FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL A GREAT SUCCESS PROCEEDS EXPECTED TO EXCEED $1500

The week just closing passes into the history of the Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Company as a notable one. It has indeed been a gala week for the whole community.

The object of the carnival which has held the town in its sway for the last six days—that of improved fire protection—is close to everyone's heart, and this fact has been demonstrated by the enthusiastic response on the part of the people.

The crowds on Saturday and Wednesday evenings have been pronounced the largest ever seen on the college grounds, while the streets were lined with teams and filled with happy, gayly chattering throngs. The quiet that settles over Newark in mid-summer was broken. We were carried beyond ourselves and deposited in such a hustling prosperous environment as the town expects to see within the next decade. One thoughtful citizen was heard to remark: "Just look at the people! Newark could never have gotten together such a crowd ten years ago. A new era is dawning! They are all finding the means of making an honest living—are prosperous and content."

The grounds immediately became the center of action, and hither flock the crowds. Amusements for young and old had been provided by careful forethought and the people lost no time in availing themselves of the chance. The merry-go-round claimed its usual crowd of devotees, as it sent forth the strains of familiar airs. "Throwing at the Babies" proved such an attraction that even the ladies found it irresistible, though the reward in view was only a cigar. "Throwing for canes" and the paddle wheel suggested other channels of fun. One was besieged on all sides by those with "chance books," which however were not regarded by the majority as a means of playing a game of chance, but merely of getting a liberal return for the article sold.

Shortly after seven thirty on Wednesday evening, the Carnival opened with the automobile parade. Twenty-five citizens responded to the suggestion of the Firemen and fell into line. The evening was not perfectly clear, which caused it to be almost dark before the passing of the parade. It is claimed owing to this, some of the cars lost in attractiveness. Several of the cars were beautifully decorated. The prize of ten dollars in gold was divided, five going to Mayor J. H. Hossinger and five to E. L. Richards.

Mayor Hossinger's car was a bower of flowers, the blossoms of the beautiful golden glow nodding gracefully to the admiring throng. Boxwood and a bit of garnet gave the touch of contrast in the color scheme, which emphasized the artistic effect. Mr. Richards, as Uncle Sam, drove his car which represented America. The distinguished passenger was none other than the Goddess of Liberty, which personage was represented by Miss Helen McNeal. Draped American flags added to the decoration of this car.

E. C. Wilson's automobile, daintily trimmed in violet and white; A. F. Fader's machine gallantly floating Delaware's own "Gold and Blue" and exhibiting the pennants representing his recent tour in the section of the Water Gap, and Rev. Adrian Van Overen's runabout were appreciated by all.

Following the parade Mayor Hossinger pressed the button which opened the carnival proper.

Home-made candies and cakes sold with unusual rapidity, the housewives being willing and ready to buy rather than bake during the hot days.

An excellent array of fancy articles had been collected by the ladies of that committee, among which were many specimens of exquisite needlework.

The vaudeville performance was deservedly popular. The subjects of the moving pictures were carefully selected and represented the best; the comedian from Wilmington called forth many hearty laughs and the singing of Mrs. Jane Murray was thoroughly appreciated and repeatedly encored.

The ice cream service was conducted in a most attractive booth which seemed to make the refreshments sold even more desirable.

Kemblesville Band furnished the music during the first part of the fair, while a fife and drum corps from Wilmington, the guests of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, held forth on Monday night.

The entire carnival may be pronounced a splendid success, due to the co-operation, which, with a single exception, led to the successful conclusion of all plans.

THE FARM AND EXPERIMENT STATION

Miss Lottie Baker, Secretary of the Experiment Station, has returned from a three weeks vacation. The greater part of the time was spent in Portland, Me., where she was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Arteus, formerly of Wilmington, and the rest of the time was spent at Bretton Woods, White Mountains, Boston and New York.

Miss Minnie Ridings, the new stenographer at the Experiment Station, has been sick for some time, but is now able to resume her duties.

Walter L. Kirby, Jr., left Newark yesterday for his home at Smyrna. He has been assisting Prof. Grantham at the Experiment Station since Commencement.

Mr. Rulon Dare is assisting Prof. Grantham in getting up the Fair Exhibit of the department of Agronomy.

Prof. McCue has returned from his vacation, which was spent in various parts of Michigan visiting his Alma Mater, College friends, and parents.

The College farm is very busy at the present time preparing a carload of live stock for the fairs at Salisbury and Easton, Md. The animals will be loaded early Monday morning for the Salisbury Fair, which opens on Tuesday, the 15th.

At a recent meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Board of Trustees, the Dean of the Agricultural Department was authorized to purchase some beef cattle to be used in class room demonstrations.

Dr. Cleaver, of Wilmington, was a recent visitor at the Experiment Station.

Hon. John C. Higgins, of Delaware City, recently spent part of a day examining in detail the herd of registered Guernsey cattle at the College farm.

Important Announcement

The Newark Public Schools will open on September 4th, and members of the Board of Education are busy planning to make the coming year a successful one.

The Committee on Furniture has contracted with the New Jersey School Company for furniture for the two new rooms in the new building, and the two new rooms in the Academy building, which are being fitted for the commercial department.

The Building Committee has awarded the contract for heating the new building to L. B. Jacobs, whose bid was lower than those of A. L. Fisher and W. R. Kennedy.

Mr. Friedel will be in Newark one week before the opening of school. He has requested the announcement that all pupils back in work, who wish to take a second examination, must appear on Friday, September 1st.

All pupils from other districts desiring to enter should present themselves on September 1st and register. Last year several lost the State dividend by entering after the report of outside students had been filed. This report is prepared immediately after the opening day.

Council Meeting

Town Council met Monday evening at its regular monthly meeting. Further than reports of the various committees and passing of bills, no business was transacted. The Carnival having the right of way in town affairs, Council adjourned. A special meeting will be called for Friday evening, when the regular business will be transacted.

Special At White Clay

Mr. Kuzzart, a commercial man from Philadelphia, who is identified with the Gideon Band (a religious organization of traveling men) will speak of this movement on next Sabbath morning, August 13th, in the White Clay Creek Church. Cordial invitation is extended to all not worshipping elsewhere.

It is reported that crabs are unusually plentiful along Elk river.

NEWS NOTES HERE AND THERE

August 7th.

This coming Sunday will mark the opening of Glasgow M. E. Church, which has been undergoing extensive repairs. Several prominent ministers are expected to be present and preach during the day. A feature of the program will be short addresses by former pastors. The room looks very pleasing with its new coat of paint and new roof. The interior is in keeping with the exterior, as the main room has been completely renovated. The wall and ceiling have been murened, the pews and wood-work grained, the windows supplied with new blinds, and the floor newly carpeted. The Sunday school room was put in repair but a few years ago, and is in good shape also.

Prof. Frederick H. Robinson, secretary of the faculty at Delaware College, who has been in the hospital for several months, is at his home, Kirk avenue and Jackson streets, again. He has stated that he expects to resume his duties at the college in September.

Malcolm Frazer, who has been ill for the past week, is suffering with typhoid fever.

Leslie Camp meeting closed August 1st, after a most successful session. Interest now centers in Woodlawn which will continue until August 16.

West Amwell Sunday School held their annual picnic today.

The shipping of Delaware peaches has begun. Several carloads were sold from Dover last week at $1.25 per basket.

Miss Katharine Heiser has been appointed teacher of the White Clay Creek school.

Rev. Donaghay, rector of the P. E. Church, Middletown, officiated at the morning services at St. Thomas, last Sunday.

Howard Ferguson has purchased the building lots adjoining the water works on East Main street, and will erect two double houses in the near future.

Over forty dollars was realized by the ladies of White Clay Creek Church at the festival held on the lawn of Frank Walker, last Wednesday evening.

The annual picnic of the St. Thomas P. E. Sunday School was held at Casho's Dam, yesterday.

The W. C. T. U. will hold its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Martha Pennington on Friday evening. Arrangements for the annual supper next September will be discussed. The date has been set for September 14th, in the Banquet Hall of the Opera House.

Temperance folk will be glad to hear that Mrs. Harris Armor, the great Temperance orator of Georgia, will speak next Sunday at Brandywine Summit Camp.

Miss Edna A. Campbell, of Granite Hall completed her studies in stenography at Goidey's, this week.

Mrs. Griffin, mother of Mr. Geo. Griffin, fell down stairs on Monday. She was fortunate enough to escape with bruises rather than broken bones.

A large black snake was killed along Main street Tuesday. It came from the yard of the Hammill property.

E. L. Richards and family and Miss Elizabeth Grimes spent Saturday at Lenape Park, where the reunion of the camping party for so many seasons, comprising Camp Ideal, was held.

Whiteman's Grove--Harvest Home

Today has been a busy time for many a house-wife in the country roundabouts. Picnic baskets have been hauled down from the upper shelves by some and all kinds of good things have been prepared with which to fill them.

Everything is in readiness for a pleasant, social time in the woods for tomorrow is the occasion of the annual harvest home. The ladies of Ebenezer Church have prepared dinner and supper to be served in the grove for those who wish to escape even the slight responsibility of a picnic basket meal.

This affair is under the auspices of Ebenezer and will be the only one held this season. Last year, owing to the vigorous campaign of the temperance folk, two large woods meetings were held, the second by the Fairview Lodge in Pennock's Grove.

An excellent program has been arranged for tomorrow.

The speaker for the morning will be Rev. S. J. Cleland, of Dover, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Delaware; the afternoon speaker, Hon. L. Irving Handy, of Smyrna, will deliver a lecture, "Did He die and Live Again?" Addresses will also be made by Rev. E. L. Hoffecker, District Superintendent of Wilmington, and Mr. A. M. Daly, a prominent lawyer and forceful speaker of Dover.

Music will be furnished by Kemblesville Cornet Band.

OLD SHIPTON The Man Whose Genius Was Immortal

"How do you know it was?" demanded Robert, reading the title. "I'm afraid you haven't been logical." He had a dread of Marian's launching into themes of this sort; she invariably fell short of her intentions when she did so.

"What! Have I got to be forever asking questions, and never making statements?" cried she.

"It seems to be 'woman's sphere,'" said Robert with a touch of irony. "Con'st, Marian, that you don't care about being logical. I'm afraid you have made a mess of this. It would have been better to propound the enquiry—'Is the genius of man immortal?' and then prove that is so, if you can."

"When I believe with all my soul that it is immortal, and know how to say that I do!"

"Ah, but, my dear, the world doesn't care what you believe personally—that is, not unless you bring proofs that will incline it to agree with you."

"And do convictions then, count for nothing?"

"Absolutely nothing, without proofs." It was the scientist's uncompromising answer.

"Science and Imagination; they have always been antagonists," he continued. "Each should keep to its own ground. Now, Marian, what I don't like about this is your saying that the genius of a certain man was immortal. That would be settling a question which has always been recognized as one of difficulty. And how do you settle it? Why, by imagining a state of things for which you present no support."

"O, I dare say it is trash," sighed Marian, wearily. "Will you be good enough to read it, Robert?"

"With all my heart!"

He drew her to him, and seating her on his knee, read:

THE MAN WHOSE GENIUS WAS IMMORTAL.

The World's Story.
(I'm glad you provided for that, Marian.)

He was an unfortunate fellow. We all knew him and we all remember what a charming Spring day it was when he was stowed away in one of the charity lots of a suburban cemetery.

We used frequently to see him on the street, drawing the ghost of a coat about him, and walking swiftly, with his odd, spiritual face buried in his chest. Perhaps a little encouragement would have been of use to him, but we are a busy crowd, and attentions like charity should begin at home. Besides, it is a mooted question whether such people should be abettors in their follies.

He thought he had a gift, poor devil! and wrote for the press, column on column, with a dollar for pay, and five months to feed. Marvellous, how he got along! He belonged, in short, to a class of people that is like gunpowder—prone to go off awkwardly if touched at the wrong time. Robinson—known as our Samaritan—loves to tell of an occasion when he had the misfortune to apply the fuse for such an explosion.

He was sipping his Apollinaris, one day, in a cafe, when he caught sight of Bernard seated at an opposite table. He looked pinched and benumbed, and lingered inacountably over a cup of tea. Robinson watched him until his own plate of terrapin began to lose relish.

"Damn the fellow! Why do he come here for lunch?" thought, at the same time ordering a snug meal in a basket, with which he followed the poet out. Bernard was a rapid walker and gave our friend a race to overtake him. Perhaps it was not surprising that the latter was in no sweet humor when he caught the fellow's sleeve, and said, opening the basket, "Look here, don't go to saying we saw you starve before our eyes. I dare say you've had nothing but that cup of tea since morning. Poor pay—big families—bad state of things."

He was undoing the napkin, when Bernard waved his hand. "I'll not trouble you to undo that," he said, and shot off down the street.

"By heaven!" shouted Robinson, when he told of it. "I never say a more collected piece of impudence, nor heard a more damnable arrogant voice!"

The circumstances seemed to awaken in him a new sense of the futility of these social kickers want a good deal. The man who caters to them can always make ends meet. Not so our idealist. He thought he had a gift to bestow, poor devil! and see! he was buried by the town, and his light dispersed in darkness.

HIS STORY.

Post-Mortem.

I am a spirit, caught up into light, and the darkness knows me no more. I lean from a window of my heavenly home, and I gaze upon that nether world in which my soul long lost her way.

Ah, that was not my home!

Alone, and astray, and blind, I lived, while there, according to the dictates of my reason. Men told me I was mad; that the earth afforded no corollary to my aims; that I was as an infant beating on a wall of stone.

But something in my soul assured me I was right. This yearning for the high—what was it but the certainty that the high awaited me? This spurning of the low—what but the surety that I should one day leave the low beneath my feet? And now, I know that I was right—that what I grasped was Truth. Else, how could I look into the eyes of angels thus, without confusion? How could I, doomed there to human nothingness, stand thus erect in the presence of God, the Augustines, the Lacordaires, the Gallitzins, the Guerins, this company of deathless souls!

O, brothers of the nether world! Know that the high is the true, the true is the permanent. Be merciful to those who seek these things, and turn, turn, yourselves, to the everlasting and the real!

"Have I proved anything?" asked Marian.

"Nothing, whatever," said Robert, with regretful candor. "The only thing you have actually demonstrated is that it took five pages of a letter pad to write out your personal point of view. Science never accepts the testimony of an individual unless it is further supported and strengthened by a number of other credible individuals. Even then it amounts only to a working hypothesis which may be overthrown in five minutes. Science is the knowledge of certified facts."

"So I have been told—before," answered Marian. "Would it make any difference if I were not a scientist at all?—Only an observer of common phenomena?"

"Not in the least," Robert granted, with more than usual ability; and Marian tossed her paper into the Baltimore heater, which chanced to have left its blue-cold mouth open.

There is a certain harangue in Wilson Barrett's play of Chatterton, which Roger Birkett was wont to hurl at his prosperous wool-trading kinsmen, when arraigned for his Academic tastes, and which Marian now seized for her woman's weapon. Because

She recited it for Robert's benefit, with all the finality of passion, not a reason for her claim to the immortality of genius, it was at least a fine excuse for it.

What's the use of poetry?

To keep faith, and hope and worship alive in the heart of man; to pour vitriol on deceit and vice; to sear and scar the defected face of hypocrisy and lies; to add hate to all things hateful, and shame to all things shameful.

What's the use of poetry?

To be a stumbling block to the worldly-wise, and the proud, and a lamp and pillar of fire to children and the child-like.

What's the use of poetry?

To embalm the immortal dead; to interpret this aimless universe; to snatch the secrets of the stars; to unleash the sea and the winds; to fling a double rainbow of hope and glory across the heavens; to compel all things into life and utterance till all the universe shouts with one voice and pants with one breath.

What's the use of poetry?

To make this wide world drunk with its own loveliness; to make this garret a palace and me the King of Death and Fate.

Poetry not real—not useful!

It is you who are not real, you practical people—you herd of money-grabbers, you bats, you owls, you moles, you human vegetables, who root yourselves and fatten up your dull, petty, miserable lives, and eat and drink, and sleep, and buy and sell and toil, in one long round of humdrum death in life!

Poetry not real—not useful!

"There is nothing useful but poetry, and nothing real but the poet."

"I see, said the blind man," observed Robert. "It is clear that we prose-fellows were dead before we were born."

"Not all of you," admitted Marian, generously. "Only the grubworms, the bats, the owls. I sometimes think that Science is the most purely beautiful thing in the world. Those controversial terms you know—the Science of Poetry and the Poetry of Science—they make the sum of Truth.

"It must be allowed though that Poets and Scientists have little in common however they may agree in ideals. The Curies, Pasteur and Koch seem to me good examples of how far Science may be poetic; and Shakespeare of how far poets may be scientific; but your Edisons and our Walt Whitmans—dear me! After all it is character and temperament that make people what they appear, far more than their trade. I have heard of Robbie Burns at the plough, and Agassiz gathering violets.

AS A NEWARKER SAW THE RECENT CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION

The 25th International C. E. Convention held on the new million dollar pier at Atlantic City, N. J., during the first part of July will continue to enthuse thousands of loyal endeavorers for years to come. The main services were held in the most beautiful hall in the world. The seating capacity of the entire pier is 50,000, the seating capacity of this room named during the Convention "Auditorium Endeavor", is 12,000, while it is estimated that fully 15,000 were present to bear President Taft. There were always large simultaneous meetings in the mornings and evenings. Back of this vast auditorium is Captain Young's palatial residence. It is built of carved Italian marble surrounded by an Italian garden filled with statuary. In the "grape-arbor" each cluster of fruit conceals a colored electric bulb. It is said there are 3,000 of these bulbs used in the nightly illumination which presents a most beautiful sight.

After a half hour's song and praise service, Secretary Shaw said: "There is only one man in all the world who can properly open this 25th International C. E. Convention and he is Dr. Clark." He was given an ovation only such as 10,000 people can give; behind him tier upon tier rose the great C. E. chorus of Washington, D. C., with that unsurpassed leader of song, Professor Foster, ready and willing to lead that vast audience in songs of praise. Before him was grouped upon the main floor and in the galleries one of the greatest audiences ever gathered in Atlantic City or in a C. E. Convention. At Dr. Clark's request the opening service was begun by repeating the first clause of our pledge which was followed by the Bible prayer: "Establish thou the work of our Lord upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it." After a simple prayer Dr. Floyd Tompkins conducted the opening devotional services. He gave three key words, "I came from God"—the audience singing "Nearer my God to Thee"; "Christ Died for Me", the audience responding by singing "My Jesus I Love Thee"; "I will serve Him," the audience singing, "I'll go where You want Me to Go."

New Jersey State President handed to Dr. Clark a unique gavel, the head of which is made of 21 pieces of wood representing New Jersey's 21 counties. It also represents the unifying power of C. E. The handle is made of a piece of wood from the life-saving station at city-by-the-sea—a token of C. E. life-saving and developing work.

In thought of the 30 years of C. E. and Dr. Clark's coming sixtieth birthday, he was presented with a gold watch chain, bearing a diamond studded C. E. monogram. Upon each square link of this chain is engraved the name of a State or Canadian province. All of the States and provinces had a share in the gift.

Parts of Dr. Clark's address follow:

"The great advance of recent days, which proves that the divine favor rests upon the Christian Endeavor movement, should only be an incentive to make our societies better in every way that we may be worthy of His continued blessing. As the motto of our Increase Campaign at the last convention was 'Enlargement,' I propose that this year it should be 'Efficiency.' Our enlargement is given us only that we may increase our efficiency. Every new society, every new member that joins the Christian Endeavor ranks, is a challenge to us to make each one more effective in the service of Christ.

We miss our God-given opportunity when we do not transform our Enlargement into Efficiency.

"Let us not think for a moment that our Increase campaign is at an end. It should never cease, for increase should mean, and usually does mean, efficiency; since enlargement means effort, and effort wisely directed, means effectiveness. The two words should be inseparable, but I desire this year to put the emphasis on the word Efficiency, as two years ago the stress was put upon the word, 'Enlargement.'

"Let me suggest a few lines of achievement which I think are within the bounds of our accomplishment during the twenty-four months to come. They are, you will see, all along the lines of the providential development of Christian Endeavor. I would only ask you to enter the doors God opens to us.

PROMOTION OF WORLD-WIDE PEACE.

"We have become, in the broadest sense, more than ever during these two years past an international organization. In every land beneath the sun the name 'Christian Endeavor' is known and its principles are acknowledged. Almost without knowing it, certainly without much human guidance, we have become a world-wide brotherhood that embraces every race and region.

"What, then, is more natural or more important than that we should stand in every land for the fellowship of the nations and the peace of the world? What organization has a better chance or a more imperative call to unite the future leaders of the religious world in a religious pact that can never be broken by the hideous god of war?

But if you had a photograph before you, then you could recall the forgotten face, yes, even the kind acts, the gentle words.

Prizes To Be Offered For Grain At The State Corn Show

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Delaware Corn Growers' Association, arrangements were completed for the fifth annual State Corn Show to be held in Dover, December 14-15, 1911.

Instead of the show being confined to corn, as heretofore, other grains and grass seeds will be included. Premiums will be offered for the best peck samples of wheat, spring oats, winter oats, barley, soy beans, (black, white green), cowpeas (several varieties), field beans, buckwheat, vetch, crimson clover seed, and red clover seed.

It is hoped that this plan will serve to encourage the care necessary for the production of high class seed among Delaware farmers.

The State sows annually large quantities of these staple crops, the seed of which is largely brought from outside sources.

The usual premiums will be offered for ten ear samples of corn of different colors and varieties.

In addition to the above, cash prizes will be awarded for the largest yields of soy beans, grown from the four pounds of seed sent out by the Station to farmers last spring. More than one hundred farmers are participating in this contest.

The premium list will be ready by September 1st, and may be secured, together with other information regarding the State Show, from Prof. A. E. Grantham, Newark, Del., Sec'y, Delaware Corn Growers' Association.

"This is peculiarly the year to press the peace idea. President Taft has uttered his ringing note that has aroused the echoes in every land. Sir Edward Grey and the leaders of both great English parties have seconded his brave words. Endeavorers in many lands have already expressed their gratitude that some statesmen dare not refer every question of national import to arbitration. British Endeavorers are peculiarly enthusiastic over the possibilities of a compact which shall unite English-speaking peoples in an indissoluble treaty. Let this Convention go on record with equal urgency and let those two years to come mark a great advance the world over in promoting the fellowship of mankind so far as Christian Endeavor can promote it.

"Most of my time for the next two years will be spent among the Endeavorers of Europe. I will try to do my little best there to promote this pact of peace. Will you do your best at home?

"Second. Our duty to promote the fellowship of the churches as well as of the nations must never be forgotten or minimized. It is our God-given privilege and duty to continue, as in the past, to be, perhaps, the chief agency in bringing the young people of all Protestant denominations together on a non-sectarian basis of love and service to God and man.

"These two years past have seen new denominations join our ranks, have seen indeed greater advances along these lines than any other years and should only spur us on to do our best to make the fellowship complete.

A CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION.

Mission study-classes are already well-known in our societies. Why should we not have a Christian Endeavor study-class in every society? Text-books are cheap; the little time necessary is not wanting; the advantages would be enormous. Remember that half a million new Endeavorers join our ranks each year. We must catch them young and train them unceasingly.

"Because you older Endeavorers of ten or twenty years ago knew what the pledge meant, and why we adopted it, how to conduct prayer meeting and carry on a committee efficiently is no proof that the boys and girls who joined week before last understand these things.

We cannot afford to omit the education of Endeavorers in Endeavor principles any more than affording to shut up our high schools or close the doors of the little red schoolhouse in the country.

TWO DANGERS TO BE GUARDED.

"There are two dangers to be guarded against. First, a narrow exclusiveness which would make the society merely a prayer meeting with a very narrow round of duties for a few of the spiritually gifted; and on the other, which, for the sake of numbers or prestige, adopts every latest young people's fad, thus belittling or perhaps crowding out the very things which Christian Endeavor was established to maintain until at last, as one has graphically expressed it, the guest has eaten of the host."

"Against both of these dangers we have one great safeguard. It is found in our pledge, which is both inclusive and exclusive, including whatever Christ the Master would like to have us do, yet limiting our society and defining it as promoting in any way and all ways the distinctive religious life of young people.

Then such men as usually talk 40 minutes were confined to 2 minutes each, namely Dr. Wilson, of Canada, Bishop Fallows, Dr. McAfee, President Capen of the American Board of Missions. One of the most interesting features of the evening was singing of Enos Bacon, of England, known as the "Yorkshire Nightingale," the man with the double voice, a genuine baritone and clear, rich, powerful soprano." He sang a great many solos of his own composition. I believe the most impressive of all meetings was the Quiet Hour services—the first of which was held out in the open pavilion when the golden rays of the early morning sun sparkling over the expanse of blue waters gave a glimpse of rare beauty. But with 6000 present at the first morning the managers knew that it would be impossible to get within range of the speaker's voice, so the rest of the "Quiet Hours" were spent in Wilfiston Auditorium, where the roar of the mighty ocean blended with the voices of the worshippers in prayer and song and lead all hearts to blend in sweet accord with the Maker of the Universe, and lead them to higher and holier heights. It has been said that the strength of the great leader, Dr. Wilbur Chapman, lies in organizing his forces. His method is not a whirlwind but a seige; as a speaker, he is clear, terse and convincing with a wonderful gift of reaching the heart. "The Shepherd's Psalm" was his theme. He explained it verse by verse, closing with the entire assembly reciting it very softly and emphasizing the personal pronouns all through. The hymns sung were "I Love to Tell the Story," "The Way of the Cross Leads Home," "My Jesus, I Love Thee," "Glory Song," "My Faith Looks up to Thee," "Jesus Lover of my Soul" and "The King's Business."

The vast audience nearly went wild with enthusiasm while President Taft was being escorted to the platform. When the chorus leader saw the procession coming he started "America," then followed "The Star Spangled Banner," "Bringing in the Sheaves," which were rendered in an effective manner. That part of the audience on the main floor sang one line, those in the galleries the next, ministers and missionaries the next, all joining in on the chorus. The President said he had never heard anything like it.

In presenting our Nation's President, Dr. Clark said he would rather go down in History as "William the Peace-Maker" than as "William, the Conqueror." President Taft said the savagery of war is associated with the lowest moral qualities; that while treaties might not abolish war, they were instruments by which war might be averted. One of the difficulties in the way of peace is the fact that the conscience of the nation is a little lower than the conscience of the average individual. While we have had several wars in the past 25 years, peace has, nevertheless, been maintained, and treaties have been made with reference to arbitration at the Hague and for the establishment of a court at the Hague for the settlement of international disputes. The heroism and exhibition of noblest quality of heart and soul and mind of men that war makes possible every student of History must admit but that this is accompanied with the horrible cost and sacrifice of human suffering and lives, cruelty and corruption is equally true and in no case can the historian say the good of war was worth this awful sacrifice. "I am glad to say that today we have reached such a point in the negotiations for a treaty of universal arbitrations with one of the great European powers that we can hopefully predict the signing of a satisfactory treaty with Great Britain. This treaty eliminates the exceptions and provides that all questions of international concern of a justifiable character shall be submitted to the arbitration of an impartial tribunal. To this audience and this great society with its worldwide influence I do not hesitate to appeal to give the tremendous weight of its support to such a cause."

Judge Ben Lindsey spoke upon two subjects: "The Christian Citizen in Politics" and "The Boy Problem." In his address on the former subject he said the most dangerous citizen in any city is the man who acts indifferently and considers himself above politics. The people of the present age spend too much time figuring how they are to enter the next kingdom, instead of finding the key to the earthly kingdom. Toleration by the church of evil conditions in their cities is only helping to advance the cause of those behind the scenes.

Fanny Crosby, the beloved blind hymn-writer, was greeted by that vast audience singing "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Although 91 years of age she made the following remarks in a clear, strong voice: "If Fanny Crosby has sung herself into the hearts of the people what has Francis Clark done? His star will shine through countless ages. Let us follow his footsteps as he followed in the steps of the meek and lowly, I prayed that God would permit me to clasp the hand of this noble friend; my prayer has been answered. My heart is inspired and I will bring forth hymns never written, friends. "Some day the silver chord will break" and I will sing no more. What a joy will be mine "When I see His face to face, and tell the story saved by Grace." The evening service closed with "I am thine, O Lord,"

"Rescue the Perishing" and "Saved by Grace." It is said when the singing of these hymns was borne by the wings of the wind to the boardwalk and avenue a hush and a calm was felt by that surging throng.

Ex. Vice-President Fairbanks addressed the Methodist rally. After heartily advising church unity he spoke about lack of Sabbath observance in Atlantic City. He arrived there on Sunday and said he had not known what day it was he should never have dreamed it was God's day. Every store, salloon and amusement was in full swing. He said the rules of the city seemed to ignore the fact that they are a part of America. They act as though there are no laws;
it is a disgrace to this world-renowned resort. He said: "It reminds me of some of the Sabbaths
I have seen in heathen lands, but I am glad to say Atlantic City is not a typical American city in this respect. We must make more of our Sabbath for the sake of the home. Without the home where would the country be? Sabbath desecration tends to undermine the home and for that reason we should promote universal Sabbath observance. Sabbath observance means reverence for all that is best and dearest to us. If we preserve the country we must preserve the home and if we preserve the home we must observe the Sabbath day." Hon. Fairbanks states there are more C. E. Societies in the Methodist Church the world over than in any other denomination. In Australia there are 4000 Methodist C. E. Societies.
He says it does not seem to make much difference which organization we are a part of because in the near future all will unite under the name of C. E.—the organization which has active members among all peoples of the civilized world. The most highly educated of the influential people are its chief supporters. It is, truly, the greatest religious movement of the nineteenth century. All creeds meet here on one common plane;
interdenominational plans, with one motto: "For Christ and the Church." The Christian Endeavor believes that every man should have a creed and be loyal to it;
have a church and attend its services, but he also believes that the goal of all Christians is Heaven and God and the creed is only a means to that end. C. E. is sending out skilled workers, trained life-savers, to "rescue the perishing" from the angry billows of sin, crime and degradation.

Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, says the question today is not tariff, nor international peace, but the government of our large cities. The business people take no part in the elections, so the result is the lower classes of society are in the majority. The latter are the men who are busy on election day. He thinks the man who does not take enough interest to vote should be disfranchised. He says the world is not growing worse; it is better, and to prove this statement mentioned the abolition of dueling, prize-fighting, gradual disappearance of gambling, etc., as result of the nation's religious movement. We live in a new and exceptional age. America is another name for opportunity.
The civilization of a country is measured by the estimation in which its women are held. In England only one woman is queen; in America every woman is a queen and every man a prince of royal blood. This nation stands alone for an idea, the idea of representative government.

"A saloonless nation" by July 4, 1920, is the C. E. battle cry.
Why 1920? It will be the 200th year from the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. This resolution was unanimously adopted by those 25,000 delegates. The C. E. is an uncompromising foe of the saloon and insists upon the abolition of the liquor traffic in every State and Nation. One duty of ours is not to be a saloon keeper
—the one who, by his voice or vote sanctions America's greatest curse—the gilded saloon. Our official program says "No delegate will be assigned to a hotel where liquor is sold. Temperance hotels only is our rule." On the platform back of the Washington, D.
C., Chorus was a large white placard with red lettering bearing this inscription: "Close the Salloons in the National Capitol." On the other side of the platform
were the Stars and Stripes and Union Jack united with the C. E. flag.
In another auditorium were the two hemispheres bound together with the C. E. monogram. Another interesting feature was the violin and vocal solos by Sidney Clark, son of the C. E. founder.

On Tuesday evening after services in auditoriums had closed, the Endeavorers marched in a body to the Chalfonte, where Dr. Clark was entertained, and tendered him an open air reception. After singing a few hymns, Dr. Clark made a short address. All repeated the 23rd Psalm and then such singing! such as the King's Business, Bringing in the Sheaves,
America, There is Sunshine,
Near my God, to Thee, Lead
Kindly Light, Blest be the Tie that Binds, God be with you.
Standing where the moonlight

AROUND HOCKESSIN

Harmony Grange opened Monday evening after having discontinued their meetings during the busy summer months. Plans are under way for the entertainment of Pomona Grange at the home of Mr. Arnold Naudain, September 7th.

An interesting program included a discussion of the chestnut tree blight, the opening of a question box, under the charge of Mrs. Annie Dennison; an instrumental duet by Misses Laura and Mary Walker.

In reference to the chestnut tree disease the State Board of Agriculture has issued the following warning:

The Bark Blight, if not checked will wipe out Chestnut timber in Delaware in three years. Cutting out diseased trees and burning diseased bark is the only remedy. The wood is good until it begins to decay, and should be utilized promptly.

Dr. Mel T. Cook of the Delaware Experiment Station, has investigated the extent of the Chestnut Bark Blight, for the State Board of Agriculture, and reports that the disease is much more prevalent in the State than was supposed; that diseased trees are found in all parts of the State so far as inspections have been made, which is as far south as Felton. Dr. Cook says:

"Taking into consideration the rapid spread of the disease since its first discovery in 1904, its spread in this State within the past three years, and the large number of points of infection, the writer is of the opinion that unless some heroic measures are taken for its control, practically all of our chestnut will be destroyed within the next three years. It most certainly cannot last longer than five years under present conditions."

Worriers are therefore warned to cut out all diseased chestnut trees and to scrape up and burn all diseased bark at the first opportunity; and they are advised to utilize all chestnut timber as speedily as possible. Any chestnut trees showing dead or dying leaves and branches may safely be assumed to have this disease.

Prompt action is necessary to prevent grave loss.
