital for treatment of the injuries. Cobb was not hurt in the accident.

Assault

Woman grabbed

A Glasgow woman was the victim of a sexual assault Wednesday, June 1, near the intersection of U.S. 40 and U.S. 13.

According to Delaware State Police, the 19-year-old woman was walking eastbound on the westbound shoulder of U.S. 40 about 5:15 a.m. when she was grabbed from behind by a man.

The woman broke free and ran across the highway but was caught again by the man.

The man, armed with a tire iron, forced the woman into a wooded area where he assaulted her.

The man is described as a black male, 5-foot 10-inches tall, of medium build and wearing navy blue work pants and a grey sweatshirt with a bleach stain on the right shoulder.

State police are continuing their investigation of the incident.

Dukakis

Local support

Democratic Party leaders in Delaware have announced their endorsement of Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis for the party's presidential nomination.

In a joint statement, Sam Shipley, state party chairman, and Leah Betts, party vice chairman, explained the reasoning for the Dukakis endorsement:

"We believe Michael Dukakis has the experience and the platform to beat George Bush and become the next president. Dukakis demonstrates a unique ability (in having overseen) an economic comeback which benefitted all the people of Massachusetts."

St. Mark's ball team wins state title

For Davies, 'no regrets' after loss

by David Woolman

There is the same sense of disappointment at the end of the Newark High School baseball team's season this year as there has been in the three years previous, with the Yellow-jackets failing to reach the state championship game after winning Blue Hen Conference Flight A.

There was, still, plenty to be glad about, particularly in the eyes of the team's first-year manager.

"I have no regrets; I have to be pleased," said Harry Davies, baseball coach at Conrad High a number of years ago. "I never could have guessed that we could get as far as we did in my first year back."

The 'Jackets got as far as St. Mark's, the eventual state champs, in the semi-final round, losing 7-4.

After St. Mark's star Pedro Swann, son of a former Newark great, hit a two-run homer in the first inning, Newark came back to cut the deficit in half. Tim Pyle walked, moved to second on Bill DiIenno's ground out, and scored on Mitch Thomas's single.

The 'Jackets did not reply to the four runs St. Mark's scored in the third and fourth innings until the sixth, when DiIenno reached on an error, moved to second on another error, and scored on Bob Sonchen's infield single.

Newark scored two more in the seventh. Craig Klockars reached on an error, Tim Wagner walked, and Tim Pyle reached on a fielder's choice which erased Wagner. DiIenno drove Klockars and Pyle in with a double, but that was all Newark could manage.

"We came in pretty hard," said Tim Pyle. "Pedro's home run shut us down a little bit. We never really got behind much during the year, so we really didn't know what it was like. It was tough coming from out of it."

"We were up the whole game. We felt we could win right down to the last out. We're that kind of team."

"Near the end of the game, I started pitching like I should, and they only got a couple of hits," said Bob Sonchen. "If I pitched the whole game like that, it would have been closer."

"Pitching Tuesday and pitching today had something to do with it. I was three days short."

Sonchen pitched the 'Jackets to victory last Tuesday against Caesar Rodney in the second round of the tournament (Newark received a bye in the first round), an intense game which saw the score tied three times before Newark won 4-3.

Caesar Rodney struck first in the third, when Pete Augstadt hit a triple and scored on a fly out to Rob Callahan in center. Newark tied the score in the bottom of the inning when Callahan singled, moved to second when Pyle reached on an error, and scored on DiIenno's double to

Newark, Salesianum fall as Pedro Swann powers Spartans in playoffs

by David Woolman

Ultimately, it was St. Mark's High School relief pitcher Charlie Roper, finishing up as always, fooling Salesianum's Joe Verna into hitting a dying quail of a foul ball that was just within the reach of first baseman Craig Bilinski.

Bilinski made the catch to end the state championship game and give St. Mark's its second title in four years.

The Spartans had to defeat both Salesianum and Newark on the same Saturday on the same Wilson Field to do it. What is more, they did not make it seem to difficult, defeating Newark 7-4 to open the day, and putting up a 9-2 tally over Sallies to end it.

Before Saturday, St. Mark's coach Tom Lemon worried about the prospect of facing both Newark and Salesianum back-to-back. "If the anxiety I felt over the last three days was any indication we'd play a good game, then I'm glad for it. I've lost a lot of sleep over this."

The day itself provided anxiety for the Spartans for about three innings or so, those being the first of the second game. After getting out of a bases loaded situation in the top of the first, the Sals jumped out to a short lead off of pitcher John Kwoka. Mike Pfarrer walked, moved to second on a single by Hugh Broomall, reached third on a throwing error and scored on a wild pitch.

St. Mark's came up in the bottom of the third and that was about it. Leadoff batter Kwoka hit a double, Gary Lynch walked, and Pedro Swann then hit his second home run of the day to make the score St. Mark's 3, Sals 1.

Brian Wallace continued the inning with a double, Joe Kreisher walked, Mike Donovan brought Wallace in with a double, and Mike Smyth knocked in Kreisher and Donovan with a single to increase the St. Mark's lead to 6-1.

Kwoka fought off bases loaded situations in the fourth and fifth innings, giving up only one more run, when a Steve Tiller single scored Broomall in the fifth. Kwoka fell victim to a cramp in his right thigh during warmups before the sixth inning and was replaced by Roper, who allowed one hit and three walks to bring the Spartans home.

St. Mark's scored meaningless runs in the sixth and seventh to bring the score up to 9-2, notable only in that it was occasional starter Mike Smyth who hit the two-run single to bring his game total of RBIs to four.

This was the fourth time the Spartans faced Salesianum this season, having split the regular

St. Mark's got help from unexpected sources

by David Woolman

St. Mark's High School has a legacy of athletic prowess on many fields, one that causes every team to expect success.

This season, three teams in particular dealt with the kind of pressure to do well which comes with such tradition. What with the success of the soccer and wrestling teams in the state championships, the Spartan baseball team is the third to capture a state title.

Like the other two teams, the St. Mark's nine (or, more precisely, 18) has had notable success in the past few years, making the state final three years previous, and winning once. Last year's loss to Tower Hill made them a likely choice this year, despite their previous year's 9-8 record.

The Spartans returned a number of fine players from that squad, and had the expectations of a fine season. Those expectations came true, as the team finished with a total record of 19-2.

As is the case on most successful teams, the players who brought home the state title were a mix of the expected and the somewhat unexpected.

"Our goal at the beginning of the year was to play the best ball we could every day," said coach Tom Lemon. "I wanted us to be playing with a chance to win the championship on the last day.

Tim Sullivan pitches against Newark.

Not that we were going to win it, but get to the final four and hope we'd have a good day like we did today.

"I felt that we had a final four caliber team. I never wavered in that thinking. There were times during the year that we struggled a little bit, and we didn't play as well as we could in a couple of games, but I never really doubted or had a lack of confidence in our kids. I felt we had the ability to play baseball the

"I felt that we had a final four caliber team. I never wavered in that thinking. There were times during the year that we struggled a little bit, and we didn't play as well as we could in a couple of games, but I never really doubted or had a lack of confidence in our kids. I felt we had the ability to play baseball the way we did today."

Coach Tom Lemon

six, two walks, two home runs, five RBIs, four runs scored — was a display of the promise his teammates, the media, and he himself knew he had.

"I think this really made up for my struggling at the beginning of the season," said Swann. "I really came on strong at the end."

"There was a lot of pressure. College scouts were looking at me and I wanted to show them what I could do. I was too tense. I started to relax at the plate, then I started hitting like I should."

Swann had the game winning RBIs in the both games Saturday. "I really needed that. Now I can say I finished my high school career on a good note."

Swann will continue his baseball career at either Temple or West Chester University next fall.

Some of the unexpected play came from Tim Sullivan, whose pitching prowess came almost out of the blue. Though he only had Babe Ruth league pitching experience prior to this year, he annexed the number one spot in the rotation before the season was out.

"He started the year as a catcher and third baseman," said Lemon. "For him to go 9-0 is a credit to the kind of kid he is. He's been a battler for us this year."

"I go out every time hoping to win, but I never expected 9-0,"

SPORTS EXTRA

Caravel names coach

Lou DiMascio, former coach of girls state champion Ursuline Academy and assistant coach of boys state champion Wilmington High School, has been named head coach of the Caravel Academy boys basketball team. DiMascio replaces Tom Nagle, who resigned in the wake of a 4-17 season.

"In discussions with him, we think that he stands for the principles of the school in teaching and in building the right kind of program," says Carl Rice, acting headmaster of Caravel Academy.

DiMascio plans to introduce new ideas to bring a new enthusiasm to the program, which has never had a winning season. As head coach, he will oversee the Academy's basketball program from first grade up, and he hopes to build the basketball program from the ground up over the long term.

"I think it's a growth area," says DiMascio, a Salesianum grad who has been coaching basketball since the early 1970's. "I've worked at schools the same size as Caravel. Once your program starts to show a little success, that is the drawing card to get the kids to come."

"I wish it was November 14 tomorrow."

Randy Simmons honored

Newark native Randy Simmons, a St. Mark's High School alumnus and member of the University of Delaware baseball team, has been named second team all-East by the American Baseball Coaches Association.

The East Coast Conference most valuable player played centerfield and pitched for the Blue Hens. He hit ten home runs, had 50 RBIs and stole 22 bases while hitting .360. He went 4-0 on the mound with a 4.75 ERA and 31 strikeouts in 41 innings.

The junior was picked in the 19th round of the recent amateur draft by the Atlanta Braves, and has not yet decided whether or not to return to Delaware for his final year.

Woodsmen

Second place finish

The Woodsmen Football Club soccer team recently participated in the Springfield International Soccer Tournament and finished second in its age group.

The Newark-area independent team, which participates in the Nor-Del Soccer League, won two games and tied two games, including a 2-2 tie with the Ontario Maple Leafs, the eventual group winner.

Miles Dean, a Newark High School freshman, and Thad McBride, a ninth grader at St. Andrew's, each scored three goals in the tournament. McBride, Steve Smith from Newark High, Ben Biddle from St. Andrew's, Brian Thorpe from Glasgow High and Nick Pappanicholas from St. Mark's each had an assist.

The 1973 birth year team (14-15 year olds) finished 7-5-1 in the Nor-Del league this spring, scoring 30 goals and allowing 12 goals. The team is made up of teens from Newark, Bear, and St. Andrew's Academy.

They will be among the more than 100 teams participating in the Kirkwood Soccer Tournament June 18-20.

Medals

Taylor, Walker

Pat Walker and George Taylor won a combined eight events at the New Jersey Athletics Congress Masters Outdoor Track and Field Championships this past weekend.

Walker, girls track coach at Newark High School, won the 110 meter hurdles, the high jump and the discus in the 40-45 age group.

Taylor won the pole vault, the long jump, the triple jump, the javelin, the 300 meter hurdles, and finished second in the 100 meter hurdles.

Both are preparing for the pentathlon at the national masters track and field competition.

Purzycki

UD honoree

Joe Purzycki has received the first annual University of Delaware College of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreation's Outstanding Alumni Award for making a valuable contribution in his professional life.

The head football coach at James Madison University was a standout defensive back for the University of Delaware football team in the late 1960s.

He began his head coaching career at Woodbridge and Caesar Rodney high schools, served as assistant coach for the Hens in the late 1970s, and revamped the Delaware State College football program in four years before moving to JMU.

Purzycki earned three letters in football at Delaware, captained the 1969 team, earned AP Little All-America honors that year, and won the Taylor Memorial Trophy as the senior who contributed most to team morale.

Scott energizes Glasgow grid program

New football coach

seeks renewed spirit

among Dragons

by David Woolman

Glasgow quarterback Matt Olson runs with ball during 1987 contest. Next fall, under new coach David Scott, Dragon quarterbacks will be running less and throwing more.

David Scott remembers a time when he would drive around on a weekend afternoon and not fail to see pickup football games being played by high school age kids. That, he says, is the kind of spirit of fun and involvement he wants at Glasgow High School, where he has just been named head football coach, replacing Rennie Clements.

"What we need to do at Glasgow is to get a large number of kids and make football players out of them," says Scott, formerly an assistant coach at Glasgow, Widener College and Mt. Pleasant, as well as head coach at St. James in Penns Grove, N.J. "We think there are a lot of football players roaming in the halls that we want."

"We're looking for a direction," says Scott about Glasgow High. "The growth in the area has led to a growth in the community interest in the school. One of the directions of the change is in sports."

Getting a large number of students in the football program would facilitate change by creating a large spirited group within the school. Getting the numbers out is the problem.

"We have a little bit of an idea of how to keep the kids interested," says Scott. The idea is to keep the sport low key and fun:

- The freshman, and possibly JV teams will be run on a platoon system to get everyone playing.

- The offense will throw the ball a great deal, and probably be simpler to learn and execute than the Delaware Wing-T so popular at state high schools. "We want our kids to be students of the game," says Scott. "If it's fun, they'll do that."

- After the first few days, full gear practices will only be twice a week.

- Practices will be shorter, on a "get what you want and let them go" basis. "There are a lot of forces pulling them away from our team," says Scott. "We have to give them time to study, and to work if they want to."

The team will prepare in the pre-season, and spend the weeks between games brushing up and staying fresh and loose in order not to burn out before season's end.

Bigger players, especially linemen, will be encouraged to take advantage of Glasgow's lifting program as part of the practice, something Scott expects them to enjoy.

"Coaching is not all X's and O's. It's a holistic approach. If you make your team feel special, you'll have less of a problem."

An example of this is academic eligibility, something the Dragons have had a problem with in the past.

"If you stay on top of them and they see their importance to the team and that we're concerned about them, they'll stay on top of it."

Scott will be joined by a staff of six assistants, including three who return from last year: Walter Slay, Tony Rossi, and Andy Dick.

The new assistants are:
 • Scott Cressman, the varsity boys basketball coach, will be one of the new assistants. Scott worked under Cressman as JV basketball coach this past winter, and plans to do so in the future.

• John Mahoney, who Scott worked with at Mt. Pleasant and at St. James.

• John Lannutti, who Scott also worked with at Mt. Pleasant.

Scott and Cressman hope to get some of the basketball players involved, and Chuck McVaugh, the weight lifting coach, will be crucial to helping the players lift, and getting some of the lifters to be players.

"I don't think it's a rebuilding job," says Scott. "I think Rennie did a good job with the fundamentals."

"We'll be competitive, though it may take a few years. I'm here for the long haul. I think this is a place I could stick around."

season series and won the Catholic Conference playoff. The two teams also met four times in 1986, with St. Mark's winning three of those contests as well. Facing their rivals did have some affect on the personnel, particularly Kwoka, who twice injured himself in games against Sallies this year.

"Maybe I put out a little extra, try a little too hard and hurt myself," offered Kwoka as an explanation. "I just wanted to win after losing last year in extra innings."

Kwoka finished the year 4-1, somewhat disappointed after starting out as the team's number one pitcher, but quite happy with his contribution.

"Timmy (Sullivan) has been our best pitcher, and I've been struggling. Coach went with Timmy in the first game, and I wanted to win the second so I wouldn't let Timmy down."

Roper had too big a lead to earn the save, but finished with five on the season anyway.

"My job is to throw the ball, let them hit it, and let the defense get the out. I'm not here to blow anybody out. I'm here for the team, and this is what happens."

Pedro Swann started out the day with a homerun to right center to bring in Gary Lynch, who reached on a single, and give the Spartans a 2-0 lead over Newark in the top of the first inning. It did more than just give St. Mark's the early lead.

"A couple of guys came up to me and said that if I had a good day, the whole team would have a good day," said Swann. "I heard he (Bob Sonchen, the pitcher for Newark) had a good curveball. I just wanted to sit on his fastball. "I wanted to do well here because last year I didn't do any good and I wanted to make up for it. I wasn't nervous before the game, because we've been here before. I just got the team up and we hit hard."

Newark picked up a run in the first as well, but the Spartans hit some more in the third, with Swann and Brian Wallace hitting back-to-back singles to lead off the inning. Mike Donovan hit a single to drive in Swann. Wallace and Donovan were moved over when Dave Kucharzuk reached on an error, and both scored on a single by Tim Sullivan.

St. Mark's scored another in the fifth when Kucharzuk and Bilinski hit back-to-back doubles, and one more in the seventh on a solo home run by pinch hitter Mike Smyth. The seven runs were enough to hold off two brief, error-initiated rallies by Newark and advance the Spartans to the championships.

Tim Sullivan pitched a four hitter, giving up one earned run, walking one and striking out one to end the season 9-0. He pitched the 3-1 quarterfinal victory over Milford four days before as well.

"My arm felt a little tender yesterday, but I iced it all day," said Sullivan. "It felt great today. The adrenalin just kept flowing."

"I heard they (Newark) were a good hitting ballclub. I just went out there and pitched my game. It's hard to beat us when we get in front."

"We worked so hard during the season. We just came out here to win. That's all you could ask for."

St. Mark's star Tim Sullivan puts bat to ball during state tournament semifinal victory over crosstown rival Newark High.

The Riders took the lead again in the fourth. Mike Rigby hit another triple off Sonchen, and scored on Matt Bloch's single. Newark tied the game in the bottom of that inning as well, as Ted Raftovich hit a triple of his own, and scored on Klockars' sacrifice fly to right field.

Newark took the lead in the sixth, Raftovich hitting a Texas League-single to centerfield, and taking second base when it was left uncovered. The heads-up base running paid off when Bruce Hannah hit a single to knock Raftovich in.

Jeff Carlin kept CR's hopes alive in the seventh by hitting a triple and scoring on Pete Augustadt's sacrifice fly to DiLenno in right field to tie the game. The game looked headed for extra innings, but with two out in the bottom of the seventh, Pyle walked to set up the winning play.

Pyle headed for second on a straight steal play, but the ball was one DiLenno liked, and he stroked it past a diving right fielder for a single. With the jump Pyle had from the steal, he rounded third and beat the tag sliding home to win the game for Newark.

"I knew it was going to be a good game," said Davies. "I was hoping our kids weren't going to be rusty (after the week and a half between the end of the regular season and this game). I thought it hurt us more defensively that offensively."

"It was a good high school game," said Davies. "If we had lost this game, I wouldn't have been disappointed."

"I was jittery and what not," said Sonchen, who had runners on third six times in the game. "I was thinking about it during the game. I was talking to myself for the first time this season."

"I thought it (the CR game) really charged us up," said Davies after the St. Mark's game. "Our kids were really excited. It might have been the highlight of the whole season."

Both games saw the 'Jackets fall behind and still score runs. "That's another mark of our character," said Davies. "The kids did not quit, even under tournament pressure."

Yet that was not the best part of coaching for Davies. "These kids are just nice young men. They're a pleasure to coach. I never had a bad day at practice, and it's a credit to them."

"Coming back after seven years was the right decision."

said Sullivan. "I just worked hard and put myself in a position to do that."

Charlie Roper surprised many of his teammates, coming back from a year's recuperation from a knee operation and becoming the stopper. He earned five saves this season, making only one appearance longer than the two innings of work he did to sew up the championship against Sallies.

"Coach worked me into the position well," said Roper. "I was still nervous, but I felt comfortable."

Gary Lynch anchored the defense from second base, and added unexpected punch to the already powerful Spartan lineup.

"Coach put me at the top of the order and got my confidence up," said Lynch. "They expected me to hit, so I hit pretty good."

"We finally got our defense together. We've been having trouble finishing the games. We usually fall asleep." The two games saw St. Mark's get sloppy only briefly at the end of the Newark game, exorcising the demon that threatened to haunt them in their championship run.

Mike Smyth saw limited playing time this season, but continued to produce when called upon, hitting a pinch hit homerun in the semi-final game, and knocking in four runs in the championship game.

"It felt real good," said Smyth. "I was happy that I could contribute."

"I knew he could do it," said teammate Lynch. "He just never got the chance before. He finally did."

There were others, of course. Joe Kreisher, in his first year of varsity play, performed well as the designated hitter. Paul LaVigne quietly and efficiently led the pitching staff to unexpected heights behind the plate. Craig Bilinski had a fine year at first base...and the list goes on.

Your College Diploma Can Save You $400!

COLLEGE GRADUATE CERTIFICATE

PAY TO THE ORDER OF You

AMOUNT $400.00

Your Dodge Dealer!

1988

When you're just finishing college, the next best thing to a real job is some cold hard cash. That's exactly what your participating Dodge dealer will give you - $400 to put toward the new Dodge car or truck of your choice.* Plus, combine the $400 with our current cash back program* for even bigger savings. Choose a sporty Dodge Daytona or Shadow ES Turbo.

Just bring in the College Graduate Cash Certificate you received in the mail and apply it toward the purchase or lease of most new Dodge models. Didn't receive your Certificate? No problem. Just bring in your diploma from an accredited college or university dated within the last twelve months. You can still get the $400. Or if you haven't gotten your diploma yet but plan to within the next four months, bring along a letter from your college or university verifying your status.

This is Dodge's way of helping you get off to a good start. We know $400 will help make things a little easier for you now and, hopefully, make you a Dodge customer for a long time to come.

*$400 Certificate not applicable toward purchase or lease of Aries, Omni or Dakota 5 pickup. Purchaser must meet college graduation requirements. Ask for details. *On selected models in stock. Ask for details.

Wunder

Texaco promotion

Joseph F. Wunder of Newark has been promoted to the position of maintenance planner/analyst at Texaco's Delaware City refinery.

Wunder, who previously held the position of general service operator, has been an employee at the Delaware City plant since January 1983.

The promotion was announced by Richard G. Soehle, refinery manager.

Landini

WSFS appointment

Linda S. Landini of Newark has been appointed underwriter in the Wilmington Savings Fund Society mortgage department.

As underwriter, Landini will review conventional residential mortgage loans for underwriting approval, ensuring that each loan complies with regulatory requirements.

She is responsible for analyzing loan applications by reviewing credit reports, appraisals and other information.

Slap

New dealership

The Slap automobile organization has announced the opening of its third dealership, Matt Slap Ford in Kennett Square, Pa.

Grand opening ceremonies were held Saturday, June 4.

Matt Slap Ford joins Matt Slap Subaru of Newark and Dave Slap Subaru-Volkswagen of Feasterville, Pa. in the organization.

"Because of these two successful locations, we have a high name recognition in the Kennett area," said David M. Slap, president of the new agency.

Guide

'Small Business'

The latest edition of the "Small Business Start-Up Guide," published by the Delaware Development Office, is hot off the presses and ready for distribution.

The guide provides a clear, concise blueprint for start-up procedures. It details formation of a corporation, sources of financial assistance, tax incentives and requirements, licensing regulations, a listing of important contacts in state agencies, and a list of each city's separate requirements.

For copies, call the Delaware Development Office at 1-736-4271.

How to save enough money to build principal

by Steven V. Chantler

FINANCIAL DIRECTIONS

• Use forced savings plans. When asked, most employers will direct a portion of your salary to a savings account at a bank, credit union, savings and loan association, or even a special company savings plan.
• Save unexpected sums of money. When unexpected money arrives, like a year-end bonus, a money gift or an income tax refund, you may have the impulse to spend it quickly.

However, if you save such windfalls rather than spend them, you should be able to add substantially to your savings account.

• Keep making installment payments. If you make installment "repayments" on a consumer debt, you have an unusual opportunity to save. After making the last payment on the debt, simply continue to make payments to your savings account. You would build up funds quickly over a few months.

• Scrimp one month per year. If one month a year you make a concerted effort to scrimp on all expenses, you can accumulate a sizable amount of money for savings and investments. To do this, cut back on some planned expenditures and question every possible variable expense. Knowing that this level of frugality will end after 30 days may help motivate you toward success.

When you're ready to make the move from saving to investing, the first task is choosing an investment style that suits you: your tolerance for risk, your level of involvement and your long-term goals. A financial planner can help you recognize your tolerance for risk and draw up an appropriate financial game plan.

(Steven V. Chantler is a financial planner with IDS Financial Services of New Castle.)

McGraw, Powell to appear at local Macy's

Tug McGraw, the colorful former Philadelphia Phillies relief pitcher, and actress-turned-author Jane Powell will be special guests when the Christiana Mall Macy's hosts a special benefit shopping day for selected Delaware charitable organizations Tuesday, June 14.

During the special shopping day, admission to Macys will be by special ticket. Twenty-one charitable organizations, from the YWCA of New Castle County to the March of Dimes, have received tickets, and are selling them for $5 apiece to the general public.

The organizations will keep all proceeds from the ticket sales, and Macys will add another $3 for every ticket actually used

June 14. Bonuses of $2,000-to-$5,000 will be awarded to the three organizations which sell the most tickets.

In all, Macys officials expect the benefit day will enable individual organizations to raise $3,000-to-$10,000.

The day will feature contests, discounts and special events. Besides McGraw and Powell, special guests include the Philadelphia Eagle cheerleaders, Spiderman and Spiderwoman, Captain America, Susan from Sesame Street, Crash The Clown, Spencer Christian of "Good Morning America," chef KinJing Mark and professional football player Dan Reeder, a graduate of Christiana High School and the University of Delaware.

Participating charitable organizations are: American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, American Lung Association, American Red Cross, Catholic Social Services, CHILD Inc., Children's Bureau of Delaware, Delaware Association for Retarded Citizens, Delaware Hospice, Delaware March of Dimes.

Also, Geriatric Services of Delaware, Hadassah, Hagley Museum, Leukemia Society, Mental Health Association, Sunshine Club, St. Francis Hospital Junior Board, Spina Bifida Association, United Cerebral Palsy, Wilmington Flower Market and YWCA of New Castle County.

Tug McGraw will be at Macy's at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Coloradan seeks the 'azalea fix'

My sister Anne flew East last month. She needed, she said, a "quick azalea fix." That is to say — in case any policemen are reading this column — she wanted to see azaleas growing in the ground and blooming bigly and beautifully in all their shades of pink, white, purple, red, yellow and orange. She's from Colorado. The only places azaleas grow and bloom in Colorado are on dining room tables at Easter time. Even then, the plants are dinky and the blooms don't hold a stamen or a pistil to Delaware's.

Colorado may have its mountains, rushing streams, Coors beer, the best powder skiing in the world, the Aspen Summer Institute, a bracing climate, snow bunnies, and all around drop-dead scenery. However, Delaware has something Colorado can never have unless the state decides to move.

Delaware has spring. A long and full season of spring, a season to savor, delight in, and cherish — starting with winter aconites in January and crocus in February, moving through snow bells, daffodils, tulips, forsythia, lilacs, weeping cherries, dogwoods, wood hyacinths, azaleas, and ending in June with an absolute rhapsody of rhododendron. (Sorry about that, I get carried away when I write about spring.)

Colorado, on the other hand, only gets spring for two weeks — and that's if they're lucky. Can you imagine having crocus and lilacs at the same time?

Anyway, by the time we put her on the plane to go back to Colorado, Anne had all but overdosed on azaleas and that was without a trip to Longwood. I hate to think what her emotional state would have been had she visited Winterthur or stayed for the rhododendrons.

While Anne was here, we went grocery shopping. Of course that wasn't considered part of her sightseeing — Colorado has huge grocery stores in gigantic shopping centers just like Delaware does. But, my sister pointed out that Colorado's shopping centers don't have the rear-axle-eating potholes, nor do they have traffic patterns that require an advanced degree in mazes.

Anne went grocery shopping because, like me, she has allergies. Her allergies have to do with food and mine have to do with dust mites, household mites, and furry mutts. I know that you are not interested in all this, but bear with me because here comes the point of this column. As we attempted to move around the supermarket (our cart was one of those whose wheels had a mind of their own — obviously Republican 'cause they kept circling to the right), Anne, an intelligent and perceptive woman, raised a serious question: just how safe and nutritious is regular food in the grocery store when there is a special section labeled "health food?"

I'm willing to skip over the greeting card, motor oil, lawn chair and clock radio aisles. What I'm concerned about are the other food aisles. Doesn't logic tell you that a health food section implies that the other food sections aren't healthy? How good for you is the food that isn't in the health food section? Should you serve it to your family? Friends? Pets?

And as long as I'm in the grocery store, I'm going to bring up olives. Why do they only come in large, extra large, super large, jumbo, super jumbo, monstrous, and humongus?

There must be something in olives that affects the brains of those who label them and their by-products. Once you've checked out the olives, move on to olive oil. There is virgin olive oil, extra virgin olive oil, and superfine virgin olive oil. Since this is a family column in a family newspaper, and since I am a person of eminently good taste, I don't think it's appropriate to pursue this issue any further.

Finally using the same impeccable taste and innate common sense, I think I will wind this column up with only the briefest mention of the aisle where there are products that are currently labeled maxi, super-maxi, super-maxi-thin and super-maxi-extra-thin. Rumor has it that soon there will be a mega-maxi-extra-thin-plus.

'Best horse' puts best hoof forward

by David Woolman

A week before her wedding to Terry Griffith, Kathy Boutin had the usual worries — that it would rain on their outdoor ceremonies, that the flowers would not come, that the tuxedo would not fit the horse.

Fortunately, it did not rain, the flowers came, and since nobody knew what a tuxedo should look like on a horse, everything turned out alright after all Saturday afternoon in the walking ring at Delaware Park.

The horse in the top hat and tails (two were from the suit, one was his own) was The Maltese Cat, one of the thoroughbred horses Griffith trains at Delaware Park, and, ostensibly, the best man.

"The Cat" was part of a four-horse purchase Griffith made for $1,500, and from which he has since earned $40,000. Understandably, the horse has earned a place in Griffith's heart.

Griffith first brought up the idea of getting married in the walking ring, plus horse, at a New Year's party. It was the kind of idea Boutin expected from him.

"Terry's a little off the wall," says the Hockessin-raised 28-year-old. "I was a little confused, but to me, life should be enjoyed. Every day should be a little different."

"It's something different, but I don't mind. I always liked the idea of getting married in the walking ring. I'm just glad it's outside. I wanted as close to a natural wedding as possible. It's beautiful under those trees."

Certainly one element that made having a horse in her entourage acceptable was that she shares the same intense feeling for the horse as does Griffith.

"When I first saw The Maltese Cat, to me, he was an ordinary horse. Then his achievements won me over. He's a nice horse to be around. He has a good personality."

This chef won't chicken out

by Nancy Turner

At Glasgow High School, this man is known as Dr. Jack Bartley, teacher of biology and custodian of a Mississippi Map turtle, a half dozen cats, a 10-pound oscar, a crayfish, a rabbit named "Big Foot," and a hen that lays pre-dyed Easter eggs.

But the latest cackle has it that when the last school bell sounds on Friday, June 10, the mild mannered educator is going to "fly the coop" and head south to Salisbury, Md. to "check his chicken" in preparation for Saturday's Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest, 1988.

Bartley was chosen as one of 26 finalists from 12 northeastern states who will go on stage, before a panel of judges, and prep his winning chicken recipe, "from scratch." No yolk folks, his finger lickin' chicken has made it to the big time and friends around town are hoping that Bartley's entry, "Chicken Marsala with Artichoke Hearts," will put him in good pecking order for a top award or two.

After all, Ed McMahon just may not come through and prizes like a 10-day vacation for two to Hawaii, $1,000 cash, microwaves, gas grills, and cutlery aren't just chicken feed.

The judges will be evaluating each recipe on the bases of preparation ease, availability of ingredients, cost, and flavor.

To psyche up for the competition, the local champ has been practicing his special dish for his wife Susan, and relatives and friends, some of whom have formed a proud delegation to travel to Salisbury to get a bird's eye view of the event.

At home, dinner guests cluck over Bartley's broasted birds when his lamb is not racking up the compliments, but even on Szechuan meatloaf night, Bartley is known as the "host with the most."

Dr. Jack Bartley has fun in the kitchen.

He and Susan, who is also an accomplished cook, like to bring their guests into the kitchen and involve them in the meal's preparation. And afterwards, friends are more than delighted to spend hours of an evening around the Bartley's dining room table.

"For the amount of time that it takes to bake a plain meatloaf, you can put together a nice, inexpensive meal that's a little special," he said. "I try to use the ingredients that I have on hand. A lot of times, I will think about how I can mix different spices and flavors while I'm driving home from work. I can't remember the last time I used a recipe."

Bartley says that he has applied his knowledge of science to the art cooking, i.e., the effects of heat on different surfaces, how to seal in natural juices, microwave technology, chemistry, etc.

Newarkers in running for pageant title

The 1988 Miss Delaware Pageant will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 11 in the Rehoboth Beach Convention Center.

Competing for the title, and for the trip to the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., will be four Greater Newark representatives.

They are Miss New Castle County Carla Mutone, Miss University Laura Jean Wehner, Miss Newark Laura Marie Murray and Miss Christiana Vicki Lyn Swoboda.

Swoboda, 21, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Swoboda of New Castle, will perform a baton routine to "They're Playing Our Song."

Murray, also 21, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Murray, will sing "I Believe in Music."

Wehner, 19, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Wehner of New Jersey. She will present a dramatic monologue entitled "Primary Concern."

Mutone, 26, the daughter of Peter Mutone of Pennsylvania, will perform a piece from the classical ballet "Don Quixote."

The theme for the 1988 Miss Delaware show will be "Pure Imagination." Performing will be former Miss Delawares Anne Marie Jarka (1987), Jackie LaGuardia Gaston (1973) and Jodie Meade Graham (1981).

Tickets cost $12 for reserved seats, $9 for general admission. For tickets, call Bill or Doris Collins at 1-539-9292.

THE ARTS

Guitarist Peter Segal featured at Longwood

If you had an opportunity to schedule a concert for these summer months, what kind of location would you select? If you were asked to pick a serious artist with a program that was excellent, but in keeping with the location and the season and the setting, whom would you select? Considering the temperature this time of year, what hour of the day would you select for this concert? Well, what did you decide?

The performing arts coordinator for Longwood Gardens, Priscilla Johnson faced similar questions and, in my opinion, made some great decisions. Let's see if you agree.

Priscilla has arranged for the soft sounds of the classical guitar to float on the cool summer breeze on the Conservatory Terrace with Peter Segal responsible for the music. The concert is one week from today and begin at 7 p.m. How do you think she did?

The length of the concert is perfect for the setting and the mood of summer audiences, one hour. The Spanish music to be performed by Segal will be selected from the 18th to the 20th century. The program will include

Michael Praetorius' Courante I, Courante II, Balletto and Volta. "A Sephardic Life," a group of pieces based on medieval Spanish songs arranged by the American composer Michael White will provide a change of pace. Also on for the evening, 19th century composer Fernando Sor's Largo, Op. 7, and Rondo, Op. 22 and Three Preludes by Brazilian composer Heitor Villa-Lobos. Two favorites by Isaac Albeniz will form the finale, "Granda" and "Sevilla."

One of the nicest non-musical aspects of the concert is that it is free. The only money required is the usual admission to Longwood Gardens. This means that for the price of admission you can tour the gardens, attend the concert and then enjoy the fountain display. You can have a great day and evening without killing the old wallet. By the way, there is a restaurant with both full service and cafeteria dining available on the grounds.

On the topic of money, Priscilla told me that there are well over 300 concerts a year at Longwood for which no admission is charged! Knowing the quality of performance she insists on when hiring, that is indeed remarkable! The concerts are scheduled all year long, but the outdoor concerts this time of year are among the most popular.

Longwood is so easy to reach from the Newark area. It is only about a half hour drive through beautiful areas of Delaware and Pennsylvania. The entrance to the gardens is from U.S. Route 1, just east of Kennett Square, Pa.

Some of the other concerts set for Longwood include The First State symphonic Band, June 23; West Chester University Jazz Quintet, June 28; Mozart on the Terrace, July 5; Music and Folk Dancing of Finland, July 7; Lucille Reilly,

"The Dulcimer Lady," July 12 and I could keep on going. I have just listed a few of the concerts. All the activities fill a very attractive free brochure available from Longwood Gardens.

So many of the concerts are offered on nights when a display of Longwood's world famous fountains is scheduled. You may write for the free brochure; Longwood Gardens, P.O. Box 501, Kennett Square, PA 19348-0501.

Longwood's concerts are another event for the whole family to see and do together during the summer in our area. Go and enjoy!

Chapel Street show anything but 'Flat'

by Nancy Turner

AT A GLANCE

If there is a "correct" way for a community theater to conclude a performance season, Chapel Street Players' production of "Love in E Flat" is it.

Norma Krasna's romantic comedy about a surgical intern and his accommodating sweetheart next door is "just what the doctor ordered" to provide Chapel Street fans with enough good entertainment to last through the summer and bring them back for more next fall.

Directed by Craig A. Hall, with Debra R. McGuire as assistant director, "Love in E Flat" is uplifting and funny without being slapstick, suspenseful without being too serious, and romantic without becoming overly dramatic or melancholy. And it is anything but "flat."

Robert Welch, as the young physician, is the perfect complement to his stage love, played by Lynne Smith. Although the two do not have the opportunity to harmonize musically in the show, both are accomplished singers.

Welch seems to know exactly how to use his facial expressions to pull the audience into the scene, and Smith, who has a degree in theater from Eastern Michigan University, is in complete command of her character and, best of all, is very natural.

Blair Ferguson, who plays Welch's intern roommate, isn't so lucky with the girls because "they scratch." Ferguson is a witty guy off stage and only gets funnier under the lights, especially when he is eavesdropping.

Supporting actors Marsha L. Amato and Harold J. Young play the sister and brother-in-

The Chapel Street Players' production of "Love in E Flat" will continue Friday and Saturday evenings, June 10-11, 17-18 and 24-25. Curtain is 8:15 p.m.

The show, the Players' annual fund raising effort, is being staged in the Chapel Street Theater on North Chapel Street.

Tickets cost $8. For ticket information, call 368-2248.

law of the "E Flat" sweetheart. Amato has appeared in a number of community theaters in Pennsylvania and makes a fine debut at Chapel Street opposite Young, in his third production with the Newark troupe.

Young's performance is quite good, although those who have had the pleasure of seeing his work prior to "E Flat" would surely agree that when given the opportunity to act in serious drama, Young can create sheer power.

And last but not least, Renee O'Leary, in her 23rd Chapel Street FUNd-raising production, plays Ms. Cooper. If you want to be entertained with laughter, this is the part that will do it. O'Leary dazzles as a very secretive seller of undercover surveillance equipment and electronic monitoring devices.

On opening night, the audience laughed when she walked on stage in dark glasses and a trench coat, and laughed more when she "didn't have a name."

You might say that O'Leary is representative of good community theater — good enough to make them want more.

'Fantasy' concerts set

Fantasy, Noah Webster tells us, is a creation of the imagination, a whimsical notion, a caprice.

But most important, according to Ed Schwartz, director of the Newark Community Band, fantasy is fun.

So it is that the 1988 program of the 40-member band will feature a fantastic variety of music and narration, including Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" and medleys from Walt Disney films, Looney Tunes cartoons, and Jim Henson's Muppets.

Also, there will be music from "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Bremen Town Musicians."

As a special project, Roland Garton, guest conductor, brass player and composer, has written an introduction to the instruments of the band entitled "I'd Like To Teach About The

The program can be seen and heard at a variety of sites, including:

- Saturday, June 11, Bethany Beach Bandstand, 1 p.m.
- Monday, July 4, Newark Liberty Day, Carpenter State Park, 11 a.m.
- Wednesday, July 13, Carpenter State Park, 7 p.m.
- Thursday, July 21, Bellevue State Park, 7 p.m.

In addition, the band will perform free concerts at area retirement homes, Newark VFW, Christiana Mall, Concord Mall and during special events.

The band's offshoot, the Newark Dixie Ramblers jazz group, will perform at 1 p.m. Monday, July 4 at Carpenter State Park, at 7 p.m. Tuesday, July 26 at Bellevue State Park and at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3 at Carpenter State Park.

First State Band series

The Newark-based First State Symphonic Band, conducted by Lloyd H. Ross, will perform eight summer concerts at various locations throughout Delaware.

Following the summer series, Ross will step down as conductor, a position he has held for the last 10 years.

"I have really enjoyed these years with the band," he said. "It's a wonderful music ensemble and has great people."

Ross said he will leave the band because of other commitments. He is director of bands at Newark High School, and has become a part-time financial marketing service company representative.

"My time commitment has become too involved to continue and give the kind of concentration needed by the band," he said.

Ross added he will always support the band, because it "brings the young and the old together in the common sharing ground of music. The young benefit from the experience of the older musicians, and the older members keep young because of the energy and enthusiasm of the students."

The summer concert series is as follows:

- June 17, Hagley Museum fireworks.
- June 18, Wilmington Waterfest, 7:30 p.m.

- June 23, Longwood Gardens, 8 p.m.
- June 25, Bethany Beach, 8 p.m.
- June 29, Carpenter State Park, 7 p.m.
- July 1, Rehoboth Beach, 8 p.m.
- July 7, Bellevue State Park, 7 p.m.
- July 16, Cape May Convention Hall, 8 p.m.

ART

- L.B. Jones Gallery, 709 Tattall St., Wilmington, is showing the works of four artists through June. They are Janet Cleveland, ceramic sculpture;

Lanyon works to be shown at Fort Delaware

E. Jean Lanyon at work on Pea Patch Island.

An exhibition of E. Jean Lanyon watercolors depicting scenes from Pea Patch Island will open Saturday, June 11 at Fort Delaware State Park. Lanyon has spent much time on the Delaware River island, recording its wildlife and historic buildings. Fort Delaware was a notorious Union prison camp during the Civil War. "The landscape of Delaware is perhaps not as dramatic as that of South Dakota," Lanyon says, "but there is almost a secret beauty that is gentle, softly tonal and enchanting. It is one that must be tuned in, to look carefully for its whisper, to seep in the soft song of the marsh grasses, the birds in the reserve, the tangle of the wooded areas." Lanyon says the art resulting from time spent on Pea Patch Island reflects "contrasting elements of formal geometric patterning of the fort and tangled natural growth on the island itself." The works will be shown 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends at Fort Delaware State Park. Park admission is free, but the 15-minute boat ride from Delaware City is $2.50.

- Kathie Wolfson, ceramics; Steve Lewis, works on wood; and Carson T. Zullinger, photography. Opening reception for the artists will be held 5-7 p.m. Friday, June 10.
- "Shakespeare in 19th Century Painting: The Sandor Korein Collection" will run to June 26 at the Delaware Art Museum, 2301 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington. During the Shakespeare revival of the 18th and 19th centuries, artists drew on the playwright's many characters for inspiration. The Delaware Art Museum exhibition will highlight a portion of those works from the collection of Sandor Korein of East St. Louis, Ill. Museum Senior Docent Jeanne Funderburk will conduct special tours of the exhibition at 2 p.m. Tuesday, June 21 and 2 p.m. Saturday, June 25. For details, call 571-9590.
- "Helen Mason: Form and Spirit," an exhibition of recently completed multiple piece works by the Delaware ceramic artist, will run through June 19 at the Delaware Art Museum, 2301 Kentmere Parkway, Wilmington. Mason's works are based on the Japanese concept of the ceremonial gift. In Japan, gifts may be only tokens of modest value, but they are elaborately wrapped in beautiful materials and carefully tied so the process of unwrapping the gift becomes the central focus of the gift-giving ceremony.
- Sculpture of Newark artist Debbie Hegedus will be on view through June at the Delaware State Arts Council Gallery I in the Carvel State Building, 9th and French streets, Wilmington. A reception for the artist will be held 5-8 p.m. Friday, June 10. Also, the DSAC Gallery II will show photographs by Ken Marchionno, a university of Delaware graduate, through the month.

- "The Lasting Image," an exhibition of natural history sculptures by local artist A.J. Obara Jr., will run through Sept. 4 at the Delaware Museum of Natural History, Del. 52, Greenville.

BEST HORSE

Boutin, ever the trooper, was not bothered by the media circus that developed around what was planned to be a small, quiet service. The story was picked up off the wire services by The New York Post, a number of local papers were present and the ABC affiliate from Philadelphia showed up. "I think it's great. It's great publicity for Delaware Park, it's good publicity for Terry, and hey, it's for fun." Shortly after the ceremony, the bride and groom departed for the box seats, where the couple spent the day, as usual, watching the races. A reception was held after the races in the clubhouse. "We started simple, with dresses and not gowns. Now that I've really gotten into it, I would have liked to have gone 18th century, with the dresses and coming up in the carriage, and the whole bit, with hats." Quite a jump for a couple that met in a feed store south of Newark. At the time, Boutin ran a boarding facility for horses on Frazer Road in Glasgow. "I had never been on the racetrack backside until I met Terry." Now, she helps him care for the horses, and with her purchase of South Ten Farm south of Odessa, will take care of the horses Terry lays up from racing. She first started riding Chincoteague ponies at the age of five, owned her first thoroughbred at nine, and has ridden horses for show and pleasure since. She plans to get more serious about riding when the farm is set up. Sunday found the couple in their usual box, sans formal clothes and media coverage, with her children, Jessica and Travis, in tow.

CHICKEN

Most of his cooking experience has been gathered from casual hands-on practice and "winging it," although he did get some of his foundation training by observing the chefs of Potter's Lodge on Blue Mountain Lake in New York during his summers away from Radnor College. Later, while serving a five-year tour of duty in the U.S. Navy, the Vilaneuva native expanded his culinary repertoire to include many Polynesian and Oriental dishes. This Saturday's contest, sponsored by the Delmarva Poultry Industry will be Bartley's first attempt at competition cooking. His friends in Newark wish him well and win or lose, they figure this biology teacher and his "Chicken Marsala with Artichoke Hearts" are both well worth crowing about.

'Pig pastor'

Courageous Haitian minister to speak in Newark

The Rev. Alain Rocourt of Haiti, who was in the thick of efforts to democratize that nation before being driven from his home in a hail of bullets, will be special guest speaker at Newark United Methodist Church on Sunday, June 12.

Rocourt, who will speak during the 9:30 a.m. worship service, was reared in a Methodist home and, after earning a bachelor of divinity degree in 1954, began active ministry in his homeland of Haiti.

In 1960, he became deeply interested in the dire poverty of the peasants of Jeremie, whose chief income was derived from the sale of pigs. The pigs continually died of cholera, causing severe economic hardship among the peasants.

Rocourt took it upon himself to learn about cholera, and soon began securing vaccine to protect the stock. Carrying the vaccine in a flask, he visited the peasants on horseback to offer vaccinations and became known as the 'pig pastor.'

His venture grew into the largest rural development project managed by any church in Haiti.

Rocourt created the Port-au-Prince Lay Leadership Training Center in 1970, with satellite centers in four different geographical areas.

When the dictatorial regime of the Duvalier family fell in February 1986, Rocourt believed the church was blessed with an opportunity to develop a new consciousness among the masses about personal dignity and the role the common people could play in shaping a new government.

A program named Formation in Haitian Christian Citizenship was designed, with 2,000 workers carrying the vision to the people.

Rocourt was chosen as the Federation of Protestant Churches' representative to the Haitian Electoral Council in June 1987. The Council was given the task of organizing and controlling the general elections, and Rocourt was known for his support of democracy.

Rev. Alain Rocourt, exile from Haiti.

The Nov. 29, 1988 election ended in bloodshed, and Rocourt's home was attacked by soldiers and 'tontons macoutes' armed with hand grenades and submachine guns.

Rocourt and his family escaped unhurt and went into hiding. With the help of family and friends, they escaped to the United States.

Salem Church's Jester wins Denman Award

Barbara Jester, a member of Salem United Methodist Church near Newark was awarded the prestigious Denman Award for Evangelism by the Peninsula Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The award was made on Tuesday evening, May 24, in a special ceremony prior to the gala celebration of the 250th anniversary of John Wesley's Aldersgate experience.

In selecting Jester for the award, the Division of Evangelism of the Conference, said, "Her record, both at the local church level and the conference level, is without equal. She has given freely of her time in service and travel for the cause of evangelism."

The statement went on to say, "We know her best by the leadership she brings the Conference through her work as secretary of the Division of Evangelism. She exhibited outstanding leadership in the 'Ways of Witnessing' program and 'Offer Them Christ.'"

The division feels that her major strength is in her ability to motivate and coordinate local churches in her district for evangelism.

A life-long United Methodist, Jester gave her life to Christ at the age of thirteen while she was a camper at Camp Pecometh, the youth camp near Centerville, Maryland, owned and operated by the Conference. She grew up in Mt. Salem United Methodist Church, but is now an active member of Salem.

She has worked in evangelism on the conference level, serving as an officer of the Division of Evangelism for the last four years. She has been re-nominated, and is expected to be re-elected, to serve again on that division.

In her local church she is on the "Reach Out Team," their evangelism team. Working creatively to welcome newcomers, as well as to care for regular members, the team visits every visitor to Salem UMC on the Sunday they visit, if possible. Contacts are made early in the week to those unable to be reached on Sunday.

Salem UMC has grown in recent years. They just completed a new building on Salem Church Road to house their growing congregation. "We now are visible," Jester said, "because we have a steeple."

Jester has also been the chairperson of evangelism for the church. She left that post, to allow a younger person with "great ideas for evangelism" to continue the work.

Jester is married to Lawrence Jester, and they are the parents of two grown children and the grandparents of one.

Commenting about her award and her work in evangelism, Jester said, "I feel strongly about 'Offer Them Christ' (a conference-wide evangelism program in 1987) in our area and how it has been a tremendous outreach in our community. If it continues in this vein of reaching out in Christ's name, we will be doing the work of the church."

Glasgow Presbyterian breaks ground for church

Glasgow Reformed Presbyterian Church held ground breaking ceremonies Sunday, June 5 for its new $1.1 million facility.

The new church will be constructed on a 15-acre tract on Del. 896, about one and one-half miles south of Glasgow.

Church leaders selected the site because it is centered in one of New Castle County's fastest-growing areas.

In making plans for the new church, they worked closely with the Delaware Department of Transportation, which is planning to rebuild Del. 896, and with a developer who is planning to construct a residential community adjacent to the church property.

The 16,600-square-foot structure will be built by Watco Inc.

of Newark, and is scheduled for occupancy in March 1989.

The design follows the lines of traditional church architecture, with a brick exterior and colonial trim.

In addition to a 1,000-seat sanctuary, the building will contain church offices, multi-purpose educational facilities and nursery accommodations. Construction is being financed by two bond issues administered through the Reliance Trust Company of Atlanta, Ga.

Glasgow Reformed Presbyterian Church was established in 1986 to meet the spiritual needs of the growing Glasgow area. Today, average attendance is 470.

The congregation currently meets in the Wilton Corporate Center on U.S. 40 at Wilton.

Swedes will compete in Kirkwood Soccer Tournament

Two girls teams from Sweden and two boys teams from the Philippines will be featured at the annual Kirkwood Soccer Club tournament to be held Friday, June 17 through Monday, June 20.

More than 3,000 players from 184 teams in 15 age brackets will play 317 games on 19 different Newark-area fields over the course of the three-day event.

The Swedish teams are from Kalmar Sweden, sister city to Wilmington. Outside of the teams from the Philippines, all the other teams are from the East Coast.

Kirkwood representative teams will be among the competitors.

Thirty of the teams will be housed with Kirkwood players, local teams will commute, and the rest will fill up the local hotels. The economic impact of the 10,000 people the tournament draws is staggering.

The tournament starts with registration at 5 p.m. on Friday. The preliminary rounds start at 8 a.m. Saturday, and run to Sunday night. The final rounds will start Monday at 8 a.m. Rules of the tournament assure each team at least three games.

The games will be played at a number of fields around Newark: a plurality at the University of Delaware stadium complex off South College Avenue, and also fields at the University of Delaware Carpenter athletic complex off Main Street, Newark High School, Glasgow High School, McVey Elementary School, Gauger Middle School, and the Kells Avenue Park.

Headquarters for the tournament are underneath the Delaware Stadium bleachers (on the home side, facing South College Avenue). Schedules and all information about the tournament will be available there, as will concessions and premiums.

Gymnasts Sharon Donato and Susan Wineberg are teammates and friends.

On the beam

Friends Donato, Wineberg compete in gymnastics nationals

by David Woolman

They shaved their legs, cut their fingernails and toenails, and laid off ice cream for a week to prepare. Who ever said gymnastics was easy?

Sharon Donato and Susan Wineberg participated in the U.S. Association of Independent Gymnastics Club nationals this past weekend. And while some of their preparations are lighthearted (shaving their legs and cutting their nails "makes us feel lighter," says Donato; cutting back on the ice cream actually does), the nationals, like any other meet, are taken very seriously.

"I guess you could say they're nerve-wracking," says Wineberg, a sophomore at Newark High School. "I get real quiet."

"She gets mean," says Donato, a senior at William Penn, inducing some friendly fisticuffs between the friends.

They first met five years ago at First State Gymnastic Club. Now, they carpool to Harford County, Md., where they train, Donato in Class II and Wineberg in Class I. Only the elite class, achieved by Newark gymnast Wendy Weaver and national team aspirants, is higher.

The effort is taxing in any number of ways. "I have one hour to do my homework before leaving for Harford," says Donato. "I try to do it in the car as I'm not tired."

"When you get home, you're tired, and don't feel like doing homework," says Wineberg. Their academics have survived, Donato earning high honors at Penn and acceptance to the University of Delaware.

Neither has much chance to socialize outside of class or participate in the usual gamut of high school activities.

"I have a limited number of friends at school, but they're good ones," says Wineberg. "They understand why you can't do things."

The friends they have made through gymnastics, in the gym and across the country, have made up for it, say the pair.

These things, plus the physical and emotional strain of training and competition has brought up the idea of quitting

AT A GLANCE

Anna Wojewodzki, a member of the advanced optional team at Rebounders Gymnastics Center, also qualified to the U.S. Association of Independent Gymnastics Club nationals held June 9-11 in Greenville, S.C.

Wojewodzki has been a member of the team for two years, during which she has competed in Buffalo, N.Y., Lansing, Mich., and Tampa, Fla.

She qualified for the nationals with a 34.25 all around score in a meet this year.

She won the Most Improved Gymnast award for the team, which will travel to Brisbane, Australia to perform at the World Expo this summer.

Wojewodzki, 14, is an honor roll student at Shue Middle School, where she plays first clarinet in the school band.

"lots of times," says Donato. She never really has, though. "It's a way of life."

"I don't think I ever disliked going," says Wineberg. "It's fun. I'm bored when I'm not in the gym."

This was Donato's last meet. Delaware does not have a gymnastics team, and going to college and compete would be too much of a strain.

Wineberg plans to continue, moving to advanced optional competition next year. She hopes to get a scholarship to compete on the college level. A number of things kept her from moving to elite class.

"I thought I had the motivation when I was 11 (when she first qualified for Class I) but things changed." The training is that much harder and the pressure is that much higher. She now feels it would not have been as much fun.

"I never really wanted to go to the Olympics," says Wineberg. "I just wanted to be Class I."

She sees only one drawback to continued participation to the sport. "I'm really going to miss Sharon."

Stormy round costs Matt Gordon in state tourney

by David Woolman

This time it was Matt Gordon's turn to be the Newark High School freshman to terrorize the best golfers in the state.

After last week's seventh place finish in the Blue Hen Conference tournament, behind teammate and medalist, freshman Jason Burns, Gordon shot a 75 to tie for the lead after the first round of the state golf tournament at Garrison Lake near Smyrna.

Another 18 holes saw him on the final green with a chance to tie before all hell broke loose, but more about that later.

"I was just hoping I would finish in the top seven," said Gordon of his feelings going into the tournament. "After the first day, I thought I had a shot."

His 75 was the best score he had ever put up at Garrison Lake, a course he says he likes very much. He felt a little nervous that night, and the next morning, Newark High team captain Ty Tomashek helped calm him down on the ride down to the course.

"I really putted well," said Gordon. "Everything was falling into the hole."

"Today I wasn't very consistent," he added in hindsight. "I should have played better. I didn't hit a lot of greens. I just sank the up and downs. When I got done, I looked back on my round and felt disturbed."

After putting past the hole all day, he tried to adjust and hit his first puts on 16 and 17 too short, and ended up three putting both.

This left him on the 18th tee with what he thought was a tie. He played to the green before the thunderstorm-cum-tornado ripped through Smyrna, and officials made him mark his ball and stop play for 20 minutes.

"On 18 I was really nervous, because there were a lot of people around," said Gordon, who admitted that stopping for 20 minutes and putting for the state

Funding snag delays Glasgow stadium lights

Plans to have lights installed at the Glasgow High School stadium has reached an impasse which is likely to prevent installation before the 1988 football season. The problem is money.

"We're a little short financially of getting it done by the fall," said Bob Bowers, the project coordinator. "I'm a little disappointed."

The project is being funded totally by private donations from the community; no school district or other public funds will be used. It was hoped that needed materials and services would be donated as well, but offers have fallen short.

Bowers is encouraged by the presence of corporate support, with Jiffy Lube providing partial sponsorship. Linda Forshey, in charge of retaining corporate sponsors for the project, is looking for more support from the business community.

It is anticipated that there will be enough money to complete the project in February or March of 1989.

The Glasgow High Booster organization will lay the electrical conduit very soon with the money and services they have, and complete the project when more money comes in.

Working with the concept first used in the area by Newark High School, the Glasgow High Athletic and Band Booster Parents Organization decided to light the stadium in order to hold athletic and other events, like band competitions, at night to make the activities more Coach Ron Ludington and skaters.

Ludington 'coach of year'

Ron Ludington, director of the University of Delaware's Ice Skating Science Development Center, was named coach of the year by the Ice Skating Institute of America (ISIA).

The award, which honors skating coaches who have distinguished themselves by their coaching of individual and team championship events, was presented May 30 in Minneapolis at the ISIA's annual convention banquet. Mr. Ludington is only the third recipient of the award.

"I was totally surprised," said Ludington. "I'd never even thought about it."
 Ludington has coached 35 national champions.

Weaver, Boyd win fitness competition

The St. Mark's High School fitness teams finished first among all Delaware teams in the Eastern Regional Marine Corps Physical Fitness Meet held last month in Philadelphia.

Gymnast Wendy Weaver, of Wilmington Christian School, and wrestler and football player Bill Boyd, of St. Mark's, finished with the highest scores of individual participants from Delaware.

Weaver, a Newark resident, has been an elite class gymnast and an alternate on the U.S. national gymnastics team. She performed 42 pull ups, setting a meet record, and did 74 push ups to finish second in that event. Her first place finish overall in the regional competition led Wilmington Christian to a second place finish among Delaware teams.

Boyd finished third in the 188-pound weight class at the Delaware state wrestling championships and captained the football team this year. He finished fifth in pushups with 90, fourth in pull ups with 34 and seventh in situps with 103. He finished eighth overall at the regional meet.

This year was the eleventh year in a row that at least one of the St. Mark's teams finished first in the state. The boys team consisted of Boyd, the team captain, Joe Aube, Mark Modesto, Steve Wright, Richard Shorter and John Ormsby. The girls team consisted of captain Danna Valla, Melanie Avenarius, Julie Dombrowski, Angela Miller, Kara Franklin, Nicole Chupka and Allison Barron.

Both Valla and Boyd received Marine Corps Distinguished Athlete Awards for their efforts.

Howell family offers wrestling school

The 1988 Here's Howell First State Wrestling School will be held Aug. 8-12 at Newark High School, and will feature instruction by members of Newark's wrestling Howell family.

Camp sessions will be 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily with an hour-long lunch break.

Dicky Howell, former Newark High School state champion and two-time National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) qualifier at Lock Haven University, will be the camp director.

He will be assisted by his brothers Kurt and Brad. Kurt was a four-time state champion at Newark, and Brad, a recent graduate of Newark, finished second in this year's state tournament.

Other instructors will include George DeAugustino, assistant coach at North Allegheny, Pa. High, the number one ranked team in the country, Matt Avery, Mike Millward, Willie Metzger, and Dick Howell Sr., the father of the three brothers.

Camp tuition is $75, or $60 for a team on 10 or more. For more information and a camp brochure, call 737-7655, or write Dick Howell, 1172 Elkton Rd., Newark, Del 19711.

Damico still spiking after all these years

'Father of volleyball' to participate in First State Games

by David Woolman

Nobody makes allowances for the white-haired gentleman roaming the gym at Talley Junior High on a weekday evening. Some of these guys have been playing this casual volleyball game together for 18 years, and young and old know what "Laudy" can do.

He comfortably settles into the role of front line setter, quarterbacking his side regardless of his position, digging, blocking and spiking when the situation presents itself. One of the five games he plays tonight could well be the 35,000th he has played in his lifetime.

If there were a line connecting the origins of organized volleyball in Delaware to the genesis of the First State Games volleyball competition, that line would not just include Lawrence "Laudy" Damico, it would probably be him. It would be difficult to find someone more involved with the sport, past and present, in the state.

"He is Mr. Volleyball," says Dr. Howard Kattler.

"Of the volleyball players in Delaware, Laudy got half of them started and taught the other ones," says Rich Leung, teacher and former volleyball coach at Concord High. "He taught half the girls how to play. He's the guy."

Now, even at the age of 71, Damico remains active playing and refereeing volleyball, and is a member of one of the teams that will play in the First State Games, The Originals.

He first started playing volleyball while in the armed forces during World War II in the Fiji Islands.

"Right when I got out of the service in 1945, I went up to the Y (Wilmington YMCA) and immediately got on their team," says Damico. "When I started the team, it was the first organized team in the state of Delaware."

"It was very hard. It had no exposure of any kind. Our competition was all out of state, in the Delaware River league.

AT A GLANCE

Four teams in the men's open and women's open divisions have qualified for the First State Games, which will be held July 29-31 in Newark.

Each of the teams will be assigned to one of the four areas of the state (North New Castle, Canal, Kent and Sussex) to compete.

The men's teams are: Walley Warheads, team captain Ben Wu; Champion, Ken Timmons; Mr. Pizza, Dave Stover; The Originals, Paul Damico.

The women's teams are: Lady

Blue Hens, Regina Knotts; The Connection, Allison Zappaterrini; Champion, Valann Budischuk; The UD's, Lisamarie Hanley.

The coed teams had their qualifier last weekend, and the scholastic level girls will try out this weekend, with the qualifying girls being assigned to teams to compete in the games.

"I'm pleased with the level of competition," says Barb Viera, volleyball coach at the University of Delaware and volleyball director for the First State Games. "The Games should be pretty good."

"Finally I went over to the Jewish Community Center to start their program, and they started to play national volleyball."

Soon, every group that wanted to organize a volleyball team would come to Damico, and he would teach them the sport. He estimates, very conservatively, that he was involved in starting up at least a dozen teams in Delaware.

"We even went into Elkton. We tried to promote volleyball wherever we were, and slowly it caught on."

"There isn't a neighborhood I can't go into in the city of Wilmington that I don't know a volleyball player and they don't know me."

Besides playing recreationally now, Damico officiates high school, college and recreational league ball. He also helped organize and run the first eight Kidney Fund volleyball marathons.

Next month he will join many of his contemporaries and quite a few of his former students as part of the Originals, one of the four teams to qualify for the First State Games, which will be held July 29-31 in Newark.

A few of them are part of the little group working up a sweat at Talley that evening including his son, Paul Damico, who put the team together.

"When I heard about the First State Games, I wanted to use this as a venue for the recognition of players in the state," says Paul. "Volleyball has not been a well publicized sport until just recently. These players have been representing Delaware for a number of years with little, if any, recognition."

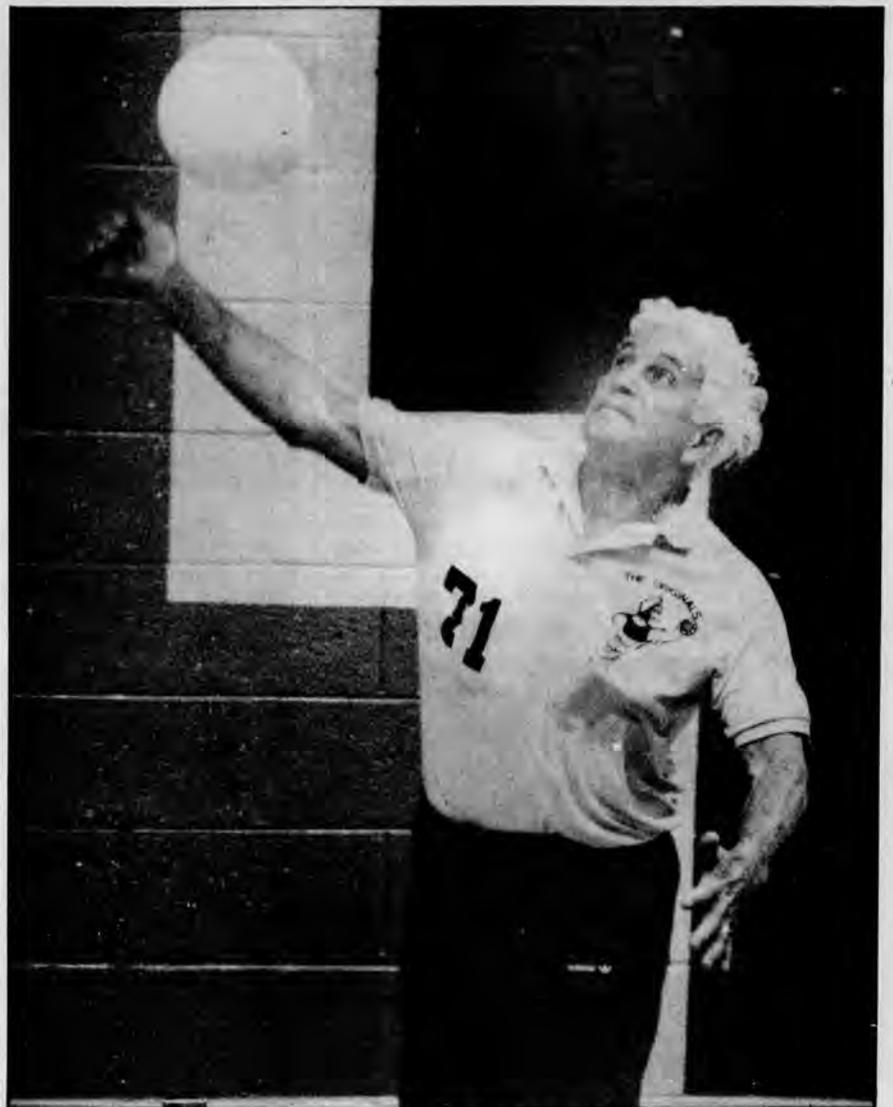

"When I put the team together, I tried to find original players from teams that were first in the state, such as the Wilmington YMCA men's team, the Jewish Community Center team, the University of Delaware men's team, the Wilmington Turners team, and the USVBA team, the Jellyfish, the first team to represent Delaware in the nationals. The team is comprised of players from all over, but primarily in New Castle County, especially the older members of the team."

Members of the team include: Jim Mooney, former pro basketball player, recently inducted into the Villanova Hall of Fame.

Dr. Howard Kattler, a member of the first Jewish Community Center team.

George Cole, state representative and member of the original University of Delaware team.

Rich Leung, Concord High school teacher and volleyball coach up to this year.

His uniform number showing his age, even if his pace doesn't, Lawrence Damico enjoys a volleyball workout in preparation for the First State Games.

Kenny Wortham, member of the first seniors team from Delaware to go to nationals.

Rick Wood, a former member of the U of D team, and the first from Delaware to be asked to try out for the national team ("he's the best player to ever come out of Delaware," says Laudy Damico).

Bill McMahon Sr., member of the first Wilmington YMCA team.

Bill McMahon Jr., former member of the U of D club team.

Barry Hudson, a member of the Jellyfish.

Tim McClosky, a member of the first U of D team.

Paul Damico, captain of the U of D team for three years. All-Eastern collegiate one year, and a member of the Turners team, which has participated in and won a number of national tournaments.

The team has a very good chance in the Games, says Paul Damico. They can put a very competitive six out on the floor when they need to, but everybody played their fill in the qualifying rounds.

The volleyball experience of the Originals (estimated at 250 years, and rather easy for any spectator to compute, as their jersey numbers are their ages) is well used. Those on the bench do their part by analyzing the strengths, weaknesses and strategies of the other team. Laudy himself, with his 46 years of volleyball, often has more experience than the six players on the other side.

"The most important part of the team is my father," says Paul Damico. "He started me playing volleyball a long time ago. He's the 'father of volleyball in Delaware.' He's the most instrumental person in volleyball that I can think of in the state of Delaware."

And what does Laudy think? "I'm enjoying it very much," he says, barely out of breath after half a dozen games. He probably always will.

SPORTS CALENDAR

• The 7th annual Happy Harry Open Golf Tournament, to benefit the Delaware Kidney Fund, will be held Friday, June 17 at Brandywine Country Club with former Philadelphia Eagle linebacker Bill Bergey as master of ceremonies. Corporate sponsorship of tees, greens programs and prizes is available, as are openings for participating golfers. For more information, call Leigh Wilson or Betty Bowers at 366-0335.

• The fourth annual Run for Independence to benefit Independent Living, Inc. will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday, June 29 in Wilmington. The five-mile race along the Brandywine River will raise funds for training and housing programs for mentally and physically disabled adults. Registration for the race begins at 5 p.m. at Chase Plaza on Delaware Avenue. For more information, contact Independent Living Inc. at 658-1045.

• Newark American Little League will hold its annual Tag Day Friday, June 24 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Players will be dressed in full uniform and will be collecting donations at various banks, supermarkets and businesses in the Newark area. All contributions directly benefit the more than 200 players in the program.

championship did not help either.

His 25 footer for birdie lipped out ("I was surprised to get it that close") and after sinking the next put for par, headed for the practice range to keep sharp before the playoff.

Soon after, a discrepancy was found in his score. Though he thought he shot a 79, which would have tied him for the lead, the scorecard he signed had the correct score, dropping him into a tie for second place with an 80 on the day.

"I was looking forward to playing a few extra holes," said Gordon, who is not too despondent over the result.

"I think I can win it sometime in the next three years. I hope I can. I have a lot of time to work on my game."

Right now he is looking forward to the Delaware Junior championship, to be held at the end of the month at his home course, Newark Country Club.

In any event, he and Jason Burns (who shot a 76 after a disappointing 89 in the first round) will be back for another three years, which cannot make too many non-Newark high school golfers happy.

available to the community in hopes of increasing attendance and spirit.

However, in order to implement the project, the organization needs community support, the only source of revenue, to make it go. Support can come as money, but also as donated materials and donated time.

Materials such as the lights, wires, poles, and construction equipment such as backhoes are needed to reduce the amount of money necessary to procure such materials. People to work such machinery, as well as electricians are also needed for the same reasons.

Those wishing to donate money, materials and time can call Bob Bowers, Booster Project coordinator, at 834-1822, or Clark Mosier, Booster president, at 834-3444.

University of Delaware offers summer sports camps

The University of Delaware is offering summer sports camps to instruct everyone from grade schoolers to the highest level of high schoolers in volleyball, baseball, cross country, soccer, football, tennis and diving.

All camps are directed by University staff, accomplished coaches and instructors in their fields. Many of the camps will offer videotaping of the students' work for enhanced instruction, and most will offer a noontime swim in the University pool. All participants get free t-shirts.

Following are camps offered:

Diving
Two week-long sessions include classes for beginning, intermediate and advanced divers ages 6-13. The camps run June 27 to July 8, and July 11-22. Also available are three week camps for competitive, advanced divers, which take place June 20-July 8 and July 11-29. Classes are held at the Carpenter Sports Building. John Shuster, diving coach, is the camp director. Fees are $180 for advanced divers, $70 for beginning and intermediate divers.

Tennis
Four one-week sessions are being offered: July 11-15, July 18-22, July 25-29 and August 1-5. The coeducational camps for 9-17 year olds run from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. Class size is limited to six campers per instructor. Participants are taught nutrition, the psychology of winning, analysis of strike production, strategy and tactics. Camp director and head instructor is Dr. Gary Sailes, assistant professor of physical education, and a former professional player. Fee is $125.

Football
All phases of football are covered in this camp, for boys ages 10-18. Students work with others of their own age, and a coach is provided at each level. Students can commute or live on campus. No contact is allowed, and students receive individual instruction with special attention to faults. The staff is headed by Tubby Raymond, head coach of the Blue Hens, and includes five of the University's assistant coaches and high school coaches from surrounding states. Fees are $90 for commuters and $195 for those who live on campus.

Soccer
Two one-week camps, Aug. 1-5 and 8-12, will be run for boys and girls ages 8 to 17. Players will be separated according to age and ability and will participate in game situations every day. An evaluation of each player's progress will be given. Camp coordinator is Loren Kline, head coach at the University for 25 years. Marc Samonisky, assistant soccer coach, is the camp director. Cost is $75.

Cross Country
Students can either commute or live on campus for this coeducational camp, which runs from Aug. 7-12. Runners will learn about flexibility, biomechanics, race strategy, prevention and treatment of running injuries and weight training. Jim Fisher, Blue Hen cross country and track coach, is the camp director. Tuition for the day camp, without meals, is $80. Day camp with lunch and dinner is $145. Overnight camp with meals is $195.

Girls basketball
This camp, running from July 11-15, will concentrate on fundamentals, and developing well-rounded players. Athletes are grouped by age and skill level and can expect small-group instruction and team scrimmages. Each camper will receive a written evaluation of their progress. Joyce Perry, head coach at the University, is the camp director. Cost is $80.

Boys basketball
Emphasis will be on fundamentals and daily game competition using the indoor facilities at Carpenter Sports building. Day camp for ages 8-17 runs June 20-24. Overnight camp, for 9-17 runs June 26-30. A second day camp, for 8-17 runs June 27-July 1, in conjunction with the overnight camp. All camps include individual player evaluations and a camp notebook. Camp director is Steve Steinwedel, head coach at the University. Cost is $95 for the day camp, $195 for the overnight camp, and $100 for the second day camp.

Volleyball
Students will be introduced to new techniques in offensive and defensive strategies, and a computer assisted learning system will help students' understanding of team strategies. Two camps will run July 31-Aug. 5 and Aug. 7-12, and will include a variety of sessions for players of different age and abilities, including grade school, high school and college players. Camp director is Barb Viera, head coach at the University. Cost for overnight campers, including meals, is $250; for day campers, $110 without meals.

Lunch can be purchased for $20, dinner for $30 for the day campers. Players chosen for the elite camp pay an additional $25. A special one-day clinic for coaches will be offered Aug. 7 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cost is $25.

Baseball
Two sessions, July 18-22 and July 25-29 will be offered for boys ages 10-17. Instruction is grouped by age and skill, and will feature small group instruction and daily scrimmages. Specialized coaching in hitting, fielding, pitching, position play and baseball mechanics will be provided. Camp director is LeRoy Hill, a major league scout for 25 years with the Phillies and Pirates organizations. Instruction will be provided by Kurt Wagner and Chris Hill from the All-America Baseball School in Hollywood, Fla. Cost is $90.

For further information, call University of Delaware Sports Camps at 451-8664.

Aspen, and you shall receive

This year my family gave me a bird bath as a combination Mother's Day and birthday present. It's a lovely bird bath. My description will never do it justice. The pedestal is terra cotta colored and has a dull foresty-sort-of-green overlay. The basin that sits atop the pedestal is that same terra cotta color; it, however, is highlighted by a cream-colored overlay.

I suppose there are a few people in this world who might think that a multicolored bird bath is a pretty weird sort of a present. Shame on them! It is a perfect present. Particularly because it is precisely what I requested.

I am the founder and chief guru of a gift receiving cult that has a two-part motto. The first part, according to some people who choose to only skate along the surface of life, states the obvious: "The best presents are the ones that the receiver really wants." But if you pay particular attention to the final word in the phrase, you can begin to see the profound implications of my gift cult. It is "wants," not "needs." I repeat, it is "wants."

I definitely need a new gum massaging toothbrush, a replacement for my meat thermometer which is permanently stuck on 219 degrees, and a ruler that shows both centimeters and inches. Also, I need thumbtacks for my office bulletin board, seven new lids for my seven warped plastic refrigerator dishes, an oven mitt to replace the one I scorched before I figured out that the meat thermometer reads way too low, and a new clothesline.

Any person who celebrates a holiday by presenting me with even one of the above mentioned items should be prepared to be considered persona non grata in my circle. Even worse, he or she will never be welcome to partake of my justly famous surprise meatloaf—that's the one with the cheese hotdog in the middle.

The second part of the motto of my gift receiving cult places the responsibility for the choice of gifts right where it belongs: "It is the responsibility of the receiver to let the givers know what an acceptable gift is."

That's right. The receiver has an obligation to let people know what he or she wants. Moreover if gifts involve sizes, measurements, or preferred colors and patterns, the receiver is expected to make that information available.

"Ah," you lament, "but that takes the surprise out of the gift."

"Correctamento," I respond. Who wants to be surprised with a new toothbrush, even if it is electric? Who wants to be surprised with an emerald corduroy bathrobe, when green is not his color? Who wants to be surprised with handmade spoonholders? Who wants to be surprised by a lifetime supply of handkerchiefs and orange indoor-outdoor extension cords?

Some people, even after they become dues paying members of my cult, have difficulty announcing what they want. For them, I suggest wish lists posted on the bathroom mirror and the steering wheel of the family car. A daring few might want to try something more subtle: if a trip to France is their heart's desire, they might leave "A Tale of Two Cities" on the coffee table and hum the Marseillaise when it seems fitting.

Still others might want to announce by example. "Jennifer got the most beautiful smoky blue cashmere sweater from her mother. She let me try it on. It looked super on me and went with three of my skirts and two of the ones I regularly borrow from Stephanie."

Frankly, I find being straight-out honest most successful. That's how I got a 35-foot cord on the telephone, the electric garage door opener, and the Dictionary of American Slang.

My cult has one major caveat. Just 'cause you ask for something, doesn't guarantee you'll get it. Over the years, junior family members have subtly and not-so-subtly requested an AM-FM stereo-radio/tape deck surrounded by a 4-wheeled, 4 on-the-floor, growling-with-400-horsepower, red machine.

They are still driving a beige 1978, four-door Aspen.

("Fickle Lady," a short story by Newarker Jim Hall, who writes under the pen name Fred James, was selected for publication in the NewArk Post's first fiction contest. It was selected by a Post panel from among a half-dozen entries.)

I began going to The Cove in the autumn. I liked its musty, beery smell and its quiet settled air of ancient solidity. The honky tonks with their winking neon lights and bebop trios might come and go, but The Cove had been there forever. The twelve-inch beams were hand-hewn and the eighteen-inch walls were made of rock that had been hauled there by oxcart. The lighting wasn't good enough to chase the shadows out of the far corners, nor were the furnishings made of chrome or wrought iron; but the countless glasses stacked behind the scarred mahogany bar glistened when the firelight danced on them, and the place itself was as spotless as an operating-room.

I first stopped in one evening after a three-day rain had made walking the beach no longer a pleasure and the rooms of my cottage almost unbearable. George, the bartender, and I learned later, the owner, greeted me with a casual "Howdy" as though I'd been a steady customer. The few patrons glanced up curiously a moment, then returned to their beer without further interest. It wasn't as though I were being ignored, but neither was I accepted as one of them. I was simply there, acknowledged, and let alone.

Perhaps that's why I went back again, and gradually formed the habit of dropping in every other night or so. The routine was always the same: the casual greeting, the patient wait until my order was given, the return to his eternal newspaper. No fuss or rush about George; he appeared to be as placid and dignified as his huge beams and thick walls.

And his customers were usually the same: a tenant farmer or two with the owner of the crossroads gas station at one table, three or four oystermen at another; the old man and his wife who ran the country store across from the gas station at a third. The old man was partly blind and he peered constantly at the flames (after October, George always had a fire in the blackened fireplace) dreaming his sightless dreams. His wife listened to the vague mumble of conversation from the other tables, occasionally bobbing her head in agreement, until finally she fell asleep. They all nodded now when I came in, but they still let me alone.

Then one wind-whipped night the pattern changed. George had just scraped the foam from my beer when I saw him look up quickly toward the swinging doors that led from the lobby to the barroom. A certain tenseness on his face or the sudden carelessness with which he sat my glass down caused me to follow his gaze.

She stood just inside the entrance, surveying the room and its occupants with cool appraisal. The red-gold of her head swept back sleekly to curl away at the neckline from the deeper brown fur of her coat. She was full chested and slim hipped; her legs were well-shaped and strong-looking. The men were all watching as she moved slowly and gracefully toward the bar. She glanced at me briefly, then stared expectantly at George.

"Well, hello, there," he said. "Decided to come back, did you?"

She looked at him a long moment, then turned abruptly, to disappear through a doorway to the rear of the room.

"Beautiful, isn't she?"

"What?" My attention returned to George's sober countenance. "Oh, yes, she is." I hesitated. "Does she live around here?"

"She comes and goes," he shrugged. "When she's here, she usually stays with me," he picked up his newspaper, "here at the inn."

I thought I sensed a note of possessiveness in his tone, but I couldn't be sure. "What's her name," I asked?

He flicked an odd look in my direction. "Sandy." He rustled his newspaper. "Your beer is getting flat."

It was two days before I visited The Cove again and I hadn't once thought of Sandy; yet, when I entered, I found myself looking for her. She was there, sitting by the fireplace, and I knew that instead of taking my usual stool at the bar, tonight I would sit at a table. I hadn't quite finished my first beer before she came over to sit beside me. We had no trouble getting acquainted. Strangely, we two seemed alone in the room: the blurred mutter of conversation, the gentle snores of the old woman, and the occasional rustle of George's newspaper were distant and unreal somehow. When I left to return to my cottage, she went with me the short distance to the top of the hill. She paused there, and I felt I could sense her intention as to whether she should continue. Then she turned and, without a backward glance, returned toward The Cove.

During the long winter months, I spent all the evenings I could spare at The Cove, and Sandy was always there waiting for me. Together we weathered many storms and shared many plates of crackers and cheese. Except in the most severe weather she always walked back with me, but only as far as the hill, and I never asked her to go further. We said our "good night" there. During the few pleasant days I would roam the beach, as was my custom, and Sandy had fallen into the habit of accompanying me. Sometimes I talked at great length and she listened, but for the most part we didn't need conversation. We had a kind of silent communion, mutually agreeable to both of us.

George, of course, made no open comment regarding our relationship, yet I felt he didn't like it. Once I attempted to explain a vague sense of guilt about her spending so much time with me.

"I don't own her," he said, his eyes as bleak as the winter sky. "She comes and goes as she pleases. There've been others before and there'll be others again."

Realizing the bitter casualness of his words were uttered from envy, I spoke quickly. "But she invariably returns to you!"

"Yeah, She always has." He sighed suddenly. "But someday she won't."

At last the chill winds began to soften, the snows of winter gave way to warm rains, and a subtle scent in the air heralded the approach of spring. One such night Sandy didn't stop at the top of the hill as usual, but continued beside me. When I glanced at her questioningly, she was looking straight ahead. I made no comment and, I suppose, none was needed. After we entered my cottage, I placed some fresh logs on the dying embers of the fire, lighted my pipe, and sat down on the heavy rug. Sandy, who had waited silently while I completed my chores, stretched beside me with her head resting on my thigh, and we were content.

After that she didn't go back to The Cove unless we went together. One evening, George serving the cheese and crackers and beer I'd ordered, fixed us with a hard stare.

"Seems like you've got a permanent boarder," he said.

I didn't look at him. Instead I smiled into Sandy's eyes. "I hope so," I answered.

Sandy proved to be an ideal companion. When I was working, she was quiet and uninterfering. When I was ready to relax, she was a ready playmate. Occasionally, we'd go for brisk walks along the vaguely-defined, pine-bordered paths behind the dunes, and Sandy seemed to get infinite delight out of running joyfully far ahead to abruptly jump out from behind the trees as I approached.

The weather began to warm rapidly and the air was not too chill for swimming. I should have, but I hadn't realized how much Sandy enjoyed the water. We went for brief, quick refreshing dips in the mornings and long moonlight swims at night. She had more endurance than I and swam much more easily. At times I had to coax her to turn back, and once on the shore I'd caution her that someday she'd go too far. If we both were lazy, we might spend an evening just sitting on the beach, watching the moonlight slanting across the waves, each occupied with our own thoughts.

FICKLE LADY

Finally, and all too swiftly, it was summer and the summer residents began to descend on us. The beach was crowded now: surf fishermen in the early mornings, endless streams of children and family groups during the day, and merry bands of teenagers with their portable radios and bon fires at night. Our privacy was gone, it seemed. Even The Cove had changed. It had become so crowded in the evenings that George had two waitresses on duty.

And Sandy was changed, too, subtly at first, but surely. She was restless, caught up in the excitement of the summer season. She wasn't satisfied with my company alone anymore. She preferred to be on the beach during the day — watching the children, wandering from group to group, occasionally romping with some of the younger people. And at night she couldn't wait to get to The Cove, where she moved from table to table, renewing old acquaintances, making new friends, and apparently shedding her old ones. As the tables were usually filled anymore, I began sitting at the bar again. I didn't interfere with Sandy's roving, but I couldn't help watching her.

"I tried to warn you," George said one time.

I shrugged. "It's alright. It's just that I..."

"Sure, I know," he eyed me solemnly. "She'll take off one of these days, like she's done before. She's fickle, that's what!"

"Well, my work here is almost finished and I'd have had to do something about her anyway."

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Newark's Jim Hall, who writes under the name Fred James, has been putting pen to paper for about 50 years as a hobby.

Because Hall enjoys reading good mysteries, his short stories often contain elements of suspense and action, or, like "Fickle Lady," may have a surprise ending.

A few of his stories were printed in the 15-cent "pulp" of the 1930s and 1940s, like "Black Mask" and "Doc Savage." More recently, he has contributed to the First State Writers Magazine.

Hall's story plots are purely imaginary, but, like many writers, he relies on real life experiences for believable backdrops.

In his first action story to be printed, entitled "Live Steam," Hall created his setting from technical information gathered first-hand while working in a cannery.

And of "Fickle Lady," he chuckles, "Sure, I've been in a bar like that before, but I can't say I've ever spent a whole winter in one."

Hall has taken writing classes at the universities of Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The long-time Newark resident retired from the DuPont Company in 1981. His writing has been strictly for fun. "It's a tough racket, and most people rely on another job if they want to eat," he said.

"I have more of them that are incomplete than finished," Hall said of his stories. "You should see what's filed away in the other room."

When asked to disclose which of his stories are "really good," Hall smiled and responded without hesitation, "why, all of the finished ones."

Coping with loss of hearing

by Ken Finlayson

NEWARK SENIOR CENTER

Did you know that about half of the people over 65 can hear perfectly? They can hear a pin drop. They have no difficulty communicating with others and can be socially active. That leaves half whose hearing is fading. Some of these can cope if they take advantage of Senior Center programs designed for their benefit. About 90 percent of those suffering hearing loss can be helped. Anyone with a loss should not delay in seeking help at it is much easier to adjust when the program is addressed early.

Age-related degeneration of the inner ear results in a gradual hearing loss and is called presbycusis. This awe inspiring word when translated from the Greek merely means "old hearing." Lowered sensitivity to high frequencies results from this degeneration. Consonants are high frequency sounds. Thus words like "key" and "tea" both sound like "ee" to the hearing impaired.

It isn't easy to admit to hearing impairment. It is often taken as an embarrassing sign of "old age." Although everyone reacts differently to hearing loss, the following stages are representative:

- A person first denies any loss and blames other for mumbling. This reaction not only has an impact on the older person but on the response from family and friends.

- Frustration can result in anger and withdrawal from activities formerly enjoyed.

- Finally, sadness overtakes the victim, and if prolonged can lead to clinical depression, a serious malady difficult and expensive to treat.

What is the solution to age related hearing loss? Above all, don't ignore even mild hearing loss. First, see your physician.

The loss may be something that can be readily corrected like membrane inflammation, accumulation of fluid, or even wax build-up. Next, have a hearing evaluation by an audiologist.

A free hearing screening is being offered by the Newark Senior Center on Thursday, June 23, from 9 a.m. until noon. The screening is being offered by the Lions Club Mobile Unit. No appointment is necessary.

Medicare will pay for the hearing test if prescribed by a physician. However, Medicare does not pay the cost of hearing aid evaluation or the hearing aid. A hearing aid can run from $350 to $700. A person 60 years and older, with an income under $1,500 per year, can qualify for free audiological service at the Nemours clinic. Call the Center for more information about the clinic.

A hearing aid provides amplification and some of the newer ones filter out some of the lower frequency background noises. Thus although a hearing aid results in marked improvement, the wearer must adjust to its use.

For those with a hearing aid, listening strategies include:

- Don't be shy. Ask people to slow down or repeat if you don't understand.

- Turn off television or radio when conversing.

- In noisy public places, station yourself near sound-absorbent surfaces (curtains, books, upholstered furniture). Stay clear of echoing surfaces like plastic or glass.

- In order to improve communication when talking to someone with a hearing problem:

- Don't shout but speak a little louder and more distinctly. Never shout in the ear of the hearing impaired, this only causes the words to be more difficult to understand.

- Face your listener squarely but don't over articulate.

- Make sure your mouth isn't obstructed (a hearing-impaired person has learned unconsciously to read lips).

The Newark Senior Center has developed a program called "Breaking the Sound Barrier." This program is for both those with and without a hearing impairment. Sandy Drummond, social services director, is available to present this program to retirement centers and groups, caregiving support groups, service organizations such as Kiwanis and Masonic Lodges, as well as the business community. Call Sandy at 737-2336.

and I've never returned. I've often thought about The Cove and that winter I'd spent at the shore; and, of course, about Sandy.

I've often thought, too, about getting a dog, especially now that I have children; but then I remember Sandy — the hours we spent together and the love I had for her — and somehow I just don't think I could ever again feel the same way about another dog.

"Don't you concern yourself about that. When you're ready, you go. If she decided to stay, she can always come back here. If she goes..." He spread his hands suggestively.

Then one weekend Sandy did go. She went quietly and quickly and with no sign she was going. Once I knew she was really gone there was nothing I could do about it. Like George, I didn't own her.

Shortly after that I left, too,

Hagley Museum exhibits works by Finnish artists

A new exhibition that celebrates the dramatic and innovative industrial design and visual art of 20th century Finland has opened at the Hagley Museum and Library on the banks of the Brandywine. It is worth seeing and enjoying.

The new offering at Hagley is part of the 350th anniversary celebration of the arrival of the Swedish and Finnish settlers in Wilmington in 1638. The exhibit is called "Art by Design: Reflections on Finland." It features works by Alvar Aalto, Kaj Frank, Timo Sarpaneva and Tapio Wirkkala, four masters of 20th century design. The Hagley Museum is also showing eight other important, contemporary Finnish artists. Jill MacKenzie of Hagley was excited about the fact that some of the artists are having their first American showing at the Museum. If you visit, you will see why Jill is excited.

This year has been decreed the "National Year of Friendship with Finland." It was done both by presidential proclamation and a joint resolution of Congress. Hagley is doing its share to celebrate the year.

One fascinating part of "Art by Design" is the way it illustrates the interaction of designing for industrial production and creating independent, unique works of art. We have the opportunity to see fifty objects of glass, wood, paper, clay and fiber that were created by the twelve Finnish artists.

Most Americans, including your writer, are not well acquainted with the Finnish people. Only occasionally Finnish art emerges in the United States. Its art and culture are often overshadowed by its Scandinavian and Soviet neighbors. Although the country has been dominated over the centuries by Sweden and Russia, it has managed to retain its culture and a sense of its own individuality. Finland's artists incorporate this into the body of their work. This exhibit deserves, no, requires, more than a quick walk through and a few glances.

The Finn maintains a deep reverence for nature and its materials. This reverence finds expression in ceramics, glass, fibre, metal, stone and wood. I found that there is a great effort made by Finnish artists to explore and discover the essential characteristics of the materials with which they work, and to acknowledge the relationship between man made design and design in nature.

It became very clear to me that this was not only an interesting and beautiful exhibition, but one from which I could learn a great deal about the art of a people I hardly knew.

The Classic period of Finnish design occurred in the Fifties and Sixties when designers of furniture, textiles and glass received many awards at the Milan Triennale Design Competitions. It was at the same time that Finnish designs began touring this country and attracting much attention. People here began to recognize a distinctive quality that was different from anything previously available.

Artists working in natural materials have found abstraction a sympathetic style in which to express their experiences. "Art by Design," as the name implies, is an exhibition of art by designers who, while adhering to the basic principles of Finnish design, have created works of art.

"Art by Design: Reflections of Finland" will be on display through Sunday, July 31. There is no extra charge to see the exhibit, only the regular museum admission. For more information, please call 658-2400.

This is just one more example of how, in The Arts, beauty and learning go hand-in-hand. Enjoy!

Oiva Toikka's work in glass, "The Queen Leaves France," is at Hagley Museum as part of a Finnish art exhibit.

Bacchus to stage 'Talking With...'

This dramatic presentation features 11 startling monologues written by Jane Martin, with Newark area actresses portraying such diverse characters as a fundamentalist snake handler and a bag lady.

"Talking With..." a dramatic presentation of 11 startling monologues, will be staged June 24-25 and July 1-2 at the University of Delaware's Bacchus Theatre in the Perkins Student Center on Academy Street. Written by Jane Martin, the show features nine area actresses portraying such diverse characters as a fundamentalist snake handler and a bag lady. One of the monologues takes place during the pain of labor, and another focuses on a housewife who takes daily trips into a world of fantasy. The monologues have elements of both humor and poignancy.

According to Joyce Hill Stoner, the show's director, the writing of "Talking With..." is "extraordinarily effective and affecting," with inventive and fresh imagery and situations. Stoner is director of the University of Delaware/Winterthur Art Conservation Program. During the 1970s, she wrote and directed off-Broadway. She has recently written and directed three productions for the Bacchus Players. Curtain will be at 8:15 p.m. each night. Tickets cost $6 for the general public, and $3 for University students. They are available noon to 4 p.m. weekdays at the main desk of Perkins Student Center.

sculptures by local artist A.J. Obara Jr., will run through Sept. 4 at the Delaware Museum of Natural History, Del. 52, Greenville.

Violinist Laura McGinnis will perform a benefit recital in Newark.

Sister City benefit

Laura McGinnis to perform at Newark Methodist Church

Violinist Laura McGinnis, one of the most sought-after chamber musicians in New York City, will perform a fund-raising recital Friday, June 24 to benefit Newark's Sister City Project.

The Sister City Project is working to build close ties between Newark and San Francisco Libre in Nicaragua.

McGinnis will perform at 8 p.m. Friday, June 24 in Newark United Methodist Church, 69 E. Main St. Tickets cost $5 and can be purchased in advance from one of the sponsoring organizations or at the door on the night of the performance.

Sponsoring organizations include the New Ark United Church of Christ, Newark United Methodist Church, Newark Peace Fellowship, CASA and Pacem in Terris.

The Sister City Project was founded as a means of promoting better understanding between the people of Nicaragua and the United States. Currently, the Newark project is attempting to raise money to finance the building of a school in San Francisco Libre.

McGinnis is a recent graduate of the Juilliard School, where she was a scholarship student of Dorothy DeLay.

Her previous studies were with Stephen Clapp at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, where she received numerous awards and grants. She performed extensively with the Music from Oberlin series.

Currently, McGinnis performs with some of New York's most prestigious ensembles including the New York Chamber Symphony and Mostly Mozart.

She will be accompanied June 24 by pianist Cullan Bryant, who has been a frequent performer of chamber music in New York since making the city his home in 1981.

A native of Arkansas, Bryant first toured as a soloist at age 11. He has won the Miami, Fla. ARTS competition and the National Art Club competition in New York.

Bryant studied at the Manhattan School of Music with Robert Goldsand and performed under the baton of David Gilbert as one of the school's concerto competition winners.

The program will feature Sonata Opus 12 by Beethoven, "Tzigane" by Maurice Ravel, Sonata Opus 13 by Gabriel Faure and "Carmen Fantasy" by Pablo de Sarasate.

'Dawn Patrol' missionary Quigg

Steve Quigg is a modern-day member of the Dawn Patrol. The pilot rises about 6:30 each morning to begin a full day in his Cessna 206, performing the work of the United Methodist Church's Muri Annual Conference in Nigeria.

Quigg, who lives in the small village of Bambur with his wife Gail and daughter Heather and Kathy, is a Methodist missionary. It is his job to provide safe, efficient transportation for pastors, staff members and church supplies.

Quigg will discuss his work Sunday, June 19 during the 9:30 a.m. worship service at Newark United Methodist Church, Main Street.

The Quiggs will make a slide presentation at 11 a.m.

Transportation in Nigeria is difficult at best, according to Quigg, at times being nothing more than a tractor slogging its way across a swamp. Thus the need for air transit.

Missionaries Steve and Gail Quigg.

About an hour after arising and beginning preparation, Quigg takes to the air to begin a day of work that might contain as many as 15 stops throughout the Conference.

Quigg's plane is called "Bishara," for "Good News," because it spreads the gospel of Jesus Christ to the people of Nigeria in a variety of ways.

CHURCH CALENDAR

• Faith Baptist Church, 4210 Limestone Rd., Pike Creek, will host the Clearwater, Fla. Christian College summer musical ensemble at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 16. The six-member ensemble will present a program of music and testimony. Rev. Ronald McDonald, tour evangelist, will offer a message.
