W. C. D. Student Asserts That Men's College Standards Are Low; Only Three Women Vote Against Consolidation

170 STUDENTS VOTE

The results of The Review's student poll on coeducation show that of those who voted most students are in favor of coeducation in some form or another. Almost a majority are in favor of complete coeducation.

The vote in the Men's College showed a clear majority in favor of complete coeducation with 55 votes. Twenty-eight votes were for coeducation in small, advanced classes. Twenty-three of the 106 men who voted were against coeducation.

The Women's College leaned toward coeducation in small, advanced classes. Thirty-five votes were cast in favor of this system. Twenty-six votes were for complete coeducation. Only three women voted against coeducation.

Out of a total of 170 votes in both colleges combined, 81 were for complete coeducation, 63 for coeducation in small, advanced classes, and 26 against coeducation.

One of the women who voted for coeducation in small, advanced classes wrote this comment on her ballot: "I will favor complete coeducation when the Men's College standing equals that of the Women's College."

The following letter accompanied the ballot from another student of the Women's College:

"I know that comments are not requested with these ballots, but I'm sending one anyway. Perhaps the people who are running this poll have not had their attention called to the fact that there are certain intangible differences in the two colleges under consideration that would make merging ludicrous to say the least. It isn't merely a matter of identical courses, or the possibility of a richer curriculum. It is, rather, the question of ideals and intellectual maturity that merging instantly must raise in the minds of those who can see the vast differences in the two bodies.

Thirty-Five Actors Take Stage Tomorrow Night In 'The Green Cockatoo'

Lavish Costumes and Two-Level Stage For E52 Play; Cobb, Ely And Ebner Play In One-Act Curtain Raiser

With a cast of 35 actors headed by Harvey Maguigan, Dave Salsburg, Vera McCall, and Bette McKelvey, the E52 Players will present Schnitzler's The Green Cockatoo, this Thursday evening at 8:15 in Mitchell Hall. Besides this elaborate and colorful French Revolutionary story, a farcical one-act curtain raiser, Where But In America, will also be given with Caroline Cobb, Blair Ely, and Louise Ebner in its cast.

The story of The Green Cockatoo is an intensely exciting one. On the night of the storming of the Bastille, a group of dissipated nobles gather at their customary haunt, the "Green Cockatoo" Inn, where they generally are entertained by a group of actors, the leader of whom is Henri (Harvey Maguigan). Following the murder of the Duke (Irvin Malcolm) because of his affair with Henri's wife, Leoadie, (Vera McCall) the Paris mob, which has just stormed the Bastille, enters the inn and finally brings the nobles to realize that they are not watching a play.

Among the many interesting features of the production are the lavish costumes and the "two-level" stage. What with the great expense of producing The Green Cockatoo and the additional cost of the one-act play, a large crowd will be necessary even to make expenses for the players. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the cast of staff and may be reserved at Mitchell Hall.

Men's College Standards On Same Level As Women's

Faculty Survey Seems To Disprove W. C. D. Students' Claim Of Higher Standards

In a survey conducted by representatives of THE REVIEW upon the relative standards of the courses at Delaware College and Women's College, and the possible effect of co-education on these standards, it was found that four professors consider the standards of courses at Women's College higher than those at the Men's College; nine say that the standards are the same at both colleges. Five professors think that co-education would have no effect as to changing the standards either way. Four definitely stated that they believe co-education in advanced classes would generally elevate the standards of courses in both colleges, while none made a positive statement that co-education (Continued on Page 6)

In commenting upon the issue of coeducation at the University of Delaware, Dr. W. O. He, however, favors consolidation of small, advanced classes for purposes of economy and efficiency. Dr. Sypherd, who has been away (Continued on Page 5.)

Phi Kappa Tau And Theta Chi Follow; Senior Class Has Highest Average; Juniors And Sophomores Come Next

75 STUDENTS ON ROLL

The scholastic standings of the students at Delaware College for the first term of 1934-35, just announced by Dean G. E. Dutton, show that Sigma Tau Phi leads the fraternities with an average of 1.45. This makes the third time in the last four terms that Sigma Tau Phi has won this honor. Theta Chi was highest on the last honor roll.

Phi Kappa Tau follows on the latest honor roll with a standing of 1.42. Theta Chi comes third with 1.39. The other fraternities' standings are Sigma Nu, 1.38; Sigma Phi Epsilon, 1.14; and Kappa Alpha, .78.

The Seniors led the classes with an average of 1.77. The Junior Sophomore average was .94, and the Freshman average, .61.

The index numbers used in the Honor Roll have the following significance: the number 3 denotes an average of A (the highest possible average); the number 2 denotes an average of B; the number 1 denotes an average of C. No student who is taking fewer hours than those required in his curriculum is eligible for the Honor Roll (except students who have accumulated extra credits).

The average scholastic standing of the entire student body of Delaware College for the first term was 1.09. The average for students from Delaware was 1.09; the average for out-of-state students was 1.05. Seventy-five students who earned an average (Continued on Page 5.)

"Must Sell Man's Capabilities And Intellect," Says Dr. C. M. Wharton, Emphasizing Placement Bureau Need

P. E. Department Finding Jobs For June Graduates

"In this commercialized age, a man's capabilities and intellect must be sold as well as anything else," says Dr. Charles M. Wharton in commenting upon the Placement Bureau of the Physical Education Health Department. To date Dr. Wharton has succeeded in "selling" several of his graduates and expects to have them all placed before September.

The only school of the University of Delaware making any comprehensive efforts to extend this service to its graduates, Dr. Wharton feels it is possible only because of the Personnel Bureau within the Physical Education Department that begins to collect data on an individual student's health, character and progress the day he enters college. By the end of four years enough information has been collected and compiled on every phase of the student's collegiate career that placement is relatively simplified.

The first object of the Personnel Bureau is to build up the students. Only by cleaning up the physical defects that impede scholastic progress can a student do his best work. Advice and aid on matters of personal nature saves many students from scholastic failure in adjusting their personalities to school work. In finding positions for the graduates the Personnel Bureau does its finishing work.

In contacting the superintendents of all Delaware educational institutions, Dr. Wharton has met with the greatest enthusiasm for his efforts to place University of Delaware graduates in Delaware schools. Superintendents have praised the bureau for eliminating the former haphazard method of (Continued on Page 5.)

THE COEDUCATION POLL

The results of our student poll on coeducation show that among those students who had the initiative to vote, an overwhelming number want coeducation in some form or another at the University of Delaware.

We were surprised to see that two of the three women's ballots against coeducation suggested that a consolidation would result in the "low standard" at the Men's College pulling down the "high standard" at the Women's College. First of all, we wonder if there are any grounds for saying that generally speaking the women maintain higher standards than the men. Secondly, we have our doubts that the lower standard (assuming that it exists) would drag down the higher standard. Is it not just as possible that the higher average would pull up the lower? This argument, we think, is half-baked.

The greater number of students and faculty have expressed their desire for coeducation, at least in small, advanced classes. Now it remains to be seen whether the Board of Trustees will be alert and progressive enough to make a change which would greatly benefit our institution, or whether they will permit conditions to exist as they are.

DR. WHARTON LEADS THE WAY

In a little over a month another group of seniors will reluctantly receive their degrees. The happiness which the successful completion of four years of college work should bring to them is clouded by dismal prospects for finding a position when they leave here. Few of them know even where or how to begin to look for employment. Many graduates, when they step off the gang-plank in June, will find themselves on distinctly foreign shores. Who is going to come to their rescue to lead them to a haven?

Dr. Wharton, who has foreseen this danger, has done a commendable piece of personnel work for the first group of graduates to be turned out by the Physical Education and Health Department.

He has had the foresight and initiative to keep a detailed record of the men enrolled in the Physical Education Department. He has data concerning the character, personality, and health of each one of these students. As a result of this work, Dr. Wharton has been able to contact high school superintendents in this state and neighboring states, and to make well-grounded recommendations of these men for teaching positions. Dr. Wharton is making it his personal business to obtain jobs for the worthy students in his department, and he expects to place every one of them in a position.

Other departments in the University might well follow Dr. Wharton's example. The Department of Education could conduct a similar personnel service by trying to obtain jobs for capable Delaware graduates in the public schools of this state. We feel that if such a service were conscientiously carried on, the state and local boards of education would be willing to show preference for graduates from this University.

The engineering departments could also adopt a similar plan in contacting industrial plants and the such, where engineers are employed. There are several industries in and around Wilmington which are taking on enthusiastic and capable graduating engineers. But how many of these are Delaware students?

The two departments which we have mentioned are the most obvious places where placement facilities are necessary. Until the time when the University can afford to maintain a personnel bureau, it is the duty of the individual departments to take care of the men in their respective groups. Dr. Wharton has proved that this is feasible. Now let us see the others follow.

WELCOME THE HIGH SCHOOLS

On Saturday the University of Delaware will be host to four hundred students from thirty-six high schools in Delaware and neighboring states. As has been the custom for a number of years this University is sponsoring the Interscholastic Track and Field Meet.

We look upon this event as an excellent opportunity to boost our University. The students here should take advantage of this opportunity and make the best possible impression upon these boys. Give them a cordial reception. Make them feel that we are really glad to have them here. Show them around the University if possible. In any event, do what you can to boost Delaware.

By Theodore Berman

Fifty Years A Surgeon, by Robert Tuttle Morris, published by Dutton.

This autobiography is mostly made up of comments and criticisms on different medical subjects, and the bright lights of the author's life. Dr. Morris does not confine his story to hospital life alone, but presents views on the value of medicine to mankind. This book will create interest in the ordinary reader to read more non-fiction.

The Julius Caesar Murder Case, by Wallace Irwin, published by D. Appleton-Century Co.

This is one of the best books published this year. Its name implies a common mystery but it is far more than that. The setting of the story takes place in ancient Rome in the year 44 B. C., but Irwin has modernized it with a newspaper, slang, and regulated traffic. P. Manlius Scribo, a news reporter of the Evening Tiber, is the hero-reporter-detective of the story. The Caesar-Antony-Cleopatra scandal is one of the subplots. Irwin has used Latin words, in some of the conversation, representing slang, i. e., dixisti—says you. This humorous, historical, murder mystery will be enjoyed by ever one.

Vandegriff's Fleet Maneuvers Described In Prose and Poetry

Editor of the "Review", Newark, Delaware.
My darling Editor:

For those who are interested in the actions of the well known fleet which is under the command of Admiral Robert Perry Vandegriff, I shall now take time to tell you dear, so that it may be passed on to the many followers.

QUOTE: "The FLEET under the direct supervision of Robert Perry Vandegriff held maneuvers in southern waters in the vicinity of the Newark Armory. Second in command was the well known three point man "Dineene", who served in the capacity of Vice-Admiral. Other officials who went on this cruise were Commander Daniel Preston Lee, who took time away from his duties as 2nd Lt. 621st CARES in order to assist in the proper maneuvering of the FLEET; serving as Lieutenant Commander was Willard E. du-Ross, "DEWEY" being an experienced swimmer was placed in charge of the life saving division; also many GOBS were on hand.

The FLEET started the evening off by holding its second annual banquet at the DP, a well known coaling station. After the ships were put in the proper condition for sailing the Admiral gave his command to "shove off." While sailing along the still waters the fleet was singing its Song of Spring on the Sea.

Laughing weather, sailors, for the wind is on the sea,
And we're going to sail tonight in our ships;

Laughing weather, sailors, for the spring has left us free,
And the merry winds are salty on our lips.

There's a welcome in the nodding of the vessels as they ride
And a sparkle of adventure in the bay;

The Seven Seas are open and the Seven Seas are wide
And all their roads are calling us away.

Laughing weather, sailors, for the white sea-horses run
In endless long procession down the tide.

And the good ships nod and beckon, all a-glitter in the sun,

Stardusting back over previous Spring Frolics brings memories of the one that "The London Critterions" were featured in a bar-room scene in the Yukon, the night that we played at "just imagine the year of 1981," and the year that Jean Calloway's music was nearly hot enough to burn the dance hall. . . . Those were the days?—I wouldn't say that. . . . was there ever one that surpassed the Frolic of 1935?—a thousand times no. . . . the half dozen or so gendarmes that idled around the edges gave the affair that certain effect. . . . I'll bet they were disappointed though. . . . Perhaps the committee thought that the Scotch band was in keeping with the spirit of the evening. . . . Speaking of Scotch, the cute little Scotch number that attended with Geist is the proud possessor of a program autographed by all the lads in the band. . . . A certain W. C. D. celebrated her fourth anniversary—four Frolics with the same guy is something of a record I believe. . . . May next year's be as good—until then "Frolic but don't get hurt."

Maybe you that avoid brass rails and checkered table cloths won't get the point of the story that is about to follow. . . . nevertheless here goes—The scene was Frazer Field during a ball game, the time was the hottest part of the afternoon. . . . "Oh, man," said the first member of the dialogue, "do I feel like a nice tall mint julep?" "You may feel like a mint julep," was the answer, "but you look like a 'Horse's neck'."

Saturday brings us another day when college men are supposed to "act like college men" . . . The Interscholastics . . . so wear your stripes and checks, your fraternity pins and varsity sweaters, and don't forget that the School boys are our guests . . . treat 'em as such—don't steal their girl-friends.

To you that are military minded . . . Don't forget the Federal Inspection Thursday. For eight years the Kampus Kadets have been rated excellent . . . will they rate the blue star next year? Did you know that the Senior Class in R. O. T. C. set a record with the six-inch gun last summer at Fort Hancock? They scored the highest percentage ever made at that Fort out of ten shots, and . . . "page Mr. Ripley" . . . scored a direct hit on a ten yard pyramidal target at the distance of seven miles.

Cuban Hurricane Pictures For May 7 College Hour

William Stanier Of DuPont Company To Show Remarkable Scenes Of 1933 Catastrophe

At the meeting of the College Hour on Tuesday, May 7, in Mitchell Hall Mr. William Stanier, of the DuPont Company, will show some very unusual pictures which he took of the 1933 Hurricane in Cuba.

In September, 1933, the time of this memorable hurricane, Mr. Stanier was staying on the Cuban estate of Mr. Irene DuPont, and he was able to take these dangerous and remarkable pictures.

Mr. Stanier's pictures have been frequently shown in Wilmington and vicinity, and they have aroused unusual interest. The College Hour Committee is indeed fortunate in being able to have them shown before the student body.

Delaware Relay Team Breaks Record In Victory At Penn

Takes Third Place In Another Event

Minner, King, DiSabatino And Perkins Victorious In Franklin Field Classic; Run Mile In 3:29.2

A fast quartet of Delaware quarter-milers represented the Blue and Gold last week in the Penn Relays by winning the one mile relay with record-smashing time and placing third in another event. Delbert Minner, Donald King, Ernest DiSabatino and Joe Perkins constituted the victorious foursome, which set a new mark of 3:29.2 for the University of Delaware in the one mile relay. The old mark of 3:30.4 was made in 1922.

On Friday the quartet placed third in the Middle Atlantic Class B Championship mile relay after Perkins, Delaware anchor man, had come up from last place.

With a change in the running order, on Saturday the same men ran a much faster race to break the tape eight yards in the van of the closest rival, Swarthmore College, whose anchor man was the only runner whom Delaware's last speedster, Perkins, was required by his fast team-mates to overtake. Minner, doing the first quarter in a fraction above 52 seconds, put the baton into King's hand far ahead of the rest of the pack. King held his position to fair advantage, although he is a distance man and unused to sprinting.

DiSabatino burned the Franklin Field cinders in the third leg and was astern only of Swarthmore when he gave the stick to Perkins, who outran Swarthmore's last man and broke the tape to net Delaware a first place and a new record. Perkins unofficially undercut the college 440 record when he ran the curtain quarter in 50.3 seconds.

Co-captains John Carey and Francis Lambert accompanied the team and were entered in special events, but only Carey competed, Lambert having a game leg that prevented his participation. Carey fought superb competition in the javelin throw but was unable to place. Frank Mayer was on hand as alternate in case of a need for a relay team substitute.

The West Chester dual meet, scheduled for May 6, has been moved forward to May 18 at West Chester's request. The next event on the track card is the Middle Atlantic in Bethlehem on May 10-11, in which a large squad will participate for Delaware in a strong field of fifteen colleges and universities. A triangular meet with Swarthmore and Dickinson may be arranged this week.

Golf Team Wins Over Two Rivals

Boston College First Victim Of Season; Temple Falls; Rutgers Next Opponent For Houghton Men

The University of Delaware golf team scored its first win of the season last Thursday by defeating Boston College at the Newark Country Club, 5 to 1.

Boston college won its only point by McBrady's defeat of Pié 4 and 2. Delaware captured both best ball matches, W. Moore and Pié defeating F. Moore and McBrady 1 up, and Jamison and Porter triumphing over Featherstone and Furbush, 4 and 3.

Victories in the twosomes were scored for Delaware by W. Moore, Jamison and Porter. Summaries:

WITH THE BLUE AND GOLD

JOE PERKINS

OUR RELAY TEAM—When passing the drug store, stop a moment before the window and look over the pile of trophies that a record-smashing relay outfit composed of Minner, DiSabatino, King, and Perkins won at the Penn Relay Carnival last week at Franklin Field, where they shattered a twelve-year-old mark in winning a class championship mile event.

Running the anchor lap, Perkins, we are told, had the rather distasteful task of outrunning a personal friend, Dick Worth, of Swarthmore College, who was the sole competitor the rest of the quartet had left for him to defeat. Worth comes from Delaware and goes to Swarthmore, while Perkins comes from Swarthmore and goes to Delaware.

Just before the Saturday event which the Blue Hen sprinters won, a gentleman from Harvard approached the team and said, "Boys, I'm taking your coach away from you and he'll never have another chance to see you win, so go in there and take that race for Stahley!" They did.

Bull Carey has been hard at work painting and erecting markers on Frazer Field to show just where the college field records are located—he claims it will help the team supersede the distances—and soon there will arise at the side of the track a large board bearing the sprinting and distance running records. It must be some of that fizz ed psychology all embryo coaches here are studying.

CLARK PICKS AIDE—This fall Coach Lyal Clark, Stahley's successor, will bring a backfield coach with him from Western Maryland. The tutor for ball-toters is a senior at that institution named James Dunn, a lad with a pigskin lugging reputation that will make him welcome in the local practice sessions. Clark will again devote most of his time to the job of rendering the Blue Hen line impervious.

GOLF TEAM REVIVED—In these lines last week we chatted a bit depreciatingly about the stick swingers led by Charley Pié and coached by Prof. F. C. Houghton, but now our orchids await them. Last week the golfers beat Boston College and yesterday they trounced Temple, both matches being held on the Newark Country Club course. Two losses and two wins now are balancing each other on the golf score card. Rutgers, the next rival, will be a tough outfit but you may expect the Blue Hens to make it three straight.

We were sorry to learn that in the Boston match Charley Pié, golf captain, was the only man to lose. We were so sorry and sympathetic that we investigated to find out just why he got beaten when his mates all were victorious. Perhaps we are correct in concluding that Pié lost because he was a bit nervous having a feminine spectator with a spicy name trail him around the greens throughout his match. We are unable to ascertain whether or not she carried his clubs.

In a friendly foursome on the Newark course, Austin Porter, freshman asset to the golf team, swung his number five iron and sent a ball to the fifth hole, 165 yards away, for a hole-in-one. Professor Houghton, Bob Jamison, and Bill Moore will swear to it.

BASEBALL BOUQUET—Mayor Collins was recently at odds with Delaware College in his attitude toward taxing frat houses, but he showed that his heart was with the Blue Hen lads when, in the fourth inning of the Washington College game, a despicable Maryland roofer was razzing Bud Newman who was lying at full length after having been hit by a pitched ball. Hizzoner squelched the Chestertown man with a show of true sportsmanship that put his victim to shame.

There were some mutters in the stands when Umpire McKinney adjudicated against the Hens in several close plays. It seems that the Delaware players should have squawked when Salter of Washington was declared safe after bouncing one to the infield—so 'tis whispered about. We are glad to see that the team can take it, from both the opposing teams and the judge, without unsportsmanlike squealing. Play the whistle, fellows!

Payne in pitching against Washington exposed a steadiness that he had never shown before. With better outfield support Payne might have been more fortunate, for he struck out five and gave only one walk before he tired and gave the hill to Greenwood. Both teams made it clear that air pockets or playful winds hovered over the diamond by the way they misjudged the alighting points of flies.

W. Moore, Delaware, defeated F. Moore, Boston College, 2-1. McBrady, Boston College, defeated Pié, Delaware, 4 and 2. Jamison, Delaware, defeated Featherstone, Boston College, 2 up. Porter, Delaware, defeated Furbush, Boston College, 6 and 5.

Best Ball—W. Moore and Pié, defeated F. Moore and McBrady, 1 up. Jamison and Porter, Delaware, defeated Featherstone and Furbush, Boston College, 4 and 3.

In its victory over Temple yesterday, Delaware won both best ball matches to take the contest by a score of 4 to 2, the second win of the season.

Captain Pié, bringing in a card of 78, did the best personal work of the day against Alexander, of Temple, whom Pié vanquished, 5 and 3.

Jamison scored against Cavalli, of the opponents after being pushed to nineteen holes, 1 up. The summaries: Pié, Delaware, defeated Alexander, Temple, 5 and 3. Barcliff, Temple, defeated Moore, Delaware, 3 and 2. Jamison, Delaware, defeated Cavalli, 1 up. Pfeiffer, Temple, defeated Porter, Delaware, 1 up. Pié and Moore, Delaware, defeated Alexander and Barcliff, Temple, 3 and 2. Jamison and Porter, Delaware, defeated Cavalli and Pfeiffer, Temple, 2 and 1.

Relay Victors Win Philip Morris Awards

Joseph Perkins, Delbert Minner, Ernest DiSabatino, and Donald King, who composed the winning relay team in the Class B Mile event at the Penn Relays, have each been awarded a pack of flat fifties of Philip Morris' cigarettes.

Washington College Downs Ball Team While West Chester Is Defeated

Teachers Crushed, 8-4

Washington Wins, 10-8

Doc Doherty's Blue Hens again showed how to win ball games without hits when they defeated West Chester, 8-4, Wednesday, seven of the eight runs being scored on three hits, while Payne hurled another fine game, limiting the Teachers to eight scattered hits, fanning three, and walking four men.

An unearned run put West Chester ahead in the first inning, but Delaware took the lead in their half, putting over two tallies without a bingle, and later added another run in the third. For five frames Payne and Clark battled on the mound with the Delaware freshman, who allowed only four safeties in that time, having the edge. In the sixth, however, the Hens batted around and scored four times on three hits. Payne escaped trouble until the eighth inning when the Pennsylvanians rallied to score three runs. In the same inning two walks and a couple of hit batsmen pushed over another Delaware counter.

Jim Prettyman, with three safeties, and Irish O'Connell, with two, accounted for five of the sixteen bingles recorded. Even though they were charged with three errors, Delaware played a sparkling game afield, with a double play in the ninth providing the feature of the contest.

Delaware's winning streak snapped at four straight on Frazer Field Saturday when the Hens lost a tough game to Washington College, 10-8. Twenty-eight hits, including five round-trippers, three triples, and three two baggers featured the poorly played contest. Bud Newman, who later retired when hit on the head by a pitched ball, and Jim Prettyman collected homers for Delaware, while Berry, Huffman, and Fountain all had four baggers for the enemy. Fountain, Washington's pitcher, also had a triple, but was out at the plate as he tried to convince Ed Thompson of his priority to that spot. The keystone combination of O'Connell and Crompton had swats good for three sacks, and Thompson of Delaware, and Tignor and Reinhardt of Washington, connected for doubles.

Several of the hits could have been cut down by more alert outfielding. During most of the games, Delaware's outer garden was patrolled by batterymen. In Foard's absence, Newman played center until his injury in the fourth. McKendrick, a pitcher, started in right, and Dick Roberts, who is an outfielder this year, but a catcher by training, switched to left. Greenwood and Lomax, both hurlers, and DuVall subsequently served in the garden.

Horace Payne attempted to come back with only two days rest, and the result was disastrous. He was pounded for thirteen hits and eight runs in the six and one-third innings he tossed, and, when four Washington runs were tallied in the seventh, he gave his post to Greenwood. Fountain, Washington ace, although he wiffed eleven batsmen, was in trouble all the way, with the Hens leading most of the time until the seventh.

O'Connell with three, and Crompton with two hits, led the Delaware offense, and Nicholson connected for four safe blows.

O'Connell Leads Batters

Irish O'Connell jumped into the hitting lead last week with a .417 average, as Ed Thompson, the former pace-setter, dropped to .360. Jim Prettyman increased his average to .318, and Dick Roberts fell to .304. The team total rose nine points to .264, due mainly to the slugging in the Washington game.

O'Connell leads in hits, ten, and Newman has crossed the platter seven times to head the scoring list. Six extra base wallops, half of them home runs, have been made by Delaware men.

Delaware's winning streak snapped at four straight on Frazer Field Saturday when the Hens lost a tough game to Washington College, 10-8. Twenty-eight hits, including five round-trippers, three triples, and three two baggers featured the poorly played contest. Bud Newman, who later retired when hit on the head by a pitched ball, and Jim Prettyman collected homers for Delaware, while Berry, Huffman, and Fountain all had four baggers for the enemy. Fountain, Washington's pitcher, also had a triple, but was out at the plate as he tried to convince Ed Thompson of his priority to that spot. The keystone combination of O'Connell and Crompton had swats good for three sacks, and Thompson of Delaware, and Tignor and Reinhardt of Washington, connected for doubles.

Several of the hits could have been cut down by more alert outfielding. During most of the games, Delaware's outer garden was patrolled by batterymen. In Foard's absence, Newman played center until his injury in the fourth. McKendrick, a pitcher, started in right, and Dick Roberts, who is an outfielder this year, but a catcher by training, switched to left. Greenwood and Lomax, both hurlers, and DuVall subsequently served in the garden.

Horace Payne attempted to come back with only two days rest, and the result was disastrous. He was pounded for thirteen hits and eight runs in the six and one-third innings he tossed, and, when four Washington runs were tallied in the seventh, he gave his post to Greenwood. Fountain, Washington ace, although he wiffed eleven batsmen, was in trouble all the way, with the Hens leading most of the time until the seventh.

Two Baseball Games Coming Next Week

The Doherty men will leave Frazer Field for the second time this year on Wednesday, May 8, when they invade Maryland to battle Mt. St. Mary's. The next day, Hampden-Sydney, on its northern trip, will stop in Newark to encounter the Hens. The first game with the southerners, scheduled to be played in Virginia during spring vacation, was rained out.

On The Southern Front

By Jean Sigler

At a meeting held last Wednesday the Athletic Council elected college and class managers for Track and Archery as follows:

Perhaps these girls will be successful in arousing some interest. Practice will start next week for both sports.

The combined Senior-Freshmen baseball team played the Junior-Sophomore team, Monday at 4:10. The Junior-Sophomore team was short one player and, in spite of Ellen Sipple's two home runs, was defeated by a score of 10-9. Rash and Morrow contributed home runs for their teams.

Tennis Opener Today

The Delaware tennis season opens today against the strong congregation of Cadets at P. M. C.

The Blue Hens will be represented by a group of veterans well known to the Delaware fans, Captain Jack Walsh, Wheelless, Lawrence, Rice and Hume and a new comer, Donaho, who has shown much promise. Although these players are in the upper brackets of the Delaware volleyers, the lineup, however, is only tentative as eliminations have not been completed.

The tennis enthusiasts will be able to see the Delaware courtmen on the home courts in action when they meet Dickinson on May 3 and P. M. C. the following afternoon.

Meet Horace Payne

Here is another of our freshmen who has made good in athletic circles. Coming to us from Seaford High School, where he played football, basketball, and baseball, Payne has become one of Doc's star pitchers. His most notable feat was in pitching the Delaware nine to victory over West Chester State Teachers, the only defeat they have suffered in five games to date.

With his well-constructed frame, of one hundred and eighty-five pounds, Husky should become valuable to Delaware's football team. He is enrolled in the Physical Education Department.

U Sed It

Probably one reason why the College Hour programs (excluding Firmin Swinnen) have been so bad is that student representatives Hartmann and Cunningham have not attended a single meeting of the College Hour Committee.

Wiseacres who predict the flop of the Green Cockatoo on Thursday should pay 50 cents to see what we think will be the most spectacular production in years. The Senior Class will probably produce a play on May 8 as their last collegiate activity. They will banquet next Wednesday nite at the S. & S. Club some place(?)

The librarians are casting baleful glances at Ditto Lewis for the ruling barring studes from the stacks. . . the constant running up and down stairs is developing arthritis in their joints. . . And yet in looking over back issues of THE REVIEW we see Ditto's request for more subterranean space. . . He'll probably be asking for subway trains next. . .

The mania for plays has infected the faculty. . . Doc Allen has written two one-act sketches satirizing undergraduate life for a coming program of the Faculty Club. . . Does he know that a stude has written a play lampooning the faculty and is angling to have it produced before the end of the year? . . . why not put them all on the same program. . . The German ambassador donate $50 to the Del-Deutsch for their German conference last Monday nite. . . page the American Legion for un-American activities.

Welcome back to Newark, Dr. Sypherd. . . don't go back to Harvard too soon.

Men Want Complete Co-education

 ware College. Certain of its students have unusually high records of achievement. They also have high ideals. But the majority of the students at the Men's College are distinctly immature when compared with their contemporaries at W. C. D. Indeed, the two groups seem like two utterly different strata of society. They could not possibly coincide. The groups could not merge without producing an effect chaotic and fatal to the high standards which have (surprising though it may seem) been maintained at the Women's College for a number of years.

"I am not narrow minded. I am not prejudiced against co-education. I think it is really the only system of education that should normally exist. Separate colleges are distinctly anti-social. I want to see co-education in Delaware. But not yet. Only when the standards of Delaware College are sufficiently high that merging will not emperil the ideals of the Women's College will I advocate co-education for the University of Delaware."

This student poll has come in the wake of a faculty survey which showed two weeks ago that the professors of the University of Delaware are highly in favor of co-education for small, advanced classes.

Letters to the Editor

And the years that kept us shorebound here have died.

Upon reaching the more disturbed waters the heave of a deck could be felt, and it seemed that it rose to meet the sky. So terrible was the heave that even the Admiral was forced to go to the lea side to watch the belching smoke that sprayed from the funnels of this heavy cruiser. There were storm clouds bending low almost resting on the slanting decks, while down in the hold the Vice-Admiral was crying "Give her speed, least we should sink." With these words before them the crew did work.

A boom! a shriek! a crash! And the Admiral could be heard yelling "A direct hit on Purnell Hall. Take another shot men, this time at Hiram Walker. Kill him, if you can't Commander Lee and myself shall." The sobered crew, returned his almost lost deplores, and Hiram Walker fell.

But now the cruise is ended and ship shall wait for time, time when she shall be in use again:

There she lies and moulders in the backwash of the bay,
 Rotten from her rigging to the weeds about her keel;
 Harbor gulls are nesting in the hawsaholds of her bow,
 And the rats have built a city in the housing of her wheel."

Thanking you,

a diploma and blanket recommendation whereas now definite information is available for the moral, physical and personal nature of an applicant as well as the scholastic. Dr. Wharton is now making intensive efforts to secure positions for his men in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland schools.

The School of Physical Education and Health was started at the University of Delaware in 1931 by Dr. Wharton and graduates its first class in June. Modelled after a similar plan of the University of Pennsylvania that Dr. Wharton headed for several years, it is now accredited as a Class A rating.

In accordance with an understanding with school authorities that he be permitted to resign as soon as he had established a smoothly working department, Dr. Wharton recently tendered his resignation to the executive committee of the Board of Trustees. It was accepted and will become effective at the end of the 1935-1936 school year.

Dr. Sypherd Stresses Need For More Coordination Between Two Colleges

at Harvard University working on a new book, returned to Newark on Sunday. He expects to return to Harvard on Thursday morning.

As he enlarged upon his views on coeducation, Dr. Sypherd said that he believed that we would never have complete coeducation at the University of Delaware. He personally favors segregated classes because they give the professor greater freedom in teaching. A course should be approached from a different angle when taught to women than when taught to men.

Nevertheless, he thinks that here at Delaware small advanced classes should be combined. In addition, laboratories and other facilities should be shared. There should be a more thorough and complete coordination of the Men's College and the Women's College.

As for the Men's College lowering the standard of the Women's College or vice versa, Dr. Sypherd said that he did not think that consolidation would have any effect on standards.

In connection with the need for greater coordination of the two colleges, he stressed the necessity for an administration building located near library, with possibly an underground passage connecting the two buildings. Here could be centralized all offices, including those of professors. In addition, this building should house some large lecture rooms which are greatly needed.

grade of B or better were placed on the Honor Roll for the term.

These students came from the following high schools and preparatory schools: Wilmington, 45; duPont, 4; New Castle, 4; Caesar Rodney, 2; Dover, 2; Lewes, 2; Newark, 2; Tower Hill, 2; Felton, 1; Rehoboth, 1; Salesianum, 1; Selbyville, 1; Smyrna, 1; Out-of-State, 7.

Of these students 48 were in the School of Arts and Science; 27 were in the School of Engineering. Twenty-nine were Seniors; 26 were Juniors; nine were Sophomores; and 11 were Freshmen. Of the entire student body, 17 per cent were on the Honor Roll. Of the students who entered college from Delaware high schools and preparatory schools, 18 per cent were on the Honor Roll, and of the students who entered from out-of-state high schools and preparatory schools, ten per cent were on this roll.

Students who were graduated from a four-year high school and attended another preparatory school for one year before entering the University of Delaware are classified as representing the school from which they were first graduated.

On the Honor Roll were graduates of 19 high schools and preparatory schools of the State. In the following table the figures not in parentheses indicate the number of students from each school who were in college here, and the figures in parentheses indicate the percentage of the total number of students from each school who were on the Honor Roll.

would lower those of Women's College. One said it might, depending upon conditions. Three others made statements, but not for publication.

This survey was conducted as a result of a letter which a Women's College student sent to THE REVIEW. This student claimed that co-education would be unfeasible at the University of Delaware because the combined classes would drag down the standards of the courses at Women's College—at present higher, in her opinion, than those at Men's College. THE REVIEW, therefore, has questioned most of the professors who offer identical courses in both colleges; some, however, could not be reached before going to publication.

These two questions were asked:

1. Are your courses at Women's College higher in standards than those at Men's College?

2. Do you think co-education would lower the standards of Women's College courses, or elevate the standards of Delaware College courses?

The following are the actual statements and opinions of the professors:

In reply to the question, "Are your courses at Women's College higher in standard than those of Men's College?" Professor Byam said that in the advanced French classes this situation existed. He then stated that co-education would have no effect as to raising Men's College standards or lowering Women's College standards in advanced classes as only a limited number of the best students would be admitted to them.

Professor Ellis made the following comment on the questions:

"The work is the same in both of my German classes, with, however, a difference in result because a larger percentage of the girls are more serious in their work. Outside activities take away the attention of the men."

"For advanced classes co-education would work and not lower the standards. In the lower larger classes, there would be a general lowering of standards."

Spanish instructor, Professor Leslie, made the following comments:

"What difference there is between men and women in their work is a matter of psychological temperament. Women are better in beginners' courses where exact daily work is needed."

"Co-education would tend to raise the general standard."

Professor Brinton thought that the standard of the courses are the same in both colleges and that co-education would have no result one way or the other. Any differences in the results obtained under these standards are because of the more limited outlets of the girls and because of their psychological temperaments.

Dr. Ryden of the History Department has this opinion: "The standards are the same at both colleges, but the women have a higher general average than men. Men contribute more material in discussion groups than do women."

Professor Reed made this comment: "The standards are the same in history courses at both colleges, but there are better students, on the average, at Women's College than at Delaware College. There would be a good effect on both men and women in co-education for advanced classes."

Professor Tyler expressed an opinion but said that in view of but a single year of service at the University it did not behoove him to make a public statement on such relatively short experience.

Professor Squire stated that the standards of the Women's College classes are somewhat higher than those of Men's College, at least if judging from the standpoint of scholastic averages. The better students of Men's College, however, are on a par with any from Women's College.

Having had no experience teaching in co-educational colleges, his opinion on the second question is merely a matter of supposition. Co-education, he thinks, could have either result, depending on circumstances. If the women with their greater habits of application could influence men in this direction, the standards would be elevated; on the other hand, if the men distracted the women from their studies, the standards would be lower.

Doctor Allen of the English Department made the following statement in answer to the questions:

"I believe there is no great difference in those taking advanced courses but a smaller proportion of women fail freshman and sophomore English. Even in the freshman and sophomore courses, however, the better students among the men achieve as much as those among the women."

In answer to the question: "Are your courses at Women's College higher in standard than those of Men's College?" Professor de Bonis' comment is this:

"In general, the women at least have a higher average, but there are few extreme cases of scholarship at W. C. D., i. e., there are few very poor or few very brilliant students. Most of the students fall in the middle group of which the average is higher than that of Men's College. The direct opposite is found at Men's College—there are more poor students and more brilliant students. The women have a much greater degree of industry."

Professor Rees said, "I consider the questions to be matters of comparison of which general statements cannot be made with any degree of accuracy. However, if one must compare, the teachers being the same, the standards consequently should be the same."

Professor Oberlin made this statement: "Where I have a chance for comparison the women have made better averages. Whether co-education would lower Women's College standards or elevate Men's College standards is only a matter of opinion."

Professor J. Fenton Daugherty said that the standards of his courses are the same at both colleges and he thought co-education would have no effect either way upon these existing standards.

Dr. Crooks made the following comment: "I teach identical courses at both colleges, and so far as I know have no difference in their respective requirements. I find that the girls are more careful students, but so far as quality of work is concerned, there is no noticeable difference. However, fewer girls in proportion do low grade work; the superior work of men and women average about the same from year to year."

"Co-education might develop rivalry which would serve to elevate the grades moderately of the inter-quartile students. It would have no influence on the superior students who would do excellent work under any circumstances."

8,271 men and women
visited the Chesterfield factories during the past year . . .

A man who visited a Chesterfield factory recently, said: "Now that I have seen Chesterfields made, I understand better than ever why people say Chesterfields are milder and have a better taste."

If you too could visit our factories you could see the clean, airy surroundings; the employees in their spotless uniforms, and the modern cigarette making machinery.

You could notice how carefully each Chesterfield cigarette is inspected and see also how Chesterfields are practically untouched by human hands.

Whenever you happen to be in Richmond, Va., Durham, N. C., or San Francisco, California, we invite you to stop at the Liggett & Myers plants and see how Chesterfields are made.
