Parents, Teachers Back State Drive Upon Illiteracy

Etta J. Wilson, Executive Secretary of P. T. A. In Delaware Stirs Local Members At Meeting Here Monday Night; Large Attendance Noted

In response to a call sounded by Miss Etta J. Wilson, State Executive Secretary of the Association, Monday night here, the Newark P. T. A. pledged full co-operation and support to the recently organized campaign against illiteracy throughout Delaware.

Miss Wilson addressed a large number of parents and teachers of this community at the regular monthly meeting of the local Association, and outlined in detail the drive which is now under way in all three counties and in Wilmington. Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson presided at the meeting and asked the audience for their support. It was unanimously given, and definite plans for local activity will be launched soon.

Miss Gillespie, of the Women's College staff was present and sang several solos during the early part of the meeting.

Miss Wilson told of the Adult Education Movement in which every volunteer organization in the State is being urged to participate. The United States of America, among the literate nations of the world, occupies tenth place. A few years ago it was only in fourth place. As a result of a National Illiteracy Conference held in Washington two years ago, a challenge has gone forth to all of the States: Change Conditions Before 1930. Delaware wants to heed the challenge. At the present moment only 17 states in the Union have more adult literacy. At the last General Assembly the sum of $25,000 was appropriated "for the Americanization of the foreign-born and the education of the adult illiterate." The responsibility of developing a program was placed upon the State Board of Education. Delaware accordingly, has the machinery through which to work. A Supervisor of Adult Education has been appointed and some funds provided.

The necessity, however, is first, an understanding of the problem, and second, the enrollment of pupils in schools. The State Parent-Teacher Association, at an executive meeting last April, pledged itself to an effort to discover the whereabouts of the 10,508 illiterate citizens charged to the State by the last Federal Census. Miss Wilson urged the Newark Association to do its share of this work. Already 1,444 names have been turned in to the State Office by the Parent-Teacher Associations in all parts of Delaware. These have been forwarded to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction who has announced as a result of a study of the report, a series of Adult Night (Continued on Page 4.)

TWO MEN INJURED AT WORK YESTERDAY

Light Bulb Explodes, Burning Workman; Man Has Fingers Chipped Off.

Two accidents to workmen at the local plant of the National Vulcanized Fibre Company occurred yesterday. Neither, however, will result seriously in the opinion of the attending physician.

While repairing a faulty electric bulb at the plant yesterday, Conrad Robinson suffered minor burns when the lamp suddenly exploded in his face. He was treated by Dr. Johnson and sent home. The injuries are not serious.

The same day saw another accident, this time more serious, when Enos O. Walls had the ends of five fingers chipped off when his hand slipped while operating a punch press in the fibre department. Quick medical aid stopped the bleeding and he was sent to his home. Mr. Walls will not be able to work for some time, as a result of the mishap.

Elkton Man Hurt Here

While on his way to catch his train for Elkton, early Monday evening, John F. Sparklin, of that town, a craftsman at Kells, was struck and painfully hurt by an automobile driven by Harvey Mayer, living on Elkton Road, near Newark. Mr. Sparklin was knocked to the side of the road by the impact and suffered lacerations of the head and a bad shaking up. He was taken at once to the office of Dr. Johnson where his injuries were treated, and was later taken to his home.

Depot Road at the point of the mishap is ill-lighted, and the driver of the speeding car evidently failed to see the group of pedestrians of which Mr. Sparklin was a member, walking along the edge of the roadway.

ARREST TWO CHARGED WITH LIQUOR SELLING

Middletown Area Invaded by Prohibition Agents Last Week.

Two arrests were made and several hundred gallons of alleged high power liquor and mash were seized on two farms near Middletown Saturday afternoon by agents from the Federal Prohibition Office, assisted by State Highway Officer Eldrickson and Constables Staats and Fisher.

At the farm of Clarence Gorman, near Taylor's Bridge, the agents assert they found a large quantity of liquor and destroyed more than 100 gallons of mash.

At the farm of Richard Cochran, near Middletown, the agents allege they found a large quantity of mash and also "finished" liquor.

Gorman and Cochran were taken before Justice of Peace Stevens, of Middletown, and held under $500 bail each for appearance before the Court of General Sessions.

May Disband Local Boy Scout Troop Soon Unless Meeting Room Is Procured, Says Head

Faced with the possibility of losing the prestige gained through several years of hard work, Newark Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, are casting about desperately for a heated room for their weekly meetings during the coming winter.

With but three more members, the troop will have reached full strength prescribed under scout regulations. Both the scoutmaster, T. A. Baker, and the boys themselves are loathe to give up even under the trying conditions under which they have carried on recently. The approach of winter precludes any further outdoor meetings. Mr. Baker stated yesterday that unless warm quarters could be found before the first of December, the troop will in all possibility be disbanded.

The scouts applied some weeks ago to Town Council for permission to use the room above the secretary's office on Academy street. The request was refused, due, it is reported, to a rule whereby Council cannot rent the room for stated meetings.

Eight New Applicants

Several members were lost by graduation during the summer, but eight applicants have passed their "tenderfoot" tests during the past month, increasing the enrollment to twenty-one members. Only three more members are needed to make a full-strength troop, and these will doubtless be enrolled during the next month.

During the past month one member of the troop has advanced to the rank of First Class Scout and four have become Second Class Scouts. The boys are endeavoring to meet the requirements of the National Council for a "Standard Troop" with a high rating. Their present progress certainly indicates that they will gain their end.

Regular weekly meetings have been held this fall and the first fall "hike" will be held Friday of this week.

The organization of the troop is as follows:

WED AT VALLEY FORGE

Newark Couple Slip Away For Quiet Wedding Today.

In the Washington Memorial Chapel at Valley Forge, at two o'clock this afternoon, Miss Emma Lovett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Lovett, of East Main street, became the bride of Walter D. Holton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Holton, also of Newark. The ceremony was performed by the chapel pastor. Bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fader.

Both young people are widely known here and very popular. After a short wedding trip they will make their home on Sunset Avenue, where Mr. Holton has purchased a house. Mr. Holton is in business with the J. D. Bush Company, of Wilmington.

NEWARK HIGH TEAM WALLOPS DU PONT

Roll Up 36-0 Score on Up-County Team; Chalmers Again Gets Loose. Team Looks Good.

Playing a smooth, aggressive game, Newark High School waded into Du Pont High at the second meeting of the two teams here Friday afternoon, winning handily, 36-0.

"Shorty" Chalmers, easily the best scholastic back in the State, continued his sensational playing Friday. He smacked the Du Pont line hard and often, ran his team nicely and roved all over the field on defense. His prettiest run of the day, a twenty-yard dash through tackle and through the secondary defense to twist his way over the goal line, was called back and Newark penalized for off-side play.

"The French Debt"

The French Debt Situation will be the subject of a talk Thursday of this week at the Parish House at St. Thomas Church. It will be given by Dr. Benner of the University Faculty and will feature the meeting of the newly organized Men's Club of St. Thomas Church. A cordial invitation to the men of the community is extended.

Poultry Show Opens Here Tuesday; 800 Birds Compete For Awards

Exhibitors From Five States, Totalling 520 Entries, To Be Here All Next Week; Features Planned Each Night Of The Exhibit

Newark plays host next week to poultry fanciers from five Middle Atlantic States and some 800 blue blooded chickens and pigeons, by far the largest exhibit of the type ever to come here.

The Diamond State Poultry and Pigeon Association, promoters of the show, already claim it to be the biggest show Delaware has seen. The birds will be received in the Armory on Delaware avenue, and will be on exhibit from Tuesday morning next until the following Saturday night at 10 p. m. No admission will be charged. That Newark, now rapidly taking its place as a poultry center of the county, should have the show is due in a large measure to the efforts of two men, Samuel Little and William E. Renshaw. Under their able guidance the big event is being staged. Mr. Little is superintendent of the affair, and Mr. Renshaw is assistant.

Several Features
Along with the privilege of seeing almost every breed of chicken raised in America, visitors to the show will have the advantage of meeting and talking to widely known poultry experts and breeders, will see demonstrations in culling, caponizing and handling of flocks, and, in general become better acquainted with this rising industry.

The Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Delaware will have a display space at the show under the direction of A. D. Cobb, State Leader. Two Newark men, J. L. Dayett, feed manufacturer, and George W. Murray, poultry equipment, will also have space for their displays.

The influx of poultry will commence Monday morning and on that day the show will be gotten in readiness. Tuesday morning Mr. Cosh will begin judging the best birds in the following classes: American, Asiatic, Mediterranean, English, Polish, Hamburgs, French, Continental.

FIRST MUSICAL OF SEASON DRAWS MANY

Over Fifty Attend Informal Affair In Sussex Hall, Saturday; Local Singers Are Featured.

About fifty-five members of the Newark Music Society were guests of Dean Robinson in Sussex Hall last Saturday evening to enjoy the first musicale of the season. A tastefully arranged program was arranged and carried through by the following artists: Miss Anne Ritz, soprano; Miss Dora Wilcox, piano; and Mr. Erwart Matthews, baritone.

Herman Tyson Home

Herman R. Tyson returned to Newark a few days ago following a very successful racing campaign through the Carolina circuits. Mr. Tyson during the season is reported to have won about thirty stake races with his string. They are temporarily quartered now in Pinehurst, S. C.

New Rural Route For Post Office Patrons Assured

November 16th Will See Inclusion Of More Depot Road Residents In Carrier's Swing Around Town; No Move For New Quarters Yet, Says Evans

Beginning November 16th next, between twenty and thirty new rural carrier patrons will be added to Route No. 1 of the Post Office, according to William H. Evans, postmaster.

Speaking yesterday of the additional service, Mr. Evans said the route will be extended down Academy street extended to Kells avenue, to Depot road, and west on Park Place to Elkton road. Deliveries will be made of morning mail and parcel post and will greatly convenience residents of this section who have been forced to go to the post office for their mail. About twenty names were signed to a petition asking for the extension of Route No. 1. The action of the Department was made known this week, and Raymond Buckingham, carrier, will start this new route on Monday next.

New Quarters? Not Yet

In discussing post office matters, Mr. Evans stated that while a representative of the Department at Washington had been here for conferences with Mayor Frazer, ostensibly with regard to the possibility of using the old Farmers' Trust building for the Post Office, no word has been received here of a decision. Mr. Evans says he was not informed of the outcome of the conferences.

RECTOR'S CAR TURNS TURTLE NEAR SALEM

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Mathews Escape Serious Injury Sunday in Peculiar Accident.

A narrow escape from serious injury or death was afforded Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Mathews, of Newark, Sunday, when their touring car skidded on a slippery stretch of road near Salem, New Jersey, plunged down an embankment and overturned.

Dr. Mathews, who is rector of St. Thomas Church here, left here to conduct services in a church near Salem, and was driving along near that town when the accident occurred. Both occupants of the car were shaken up and bruised, and suffered from shock, but no serious injuries are reported. The car was damaged and was left with a nearby garage-man for repairs.

ARMISTICE DAY QUIET

New Flag Decoration Scheme Makes Business Section Colorful

The seventh anniversary of the ending of hostilities in the World War passed quietly in Newark this year. All business houses were open as usual except the banks. Public schools closed at two o'clock and will remain closed for the balance of the week, while the staff of teachers are in convention at Dover.

Main Street presented a colorful appearance this morning when the new standardized decoration scheme was tried out. Scores of flags were placed in curbstones sockets, while still others hung from windows and porch roofs. The new system was sponsored here by the Chamber of Commerce, lodges and American Legion.

Destitute Iron Hill Family Showered With Comforts By Local Red Cross

Adequate response to the appeal for aid in behalf of the Stevenson family on Iron Hill, is reported by Red Cross officials this week. The husband and wife, with their five small children, were discovered early last week in distress following the destruction by fire of their home.

Two bedsteads, a cook stove and fifteen bundles of warm bedding and clothing were procured through the appeal made in the columns of THE POST last week. Meat, groceries, potatoes and other provisions were also given by the people of the community. The family is now comfortably settled in a tenant house on the former Thomas Green farm, near Cooch's.

The Red Cross, through its chairman, Mrs. Duffy, desires to publicly thank all those who contributed article for the relief of the needy family.

Club Members Of Stanton Receive Sewing Prizes

Interesting Meeting Held In Stanton Friday Night; Delegates Tell Of Trip To Camp Vail Last Summer. Short Talks Given

An achievement night exercises was held at Stanton, November 6, by the 4 H Clubs of that community. Mrs. Mary E. Dickey, local leader of the sewing club and Ed Willim, Jr., County Club Agent, representing the University of Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, had arranged with the club for this meeting.

The girls exhibited the sewing articles they had made this year. Miss Helen L. Comstock, County Club Agent of Kent County, judged the articles and awarded the prize ribbons. The prize winners were as follows:

Class 1—Best Dress—1st, Helen Pordham; 2nd, Helen Pordham; 3rd, Eva Kemball; 4th, Margery Pinder.

Class 2—Undergarment—1st, Helen Pordham; 2nd, Alma Lucas; 3rd, Margery Ruth; 4th, Margery Ruth.

Class 3—Gift Article—1st, Helen Pordham; 2nd, Eva Kemball; 3rd, Alma Lucas; 4th, Margaret Ruth.

Class 4—Sewing Bags—1st, Margaret Ruth; 2nd, Thelma Lucas; 3rd, Alma Lucas; 4th, Margaret Ruth.

Class 5—Towels—1st, Margaret Ruth; 2nd, Alma Lucas; 3rd, Helen Pordham; 4th, Helen Pordham.

Class 6—Patching, Darning and Button Hole—1st, Margaret Ruth; 2nd, Thelma Lucas; 3rd, Helen Pordham; 4th, Eva Kemball.

Miss Comstock told the girls that they had a very creditable exhibit, but wanted them to continue to give the club work their closest attention. She said, "It is not the style of your article that counted so much in the judging of it as it was the workmanship you had used." "Don't be discouraged," continued Miss Comstock, "if your article did not win a ribbon here tonight, but just use that as a reason for doing your next things better, because the mottoes of club work are 'learn to do by doing,' and 'to make the best better.' Do the best you can all of the time."

The sweepstake prize offered by Mrs. Dickey to the girl winning the greatest number of prizes in the exhibit was awarded to Helen Pordham. Margaret Ruth was runner-up for this prize, she being only one point behind the winner.

Franklin Anderson and Richard Poultny, of the Boys' 4 H Poultry Club at Stanton, gave their impressions of the Camp Vail, Springfield, Mass., trip which they took this fall. These two boys were awarded this trip for their meritorious work in the poultry club for the past two years. Franklin told of the first half of the week's trip and was succeeded by Richard who completed the narrative of this apparently pleasant trip.

Following this part of the program the achievement pins awarded to every club member who has completed this year's work were given out. These pins are presented to the boys and girls for yearly efforts in their projects by the New Castle County Farm Bureau. The following members were awarded the 4H clover leaf pin with the two H's signifying completion of two years' club work: Margaret Ruth, Thelma Lucas, Helen Pordham, Alma Lucas, Eva Kemball, Margery Pinder, Lillian Bell, Eleanor Vannort, Neville Duhadaway, and Esther Martin. Three boys, Franklin Anderson, Richard Poultny and Joseph Chambers, of the Poultry Club were awarded the pins.

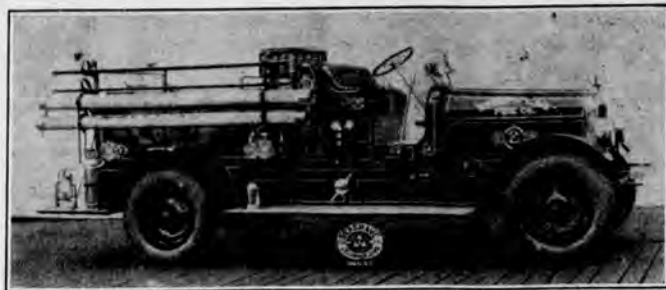

Mrs. Robert Seasholtz, assistant leader of the Sewing Club, was present and led the singing for the club.

"Touring with Grangers," a two-reel movie, showing a huge motor caravan of Grangers traveling through the New England States, was one of the pictures shown at this meeting. "A Letter to Dad," telling of the club activities at a 4 H club camp, was also shown. Both pictures, which were secured from the U. S. Department of Agriculture through the Club Agent, were interesting and instructive. Mr. Willim stated that he hoped the Stanton Club, under the able guidance of Mrs. Dickey and Mrs. Seasholtz, would continue to do as good, and even better, club work the coming year as during the past one. He also said that he hoped these achievement meetings would become an annual event for the Stanton community.

CHANGE MEETING NIGHT

Announcement has been made that the Parent-Teacher Association of Milford Cross Roads, near Newark, has changed its November meeting date from the 18th to the 19th. Notices to that effect are being circulated through the community.

Latest Addition To Newark Fire Fighting Weapons

AETNA'S NEW SEAGRAVES TRIPLE COMBINATION PUMPER

A brand new Seagraves pumper, considered one of the finest types of fire engines in the country, has been added to the equipment of the Aetna firemen here. It will cost, when completed, about $11,500.

Decision to buy the engine was reached at a special meeting of the firemen Friday night. Plans and specifications were presented and various features discussed before the order was placed.

The old Thomas pumper will be traded in as part payment, it is understood. For the time being, however, it will be repaired and kept in use until the Seagraves is ready for delivery. The new engine will not likely be housed for two or three months.

This addition will give Newark the best and most complete equipment of any company in Delaware outside of Wilmington. The new engine has a capacity for pumping 600 gallons of water a minute, will carry a chemical tank of 40 gallons capacity and a hose wagon with capacity for 1000 feet of hose.

The Stutz machine will be kept, it having a capacity for pumping 750 gallons a minute. The new engine will be used on rural calls in addition to many calls within the town, while the Stutz will be retained for town use only.

The Aetna people have been considering the buying of a new machine for some time and have looked over a number of makes. One of the Mack machines was here Friday night and gave a demonstration of its work.

The addition of the Seagraves machine will give the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company probably the most valuable equipment and property in the East. The new home built several years ago at Delaware avenue and Academy street with all equipment gives the company property valued at from $75,000 to $100,000 and practically all paid for.

The Seagraves machine is built in the West and is attracting much attention among firemen in the East during the past couple of years. This make of machine is owned by fire companies at Dover and Seaford, Del., and Belair, Md., and have been doing good work.

News Of Two Counties Gathered During Week For The Post Readers

Girl Held For Bigamy; Weds Twice In Elkton

Helen Bentzel Detained In Philadelphia On Charges Preferred By Hubby No. 1 In Cecil County

Helen Bentzel, a 19-year-old girl living on Master street, in Philadelphia, was held without bail in the Central Police Court, that City, on Saturday, as a bigamist.

Attractive, with dark hair and eyes, and the rosy cheeks of a country maid, the girl betrayed no emotion as Magistrate Pennock ordered her held to await extradition to Elkton, where her first husband, William Bentzel, has preferred charges against her.

The girl was arrested at the request of Sheriff Peirson, of Cecil county. There was no testimony at the hearing. Hartman, detective, who made the arrest, merely reading to the Magistrate the fugitive warrant sent for the girl's arrest.

According to Hartman, the girl, whose home is in Baltimore, was married to Bentzel in Elkton two years ago. She lived with him in Baltimore for about two months and then disappeared. According to Hartman, there was no legal separation or divorce.

On April 3 of this year, she went to Elkton with Glen Courtney, of Philadelphia. Courtney is said to hold concessions with a number of carnivals. According to Hartman he is now endeavoring to obtain amusement concessions for the Sesqui-Centennial.

Bentzel is said to have learned through friends of the second marriage of his wife.—Phila. Inquirer.

MERMAID

At the regular weekly meeting of Harmony Grange, Monday night, several resolutions were presented and filed for discussion at the next meeting of the Pomona Grange. Mrs. Joseph H. Mitchell, Jr., was given the first and second degree during the business session. A letter was read from Union Grange accepting Harmony's invitation to meet with them next Monday night. Lecturer Blanche Derrickson arranged several games for the members during the social hour. Mrs. William P. Peach also gave a reading that was greatly enjoyed. At the close of the hour, a wedding cake was cut and served in honor of the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Mitchell.

About 125 members of Harmony Grange and their families serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell at their home last Thursday evening. Following an intensive series of snappy numbers by the Mill Creek Calithumpian Society, the visitors went their way indoors, where they were treated to delicious refreshments.

Misses Carolyn Peach and Sara Pennington were hostesses at a delightful party in the Peach home a few nights ago. About thirty guests attended.

Miss Helen Pillsbury, of Richardson Park, was a week-end guest at the Pennington home.

Dr. and Mrs. Garrison and granddaughter, Peach Garrison, were Sunday callers at the William P. Peach home.

OLD ELKTONIAN DEAD AFTER SUDDEN ATTACK

William P. Dean, 76, Was Former Coroner of County; Funeral Held Yesterday Afternoon.

William P. Dean, one of Elkton's oldest residents, died at his home, "Gipin Manor," Saturday evening about 10 o'clock, aged 76 years. For several years Mr. Dean has been in poor health but his death was unexpected as he was in his usual good spirits during the day and had not complained of feeling any worse. Mr. Dean was the eldest of twelve children and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dean, of Elkton. He was born near Strickersville, but came to Elkton when a young man. For about fifteen years he was engaged in the carting business, and during the Goldsborough administration as Governor of Maryland, he served as Coroner of Cecil county. He married Miss Amelia Cunningham, of Delaware, who survives him, with one daughter, Elizabeth, wife of James H. Davis, of Wilmington; also six brothers, Elwood, of Wilmington; James E., Harry O., Andrew D., of Elkton; George E., Isaac N., of Chesapeake City; and three sisters, Mrs. George Campbell, of Iron Hill; Mrs. Mattie Frazer, of Wilmington; and Miss Maggie E. Dean, of Elkton. Funeral services were held at his late home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of Rev. W. G. Harris, of Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church. Interment was in Elkton Cemetery.

Odd Name Origins

The English walnut did not originate in England nor is it commercially grown there. The Jerusalem artichoke is not the true artichoke and neither did it come from Palestine, being also a native of America.

SHORT SLANTS AT CECIL CO. NEWS

The concrete road between Fair Hill and Andora has been completed by the Sutton Construction Company and will be open for travel next Saturday. This marks the completion of a continuous stretch of concrete roadway from the upper section of Cecil county to Elkton.

William E. Hall, a Sixth District farmer, died at his home near Coloma last week, aged 74 years, after several months' illness. He leaves a widow and seven children. His funeral was held Friday afternoon from West Nottingham Presbyterian Church, of which the deceased was a life-long member. Interment was in the church cemetery.

The Gleaners of Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church donated the prize, awarded to them by the judges at the Hallowe'en parade, to the Elkton Health Center.

Samuel Papas, Joseph Murphy, John O'Brien and Henry Valentine, of Philadelphia, ranging from 12 to 15 years, were picked up by Sheriff Pierson Friday evening as runaway boys. They were detained at Elkton jail until their parents were notified of their whereabouts.

The $20,000 damage suit of L. J. Spitts, of New York, against the Mayor and Commissioners of the town of Elkton for alleged injuries when the plaintiff's automobile struck a telephone pole on Main street three years ago, has been marked off the court docket at Denton on account of the plaintiff failing to put in his appearance.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church will hold their November meeting in the Church House on Friday evening.

The Girl Scouts will give an entertainment in the Church House on Wednesday evening. A silver offering will be received.

The monthly mark-up at the Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church last Thursday evening for the Church House fund amounted to $684.

George W. Ash died at Union Hospital on Friday after a brief illness. For a number of years he was employed in a shipyard in Wilmington. His funeral was held Monday from Pippin's undertaking parlors, with interment in a Wilmington cemetery.

Ladies Aid Meets

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church held its monthly meeting Thursday afternoon in the lecture room of the church.

The main topics of the afternoon were sewing, fancy work, and the church supper. A bazaar will be held in connection with the supper. This will be a good place to purchase Christmas gifts. Don't forget the date, Thursday, November 12th.

Providence

A spook social was held at Kenmore High School on Thursday evening. A good time was had by all who attended. There were funny faces and costumes. The admission was 25 cents for unmasked persons and 15 cents for those who masked. A short Hallowe'en play was given by the students and refreshments consisting of sweet cider, ginger bread and apples, were served. About $40 was cleared for the benefit of the third and fourth year classes.

Mr. John Handerson's house and store have just been wired for the new Delco electric plant he is having installed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fillingame and family, Mrs. Lucy Dunsmore and Mr. Ralph Dunsmore, of Chester, Pa., spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dunsmore and family.

Mrs. Ella Ingram Stephens and granddaughter are preparing to leave Providence and make their home in Dayton, Ohio, with Mrs. Stephens son, Mr. Roy Stephens.

Mrs. Jacob Reynolds and daughter, Ruth, of Perry Point, Md., are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miller, of Providence.

Miss Rebecca Thompson, of North East, and friend, of Wilmington, visited the former's sister, of this place, Mr. and Mrs. Lamonte McElwee.

PARENT-TEACHER NEWS

The third anniversary of the opening of their new school house was celebrated on November first by members of Iron Hill Colored Community Club. The school children's share in the program consisted of a grand march, songs and recitations; the president, William Holmes, gave a welcome address; there was a short talk by Abijah James, of Wilmington; and an interesting talk by Mrs. Meta S. Boddy, chairman for colored Parent-Teacher Associations of New Castle County, on the need for keeping the children in school regularly, and the opportunity for those who could do so to teach less fortunate of their neighbors this winter, as part of the Illiteracy Drive that is being waged.

The second meeting of this fall was held by Yorklyn Parent-Teacher Association on October 30. A Hallowe'en program was given by the pupils and outside talent added greatly to the evening's enjoyment. Miss Catherine Mahanian, of Kennett Square, and Miss Margaret Breslin, of Chester, Pa., gave delightful selections which were greatly appreciated. A committee of six men was appointed by the president, James P. Kane, to buy equipment for the playground and to have it placed on the school grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurst and sons, of Belfonte, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Brown.

Mr. Samuel Smith spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. I. Plummer, of Wilmington.

Dr. and Mrs. Houchin, of Strickersville, Pa., visited Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith, last Friday evening.

Miss Lydia Thompson, of North East, is spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. L. McElwee.

YOUR LIGHT

"Suppose now, that there were no sun nor stars in the heavens, nor anything that shown in the black brow of night; and suppose that a Lighted Lamp were put into Your Hand which should burn wasteless and clear amid all the tempest brooding upon this lower world. Suppose that there were Millions of human beings on earth with you, each holding in his hand an Unlighted lamp filled with the Same Oil and Capable of giving as much light. Suppose these millions should come one by one to you and light each his lamp by yours? Would they rob you of any light? Would less of it shine on your path? Would your lamp burn Less Brightly for having Lighted the Million?"

"The fountain of knowledge is filled by its outlets, not by its inlets. You can learn nothing which you do not teach; you can acquire nothing of intellectual wealth except by giving. In the illustration of the lamp which I have given you, was not the light of the millions which were lighted at yours as much your light as if all came from your solitary lamp? Did you not dispel darkness by giving away light? Remember this parable, and whenever you fall in with an unlighted mind in your walk of life, drop a kind and glowing thought upon it and set it burning in the world with a light that shall shine in some dark corner to beam upon the benighted."—Elihu Burritt.

THE CHAFING DISH

By Neil Farmer

"... I'm alone,
The world's not changed, and yet
Just a dull monotone
So it seems, I ask why,
My weak 'Why?' echoes, aye,
Re-echoes with a threat
Of answer... which comes not."

The prospect from the single window of my room is much too realistic a scene to inspire me with any feeling of the superiority of the spiritual over the material.

A black and tan cur, with great lonely eyes and gaunt, corrugated flanks, slinks across the thin strip of dreary landscape. A tireless guinea, somewhere in the distance, keeps up a monotonous call, a call which, when one recalls earlier days spent in the country, reminds one of the work "buck-wheat" pronounced in a snappy nasal tone.

A few white bits of cloth droop dejectedly from a wire clothes-line. The bare muddy earth is scattered over with rusty tins, the very symbols of depression. A damp blanket of fog hangs over all the world.

Did that get you? It got me. But I am subject to moods, anyhow. However, the persons who fail to learn how to control their moods generally end up by taking rooms over at Farnhurst. Let's play that it's spring.

It is spring. A farmer boy is resting in the cool shade of an ancient gnarled apple tree. The plow, with which he has been turning up the fertile black earth, lies casually on its side, and the patient mare is diligently cropping all the grass she can reach without moving her feet.

The boy's soul is deluged with the spirit of peaceful content that pervades the countryside. A gentle breeze lazily flowing across the freshly plowed field brings to him the sweet perfume of a blossoming orchard mixed with the redolent odor of newly turned soil.

Except himself and the horse, no living thing is visible. Like one saying a benediction, the boy slowly turns his head towards the mare and murmurs:
"Ain't nature wonderful!"

Although the book has been on the market for at least two years, I doubt if anyone in Newark, with the possible exception of George Brinton, has read, or ever heard of, Peter E. Wright's satire "The Shirt."

I do not intend to make any comments concerning the book, but merely to quote two sections selected at random.

"Maria considered that she must have been created a lady by nature, for nothing could amuse her except physical misfortunes, a man falling into a pond or a girl with a hump."

"He himself cherished the few, tiny, broken fragments of Hellenic life that have survived, and steeped himself in them to find the secret and the joy of living. Yet he considered it natural that the full blaze of their splendour should remain invisible to the majority of men, and be taken for mere darkness."

"He absolved them and their incurious contempt, and laid the blame on its scholars and professed teachers, for all they wrote and said showed them to have only small speculative capacity, and to be quite devoid of any aesthetic power, whether literary or otherwise, and to be almost entirely absorbed in useless and tedious trifles of scholarship; to him they were like children so busy gathering pebbles on the shore that they are not aware the sea is there at all."

"The Shirt" is published by the George H. Doran Company, in New York.

I might have said that it is laundried by—what's that? Pardon me, the printer says that this is the end of the column.

"Good Roads, Flowers, Parks, Better Schools, Trees, Pure Water, Fresh Air, Sunshine and Work for Everybody"

NEWARK - DELAWARE "Where Educational Facilities Predominate."

A town with a slogan offers a different attitude toward strangers and more business for those interested in its welfare.

The inhabitants have a greater thought toward civic pride and commercial enterprise, and this thought is disseminated by them and absorbed by those with whom they come in contact.

There is a difference in the commercial interest with everyone thoroughly imbued with the thoughts tending toward civic pride. Newark should be proud of its educational facilities and combining that thought with the need of a slogan we arrived at the one suggested, we invite your criticism.

William Homewood Dean.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT STATE OF DELAWARE PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the President of the United States has by proclamation set apart the week beginning November 16, 1925, as "National American Education Week" and has recommended that state and local authorities cooperate with the civic and religious bodies to secure its most general observance, and

WHEREAS, the demands which modern life are making upon our people have become so great that it is very difficult for any of us to adjust ourselves to the new conditions alone; we must have help. This help is provided by organized society through a process which we call education. By this means people are taught how to live, to work, and even how to play together. They are provided with a means through the schools by which they are made the easy possessors of the experiences of the past in the form of knowledge, trained to use that knowledge in adapting themselves to the requirements of the present, and it is hoped at the same time give some ideals and aspirations to guide them to a successful future, and

WHEREAS, it is significant that the American Legion, is joining with the United States Bureau of Education in this movement to increase interest in public education and recognize the importance of public education in the present and future welfare of this state, and realizing that the schools can be kept abreast with the rapid onward movement of civilization only by cooperation on the part of our citizenry,—

NOW THEREFORE, I, Robt. P. Robinson, Governor of the State of Delaware, do proclaim the week beginning November 16, 1925, as Education Week for the State of Delaware and do designate November 22nd of such week as requesting that ministers in all churches within the boundaries of Delaware bring on this day the matter to the attention of their people and urge them to take some active part in the campaign as a social service contribution to the State and to the Nation.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of the State of Delaware this fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord One Thousand nine hundred and twenty-five and in the year of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and fiftieth.

By the Governor,
ROBT. P. ROBINSON.

FANNIE S. HERRINGTON,
Secretary of State.

PERSONALS AND SOCIAL NOTES

Mrs. Annie Coulter, of Philadelphia, Miss Margaret Wilson and Ernest Wilson, of Wilmington, were guests of Mrs. Helen Wilson last week.

Miss Mary Louise Mayer, of Dover, and Miss Elizabeth Adams, of Philadelphia, were week-end guests of Miss Marjorie Johnson.

Cards have been issued for a tea to be given by Mrs. Alexander Cobb and Mrs. Lester Tarr, at Mrs. Cobb's home on West Main street, next Friday afternoon.

Dean Robinson entertained the members of the Newark Music Society at a very delightful musical in the parlor of Sussex Hall last Saturday evening. Miss Wilcox, formerly of the Women's College Faculty, played the piano, and Miss Ritz and Professor Matthews sang.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Renshaw were visited by the following people on Sunday, November 8: Mrs. B. F. Walters and son Harold from Huntington, West Va.; Miss Mildred Jackson, Allentown, Pa.; Mrs. Clara May, Media, Pa.; the Misses Edith and Ethel Jackson, Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Palmer, Mrs. Wilson Blackston and Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson, Newark.

Mr. Joseph Timberman, of Woodbury, N. J., spent the week-end with his cousin, David W. Sheppard.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE AT ELSMERE HOME

Miss Rhea C. Dayett was tendered a birthday dinner last Thursday at her parents' home at Elsmere. Among the guests were Mr. Jas. Benoit, of Merchantville, N. J., and Mr. Abram Eby, of Lancaster, Pa. Miss Dayett is a member of the nurses' training class at the P. and S. Hospital.

ENTERTAIN FOR MISS EMMA LOVETT

Misses Catherine and Edna Holton gave a shower last Thursday evening at their home in honor of Miss Emma Lovett, who will be married this afternoon to their brother, "Dick" Holton. The house was artistically decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and this color scheme was carried out in the favors and other table decorations.

Little Junior Hurlock, a nephew of Mr. Holton, brought the gifts into the room in an express wagon.

The guests included: Misses Alice Leak, Marion Smith, Gertrude Hill, Hannah Lindell, Ruth Richards, Sara Lovett, Helen Leak, Alice Charsha, Sara Pierson, Marjorie Rose, Beulah Law, Mildred Fulmer, Delena Leak, Vola Eubanks, Gladys Clark, Evelyn Worrall, Elizabeth Worrall, Kitty Oiler, Margaret McCafferty, Mrs. E. C. Hurlock, Mrs. Paul K. Musselman, Mrs. William E. Holton, Mrs. Raymond Fader, Mrs. W. J. Holton, Miss Stein, Misses Kitty and Edna Holton.

Mr. Belmont Hunter, of Holloway, Ohio, returned to his home today after spending two weeks with Mrs. M. A. Herbener, of Newark, and her son, Harry Herbener, of Charlestown, Md.

Dr. and Mrs. G. Burton Pearson attended the Harvard-Princeton game at Princeton last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Orville Little, who has been in the care of Miss Evelyn Richardson, a nurse of Wilmington, is still confined to her home after a severe tonsil operation.

The weekly evening dancing school, scheduled tomorrow in the New Century Club, has been postponed, according to Mrs. Mervyn Lafferty and Miss Rosalie Steel, who are in charge. This action was necessitated as the hall is engaged for that evening. The classes will be resumed next week for both grown-ups and children.

Rev. and Mrs. John MacMurray were guests over the week-end of their son, John, Jr., at Princeton University. They attended the Princeton-Harvard game Saturday afternoon.

Births

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMullin, of Wilmington, well known here, are congratulating them upon the recent birth of a daughter, Jean Audrey.

CENTURY CLUB

We want to call attention to the fact that next week is National Education Week. Education, one of the biggest problems any country, and especially a democracy, has to face.

All the States in our Union have set as their goal "no illiteracy by 1930." Delaware wants to be in the lead in the accomplishment of this great work.

Miss Burnett, State Director of Adult Education, will be at the New Century Club Monday afternoon, November 16th, to tell us how to go about our task here in Newark. The public is most cordially invited and urged to attend this meeting and to co-operate in this undertaking.

Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson, Secretary.

PROVIDENCE FOLK IN HALLOWE'EN PARTY

A delightful time was had on Monday evening, November 2, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fox, of Providence, Md. A Halloween party was given in honor of the birthday of their daughter, Dorothy, it being her eighth birthday. At the hour of seven about thirty-two of her friends and schoolmates called at her home, wearing false faces and odd looking costumes. The little Miss for whom the party was given looked very cute, dressed to represent Little Red Ridinghood.

The guests were taken through the dimly lighted hall into the parlor, which was tastefully decorated with yellow and black crepe paper, pumpkins, bats, witches and black cats. After the guests were seated the bright lights were turned on, then the fun began, guessing who each one was. After the masks were taken off the games started. Little Miss Eva Lee won first prize for pinning the tail on the donkey, and Miss Mildred Dunsmore won the booby prize for being the furthest away.

After many games were played all were called to the dining room which was decorated with autumn leaves, where a long table stood, filled with goodies, such as ice cream, cakes and candy. In the center was a beautiful cake with eight small candles burning brightly. After each one had been filled with the goodies, they bade Miss Dolly good night and wishing her many more happy birthdays, departed, leaving her many useful and pretty gifts for a reminder of November 2, 1925.

Those present were: Dorothy Fox, Eva Lee, Mildred Dunsmore, Erma Spence, Mary and Henrietta McQuiston, Malva and Beatrice Wright, Pauline and Anna Spratt, Beatrice and Sara Scarborough, Florence Angle, Velma Spence, Mary Stewart, Louise Wherry, Erma Null, Gladys Shellander, Louise Evans, Carrie Anthony, Harry and Leonard Shellander, Harold and Allen MacKenzie, Paul Shellander, Harold and Jacob Null, Stanley Steele, Robert Evans, William Stewart, Leslie Pennock, Frances Steele, Mr. and Mrs. John Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Patchell, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scarborough.

ON THE SICK LIST

Two Elk Mills Men Have Sieges With Carbuncles

John Blough, of Elk Mills, who has been seriously ill, suffering with a huge carbuncle on his back, is reported this week to be considerably improved.

Another Elk Mills resident, Alfred Lawrence, is scheduled to go to the hospital this week to have a carbuncle on his face operated upon. His condition has made this move necessary.

Grover Whitman, of near Newark, has returned from the hospital where he was confined with typhoid fever.

John Powell, an elderly resident of Newark, is expected to return to the hospital in a few days for another minor operation on his face.

MANY ATTEND DANCE

Pan-Hellenic Affair Draws One Hundred and Fifty Couples

With an attendance of about 150 couples the second annual pan-Hellenic dance (joint dance of all fraternities, given once a year) was held at Battery E Armory, Newark, last night. Music was furnished by Madden's Orchestra. The patronesses were as follows:

Mrs. Walter Hüllihen, Mrs. George E. Dutton, Mrs. Everett C. Johnson, Mrs. George L. Townsend, Jr., Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Mrs. Frank Forstburg, and Miss A. Parker. The dance was attended by a large number of the alumni of the University of Delaware.

The Men's League Corner

(Written for The Post)

November 17th is not far away. Every man in the League is expected to keep this night open. What for? Forgotten already? Well, just remember this time not to forget. Eats, of course. Yes, the answer is Dr. Carlisle L. Hubbard, of St. Paul's, Wilmington. Why say more! Every man out. Date, Tuesday, November 17th, at 8 o'clock.

Lest we forget, this is to be an open meeting. Invitations to all, men, women, young, old and indifferent. Come one, come all. Let us give Dr. Hubbard a rousing reception.

Have you bought your ticket? No, not to hear Dr. Hubbard, though we will expect you to loosen up a couple of movie tickets for that. This special ticket is for the supper on the 12th. They are going fast. Better get yours and be on hand early.

Engagement Announced

Judge and Mrs. Herbert Rice, of Claymont, Saturday announced the engagement of Mrs. Rice's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Tyson Challenger, to S. Griffin Wise, son of Hiram J. Wise, of Bridgewater, Va. The announcement was made at a bridge-luncheon at the Brinton Lake Club, given by Miss Challenger in honor of Mrs. Barclay R. Challenger, formerly of Newark, and Miss Dorothy Brown, of Baltimore. Miss Challenger is popular with a large circle of friends. Mr. Wise is a graduate of the University of Virginia and is now in Tampa, Fla., where he is a construction engineer for the Bartlett-Haywood Company, of Baltimore. The wedding date has not been announced.

Miss Challenger is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tyson here and has been a frequent Newark visitor.

Newton Incubators and Brooders—Jamesway POULTRY Equipment

In representing these two lines of poultry equipment in this territory, we feel that little need be said concerning them. Test tells and the scores of satisfied users are reaping their rewards in PROFITS. Bring your equipment problems here and let's work them out together.

CUSTOM HATCHING is our specialty. We operate a 36,000 egg custom incubator and guarantee healthy chicks, Murray's day old chicks always find a ready sale.

"IT'S NO GOOD—Throw It Out to the Chickens!"

That used to be the universal practice. Try the chickens as a last resort. And they wondered why the eggs were scarce. There's a science in the successful raising of poultry, no matter how small the flock. But it only takes common sense to realize the value of good feeds. Dayett Laying Mash and Dayett Growing Mash are two mighty popular types among nearby poultrymen.

Production Insurance

Did you ever stop to think that you ought to take out production insurance on your cows? A 10,000 pound five year old cow is worth more than $200.00 to you, and a six year old cow is worth less than $80.00, the exact sum depending on her size and age. A 10,000 pound cow is a profitable machine in the dairy barn, and a canner is junk in the dairy barn.

By the care which you give your herd and by the way you feed your animals during the various stages of their development you control to a large extent the length of time they stay out of the canner class.

Eastern States Open Formula Feeds are built to furnish the members of the Exchange feeds which will produce strong calves, mature healthy heifers, and keep cows in good order while producing milk at capacity month in and month out, year in and year out.

The astonishing figures in the cow testing association article in the November Eastern States Cooperator are made possible only through the comprehensive way in which Eastern States Feeds are formulated and mixed. The records of Delaware herds show that Eastern States Open Formula Feeds are making good in all of these regards.

Delaware young stock is being raised economically on Eastern States Pitting Ration. Delaware mature cows are holding out profitably through their lactation period and from year to year on Eastern States Feeds. Delaware herds which have been using Eastern States Feeds consistently have increased their production per cow from year to year.

Where records are kept Eastern States Open Formula Feeds prove their worth.

Why experiment with substitutes when you can secure Eastern States Feeds from your Eastern States local agent and thus go a long way toward insuring your individual cow and herd production?

PUBLIC SALE OF MILK COWS

Consisting of An Accredited Herd of Holstein Cattle

To Be Held at My Farm One-half Mile South of Corner Ketch on Road Leading to Milford X-Roads

Thursday, November 19th AT 1 O'CLOCK

12 Cows, some registered, some with calves by their sides, others close springers. Some of these cattle have official records.

1 Heifer, coming three years old. This is the best bred heifer in the country and a fine individual. Her dam is Winterthur Erma Segis Bampa with a record of 13½ pounds of butter at 2 years of age. Her sire is Winterthur Bess Burk Best, the finest bull in Delaware and the best bred bull in the East. The heifer belongs to my son and she has been in the club division and won several blue ribbons.

Remarks: I am overstocked and I have decided to sell my dairy and keep my young cattle. This herd is fully accredited, has been under supervision for the past five years.

The sale will be held rain or shine, I have plenty of room.

TERMS OF SALE—90 days with interest from date.

Sixty Business Men Attend Commerce Dinner; Josiah Marvel Pleds For States Rights In Talk

Sixty Newark business men were present last Thursday night at the annual Fall dinner of the Chamber of Commerce. From beginning to end, it was considered one of the most enjoyable of the long string of similar affairs held in recent years.

The principal speakers were Josiah Marvel, of Wilmington, and Dr. N. P. Northam, an efficiency engineer at present connected with the National Fibre Company. Dr. Northam attended as guest of John K. Johnston, president of the Chamber and toast-master of the evening.

Music Pleases

While severely handicapped through lack of a piano player, the musical artists under the direction of A. D. Cobb, enlivened the gathering with many favorite selections. Mr. Cobb's quartet comprised besides himself, Messrs Myers, Kennedy and Atchison. Mr. Atchison, a well known Wilmington soloist, offered his services to the quartet in the absence of J. M. Barnes. Between numbers by the quartet, William P. White, of Wilmington, aided by his trusty harmonica, kept the crowd in high good humor.

Pleds for States Rights

Mr. Marvel, the principal speaker, and well known to Newark men, diverted from his original intentions and delivered a ringing plea for the individual rights of states; condemned the increasing inroads of Federal bureaucracy, and urged every man present to protect and guard his rights and not allow his decisions to be made by officials in any capacity. The speaker devoted the early part of his address in summing up the splendid traditions of this State, leading to what he called "Delawareanism," and declared that he knew of no other spot in which a man might live and prosper and raise his children than in the Blue Hen State.

Talks on Efficiency

Dr. Norton gave a most interesting talk to the members on personal and business efficiency. Parts of his address follow:

"The usual purpose in the application of efficiency principles," he said, "is to eliminate waste of all kinds—waste of time, waste of effort, waste of materials. First we must locate the waste; secondly, measure the extent of it; and third, take the necessary steps to eliminate that waste."

Dr. Northam counseled the members to apply first of all the principle of ideals. First, determine what end result you are aiming at; what it is you are trying to accomplish. Have this end result and aim clearly defined and see that the ideals back of it are high, right, worthy ones. "Oftentimes," said the speaker, "the ideals of an organization or business are not compatible. One member may have before him the ideal of quality. Much effort and time are lost because ideals are not worthy and therefore eventually have to be abandoned. Keep ever before you the ideal of service, remembering that the profits most who serves best."

"Common sense," Dr. Northam said, is one of the fundamental principles of efficiency—the rock upon which efficiency is based. Efficiency is not system, or hurry or stress or strain. One might systematically bail the ocean out with a thimble, but that wouldn't be efficiency.

He cited that Benjamin Franklin, perhaps had as much common sense as any man who ever lived and it was Franklin that gave Harrington Emerson the idea about coordinating the fundamental principles of efficiency, moulded after Franklin's famous Thirteen Rules of Conduct.

Competent counsel was the next principle of efficiency mentioned. Dr. Northam advised the members not to ask every Tom, Dick and Harry about the solutions of their problems, but to seek and heed competent counsel. "Go to the one person who knows most about the problem upon which you need advice and help."

"In whatever line, get the counsel and advice of those who know and know that they know. Their expert advice will save you much in many ways. Don't take everybody's advice."

The fair deal," Dr. Northam said, "is one of the great fundamental principles of efficiency. It was taught by Christ when He said, 'Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye also unto them.' The Golden Rule is the greatest moral, economic and best business principle of efficiency ever laid down for our guidance, and why we have been so long in learning to apply it is astonishing. The sooner we all learn and apply it, the sooner we shall all be better off—both employers and employees—business men and the public."

He counseled his hearers to go on with their plans for the future, go on with their plans for a better community, and hallow the plans with the inspiration which can only come to us from opening minds and hearts to the truths that come from beyond the stars.

KRAMER STARS ON DEFENSE

Delaware returned to the winning column in the season's ledger last Saturday, when they ripped their way through to two touchdowns against Juniata College, of Huntingdon, Pa., 13-6. The Pennsylvanians registered their score in the last period after a brilliant series of forward passes, culminating in a 25-yard toss to Kelly, who ran ten yards to the goal line.

An improvement was noticed in the general play of the Blue and Gold warriors, particularly in the increased offensive drive. As usual the defensive play of Captain Kramer and his mates on the line, was a bright spot in the day's happenings. Once within scoring distance Saturday, however, the backfield showed to a greater advantage than at any time during the season. They bucked the sturdy little Juniata line for good gains. Loveland ran the ends well, but lost many opportunities for long gains when the opposing tackles were not taken out of the play, and ran the halfback across to the sidelines.

The Delaware scores came as a result of straight football offensives in the first and third quarters. Weggenmann, Hubert and Loveland alternated in carrying the ball. Weggenmann went over for both scores.

Freshman Nearly Scores

The fans got the best thrill of the day in the last few minutes of play when Patchell, a substitute Freshman back, former star with Newark High School, intercepted a stray Juniata pass at midfield and set sail for a touchdown. He cleared his field nicely and breezed along unhampered with Coppock at his side for interference. Unfortunately, however, a Juniata back slipped right under Coppock's nose and nailed Patchell on the four-yard line. Delaware could not get it across.

Captain Giles and Snider were towers of strength on the visitor's line, two of the best tackles seen here this season. Easton in the backfield got off some beautiful end runs in the first half but was so badly used up that he was kept out of the final periods. West, Schlossar and Meloy also played good football.

Creamer Is Hurt

In the second quarter Fritz Creamer, the Blue and Gold's field general, suffered a simple fracture of the left shoulder and had to be removed in favor of Whitey Cherpak. After a thorough examination of the injury Dr. Johnson, the University physician, said that Creamer would be able to play against Dickinson on Thanksgiving Day.

A Newark Girl's Glimpses Of France

The following excerpts are from letters received by Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hubert from their daughter, Katherine, now a member of the Delaware Foreign Study Group at Nancy, France. The Post acknowledges the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert in releasing the letters for publication. Passages herewith published have been taken with a view to include as many different sections of Europe and the life of her people as is possible. Another installment will follow next week.

Brussels, September 5, 1925.

This is probably the only chance I'll have to write from the capital of Belgium; so I'd better make use of it. We've just had a wonderful time during all of this trip. Left Nancy at 6.50 Thursday morning, and arrived at Lille (France) in time for a late lunch. In the afternoon, we visited a factory where they make cotton into thread (the raw material, I mean). It was quite interesting. Friday morning we got up early and visited a mill where they make linens (towels, table linens, etc.). The things were beautiful, for the most part, and could be bought very cheap, but we couldn't carry them into Belgium. We went to the theatre Thursday night in Lille.

Yesterday morning we visited a lace making establishment here. Saw all sorts of fine hand-made laces, but of course, all were quite expensive. We also visited the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Town Hall, etc. We saw the Palace of Justice, the King's Palace, the Theatre, and all sorts of beautiful and interesting things. We went to the Opera last night; heard "Aida." It's quite a distinction to hear one's first opera in the Belgian capital.

This morning we got up early and ran for the train to Antwerp. Antwerp is extremely interesting, and well worth the trip. It's either the second or third largest Port in the world. Some say that New York is the largest, Hamburg second and Antwerp third; but others say that Antwerp is next to New York. We returned here for lunch, and then got another train for Waterloo. From the top of the hill there, you can see for miles and miles out across the plain. Waterloo, itself, is not much of a place, but it is extremely interesting historically.

We tried to get tickets tonight for Carmen, but couldn't. The rest have gone out now to a movie. . . . We have to get up at five in the morning, to catch the 6.15 for Luxembourg. From there, we will go back to Nancy.

This is by far the prettiest city I've seen. Some parts of it remind me a little bit of Washington.

All of our bags were searched as we came into Belgium. It cost me a franc duty for two rolls of films. They weighed them. They are quite strict about dutiable articles, but we haven't had to show our passports yet.

At Waterloo, we had quite an experience with some peasant girls. They saw our boys in knickers and slickers. They called together all their gang; and came and stood staring and laughing at us till our train left. Wherever we go, the knickers and things attract attention, but not like they did today.

We've seen lots of working people in the real wooden shoes. Also lots of carts drawn by dogs. It's prohibited in France to have a cart drawn by a dog, but quite a common thing here.

Geneve, September 24, 1925.

We still continue to have a wonderful time, but I'm pretty well tired out. We got up at 5.00 o'clock this A. M. and caught the 6.15 train. We had to change three times before we got here, go through the French and the Swiss customs and have our passports examined and stamped by both French and Swiss officers. When the officers saw all of our baggage it scared them, I guess, for they only looked through two or three of the largest pieces. There are eighteen of us on this trip—a French chaperone, a cousin of the girl from Tenn., Mr. Kirkbride, and fifteen students. Most everyone has two pieces of hand baggage, an extra coat, rain coat, and umbrella. You should see us coming. It's really amusing. And when we change trains, the fun begins. All the girls and half the boys rush off the train empty-handed. Then the rest put all of the luggage out of the windows. Everyone stops to stare at us.

We arrived this A. M. at 10.30. Then we visited a clock and watch making factory. It's about the most interesting factory we've seen as yet. There was one large room of the place fixed up as a museum, in which were all sorts of old clocks and watches. Quite worth while seeing.

After lunch we took a long, long motor boat ride on Lake Léman (Lake Geneva). It was too cloudy to see Mont Blanc from here, but the closer mountains (Alps) made a pretty picture from the water. We rode as far as a little town on the French-Swiss border. Then we got out, walked across the border, but had to hurry back because it started pouring.

This is the most expensive place we've struck yet. Our French money is only worth one-fourth as much here as in France, and most things are priced so much higher. I wanted a book of cards—24 cards—this P. M. They are ordinarily two or three francs in France. That is about 10c or 15c, but the lady here wanted three Swiss francs or twelve French francs which is about 60c. Of course, I didn't get them. Am not sending any cards from here. Postage is higher, too. This stamp I'm using on here costs one franc, twenty-five centimes (French).

We are going to the League of Nations session tomorrow A. M. One of the girls, the one from Montana, is related to a very dear friend of one of the delegates. He gave us twenty passes.

We leave tomorrow noon for Leijon. Stay there over night, and will go to Paris Saturday.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Educational Association Expect About 800 At Dover

The Board of Directors of the Delaware State Education Association have decided that the annual meeting of teachers will be held at Dover on Thursday and Friday, November 12th and 13th. Millard F. WOMEN'S COLLEGE NOTES

(Written for The Post)

The dinner hour last Wednesday was enlivened by the doings of a band of Gypsies, the members of which claimed to be those girls who attended the Student Conference at Eaglesmore last June as representatives of organizations of this college. These girls were: Georgia Wiggins, Virginia Chipman, Ruth Ewing, Marian Sharpless, Jean Middleton, Margaret Nunn, Marjorie Johnson, Kitty Horton and Jean Lobach.

The hockey game between the Freshman and Sophomore classes was played on Thursday afternoon, with a resulting score of 4 to 2 in favor of the Sophomores. Those playing on the Sophomore team were: Steele, Miller, Johnson, Burke, Coffin, Campbell, Stengle, Higgins, Marshall, and Goldstein. Freshman: Richards, Casperson, Stayton, Simpler, Reese, Phillips, Dunlap, Steele, Thomaschewski and Bukoonski.

There has been much appreciation expressed of the lecture in College Hour last Wednesday by the famous American artist, Leon Dabo. Those who were fortunate enough to have a schedule that permits them to attend Forum heard Mr. Dabo a second time and were delighted with his talk.

At a recent meeting of the Press Club five new members were elected to membership. They are: Marian Steele, Louise Turner, Linda Bassett, Lillian Benson and Mary Cameron. Membership to the Press Club is honorary and elective and the membership is limited to sixteen. The other members are: Beulah Thompson, president; Grace Ellison, vice-president; Marjorie Johnson, secretary and treasurer; Merrel Pyle, Mary Francis, Mary Louise Marvel, and Margaret Nunn. The Freshmen members will be elected later in the year.

The Dramatic Club, of which Beulah Thompson is president, deserves much credit for the performance of three one-act plays in Wolf Hall last Friday evening. Those who took part in the plays have received high praise. The three plays were, "Hearts," by Alice Gerstenberg. Cast: Frances Eckbert, Dorothy Bond, Agnes Thoms, and Ann Whaley. Beulah Thompson, Coach. "A Merry Death," by Nicholas Everrov. Cast: Jean Middleton, Louise Carter, Angela Wisneski, Jean Lobach, Grace Ellison, coach. "For Distinguished Service," by Florence Clay Knox. Cast: Nancy Jones, Louise Turner, Ann Thompson, Lillian Looose, coach.

Miss Nora Keeley, of the English Department, was faculty advisor for the plays.

Seniors of Women's College made their first appearance in caps and gowns at chapel this week. There is much difference of opinion as to the favor of this institution, but it has probably come to stay, to be a tradition at Women's College.

At Vespers on Sunday evening Professor Barkley spoke to the girls on "Loyalty," urging loyalty to fine traditions of the past, national loyalty, and loyalty to womanhood. Professor Barkley also spoke of his belief that inheritance is of more influence than environment in one's life.

Guests over the week-end were: Sara Hurlock, Mae Thompson, Eleanor Outten, Elheurah Forrey, Mildred Davis, Charlotte Dayett, Kitty Metz, Dorothy LeFevre, Marian Neide, Katherine Smith, Frances Samuels, and Beatrice Baynard.

Springfield, Massachusetts, and Frank D. Boynton, of Ithaca, New York. Other speakers and further details will be announced later. Last year the enrollment in the association was 776. The officers of the association are expecting an enrollment of 800 at the two day session this year. These meetings of the Education Association have displaced the old teachers' institutes which were formerly held in the several counties of the State. It has been found that better results can be accomplished by reason of the larger gathering than under the old system.

County Agent's Report For October, 1925

By R. O. Bausman

Farm Management Meeting and Tour

A farm management meeting was held in the Middletown school house Monday, October 26. Twenty persons were in attendance. A farm management tour was held in the Middletown Area Thursday, October 29. Approximately 40 persons were in attendance. The itinerary of the tour included the farms of Messrs. James Carpenter, E. C. Whittington, George H. Ginn and John W. Derrickson. The systems of farm organization and management that were discussed at this meeting and during the tour were based upon the farm management survey conducted in the Middletown Area last fall. The meeting and tour were conducted under the auspices of the Extension Service of the University of Delaware, the Farm Bureau, the Middletown banks and the Middletown Vocational School. The systems of farm organization and management as presented fall under the following headings: Adjustment of the systems of farm organizations; Size of business; Quality of business; and Diversity of business.

Adjustment of Systems of Farm Organization and Management to Meet Changing Economic Conditions—The analysis of the Farm records showed that the rise in prices of field corn and wheat was comparatively small during the period of 1922 to 1925 as compared with the period of 1911 to 1914. However, the rise in prices of sugar corn, tomatoes and asparagus during these two periods was 47 per cent, 80 per cent and 100 per cent respectively. On the average there was no appreciable adjustment in the acreage of the different crops grown in the Middletown Area to take advantage of these crops which showed an increase in price and apparently a wider margin of profit. However, some of the better farmers had appreciated this condition and had adjusted their systems of farming accordingly.

Size of the Business—The analysis of the records also showed that if farming is to be made successful that it is necessary for many farmers in the Middletown Area to increase the size of business. Those farmers who were supplementing the production of wheat and milk with the production of sugar corn, tomatoes, asparagus and eggs for the fresh egg market had materially increased the size of their business and improved their labor incomes.

Quality of Business—Those farms that produced good yields of crops, good production from the dairy herds and poultry flocks, that handled the labor most efficiently and that reduced the amount of purchased dairy feed through growing of legume hay, on the average, were the farms that showed the better labor incomes.

Diversity of Business—Those farms that depended entirely upon wheat and milk as the sources of income, on the average, had a minus labor income. However, those farms that had five or more sources of income, on the average, returned good labor incomes. The results of this survey indicated that it is the well diversified farm that paid best in the Middletown Area.

Poultry Demonstrations

A demonstration in selecting poultry for breeders was held on the farm of Mr. Eugene Minner, of Townsend. Twenty-four persons were in attendance. A second demonstration of a similar nature was held on the farm of Harvey Johnson, of Middletown. Twenty persons were in attendance. Considering the general type of farming in New Castle county, an important problem for each farmer to solve is, whether or not it would be more profitable for him in the long run to buy baby chicks rather than to encounter the difficulties of hatching his own chicks. The latter practice would, unquestionably, do much to solve the farm labor problem in the spring.

Mr. H. S. Palmer, Extension Poultryman, and the County Agent have distributed about 60 poultry record keeping calendars. There are two essential purposes entailed in this piece of work. The first, is to encourage the farmers to keep records of their poultry flocks in order that they may better familiarize themselves with the performance of their flocks. The second purpose is to give Mr. Palmer and the County Agent a more intimate knowledge of the individual flocks in order that they may work in closer contact with these farmers.

Soy Bean Demonstrations

Unusual difficulties have been encountered this fall in thrashing the soy beans on the demonstration plots. However, the soy beans do not seem to have suffered from the weather. A few days of good weather will enable the demonstrators to thrash the beans and determine the yields.

Corn Harvesting Demonstrations

The farm business survey in the Middletown Area indicated that one of the major problems was the high cost of labor. The survey indicated that for every three dollars the farmers in that area spent, one dollar was paid out for labor. The most noteworthy example of a practice that is extravagant in the use of labor is the method of harvesting the corn crop. Through the co-operation of the Extension Service, two farmers in the Bear Area are this fall harvesting a half of their corn crop from the standing stalks. The data gathered thus far indicates that the portion of the crop that has been harvested according to present methods cost about $7.00 per acre, whereas, the portion of the crop that was husked from the standing stalks cost $1.00 to $1.50 per acre for harvesting. This system of harvesting corn gives rise to several practical questions. First, what coarse dairy roughage is to supplant corn fodder? The fodder is not lost as a dairy roughage. As soon as the corn is husked these farmers will turn in their dairy herds. The dairy herds will pasture the fodder until about the first of the year. The great majority of the fodder is therefore conserved. These farmers are also growing soy beans for a cash crop. The soy bean straw after being thrashed makes a coarse dairy roughage that is even superior to corn fodder.

The second question is, what crop is to succeed field corn when harvested from the standing stalks? Next spring these farmers will cut up the stalks with the disc harrow and plow them under. This field will be planted to sugar corn, soy beans and tomatoes in proportion that the farmers consider best. The rotation, then, that these two farmers expect to carry out is as follows: Field corn followed by sugar corn, soy beans and tomatoes. These crops will be followed by wheat; it will be followed by sweet clover for pasture. It will be noticed that this is a four year rotation. A small field of alfalfa will supply legume roughage for the dairy herds. An analysis of this rotation reveals the following facts: It would give a good distribution of labor; it would provide several sources of income; it would provide for the growing of a reasonable acreage of those crops which on the average return a wider margin of profit; it would supplant part of the wheat acreage with the better paying cash crops; it would reduce the high labor cost of harvesting corn; it would reduce the amount of purchased dairy feed by growing a legume hay and a better quality of pasture.

PACKERS TO MEET IN SALISBURY, NOV. 24

May Form Combination of Growers On Shore; Pack
Estimated at 432 Million
Cans This Year.

Tomato growers and packers of Delaware, Maryland and upper Virginia, will meet in the Wicomico Hotel at Salisbury, Md., on Tuesday, November 24, for the purpose of completing plans for the merging of tomato growing interests of these states, which movement was inaugurated last spring and which now appears to be reaching an ultimate successful climax.

This was decided upon at a meeting of marketing officials held in the Hotel Du Pont Friday and which was attended by C. C. Gilder, chairman of the Tri-State Packers Association and which embraces in addition to Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, large sections of South Jersey where tomato growing is an important industry, and F. B. Bomberger, Maryland marketing director, and W. B. Derickson, director of the Bureau of Markets of Delaware.

Chairman Gelder will, within the next few days, name two committees—an operating and an organization committee. These two units will function promptly and will be ready to submit their reports at the meeting fixed for Salisbury. Following this meeting, it is planned to proceed at once with the organization of the merger and to have the new organization embracing, it is hoped, a large majority of the tomato growers of these four states, by next spring, when growers begin to make contracts for the summer pack.

That the pack this summer reached tremendous proportions was developed at the meeting in Wilmington, when it was stated that 18,000,000 cases in Delaware, Maryland, and upper Virginia was the output this year. This means 432,000,000 cans of tomatoes.

DIAGONAL ROAD INTO SMYRNA

Farmers of New Castle County Meet
With Town Council to Boost Entrance

Fourteen or more farmers residing in New Castle county met with the Smyrna Town Council at a recent meeting and asked for a new road into Main street north of Smyrna from the Boulevard. As it is too late for anything to be done this season the matter was held over until next spring. This raises the question of the diagonal road and residents of New Castle county are ready to appeal to the State Highway Department and co-operate with Smyrna to get this much needed and safer road entrance into the business section of Smyrna.

"Beggar on Horseback" Coming Soon

In "Beggar on Horseback" James Cruz is said to have his most ambitious production since "The Covered Wagon." "Beggar on Horseback" is a picturization of the New York stage success and features Edward Horton and Esther Ralston in the leading roles.

Cruze spent a phenomenal amount of time in preparation and filming the production, and the completed scenes are said to constitute one of the most amazingly fantastic productions ever made. One of the largest stages at the Paramount West Coast studio in Hollywood was used for a single set.

The story has to do with the dream of a poverty-ridden musical genius—Horton—in which he is pursued by two fascinating young ladies. Walter Woods wrote the scenario from the play by George S. Kaufman and Connelly.

HEADLINERS OF OTHER DAYS

Writing in the New York World recently, Philip Strong developed a host of interesting sidelights on the careers of two of the world's strongest men, Sandow and Sigmund Breitbart, his greatest rival.

Many of the older generation remember the triumphant invasion of America by the great Sandow. His name was a household word. For years he accomplished prodigious feats of strength; he was the idol of every capital on the Continent.

Within the month, both men had passed on; Breitbart in Berlin and Sandow in London. They died two days apart.

In discussing these two intense careers, Mr. Strong says in part:

"Their strength killed these two 'strongest men in the world,' as it killed Samson of old. Contrary to the first report, Breitbart's death was caused by blood poisoning from a nail wound in his thigh, not by a scratch on his back. He hurt himself while performing one of his feats of strength in Berlin a few weeks ago. He drove a wire spike through a plank with such force that the point pierced the skin of his leg on which the plank was held. He paid no attention to the injury and continued his performances. He died because he was too strong. This is the story as given to Harry J. Mondorf, who discovered Breitbart three years ago in the little city of Pilsen, in Czechoslovakia, and brought him to the Hippodrome a year later. Mrs. Breitbart, in telling him the circumstances of her husband's death, said that if she had been with Sigmund the wound would have been cauterized and he would not have died.

Strength Cause of Undoing

"Strength undid Sandow in this wise: Some time ago he was in a motor accident near London, where in the past twenty years he made a fortune in his physical culture institute. The car was ditched. Without an audience, the ageing Sandow made his last and fatal exhibition of strength. He lifted the car, single-handed, from the ditch and put it back on the road. The strain short-circuited his marvelous muscular and nervous system. He knew he had hurt himself and was careful thereafter.

"But he grew worse. On October 11, forty-eight hours after his successor died in Berlin, Eugene Sandow, the idolized blend of Adonis, Hercules and Byron, was no more. That beautiful body, that had been admired and caressed by the eyes and tingling finger tips of English and American aristocrats, was as cold as any of the hundreds of statues for which he had posed. A blood vessel in his brain had burst.

"Of the two men, Breitbart was the most dramatic in his exhibitions, but, strangely, it is Sandow who had the greater hold on the public mind, probably because he appeared at a time when both England and America took their amusements and spectacles much more seriously than they do today. Also, because Sandow, like John L. Sullivan of sacred memory, was a gentleman who lived high, wide and handsomely, drinking champagne, chocolate, smoking black cigars and entertaining admiring society ladies in his dressing room after each and every performance.

"Breitbart was much simpler in his living and his tastes. While in America, either because of his manager's respect for the Volstead act or because it was true, he denounced alcohol and tobacco and said he trained for his chain-biting, iron-bending, spike-driving act by eating salads. He declined Dempsey's offer to help in training for Firpo by saying that he was never in a fight and didn't want to be. Sandow had several impromptu fights, one of them with a French Count who, not knowing Sandow, slapped his face. Sandow picked him up by his neck and knees and crashed him through the center of a loaded dinner table. The Count regained consciousness a day and a half later. He subsequently kissed Sandow and became his life-long friend.

"Breitbart was much bigger than Sandow and he had little of Sandow's undeniable beauty. The difference may be traced to their beginnings. Breitbart came from peasant stock; Sandow was born into a middle-class Dusseldorf family. Breitbart, when as a boy he learned his strength, desired merely to be stronger, to lift great weights and to endure strains and pains. Sandow, if we are to believe the only records left of his boyhood, was moved by something of the same aesthetic appreciation that threw Victorian society into paroxysms of admiration years later when he bared his body to its gaze.

"The story goes that he went to Rome with his father and, at the age of ten, a sickly child, he gazed upon the sculptures of old Italy and Greece and was possessed of a wish to have a strong, beautiful body. As he grew up he dodged the studies for the priesthood and studied anatomy, working methodically to develop the muscles and improve the bone structure of his body. To a cynical modern this sounds fishy, but the straightforward account he gave, together with his own life, makes it plausible.

"Sandow made himself famous in a night. In 1889 he met Aubrey Hunt, an English artist, at Venice, where Sandow was posing. Hunt induced him to go to London to win the £1,000 offer of Samson, the reigning 'strongest man in the world,' to any one who could duplicate his feats. Sandow walked upon the stage at the Royal Aquarium, won £100 duplicating the feats of Samson's pupil, Cyclone, and the following Saturday evening he bested Samson himself. The £1,000 was never paid, but the crowd lifted Sandow's carriage off the ground and bore him in triumph to his hotel.

"For three years he made thousands in London and provincial theatres and, in 1893, he captured New York. On his arrival here he was taken to a tall hotel. He was astonished by the height. A Negro bellboy took him to the staircase and showed him how far it was to the bottom. Then, according to Sandow's diary, the bellboy took the strongest man in the world to the appointed room, reclined on a sofa, lighted a cigarette and insulted the great unknown. Sandow ordered him to clean his boots. The Negro refused and showed fight. Sandow picked him up by his coat and pants, tested them, carried the terrified servant to the staircase, held him over the yawning pit and asked him to meditate on his past inperitences.

"New York, Boston, Chicago worshipped at his shrine, the theatre where he lifted a 500-pound weight with his little finger, a dumbbell with two men on it above his head with one arm, supporting a gangplank with three horses on it on his chest and turning a double back somersault with two 56-pound dumbbells in his hands. Part of the performance was the seeling of his book telling how ordinary mortals could make themselves like him.

FAMOUS LECTURERS TO SPEAK AT COLLEGE

List of Wolf Hall Visitors During College Year Announced.

Professor George H. Ryden, head of the Department of History and Political Science at the University of Delaware, has secured a number of noted lecturers for the Senior College Hour in Wolf Hall during the college year. Last Wednesday the lecturer was Leon Dabo, famous American artist, who is one of the seven Americans to have a painting hung in the Luxembourg, Paris. He has announced other lecturers as follows:

December 9, Colonel Raymond Robins, of Chicago; January 13, Mrs. Forbes Robertson-Hale, of New York and England; January 26, William W. Ellsworth, of Hartford, Conn., former president of the Century Company; February 24, Dr. Louis K. Anspacher, of New York; March 9, Frank Speaight, of England; April 28, Edward Devine, of New York.

LOVETT AVENUE

"Almost Over Night"

That's what someone has said about the quick development of Lovett Avenue. From beginning to end, is a Newark achievement. The homes fill a great need and their popularity is attested by the fact that all but two uncompleted houses have been sold. The men who made this street possible are Newark men—your Neighbors and Friends. In this manner, they answer those who say "It Won't Go."

THOSE WHO HAD A PART IN LOVETT AVENUE

The development pictured above is distinctive in that practically every workman who had a part in its growth is a Newark resident. From cellar to peak of roof, each house was put together at home by home people.

Contractor A. B. Foote employed the following men on his operations:

William Howell, Robert Egnor, Edgar Jones, Harry Nelson, John Spratt, Albert Riley, J. McCauley, Joseph Harper, Warren Crowell and A. Samples.

The brick and cement work, under the direction of Samuel Little, saw the following workmen on the job: Orville Little, K. C. Whiteman, Ralph Whiteman, James Hall, George Biddle, Allen Reed, Cato Pennington, Theodore Thompson, and Atwood Anderson.

Robert W. Tweed and Sons had charge of the plastering of the homes. The men who made up the crew are: Clinton Tweed, Norman A. Tweed, George Tweed, John W. Cochran, Andy Garrison and Walter Pressbury.

Painter John Scott employed the following men: Frank C. Tweed, John Baylis, J. W. Tweed and Leo Jeysic.

Plumbing and pipefitting by Daniel Stoll, saw these men on the operation every day: Horace Null, George Pemberton, D. D. Nabb, Mancel Tweed, Lewis Fisher, Ralph Griffin, Benjamin McCormick, William Staley, Sherman Wood, Robert Jones and Thomas Toulson.

Cellars were dug by Frank and Oscar Elliott.

William J. Lovett, promoter of Lovett Avenue, sees great things ahead for building in Newark. He also stated that he appreciated very much the promptness and dispatch with which the new row of houses was erected and of the co-operation which he received on every hand.
