READY FOR BIG CORN SHOW ON DECEMBER 19-20

Newark Chamber of Commerce Cooperating With Farm Authorities

INCLUDES ALL PRODUCTS

Hockessin Formerly the Headquarters of Exhibit

After a conference with Mr. James Hastings, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Newark, W. W. Buckingham, of Newark, announces that the New Castle County Corn Show will be held at Newark, December 19th and 20th. The show will be under the auspices of the Extension Division of the University of Delaware, the New Castle County Farm Bureau and the Newark Chamber of Commerce, co-operating.

For the last few years the show has been held at Hockessin, but the committee of which Mr. Buckingham is chairman, decided to offer the show to Newark this year, providing the Chamber of Commerce would provide the room and the awards. President Hastings immediately took advantage of the opportunity to center the activities of the corn growers and fruit growers of the county at Newark, and advised the committee that the conditions would be complied with.

For the past several years two district shows have been held, but this year the County Show at Newark will supplant the two district shows. With the support given by the Chamber of Commerce, President Frank F. Yearsley, of the New Castle County Farm Bureau, feels confident that a record-breaking number of samples will be exhibited.

The show covers exhibits of all farm products, including corn, potatoes and apples. The corn class includes the single ear, the ten ear and the twenty ear of the yellow, white and white cap varieties. The potato class comprises one-half peck samples of Rural Russets, Sir Walter Raleigh, Green Mountain, State of Maine, Irish Cobbler and Late Reds. The fruit class will be plate displays of any three varieties of apples, five apples to the plate.

County Agent R. O. Bausman, of Newark, will provide further information upon request.

The annual meeting of the New Castle County Farm Bureau will be held in Old College Hall, Newark, Thursday, December 20th. President Frank F. Yearsley, of Marshallton, announces an attractive program.

Dean C. A. McCue, of the University of Delaware, will deliver the address of welcome. After the acceptance remarks by President Yearsley, reports of officers will be heard and a general discussion of the status of the organization will follow.

After lunch is served at the College Commons, Mr. R. C. Handy, of Dover, State Agent of the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange will address the meeting on the subject of "Cooperative Buying of Farm Supplies in Delaware." Mr. Paul Hoffman, Secretary-Treasurer of the Pennsylvania Federation of Farm Bureaus, will speak on the activities of the Pennsylvania Federation covering legislative matters as well as its success along the line of cooperative purchase of farm supplies.

KILMON RESTAURANT IN WILMINGTON REPORTED CLOSED

Word has reached Newark of the closing one day last week of the Kilmon Restaurant at Eighth and Orange Streets, Wilmington, owned by Ira E. Kilmon, formerly proprietor of the popular restaurant on Elkton Avenue, Newark.

According to reports received yesterday, the new establishment in Wilmington, after a supposedly prosperous run of business for about a month, was ordered closed by the sheriff. A claim said to have been instituted by Max Breuer, a Wilmington tobacco and cigar wholesaler, was the first step in the closing proceedings. Other creditors joined Breuer with their claims. The restaurant and fixtures are to be sold at public sale by the sheriff in the near future.

Several Newark people have stopped at the restaurant since its opening a few weeks ago, and reported that Kilmon had a good stand and was doing very nicely.

It appears that Ira suddenly transferred management of the establishment over to his younger brother a week or so ago, and then disappeared. He has not appeared at his place of business since that time. It is believed that his sudden departure shook the confidence of his creditors, and they hurried their claims against his business.

This fact seems all the more probable when it is taken into consideration that Kilmon had done well in Wilmington and appeared to have built up strong credit.

No definite word has been received of Ira's whereabouts up to the present time. His brother is still in Wilmington.

The elder Kilmon recently returned to Newark from a trip to California, following the closing out of his business here. Upon his return he immediately made plans to re-enter the restaurant trade, and reports had it that he was dickering with a local man for his establishment. Later he announced the opening of the Wilmington restaurant.

Start of "Dig In" Day at University

NEWARK FIRMS TO APPEAR IN COURT

Curtis Bros. Inc. and National Fibre Co. Involved In Injunction

Pursuant to a bill of complaint filed late last week by James T. Edman, a farmer living east of Newark, Chancellor Josiah Wolcott has issued a rule requiring the presence of officials of the National Vulcanized Fibre Co. and Curtis Bros., Inc., to appear before him on January 2nd next, to show cause why an injunction should not be issued enjoining them from the alleged pollution of White Clay Creek.

Mr. Edman's farm is situated about two miles from the two mills, and part of his meadow land lies adjacent to the creek. He stated in the complaint that the water has contained refuse from the mills, and that it has been rendered unfit for his cattle to drink. Other use of water on the farm have been hindered from the alleged pollution, he says.

The bill was filed by William T. Lyman, Jr., counsel for Mr. Edman.

One of the officials of Curtis and Bros., Inc., who is named in the bill of complaint, stated yesterday that the whole matter came as a surprise to that firm. He said that it was the first time in over seventy-five years that any complaint had been raised against alleged pollution of the stream by any foreign matter coming from the paper mill. When asked whether the process has changed in the past few years which would probably throw objectionable refuse into the stream, the official answered in the negative. Curtis and Bros. will engage counsel, and, at the appointed time, will have an answer to the complaint prepared for the Chancellor. It is believed that the National Vulcanized Fibre Co. will also fight the injunction on basis similar to that of the Curtis firm.

VOLUNTEER TOILERS WORK IN MUD ON LIBRARY BUILDING

Faculty, Students and Alumni Spend Tuesday Digging Foundations—Simple Ceremony Start of Work

Three hundred students, faculty and alumni of the University of Delaware joined yesterday morning in digging the foundation of the new Memorial Library on the campus midway between the Men's and Women's Colleges. It was a sight never before witnessed in the history of the old institution. Working in shifts of 60 men per hour, the downright hard labor continued from eight o'clock in the morning until dusk settled down and enveloped the scene. Tired bodies straightened up at the sound of the last whistle, muddy hands swept over sweaty faces, and the volunteer workers sloshed out of the pits they had dug and struck for home.

There was nothing sensational about this great event. With the exception of a few camera men, outsiders were scarce. There was no chance for anyone to gain a spot in the limelight of publicity. Old men and young men, tall men and short men, professors and freshmen, men big in the affairs of the college, and men with their road to success still uncharted—all bent their backs with picks and shovels and wheelbarrows. At first merriment reigned at the sight. Before the day had fairly gotten on its way, people were gazing at one of the greatest things to be seen on any campus. Last night merriment gave way to admiration of those men and boys. They did something to which dollars and cents saved cannot be linked.

Mud levelled all ranks. Heavy rains of the two days preceding had converted the scraped-out scene of the digging into a veritable slough of mud. Puddles of water dotted its surface. The heavy clay resisted picks, stuck to shovels, and made wheelbarrows groan under their weight. In an hour the first shift came off the operation, mud from feet to hips. Most of the workers had prepared for the emergency with boots, galoshes or old shoes and trousers. Fresh as daisies, the second group of sixty men answered the call, and waded into their work. After the first change, things went like clock-work.

One hour rest and one hour work—all day it was the same. Seniors and Freshmen in the morning, Juniors and Sophomores in the afternoon; Faculty and Alumni all day long. At six points on the operation holes were going deeper, earth was piling up on the dumping ground off to one side. Wheelbarrows with their chauffeurs alternately slipping and regaining their feet, slid up narrow planks to the dump, turned and trundled back (Continued on Page 5.)

Breaks Arm

While engaged in a friendly tussle with another boy one day last week, Ferdinand Finkernagle, son of A. Finkernagle, Main Street fruit and produce merchant, fell and broke his wrist. The injured member is slowly getting better.

SON OF FORMER NEW- ARK MINISTER VERY ILL

Family of David Poffenberger Also Sick at Hillcrest Home IS WELL KNOWN HERE.

Many local people were sorry to learn Monday of the serious illness of David D. Poffenberger, who is suffering from typhoid fever at his home in Hillcrest, a suburb of Wilmington.

Three of his four little children are also down with the disease. They are Catherine, 13; Martin, 5, and Elizabeth, 8; David, 14, has recovered from a slight attack of the fever.

Lived Here For Years

Mr. Poffenberger was a resident of Newark for many years. His father, the Rev. Poffenberger, was rector of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, preceding the Rev. Phillips. Both father and son were well known to the townspeople. The father met a tragic death while a minister here, being killed at the B. and O. crossing near the station.

PROPERTY CHANGES HERE INVOLVE MANY

Casperson Family Give Up Main St. House; T. J. Green to Move in Spring

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Caspersen and daughter, Nadine, left today for Florida, where they will spend the winter months. The Caspersens who came from Atlantic City over a year ago, have sold their house on West Main Street to Thomas J. Green, well known farmer of Pencader Hundred. Mr. and Mrs. Green will leave the farm and move into Newark next March, occupying their new home.

The Misses Martha and Lydia Hall of near Appleton will occupy the house during the intervening months.

The sale of the old Barton house, also on West Main Street, formerly owned by William Barton, has been consummated. Dr. Caspersen is the buyer. It is understood that he will make extensive improvements on the property in the spring.

MRS. RUTH STEEL CALLED BY DEATH

Prominent Newark Woman Succumbs After Long Illness at Home Here

FUNERAL HELD TODAY

Mrs. Ruth A. Steel, one of the best known elderly women of the community passed away at her home on West Main Street, Sunday last after a lingering illness of several months. She had gradually grown weaker last week and her death was not unexpected. She was 73 years of age.

The funeral was held this afternoon shortly after two o'clock from her late residence. The services were in charge of Rev. John MacMurray, pastor of the Head of Christiana Church and Dr. Joel S. Gillfillan of Wilmington. Burial was made in the family lot at the Head of Christiana cemetery.

Mrs. Steel was the widow of George Steel, a prominent retired farmer living in Newark. There are no children surviving. The deceased by related as an aunt by marriage to Dr. Walt H. Steel, Edward Steel, and Mrs. Hallie Johnson, all of Newark.

For the past few years, since the death of her husband, Mrs. Steel has been living at her residence in seclusion. Miss Mary Steel, a niece by marriage, also lived in the house.

Deceased was a member of Head of Christiana Church, but in her later years was not able to take any active interest in church or civic affairs. She has been ailing for sometime, and while everything was done to aid in her recovery, her condition grew gradually worse.

She was well known to all the older residents of Newark and the community and many people attended the funeral this afternoon.

MRS. C. R. THOMAS BRUTALLY BEATEN BY NEGRO MONDAY

Attacked Just Outside Town Early in The Evening—Assailant's Capture Expected Soon

WAS ON HER WAY HOME

Victim Confined to Home With Badly Battered Face—Cannot Describe Attacker

While on her way home, about seven-thirty o'clock Monday evening last, after a day spent at the farm of Mrs. Robert Reed, Mrs. C. R. Thomas, well-known resident of near Newark, was brutally attacked and beaten by an unknown Negro near the training stables of Herman Tyson, just east of Newark.

The attack aroused intense excitement when word of it became known in town next day. The assailant escaped and no description of him could be obtained from Mrs. Thomas. The first word of the outrage came from Dr. C. H. Blake, who stopped in Magistrate Thompson's office yesterday and reported the case. He was called in by the family to attend to the injuries suffered by Mrs. Thomas. Magistrate Thompson immediately got in touch with State Detective Chandler, and the latter hurried here to take charge of the case. Chandler, Chief Lewis and Dr. Blake interviewed Mrs. Thomas in order to obtain a description of the assailant. Mrs. Thomas was suffering from shock and could not remember much about the assault. Her face is badly beaten up, both eyes blackened and cuts and bruises all over her head. Her clothing was torn and muddy when she finally dragged herself home after the attack, an hour after the attack.

Offered Her Ride

According to the story told by Mrs. Thomas, she was hurrying home in the darkness after a day spent at the Reed place, where she had helped with the butchering all day. She was late and walking fast. She had reached a point along the old Wilmington pike about a hundred yards beyond Leak's garage, she said, when a Ford auto drew up alongside and the occupant asked her if he could "give her a lift." Believing the driver to be someone living in the neighborhood who knew her, and realizing that she had a long walk ahead of her, Mrs. Thomas accepted, and got into the front seat of the car.

Not until she was seated and got a good look at the man through the darkness, did she realize that he was a Negro.

She immediately ordered him to stop and let her out. The driver responded with more speed. The car lurched around the turn into a by-road at Tyson's stables, and headed in the direction of the Thomas home. As the turn was reached, Mrs. Thomas half jumped and half fell out of the car, and started to run. She said she remembered the Negro chasing her, and then she said she could not remember (Continued on Page 4.)

EVEN COTTON WILL GROW IN NEWARK

Mrs. James E. Tasker, of North Street, Newark, is exhibiting to many of her neighbors and friends a full grown cotton plant, bearing eight pods, filled with snowy white balls.

The seed for the plant was sent here from the cotton fields of Alabama, and was planted in April of this year. The plant flourished all through the summer months and recently showed signs of bearing. Careful attention on the part of the owner has helped it become one of the prettiest plants in town.

It is very seldom that cotton plants bear in this climate, even though subjected to plenty of warmth indoors. To many people who have seen the unusual sight it is their first glimpse of the "real thing." Since some parts of the South are enjoying the greatest cotton crop in history, it must be just naturally a "cotton year."

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM LIONS OF THE HOUR

W. S. Armstrong Plays Host
At Dinner Monday Night;
Other Parties This Week
To Get Gold Footballs

The members of the championship Newark High School football team and their coach, Joe Wilson, and manager, Max Marritz, were guests of honor at a sumptuous dinner given by W. S. Armstrong at Powell's restaurant Monday evening of this week.

The host was in his usual jolly mood and kept the party going at a lively clip all evening. After the dinner had been served by Mr. Powell and his aides, several short speeches were made.

Mr. Armstrong, who is one of the most loyal rooters for any team which Newark High puts on the field, made a clever little speech, and won himself new honors in the oratorical line. He commended the team for their wonderful showing this year, calling attention to the fact that they were given but an outside chance to win the coveted banner. In making the fourth bid for the championship and winning it makes Newark the leading football team since the Association has been organized.

Following Mr. Armstrong, Coach Joe Wilson, Captain Hopkins and other members of the team made brief talks. All thanked Mr. Armstrong for his courtesy and generosity.

About twenty-five people sat down to the meal, including seventeen players of the Varsity Squad, and the mascot, Harry Williamson.

More To Follow

It was stated just before the game with Seaford that if the home team won, they were in for seven separate and distinct suppers, lunches or parties from townspeople.

Whether this is the case or not depends upon events of this and succeeding weeks. Two other parties have, however, been given in addition to the Armstrong dinner.

Wilson Blockson, another royal rooter, played host to the members of the team at his popular store on "the corner" last evening, at which the crowd had a mighty fine time. And tonight, the faculty of the High School step down from their official positions and fete the players in the Blue Hen Tea Room.

"The Seaford game," said one follower of the team, "certainly has proven hard on local dinner tables."

The boys appreciate the many kindnesses shown them, and even now are plunging into a hard basketball season. Practices are being held daily in the Armory. A strong team is looked forward to.

The Post next week is arranging to publish a resume of the season just closed, with accurate figures and statistics concerning every man on the team.

Gold footballs will be presented to the members of the team at the annual Christmas entertainment in the High School on the evening of December 21st. A captain for next season's team will also be elected at that time.

ELKTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE TO DINE

Business Men to Hold First Annual Dinner on January 14th

Arrangements are being made for the first annual dinner of the Elkton Chamber of Commerce to be held in that town on the evening of January 14th next.

William C. Feehly is at the head of a committee to arrange for the affair. A good speaker and a big dinner will be the features of the affair, it was announced.

RECOVERING FROM ILLNESS

Mrs. Robert Frazier of Elkton Improving in Union Hospital

Reports from the Union Hospital yesterday afternoon indicated that the condition of Mrs. Robert Frazier, wife of the well known Elkton druggist, is greatly improved. She is suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. Her condition a few days ago was very critical, but now that the crisis has passed, it is understood that she is well on the road to recovery.

VINELAND COUPLE REFUSED AT ELKTON

Police of Jersey Town Arrive To Take Them Back To Irate Parents

A report emanating from an Elkton correspondent to a Wilmington paper Monday, stated that even though the road to marital happiness is well surfaced in Elkton, and that all you have to do is to get the girl, sometimes the authorities balk prospective new-weds in very embarrassing moments. Says the report:

Furman T. Brown and Lillian F. Dorrington came to Elkton Monday afternoon from their homes in Vineland, N. J. While procuring a marriage license, Deputy Clerk of the Court Frank G. Pratt was told to "hold up a minute," when Sheriff Jesse Pierson stepped in and informed the couple that they would be his guests until the arrival of the police from Vineland. The New Jersey police stated that the girl was charged with being a runaway, being only fifteen years of age. After spending several hours in the jail office, they were later taken back to their homes in Vineland.

COMMUNITY XMAS TREE IN ELKTON

SANTA CLAUS, TOO

With the approach of the holiday season, Elkton is joining with many other towns in the surrounding country in observing a community Christmas celebration.

Arrangements have been completed for the placing of a big tree on the Court House Plaza near the Soldiers' Monument, and it will be lighted from street wires nearby. Varicolored globes will burn and cast a real Holiday glow over the center of town for several nights preceding the big day.

Chairman Feehly will have charge of getting together a program for Christmas eve. While the plans have not been as yet announced, it is believed that local singers will form a chorus under the tree early on Christmas eve and there lead townspeople in singing well-known Christmas anthems. There is also the possibility of a short religious service.

Santa Claus Present

An innovation which should prove a most popular feature of the community affair will be the personal appearance of Santa Claus. The jolly gentleman will make a special trip from the North Pole to meet the children of Elkton. He will stop in the various stores during the day and will also be present at the tree in the evening.

Members of the various church organizations are expecting to sing carols through the streets late in the evening as they have done for the past several years.

Postpone Webb-Vaughn Trial Again

For the third time the trial of Mrs. Dora Vaughn and Arthur Webb, charged with the murder of Joseph Dorraine last spring, while the latter was tending three small children of John Smylix, of Barksdale, has been postponed.

When it came up early this week for trial in the Circuit Court's December session in Elkton, counsel for the defense moved that the trial be held outside of Cecil County. The contention was that the accused people could not get a fair trial in the county.

In his decision, Judge Wickes granted the removal motion and transferred the entire case to Queen Anne County courts. It will be heard in Centerville, Md., at the May term of court in 1924.

Considerable criticism of the continued postponements of the trial have been heard in and around Elkton, since the latest decision. The accused couple have been in custody for over six months.

MAY CHANGE MARRIAGE LAWS IN MARYLAND

It is reported that a bill is pending introduction in the Maryland Legislature at its next session, making drastic changes in the marriage laws of the State.

If the bill goes through, it will make a radical cut in the amount of weddings being held in Elkton during the year.

It is proposed in the new change of existing laws, to allow marriages to be performed only by licensed ministers, resident and registered in the town in which they live. In this case, "free lances," as they are sometimes called, will not be eligible to officiate at the ceremonies.

GRAND JURY TO PROBE BANK ATTACK

Elkton Judge Charges Panel In Duties of the Session

After the appointment of Edward T. Wilson, of Elk Neck District, as foreman of the Grand Jury for the Circuit Court of Cecil County, Monday of this week, Judge Levin C. Wickes, presiding jurist at the court session, charged the jurymen to investigate thoroughly the false report that the Elkton Banking and Trust Co. was "shaky." The Judge gave the jurymen a free hand in their efforts to bring about the discovery of the alleged defamers of the bank. If the party or parties are brought before them, the Judge has ordered them to find an indictment.

Dreams Do Come True

Dreams do come true, after all. Ideals of yesterday are Facts, today. The Idea, Plan and Drive of a Memorial Library is now History and yesterday witnessed a living reality.

Dreamed for years and there is a Women's College; Rodney Sharp dreamed and there is Old College Hall, Wolf Hall, Harter Hall. There were dreams and there is an Athletic Field, a fifty acre campus, a Summer School, a Rehab Division. Oh there are so many living vital Facts today affording opportunities and responsibilities that only yesterday were Dreams. Honestly opposed, laughed at, scoffed, even sneered, the Dreamer smiles approvingly, holds on and sees the Realization—and Dreams, again, for tomorrow and the years to come.

Yesterday was a great day. Freshman and Senior, Sophomore and Junior, instructors and Deans, Professors and President—all were there. And Girls and coffee, too. They were there.

A pick, a shovel and mud make men kin. Aside from the novelty, the off-from-duty, the levity and sportsmanship, there was a sentiment crowding for expression. How wonderful men are when out of profession and off parade! The party did real work, saved real money, wheeled honest dirt. But even more, there were developments of fellowship and beginnings of cooperation that cannot be reckoned. There were visions seen yesterday of a University that heretofore practical men were ashamed to admit.

Yesterday was a great day. For months, the Building Committee has been quietly and persistently working—on hard practical questions. Yesterday the Building was begun. It was Dreamer's Day—and all good Delawares dream. Her history is a record of Dreams. Tomorrow depends upon them. "Delaware does not forget." For those who gave their lives, we are giving our living and have erected this monument to their sacrifice—and offer ours.

President Pays Tribute to Harding

Inaugurating Harding week, when the people of America are asked to raise a $3,000,000 Harding Memorial Fund, President Collidge Monday night broadcasted the following address by radio from the White House:

One of the brief poems that have touched the hearts of men is that wherein Leigh Hunt tells of the visit of an angel to earth, recording the names of "those who love the Lord."

"And is my name there?"
"Nay, not so," replied the angel.

"Then write me down," he was told "as one who loves his fellow men."

The angel came again to show his list of those who love the Lord—

"And lo" the name of him who loved his fellow men "led all the rest."

It will be hard to find a better picture than this of President Harding, the man we loved and mourn. He loved his fellow men, and because they felt it and knew it, they loved and trusted him. His whole life, from the knee of that cherished mother who had an inspired faith in him, down to the day when a sorrowing world laid its tributes at his bier, was a continuing testimony to his devotion to them and to their faith in him.

Some will say that such a sweet and gentle nature could only have found its setting and its opportunity for service in a strange and peculiar time. Perhaps they are right. Yet he came to the world's stage in an hour when it seemed set for other characters. The captains and the kings, the armies and the navies, the men who would have war, and men who would not have peace, had long dominated the scene. Where among them could place be made, could ear be found, for this kindly, gentle, gracious soul?

Yet he found his place. He caught the ear of a war-tired world. He called our country back to paths of peace, and gladly it came. He beckoned the nations to come and sit in council. He pointed them the way to peace. He set example of readiness to cast away the sword from the arm of might. He sought for men and nations a peace—the only true and lasting peace—based on justice and right. He stood first and firm for his own country, then for mankind. His sincerity and frankness won to his side those who sensed the great truth of human brotherhood. So he led the way to the monumental accomplishments of the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament.

The same simplicity and directness marked his program in domestic affairs. His was the steady, strong, inspiring hand of guidance and helpfulness. It was never the mailed fist of compulsion. He knew that the greatest need of the world was peace with industry and production. He asked for these, and with them for thrift and the will to make good the losses that had been inflicted in the years of strife. He called his countrymen to set an example of these homely virtues, and they did. He gave without remorse of his own strength, down to the tragic end. He rose above misunderstanding and misrepresentations, but he was curiously incapable of hard feeling toward those who were unfair with him. In a time when the minds of many men were prone to seize upon hurried conclusions, he held back and dared to take his time and thought before deciding. He was free from the pride of opinion, but strong in the determination of conviction. He had that calm courage which could not be over-pressed, but that was firm and final when decision had been reached.

He was criticized because his own country, under his leadership, did not move forward so fast as some wished. But when worn out by the struggle he had so bravely borne he laid down the burden, his critics saw clearly what his leadership had accomplished. They saw that it had been a leadership forward and upward, in an era when most other countries were moving backward and downward. They saw that prosperity smiled once more on a favored land. They saw that prosperity and material well-being were somehow strangely rare in other GAL. 2 ART. 69 12.11.23 JAK lands. So they came to realize what his modest, unassuming leadership had wrought for his country.

It was natural that such a character, passing from the stage of life should leave the multitudes a sense of personal loss. Seldom indeed has any man's death left that feeling among so many. He was mourned abroad and at home. The conviction was felt everywhere that he was one of the men best fitted to serve a distracted world in a difficult period of its history. But he was not permitted to finish his task. He broke and went down under its load. In the hour of sorrow for his loss, men and women were moved to a broader charity, a relaxation of partisan excesses, a determination to be fair and moderate and reasonable. His life became, in the tragic sorrow of its end, a lesson in the value of simple and modest ways.

We mourn him today, and we shall mourn him so long as remembrance holds before us the picture of his patience, forbearance, faith and Christian tolerance. These are rare virtues, too seldom found among the men who have the strength to rise to high places. They are the virtues that men need to seek and cultivate in these years of stress in the world. They point the way to salvation for men, for nations, for humanity itself. We may well hope that his example to his own countrymen and to the world, may help greatly to bring a spirit of charity, accord and true fraternity, whereby shall be lighted the lamp of understanding to show our feet into the paths of peace on earth, good will to men. We may well consider by what means we can show our appreciation, and by what method we can best enshrine his memory.

TWO HURT WHEN CARS SIDESWIPE

A Ford coupe, driven by Linwood Lindell, of Elkton, and occupied by himself and two girl companions was sideswiped and overturned about nine o'clock Saturday evening last along the Lincoln Highway a few hundred yards east of Leak's Garage on the outskirts of town.

The damage was done, it is reported, by the car owned and driven by Curtis W. Strong, of Newark.

According to witnesses of the accident, the two cars were going east on the highway. In passing the Lindell car, Strong swerved his car in too close in passing and as he cut across to the right hand edge, the two cars collided. The crash caused the windows in the coupe to break, and the car went over on its side.

The two companions of Lindell were painfully cut by flying glass, but their injuries were not considered serious. Strong immediately stopped and offered what aid he could.

On Hot Clue
State Detective Chandler and local police authorities have run down several clues since the attack occurred. At noon today it was reported that they were on the trail of the right man and that an arrest would be imminent. He is said to live close to the town limits of Newark.

The funds in the hands of the committee total close to $70.00 which sum was contributed to the New Year's Parade by merchants and townspeople. In disposing of the money, the committee desired that it would go where it would do the most good.

Another lump sum of $35.00 has been set aside for the bringing of Christmas cheer and brightness into homes of the needy. Arrangements are pending with the Red Cross and church organizations for the distribution of this money.

PHI KAPPA PHI HEARS EDWIN EARLE SPARKS

Former President of Penn State Addresses Society Here

Edwin Earle Sparks, former president of Penn State College, and at present Regent General of Phi Kappa Phi, was the guest of the University of Delaware Chapter at dinner in the West Wing of Old College last evening. Following his address to the Chapter members, Dr. Sparks addressed the Student Body in the main dining room.

Dr. Sparks urged his auditors to interest themselves in only those activities ties to which they could lend their active support and to interest themselves particularly in such activities as would develop weak spots in their make-up. The address was delightfully illustrated by a number of humorous stories. At the conclusion of his address and at the request of Dr. Sparks the Student Body, led by Charles Green, sang the Alma Mater.

In addition to the guest of honor, those present at the dinner were: Dr. Hulihan, Deans Dutton, M. Van G. Smith, and McCue; Professors Koerber, Tarr, Heim, Houghton, Penny, Baker, Conover, Harter, Eastman, Manns, Shuster, Bevan, Crooks, and Wilkinson; Majors Short and Row; and Messrs. Houghland, Schaefer, Owens, McWhorter, Grier, Downing and W. D. Smith.

VOLUNTEER TOILERS
WORK IN MUD

to the task. Laughter, chatter and noise gave way in two hours to steady earnest labor. In the late afternoon, only the dull thud of picks into clay, the rattle of wheelbarrows and the occasional orders from the "foremen" broke the silence.

Yes, it was mud—pure yellow White Clay mud. It tested the sensibilities of professors and got into the boots of the students. Through the mud for nine hours they worked. And they finished the job; they upset calculations of hardened and trained engineers; they made the grade.

Early Morning Start

At 7 a. m. as the factory whistles were blowing, Dr. Speakman, former State Commander of the American Legion and two aides left Wilmington. Thirty-five minutes later they were at Recitation Hall ready for their part. In order to render the taking of pictures easy, the time of the start of the digging had been changed back to eight o'clock.

At 7:55 John Schaeffer, president of the Student Council called the roll of students. A crowd had gathered. The early morning chill had not disappeared when Schaeffer read the orders, and assigned the students. A battery of wheelbarrows and scores of picks and shovels lay waiting.

There they were, armed with good cheer and shovels. They had a little ceremony to start. Not very long, not very important. There was work to do, a day full of work. After short speeches by President Walter Hullihen and Everett C. Johnson, Chairman of the Library Drive, George N. Davis, by virtue of his position as President of the Alumni Association of the University, walked out into the mud, and dug a shovelful of earth, tossing it into a wheelbarrow. President Hullihen leaped to the handles.

The only thing of beauty in connection with the digging of the Library foundation, Tuesday, was the sight of Women's College people handing out sandwiches and coffee to the volunteer workers. The girls were in charge of Dean Robinson. The food was served from the rear porch of the home of Prof. and Mrs. A. S. Eastman, and several faculty ladies assisted in preparing the large amount of coffee and sandwiches. A steady stream of hungry men lined the side of the house awaiting their turn to eat all day long. Everyone pronounced the coffee excellent and the sandwiches very tasty.

Cameras clicks. The crowd was silent.

The Library had been started.

That was all there was to the ceremony. With a whoop, the volunteers plunged into the quagmire. In five minutes mud was flying fast. What more is there to tell. There is nothing sensational in digging mud. But there is something noble in digging mud alongside of the President of the University—both slipping and floundering, both sweating—both working for the common good of the old institution.

They Were All There

Only a few colleges in the entire country ever attempted a piece of work like this. And it is only those colleges wherein the love of tradition and the love of every tree and blade of grass on the campus overwhelms the love of position and self that such an operation could be carried forward to success.

As the bright morning sun swept the scene yesterday one could hardly recognize those mud-bespattered men whom we all know so well.

Dr. Hullihen was there in leggins and white sweater. And he worked, not for an hour, but all day. Rodney Sharp, a man who has never let the love of his old college become dimmed, was on the scene early, staking out the lines with School Auxiliary workmen. At eight o'clock professors appeared from all directions, some without breakfast, but ready. Then there was Taylor, the engineer, quiet, very much in the background, but on the job, watching, advising—with every detail thoroughly worked over in his mind.

And Dr. Harter was there. It was inspiring to see the fine old gentleman right in the middle of the eager group, smiling his approval. After years and years as Professor, President, and President Emeritus of the College—years in which Delaware struggled through poverty—he came to see a dream fulfilled. Perhaps he was thinking of the little old Library in Old College over which he presided so long, and its great successor now on its way.

And Professor Conover, walking around the muddy field, dreaming of future days to be spent in the quiet of the big building browsing around among his beloved books. Penny Wilkinson, Dutton, Van G. Smith—you could run down the entire list and check them present.

And we mustn't forget Dr. Sypherd, the father of the scheme worked out yesterday. Dressed in sheepskin, galoshes, slouch hat and gloves which had seen far better days—you wouldn't know him. And when he got in the mud, he worked like a Trojan. There was Major Row, looking like a buck private in a Government machine shop. He pushed a wheelbarrow until both were quite exhausted. There they were. Classroom decorum was cast to the wind. Faculty members slipped into the mire, and students pulled them out. Student spilled wheelbarrows of dirt and faculty made fun of them. And so it went.

If there was even an inspiring sight in Newark, it was held yesterday.

HIGH SCHOOL
STUDENTS CELEBRATE
BIG VICTORY

Parade, Bonfire and Street Dance Feature "Joy Night" Last Friday

TWO BANDS IN LINE

With two bands in line, and with almost the entire student body present, Newark High School celebrated their glorious victory over Seaford High for the championship of the secondary High Schools of the State. It is Newark's fourth consecutive title, and eclipses any record ever made by a secondary High School in organized athletics in Delaware.

Great preparations had been made for the parade on Thursday and Friday, and with the members of the champion team as guests of honor, an uproarious procession began winding its way about town shortly after seven o'clock.

The Continental Band and the Minnehaha Band turned out to help make the evening one to be long remembered by the school boys and girls.

The parade formed at the High School and marched the length of Main Street and other nearby thoroughfares.

Build Big Bonfire

Following the parade, the entire assemblage retired to the High School field, where so many splendid games were witnessed this fall, and there put a torch to an enormous mound of boxes, barrels, fence rails—anything that would burn. The noise reached its height as the flames of the traditional Victory Fire reached into the air. Cheers were led for every member of the team and for Coach Joe Wilson. Several short speeches were made by those present, complimenting the team on its wonderful record for the year.

Following the bonfire and speech-making, the bands held an impromptu street dance, to which all comers were invited. The latest strains kept nimble feet going for another hour or so.

NEW CAR SMASHED IN MAIN ST. COLLISION

Rittenhouse Machine Struck By Ford Truck Saturday No One Hurt

A new Durant automobile, driven by Cyrus Rittenhouse, of the Rittenhouse Motor Co. here, was badly damaged in a collision with a Ford truck owned by Ottavio George, an Italian baker, living in the north side of town, Saturday afternoon last, on East Main Street.

According to witnesses, Rittenhouse entered his car in front of the Newark Inn, and attempted to turn in the street to proceed westward. The truck, which was not seen by the Durant driver, struck his car a heavy broadside blow, tearing off one running board and damaging fenders and body considerably. Fortunately no one was hurt in the smashup.

A demonstration by members of the Fifth Grade and a general discussion with members of the Board of Education concerning cooperation in the new school, and election of officers, formed the features of the regular meeting of the Newark Parent-Teacher Association, held in the High School last Thursday evening.

The scholars of the Fifth Grade, under Miss Mary Hoeffcker, teacher, gave a splendid little demonstration, involving playlets, recitations and music. The work of the kiddies was greatly appreciated by the good-sized audience.

Later in the evening, the meeting resolved itself into an open forum of discussion with members of the Board of Education present. Dr. Walt H. Steel showed the members plans of the new school building to be erected here, and explained various matters of interest in them. He stated that the School Board earnestly hoped that the P-T. Association would co-operate with them in the future as they have done in the past. J. Herbert Owens, Superintendent of Schools here, also made a few remarks along the same line. The P-T. members were greatly interested in the plans, and plans will be shortly made for an active participation in the welfare of the pupils here, and the betterment of school conditions.

Officers Elected

Officers were elected at the business meeting to serve for the coming year, as follows: President, George L. Medill; vice-president, John S. Shaw; secretary, Mrs. A. D. Cobb; treasurer, Miss Mary Hoeffcker.

CHURCH CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT DEC. 19

REV. HALLMAN SPEAKER

The Christmas exercises of the First Presbyterian Church will be held next Wednesday evening, December 19th, in the Sunday School room, at 7.45. The program this year will consist of an address, "The Birth of Christ," by the pastor, which will be illustrated by an exceptionally beautiful set of lantern slides.

At appropriate parts of the address, there will be singing of the Christmas songs, which the school has been practicing.

The offering will go into the Missionary Fund, through which the Sunday School carries out, yearly, a definite program of helpfulness to others. It helps support a Sunday School missionary in the Ozark Mountains, the Asheville School in North Carolina, a mission school in China, and contributes to the Sustentation Fund of the Church.

The Junior and Intermediate Departments have already sent a Christmas box of children's toys and useful articles to a missionary in the Middle West.

The Christmas Party of the Beginners and Primary Departments will be held on Friday evening of the same week.

The men of the Baracca Class are arranging their second annual Supper to the ladies, for Tuesday evening, December 18th. The men are caring for all preliminaries and will serve the supper themselves. Many surprises and novelties are forthcoming. The committee of arrangements are: Prof. H. E. Tiffany, chairman, Warren A. Singles, Wm. H. Cook, Prof. R. W. Heim, A. C. Heiser, J. E. Dougherty, C. A. Bryan.

SUSQUEHANNA LEAGUE READY FOR 1924

Oxford, Pa., May Make Eighth Club in Circuit Next Year—Rules Changed

W. R. BALDWIN AN OFFICER

At a meeting of the officers and Board of Directors of the Susquehanna League held last week, plans were laid for the continuance of the circuit next year.

The clubs so far entered in the race are Elkton, Perryville, Bel Air, Havre de Grace, Aberdeen, Darlington, Elk Mills and Port Deposit. There is some doubt about the latter team's entrance, however. If the berth is vacated, Oxford, Pa., will take the franchise. The Pennsylvanians have long wanted representation in a league, and they will no doubt present a strong team.

William Ray Baldwin, of Elk Mills, Md., was elected treasurer of the league. He has been an interested backer of the league for several years. President Arthur E. Jewell was re-elected as president. W. C. Feehly, of Elkton, is Publicity Manager.

A number of the rules of the league, have been changed for next season, the most important of which are in regard to territory and salary. Each club will hereafter be compelled to draw their players from either Harford or Cecil County and the territory; within a radius of five miles of each town in the circuit is reserved for that club to draw its players, no other club having the right to sign a player residing therein. Each club has the right to sign players from either Harford or Cecil County from territory not within the five-mile radius of the towns in the league.

Another change is, that two umpires instead of one, will be used, all to come from the two counties in the circuit. The amount each club will be allowed to spend per game on players will also be named.

ENGAGEMENTS

Grier—Allen

The engagement of Miss Mary Elizabeth Grier to Mr. Alvan Allen, both of Wilmington, was announced last week by the parents of Miss Grier.

Mr. Allen will be remembered as a student in the University of Delaware, graduating with high honors in the class of 1922. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity here.

Miss Grier is prominent in the younger circles of Wilmington, and has been connected for the past few years with the Wilmington Trust Co.

SANITY IN ROAD FINANCING NEEDED

Outline of Modern Ideas Consensus of Experts' Opinions

Representative of the United States Bureau of Public Roads and Committees from the American Association of State Highway Officials the Investment Bankers' Association of America and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, have agreed on the basic principles of road finance. It is distinctly stated by these experts that the wide variance in the present status of highway development in the several States prevents adoption of any uniform policies for securing the necessary funds, but that the following are regarded as fundamental principles:

(a) States in the initial stage of highway development should issue bonds to defer that portion of the annual charge for construction which would overburden either property or the road user.

(b) States where original construction programs are well under way can, in the main, finance normal new construction from current funds, utilizing bond issue funds to defer the cost of special projects.

(c) States where original construction is largely completed are concerned chiefly with maintenance and reconstruction, and should depend on current funds save in cases of emergency.

(d) The maintenance of interstate and state highways should be a charge against the road user.

(e) Roads serving a purely local purpose will generally require only light upkeep and should properly be a charge against the adjacent property,

ELKTON WOMAN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Elizabeth Law Injured Friday Evening at Wilmington Street Crossing

Mrs. Elizabeth Law, aged 60 years, and a resident of Elkton, was injured at the corner of Fourth and Madison Streets, Wilmington, Friday evening, when she was knocked down by an automobile driven by Richard Van Trump, of Hollyoak, Del.

According to witnesses, Mrs. Law was dragged several feet by the car. She was picked up and taken at once to the Delaware Hospital.

Officials there stated that she was not seriously injured, and that no bones were broken. It is thought that she was suffering greatly from shock. She also suffered a bruised leg.

W. C. PALMER DEAD

Former Resident of Near Newark

After an illness of several months William Clayton Palmer, age 78 years, died Wednesday last at the home of his sister, Mrs. George P. Frederick, at Newport. Mr. Palmer was taken ill in June and later was removed to a hospital in this city, where he remained for several weeks. He has been at the home of his sister for the past month.

Previous to his illness, Mr. Palmer, who was a butcher, lived on a farm, near Newark. He was born in New Jersey, but came to Wilmington to live as a boy.

Funeral services were held from his late residence Friday afternoon.

RIFLE TEAM READY FOR BIG SEASON

Several Inter-Collegiate Matches Scheduled this Winter

Plans are being made for the class rifle matches at the University of Delaware next week. Trials are being held this week for the rifle teams. These teams will be made up of ten men from each class. The match will be shot in four positions: Prone, kneeling, sitting and standing. After this match the inter-company match will be shot during the week of December 14th and the University Rifle team will be picked from the men who take part in these matches.

The rest of the schedule has not as yet been completed, but the following matches will be shot: Second Corps Area, University of Vermont, State University of Iowa, V. M. L., University of Michigan P. M. C., University of Kansas, University of Missouri, Michigan Aggies, Oregon Aggies, University of Oregon, N. Y. U., Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Chicago, University of Illinois, University of Kentucky, University of Washington, Rhode Island State University and George Washington University, Ohio State University, State College of Washington.

There will also be matches between the fraternities.

The speaker was formerly professor of Archaeology at Wellesley College.

THE COUNTY AGENT'S REPORT

R. O. Bausman Discusses Events of Importance During November

District Corn Show

The Committee in charge of the northern district corn show met at Hockessin the evening of December 3rd. The committee agreed on an elaborate premium list. The unanimous opinion was that the show should be held this year in Newark, providing satisfactory arrangements could be made. The chairman was instructed to confer with the president of the Newark Chamber of Commerce with the idea of securing a satisfactory room, awards, etc. A report of the chairman is expected at an early date. The personnel of the committee follows: W. W. Buckingham, Frank F. Yearsley, Fred Trimble, Paul Mitchell, Wilson Pierson and R. O. Bausman.

Grange Corn Show

The granges are holding unusually good corn shows this fall. These shows also comprise fruit, vegetables, baking and sewing work. The County Agent has judged the exhibits at the Delaware and Hockessin Granges. Next week he will judge the exhibits at Center and West Brandywine Granges.

National Grain and Hay Show

The County Agent and County Agent Leader assisted three farmers in selecting exhibits for the National Grain and Hay Show. The County Agent Leader is attending the show and looking after the Delaware exhibits.

Cooperative Marketing Meeting

Seventy-five farmers attended the county cooperative marketing meeting held at Wilmington on November 20th. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Aaron Sapiro of California. The entire series of cooperative marketing meetings held in the state made a general good impression. The result of the meetings, of course, will depend upon the application made of the principles laid down by Mr. Sapiro. It is the consensus of opinion that Mr. Sapiro's addresses as a whole was the best effort in visualizing the value of cooperative commodity marketing of farm products that has ever been attempted in the state.

Pictorial Report

Fourteen hundred copies of the pictorial report have come off the press and have been mailed. Several letters from outside the state have been received in recognition of receipt of the report.

Annual Report

The County Agent has spent a portion of the month preparing his annual report which is due December 1st.

Farm Bureau Membership Drive

Mr. J. D. Reynolds, County Manager of the Farm Bureau membership drive, advises that he has arranged an intensive schedule of meetings. He has secured the use of two motion picture reels from the American Federation of Farm Bureaus. He is also negotiating with a prominent farm bureau member from Maryland to speak at the meetings. Mr. Reynolds himself will discuss the activities of the County and State Farm Bureau. The County Agent will attend the meetings and speak on the activities of the County Extension Service. REHABS VISIT GARDEN SPOTS OF JERSEY--POULTRY EXPERTS ADDRESS THEM AT LENGTH

Professor Schaffle, at Head of 30 Members of Delaware Unit, Visit Vineland on Annual Pilgrimage in Search of First Hand Knowledge

Thirty members of the Rehabilitation unit of the University of Delaware, headed by Professor Albert Schaffle, of this place, spent two days last week in New Jersey on their annual pilgrimage to the poultry centers of that State. On Wednesday they were in Vineland, and Thursday in New Brunswick.

The Vineland "Daily Republican" carried this account of the visit of the local poultrymen to the town:

A review of one day's itinerary is proof that they were stuffed, saturated and overfed with enough poultry technique to require six months to digest. Leaving the University at Newark, Del., early yesterday morning, they journeyed to Philadelphia, there viewing the poultry market, and addressed by a prominent wholesale commission merchant. Continuing on to Vineland they were met by autos and taken on a tour of modern poultry plants, including the Whetsel, Wene, Spear, Bloomfield, Shultz, and other places. Short talks were given at each stop.

Supper at the Baker House was followed by an assembly in the parlor and another session of advice and counsel; the speakers being Elmer Wene, James H. Whetsel and others. Then a rush to the City Hall, where Professor Allen expounded for upward of an hour, followed by a visit to the poultry show. When the grasshopper clock in front of the Tradesmen's Bank tolled the hour of 11, they sought the hay, gasping for breath. The day proved an avalanche, a deluge of expert wisdom overflowing from the gushing fountain head.

What They Missed

So tightly were they lashed to the mast of poultry technique, that they missed the very best thing that Vineland offers the world, poultry not excepted. These were our prize pageant beauties and peachbloom Vineland girls. The 40 and 8 were giving a ball at Mori's hall, and hearing of the presence of their brothers, the Rehabs, sent a special invitation to come. There was Miss Vineland, Miss Millville, Miss Bridgeton and their courts, all charmingly gowned, while Husky's Californians made the air reel with "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake and Make Yourself at Home," and like popular Vineland dance melodies.

A messenger hunted up the Rehabs, but found them too exhausted from their forensic experiences of the day to take up the social amenities, and they were left snoozing in their luxurious couches at the Baker House, dreaming that Miss Vineland was being married to Major Row, of the University of Delaware military unit, gowned in a gorgeous plumage creation of George Weed's silver laced Wyandottes, while Husky's orchestra reeled off "From Fortiesque to Tuckahoe 'tis Twenty-seven Miles."

The party were in charge of Professor Schaffle, well known in Vineland, who formerly taught in the high school here. Included in the Rehab student colony were Messrs. Baldwin, Carter, Clark, Conroy, Davies, Fretz, Galli, Harrington, Hoffman, Leslie, McDonough, Mercer, Minner, Muschetti, Reckner, Shovin, Shimp, Slike, Tarr, Wagner, Wilkes, Wilson, Thompson. Most are in their first year course.

The party were off to New Brunswick this morning to visit the State Experiment Station. This two days' trip is an annual feature of their practical training in agriculture and poultry husbandry.

"NATIONAL EDUCATION"

A Review by "M. S." in The Sunday Star

It is pleasant to fancy, of a winter evening, what the result for all of us might have been if that comprehensive, acutely planned system had been adopted! We speak of a remarkable book with which every citizen of Delaware should be familiar—the treatise which Pierre Samuel du Pont de Nemours wrote at Thomas Jefferson's request. "National Education," the author called his work. (Ours was a very little, inexperienced nation at that time.) The scope of the contents warrants such a title.

Since the University of Delaware Press published the volume this year, making it more generally available than it had been heretofore, it has stirred discussion among the thoughtful, far and near. Although it was at once translated from M. du Pont's French into English, time had hidden the quaint treatise away. Among all the Gary Plans and Dalton Plans and Antioch Ideas no educator was daring enough to attempt such a scheme of "National Education." Yet to the du Pont plan the greatest statesmen our land has ever known gave their close study.

And now comes the Literary Review of the New York Evening Post, in its last week's issue, with extensive comment upon the book and praise for the "benevolence and practical idealism" which dominate the plan and for the "gentle humor" of the writer. Elsewhere its sound and thoughtful message has gone home. And what was the du Pont project?

It provided, first, for a seven-year course of secondary education, in which subjects were to be taught in related groups. Strikingly, the du Pont curriculum goes further in a leisurely fashion than ours seem to get by hurrying and cramming. The little student begins with solid geometry and progresses to arithmetic, because M. du Pont believed that for children things should be put before ideas and ideas before words. Starting, yet who knows how that method might work out?

And—of all things!—history is to be regarded not as a lesson but as a recreation, a pleasure. So history books are given as prizes for scholarship. M. du Pont obviously premises a longing for knowledge, but perhaps our difficulty is that we so rarely presuppose it, turning, rather, to instruction by compulsion.

Subjects usually regarded as prerogatives of "the higher education" hold the chief place in the secondary curriculum. Philosophy and political economy are considered to be as suitable for the youthful scholar as they are important to the citizen. And he studies not "law," but justice—The writer is firm in his distinction between the two.

The same attitude which would make history text books prizes we discover in M. du Pont's plan for the advanced, special schools. These are to be for able and eager pupils only. Special education is here no social grace for the rich. It is for those who can make use of it and so be of value to the nation. Never is the national point of view lost to sight in the whole treatise.

Well, our modern ways are very different, but whether they are having greater success than M. du Pont's bolder methods might have won, we may not say. But this is certain: "National Education" would have tended to produce self-reliant citizens, not merely public school graduates and of them we still have need.

Bedford Says Every Young Fellow Has Chance

A. C. Bedford, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, says: "Every young fellow has a chance; not one, but many. Success is not a question of having a chance, but of recognizing chances when they come. You sometimes hear the complaint: 'I had a chance once and didn't take it.' Never mind the chance that is past; watch out for the next one and be ready to seize it."

"The more I dig into the lives of successful men the more convinced I become that all have to travel the same sort of hilly road, sweating brow and brain, meeting and overcoming obstacles, but never losing of their lodestar, no matter how great the provocation. I have no patience with smart Alecks, with high-fliers with brilliant young gentlemen who go up like skyrockets, for they usually come down like sticks."

YEARS OF THE
MONROE DOCTRINE

Within a few days the centennial of the Monroe Doctrine will be celebrated. The notice served by James Monroe upon the European powers to abandon all thought of territorial aggression in the western hemisphere was an essential complement of the Declaration of Independence.

The Declaration of Independence cut the people of the thirteen colonies loose from the European political system. That European system, inspired by age-old national, racial and religious rivalries and hatreds, eventuated periodically in senseless bloody wars. The American colonists had been involved in one war, the French and Indian, because of a European quarrel and they did not care again to be compelled to use their blood and treasure in settling the disputes of European powers.

But if the European system were to be transplanted to the new world through seizure of territory in this hemisphere America would still be menaced by every war originating in European causes. Hence it was essential that European nations should be warned to stay on their own side of the Atlantic.

The Monroe Doctrine is not regarded with favor by the persistent European propagandists who look upon this nation as a European province, and who do not feel that America is "doing her duty to the world" unless she mixes in every trans-Atlantic controversy. Armistice day was used by the sub-sisters of this persuasion throughout the country to loose maudlin utterances about the "selfishness" of America's policy of "isolation." That policy commended itself to Washington and to all his successors in the Presidency down to Woodrow Wilson, because of considerations quite as potent today in their argument for American independence of European politics as when Washington inquired: "Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground?"

The fight for the sacrifice of American independence, of American security and American solvency to selfish European nationalism, continues. Part of the agitation is the effect of mere sentimental slushy-mindedness. Part of it is financial in its inspiration and is sordidly unpatriotic, in the highest degree.

American patriots are called anew to the defense of American ideals, American institutions, American prosperity and American safety against the propaganda of these advocates of departure from American tradition and polity. Europeanized Americans would involve the United States in the war-breeding political system of Europe, and would throw the Monroe Doctrine into the discard along with the American Declaration of Independence.

After the passing of a century the Monroe Doctrine is more vital to America than it was when it was first announced by James Monroe. That doctrine, by preventing European aggression, has kept this a continent of peace while Europe has constantly been a continent of war. Under that doctrine this nation has given an example of real altruism in international relationships by refraining from aggression upon the other republics of this hemisphere. Interference has been kept at the minimum necessitated by the protection of legitimate European rights on this continent which without our interposition would have been made a cause for war against our weaker neighbors.

The first notion of printing may have reached Europe from China. Our first block printing seems imitated from the Chinese who print with blocks of wood on one side of the paper as was done in the earliest essays of printing; and the Chinese seem also to have suggested the use of a thick black ink.

WHEAT COMMITTEE ASKS ACREAGE REDUCTION

A 10,000,000 surplus in wheat acreage was noted in the report adopted by the Production Committee of the Wheat Council of the United States at its meeting in Chicago this week. The opinion that the present acreage of 62,000,000 planted acres should be gradually reduced to approximately 50,000,000, which the committee believes is an acreage sufficient to care for domestic requirements was expressed in the report.

Such re-adjustment should be made as fast as profitable alternative crops can be introduced, the report said. The average annual consumption of wheat in this country during the past twelve years for food, feed and seed has been about six bushels per capita. The population of the United States is approximately 110,000,000 so that the domestic requirements are NOT more than 660,000,000 bushels. Statistics show that for the same period the average yield per acre planted is about 13.4 bushels. Thus about 50,000,000 acres planted should yield enough wheat to meet domestic needs. To meet the requirement of increasing population from year to year additional wheat should be obtained from larger yields per acre rather than by the expansion of acreage, the report says.

In recommending the planting of 10,000,000 acres of wheat lands to other crops and urging definite extension programs looking toward reducing wheat acreage wherever an alternative crop or type of farming can be found profitable the report states that better opportunities for making readjustments exist in the humid areas than in the sub-humid sections.

"It is not desirable to enter upon a drastic wheat acreage reduction campaign without reference to alternatives," the report continues. "But even the farmer in the sub-humid regions where the great bulk of our wheat is produced, could aid materially in reducing the present acreage by planting a part of his wheat acreage to feed, forage, and pasture crops and through summer following. The feed thus produced can be utilized to advantage by feeding it to dairy cows, hogs, chickens, turkeys, etc. The kind and number, of course, will be determined by the adaptability of the individual farmer's plant and by his likes and dislikes. It would be to the advantage of every wheat farmer to produce sufficient milk, butter, poultry and meat to feed his own family and to provide for other necessary living expenses. In this way, money secured from the sale of wheat, his cash crop, would be available for use in reducing mortgages, bringing about better living conditions on the farm and generally making country life more attractive.

NOVEMBER BUILDING IN DELAWARE AND NEARBY STATES MAINTAINS 1923 LEAD

Staggering Total of $318,828,000 Spent This Year in New Buildings in Eastern Tier of States

The country's building activities continued their lead over last year through November, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. Total contracts awarded during the month in the thirty-six eastern states, including about seven-eighths of the country's total construction volume, amounted to $318,828,000. Although this was a 12 per cent drop from the October figure, in twenty-seven of these states, for which records were kept last year, there was an increase of 19 per cent over last November.

As in October, the heaviest increase in construction activity was in New York State and northern New Jersey, which was the only district showing an increase over October. The recorded figures on building volume in October and November indicate an unusually busy winter for the construction industry.

Included in last month's record were the following important items: $158,953,000, or 50 per cent, for residential buildings; $44,457,000, or 14 per cent, for industrial buildings; $36,237,000, or 11 per cent, for public works and utilities; $32,594,000, or 10 per cent, for business buildings, and $24,273,000, or 8 per cent, for educational buildings.

Total construction started in the thirty-six eastern states during the first eleven months of this year has amounted to $3,237,068,000. In twenty-seven of these states the lead over the corresponding period of last year is a little more than 3 per cent.

Contemplated new work reported during the month amounted to $623,704,000, an increase of 10 per cent over the amount reported in October.

November contracts in the middle Atlantic States (Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia) amounted to $23,754,000. The decrease from October was 28 per cent; from November of last year, 16 per cent. Including in last month's total were: $11,430,000, or 48 per cent, for residential buildings; $4,914,000 or 21 per cent, for industrial buildings; $2,805,000, or 12 per cent, for business buildings; $2,097,000, or 9 per cent, for educational buildings, and $1,245,000, or 5 per cent, for public works and utilities.

During the first eleven months of this year construction started in this district amounted to $349,661,000, a decrease of 10 per cent from the first eleven months of last year.

Contemplated new work reported during November amounted to $96,547,000, an increase of 61 per cent over the amount reported in October.

INSIDE INFORMATION

Our country has about 25,000,000 draft horses and mules. Electric and gas motor vehicles save these animals much hard work but they are coming back to the farms.

Housewives of New York are planning a campaign to "Bake Your Own Bread" as a protest against high prices. "Roll Your Own—Rolls" is suggested as a slogan.—Louisville Courier Journal.

"Post-dated" checks were the big asset of the Non-Partisan League of North Dakota. It was a new idea in finance and the organization is said to have $2,000,000 of them on hand—unpaid.

Business in Germany is more efficient than politics or government. Hugo Stinnes purchased a mint to make his own money. Stinnes currency is in circulation in Berlin and is guaranteed by two of the largest banks in Hamburg.

Congressional junkets are an expanding activity. It does the average congressman, who has never seen much of the country outside his own state, no harm to see what other sections are doing. He is learning to be a bigger and broader American as his salary goes on.

Taxation is a problem only because so many persons have been situated so they could avoid their share of the burden. If all were willing to share it in proportion to their ability it would be quite an easy thing to get a legislature together and pass a set of just laws.—Palm City, Fla., Courier.

The greatest robbery the American people suffer is in the cost and quality of bread. Chicago bakers have cut the price of bread so that a one-pound loaf sells at from six to nine cents. State institutions bake seventeen-ounce loaves in some parts of our country at two and three-fourths cents net. Add fifty per cent profit and it would still cost only four and one-eighth cents a loaf, wholesale.

When steam and steel took the place of sailing ships on the ocean, no doubt the proposition of government ownership would have rejoiced the capitalists who had their money invested in wooden wind-jammers. The coal barons would be glad to take billions for their mines and equipments as fuel oil, natural and hydro-electric power crowd them in the natural evolution of developing competition. But would it be fair to ask the taxpayers to take up the slack of

BE WISE AND BUILD IN WINTER

Construction Experts See Savings In Work In Cold Season

That winter construction is economically desirable from every point of view was the theme of the speakers at a luncheon meeting of the New York Building Congress, held in New York City recently. The building industry, they said, was carrying twelve months' expense on nine months' business, and to correct that condition recommended that big construction be started in the cold months.

The number of contracts for new construction have increased this autumn beyond expectation and reports show that a large amount of work in erecting buildings has been planned for the coming cold season.

The speakers at the luncheon made use of lantern slides to prove their theses. One of them, John Lowry, Jr., a builder, showed on a screen pictures of a building on the construction of which $87,710 was saved through labor in the winter of 1922-1923. The total cost of the structure was $750,000, he said.

Continuing, Mr. Lowry said: "To offset that, the expenditures for winter construction were a total of $3,863, or about one-half of 1 per cent. of the total cost of the job." The extra cost was for protection of workers and materials and supplying the necessary heat, he explained.

"If you consider the bricklayer production in the summer of 1922 as 100 per cent in the erection of this job during the winter of 1922-1923 the bricklayer production was 109 per cent, or 9 per cent more than in the summer of 1922. Comparing this with last summer the bricklayer production was 91 per cent. In other words, on this job, carried on during the winter, I produced 18½ per cent more brick per day per man than I was able to do last summer on brick work. Bricklayers working on the job got $10 a day. The payroll for the entire job was $28,150 for bricklayers. If it had been continued last summer the dropping off in production, or in efficiency, would have added $5,630 to the cost of bricklayers alone. If you consider the bonus award of $4, that is, $14 a man today, the bonus would have cost $11,260. In other words, the brick work on this job would have cost $16,890 in addition to the $28,150 actually paid for bricklayers.

"The payroll on this job for bricklayers, carpenters, labor and engineers amounted to $130,667. If it had been done last summer rather than last winter, the dropping off in production and the bonus award would have added $25,680 to my payroll.

Winter Construction Cost

"In addition to the saving in labor the saving in purchases of material in subcontracts on this job amounted to $16,030 over the prices I was able to procure in the summer of 1922. In other words, between labor and the purchase of materials and subcontracts, there was a saving of $87,710 on this job, the building work of which had cost $750,000.

"To offset that the expenditures for winter construction were as follows: Temporary protection to labor and material, $871; tarpaulins cost, $667; with a salvage of $442; net cost, $225; temporary heat, salamanders, cost $668; salamanders, $302; coke, $304; boiler attendants, labor, $1,036; coal for boiler heating, $150; temporary lighting, labor and service, $196; snow clearing, $111; a total of $3,863, or about one half of 1 per cent of the total cost of the job. Bear in mind that the labor saving was $25,680, and the material and subcontract saving was $62,000 to offset $3,863 winter protection cost."

Mr. Lowry said that "Charles M. Schwab realized the value of winter construction. As a matter of fact, some time ago he gave me an order to build $500,000 worth of buildings. They could be built next summer just as well as this winter. He required that they be finished on September 1, 1924. The work is in course of construction. I have some of it inclosed and some of it in the open. I will keep my gang steadily employed the winter through, in bad days working inside and on good days on the outside. Through this means I will save many thousands of dollars in the course of construction. Build in the winter and keep the architect, builder and subcontractor and labor busy. It will better balance up the industry."

Giant Yale Telescope

Will Chart the Stars

Observers from the astronomical observatory of Yale University will start south early next spring with a photographic telescope thirty-six feet long, the largest ever placed in the southern hemisphere, and the third largest in the world.

These observers, according to Dr. Frank Schlesinger, head of the Yale observatory, will concern themselves chiefly with two problems, the determination of the stars and the direction of the motions across the sky. Both these problems require measurements of the utmost precision and can best be dealt with by using photographs taken with very long telescopes. Since one-third of the stars cannot well be observed from north of the equator, and many problems require observation in all parts of the sky for solution, they hope to make observations that will prove to be of great value to astronomical science.

Doctor Schlesinger describes the telescope, which will be completed in the spring, as follows: "The new Yale telescope, intended especially for photography, is nothing more than a camera thirty-six feet long. The principal lenses are twenty-six inches in diameter and average two inches in thickness.

COUNTY AGENT COMPLIMENTED ON REPORT

Editor of "American Farming" Writes to R. O. Bausman, Praising Booklet

County Agent R. O. Bausman's Pictorial Report of the work done by his department up until October, 1923, covering a period of about seven years has elicited strong approval from many sources.

One letter came from Mr. Paul Stevens, editor of "American Farming," published in Chicago, and one of the foremost agricultural journals in the country. In commenting upon Mr. Bausman's report, the writer said:

"A copy of the pictorial report of your work up to October 1, 1923, has just reached our desk. Kindly accept our heartiest congratulations upon this excellent piece of publicity. Your report is by far the most attractive County Agent's report we have ever seen—and in more than seven years of intimate work with County Agents we have scrutinized hundreds and hundreds of them. Your banks are to be commended for their liberality in making possible the publication of your report in such an interesting and attractive manner."

It is possible that another edition of the report will be printed for further distribution among the farming centers of the Middle West.

The money for the publication of the report came from a sum set aside by the Agricultural Committee of the State Bankers' Association, of which J. Earl Dougherty, of this place, is chairman.

Emulating Washington

"Thomas," said Mr. Smith, as he gazed into his son's eyes with a soul-searching look, "have you touched any of the plums I put in the cupboard?"

"Father," said Tommy, "I can not tell a lie. I have not touched one."

Mr. Smith eyed him wrathfully as he plunged his hand into the pocket of his coat and drew out five incriminating stones.

"Then how is it," he asked, "that I found these plum stones in your bedroom and there is only one plum left in the cupboard."

"Father," said Thomas, as he silently but swiftly left the room and placed a chair in such a position that Mr. Smith would fall over it if he followed too quickly, "father, that is the one I did not touch."—Houston Post.

STATE IN LINE WITH HARDING MEMORIAL

Delaware Campaign Started Monday of This Week; Ex-Gov. Miller in Charge

The Harding Memorial Association campaign to raise $3,000,000 throughout the United States for a suitable memorial to the late President began last Sunday.

In Delaware, former Governor Charles R. Miller has a very active and representative committee. The State Committee, which organized at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last week outlined to the chairmen of various counties and districts the responsibility of the campaign and authorized them to proceed to obtain subscriptions from $1 up, using the machinery at hand in their various sections.

There are no honors or awards of any character in the campaign except a Harding Memorial Association certificate which will be given to every person or organization that subscribes, and the honor of having your name or the name of the organization registered with hundreds of thousands from all the other states in the Union, that subscribe, and which will be placed in the mausoleum to be erected at Marion, Ohio.

It is a free-will offering in respect to the memory of an American, who gave his life to his country just as much as any soldier who fought and made the supreme sacrifice during the world war.

As the campaign is for this week only, closing next Sunday, it is desired that churches, lodges, clubs, social organizations and individuals shall subscribe this week. John S. Russell, president of the Security Trust and Safe Deposit Company, is treasurer of the Delaware Committee, and all names should be turned in to him.

CHAMP NEBRASKA HEN LAYS 276 EGGS IN YEAR

"Queen of Cherrycroft," laid 276 eggs in a contest lasting a year, which has just been finished. She defeated other high-powdered layers from several states of the nation, shattering a former record of 272 eggs established some years ago. The contest was conducted under the auspices of the University of Nebraska Agricultural College.

"Queen of Cherrycroft" is a White Leghorn belonging to John W. Welch, who operates a big poultry farm near Omaha. A Barred Rock, owned by Mrs. H. C. Kliensmith, Hoff, Ore., was second in the contest with 265 eggs. Six of the leading hens were na-

BULBS FOR INDOOR BEAUTY

Mary H. Norihend in "Country Life"

Why not paint flower pictures on your window sills, not with pigments, but with bulbs, choosing those of soft or brilliant tint, whichever best harmonizes with the more prominent shades of your drapes, rugs, and wall coverings? Surely nothing more effective breaks monotony of space than these blossoming bits, and they lend themselves to constant rearranging as their blooms fade. Today, a group of iridescent blues mingled with warm yellows, perhaps emphasizing the tones of the wing chair slip cover, delight our vision; tomorrow, rose and ivory, vying with the posies of the window drapes, nod their colorful heads to gladden our eye; while next week perchance ruby-red individualized by deep maroon, almost black, repeating the exquisite tones of the Oriental rug, fill our beauty-thrilled souls with satisfaction.

In the north room, let your bulbs bring a glint of gold to coax the elusive sunshine in. Lemon-yellow, pale cream, and a goodly dash of vivid orange create an illusion well-nigh perfect. Used in conjunction with warm buff walls, gay chintz drapes, and painted floor bordered in jade, they give the room the charm of sunlight no matter what the weather.

Gardening has certainly developed with rapidity in this country during the last decade, and numerous experiments in bulb raising have been successfully made. Many new types, rare and gorgeous in coloring, have as a consequence been developed, and we are now able to reap the beauty of these types not only in our spring outdoor garden but in our winter indoor garden as well.

Bulb culture in America has passed the experimental stage, and large areas of land are increasingly being devoted to bulb culture along scientific lines. Particularly adapted to this industry is the climate along both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and gratifying results have also been obtained on private estates in northern New York, Michigan, and Virginia.

Statistics prove beyond doubt that while we still draw on Holland for bulb supplies, realizing the perfection the industry has attained in that country, yet we are more and more supplementing our stocks from our own fields. Specially designed houses have been built for the curing of bulbs after they have been dug in the fall, and each room in these houses has been scientifically treated as to light and ventilation, different methods of course being employed for different bulbs. It stands to reason that stock thus raised is reliable, and while it commands a higher price than stock obtainable from miscellaneous dealers, it gives proportionately greater satisfaction. Such bulbs in our indoor garden attain the vigor and growth of outdoor cultivation, and they are worth the bit extra they cost.

In choosing bulbs care should be taken to see that they are firm and weighty. Failure to secure these two points presages disaster. Not that a small bulb should be avoided, only that it should be weighty in proportion to its size. It is undeniably true that the smallest bulbs often give the best results, and you can be sure they will if you have a proper regard for these two important requisites in their selection. Isn't it a pleasure to know that inside the bulbs you have chosen is laid up a stock of strength and vigor that will lend forth from the hearts of the brown coverings lovely flowers to bask in the sunlight, and disport their charms and fragrance for your pleasure?

grance for your pleasure?

Never store your bulbs awaiting a convenient time for potting them, as they evaporate moisture quickly, which destroys the expected bloom. Determine before purchasing the mode of culture you intend to follow, and when you get your bulbs plant them. Bulbs take kindly to various plantings, sending out thrifty shoots and colorful blooms with rhythmic precision, whether growing in pots, in water, in sponges, or in masses of specially prepared moss fiber. It is through experimenting with these various schemes that we are enabled to study the evolution of bulbs from the time of their rooting until they burst into bloom. They certainly afford a fascinating array of material to draw from.

Potting is the oldest and most popular method of bulb planting. Choose six-inch pots, crocks, or four-inch flats with holes bored in the bottom for right drainage. Dip each into boiling water and then into cold water to conserve the moisture so beneficial for right starting. Place over each hole a bit of broken china or a piece of broken pot, not a flat bit that sits tight over the hole, but one that curves downward giving ample space for drainage and fresh air, and yet holding the soil back from dripping.

What Territory Means to a Service Corporation

The territory a Company serves is the foundation of its business.

We look to our present success and our future prosperity in serving Gasoline and Motor Oils to that territory shown on the map oppositeThe Delmarvia Peninsula.

In a brief period of twelve years we have found it necessary to erect eight wholesale distributing stations in the towns indicated to properly serve our constantly increasing patronage.

Service and still Better Service; Dependability of our petroleum products and continued leadership is our aim.

We are more than appreciative of the support and response in our home territory, which of course has been secured on merit and service.

Dependability and Uniformity are the intrinsic virtues of our gasoline.

Stability of our Motor Oils insures Quality and Motor preservation.

Rigid tests, before Hearn Gasoline and Motor Oils are sold, assure you that you always "play safe" in their continued usage.

AMERICANISM

IN TARIFFS

When one attempts to discuss the tariff question, he immediately lays himself open to the charge of arguing partisan politics. The tariff question is a business proposition and not a political issue. Wage and working conditions are the biggest factor in establishing the price of practically all commodities. A publisher knows from experience that if he pays union wages and works on an eight-hour day he has to get a certain price for his advertising which twenty years ago would have been considered outrageously high and yet the present wage which he pays and price which he charges for his advertising is the reflection of increases all along the line in every other commodity. If a foreign newspaper produced with labor paid from one-half to one-third of what the American publisher pays and working much longer hours, could be shipped in here at half the price for advertising and subscription rates, it would leave the American publisher in a bad fix unless the advantages the foreigner thus had were equalized by some form of tax assessed against him when he entered this field. Many industries find themselves in just such a position as the publisher would be under such conditions.

The result has been the tariff. There have undoubtedly been unjust tariff laws enacted and abuses just as there are mistakes and abuses in every walk of life but the exception does not prove the rule wrong. The American people must learn to consider certain basic principles vital to the prosperity of the nation. They must know the facts in regard to such questions as the tariff and realize that business principles instead of political log-rolling should guide in the solution of these problems.

All the railroads across the United States would have been double-tracked long ago if we had not listened to the politicians who demanded national and state laws regulating the railroads and taking them out of the hands of practical railroad men. Politics will ruin any business.

FOOTBALLERS HAVE PICTURES TAKEN--THEN GET ALL MUSSED UP IN GAME SATURDAY

Town Team Beauties Victims of Photographer—Haul Off and Batter "All-College Stars" for Victory Later in Afternoon

First they had a game; then the game was cancelled; to show their disgust, they had their pictures taken; and finally they had a game after all.

Such was the record of last Saturday afternoon's incidents, which led up to the ultimate battle out on High School Field between the town team and a group of college players, gathered by the rumbling of the war drums at the Campus. The game was played in the presence of a small crowd, and ended about dusk, with the score, 14-7 in favor of the Newark team. But that isn't half the story.

ferred them on the altar for the amusement of the several score of populace lingering about the horizon.

Donning the High School suits, the college team found themselves two or three shy of the necessary eleven men. And just to show how bad they wanted to play, the town team offered them a couple of players so the game could be played.

The diplomatic relations between the two teams would draw the envy of the best statesmen. They even traded men to have a game.

The Game Is On

So in the late afternoon, the two teams squared off on High School field. The spectators tried to take sides, but they couldn't tell the teams apart, so they rooted for the team doing the most damage.

Quarterback-Captain and Strategist Eddie Records, of the visiting firemen, urged his associates on to a touchdown in the first half, and the town team looked weary. Eddie had a novel method of calling signals. He called his men back to him and said things like this:

"Smith, you take the ball through right tackle, providing there is a hole there for you. If not, either sit on the ball or give it to me and I'll throw it away. The formation is 'right.' Center, please pass the ball somewhere near the runner. Let's go."

And so it went. Even with their intricate signal system, the town team couldn't do much damage.

The second half, however, was a far different matter, in fact it was a different game.

Somebody had been holding young "Doc" Steel all the first part of the game, evidently, and he had just been untied when time was called.

The youthful "Doc," however, was entirely on his game in the last semester. He ran around, over and through the College team almost at will, and with the direct and soulful aid of Keely, and the entire line, he struck terror to the hearts of the future graduates.

And before the game was called, and while the darkness was creeping over the field, the Newark boys made their second score, and the game was safely tucked away, score 14-7.

Thus endeth the log of Saturday afternoon in a sporting way. The collegers went back to their desks and lounges, and the town boys to their suppers. The only man who had a good time and didn't get bruised up was the photographer.

"Do Rats Talk to Each Other?" Asks Mr. M. Batty, R. I.

"I got five cakes of Rat-Snap and three pieces around feed store. Got about half a dozen dead rats a day for two solid weeks. Suddenly, they got fewer. Now we haven't any. Who told them about Rat-Snap?" Rats dry up and leave no smell. Three sizes: 35c, 65c, $1.25.

IMPRESSIVE FOREVER

There are occasional doubts in the minds of the elders of the Moore family as to the quickness of Tommy's wits, but there has never been any doubt that a lesson learned by him, however slowly, is forever after remembered.

"Won't you shake hands with me, Tommy?" asked one of his sister's admirers, but Tommy hung back.

"I don't care to," he said, with terrible distinctness.

"Don't you like me?" asked the unwelcome visitor.

"No, I don't!" replied Tommy and then there was a shocked chorus from the family.

"Tommy," said his aunt, reproachfully, as she withdrew him from public gaze, "why did you say such a rude thing to Mr. Jones?"

"Because, auntie," said her wriggling charge, "I got licked last week for not telling the truth, and I shan't never take any risk again!"—Boston Globe.

AMERICANISM

The Americans in whom I believe include Jews, and Catholics and Protestants. They include men of old native American descent and other men of recent German, English, French, Irish, Italian, Scandinavian, Magyar and Slavonic descent. But all are Americans, entitled to be treated as such, and claiming to be nothing else.—Roosevelt.

NEWARK HIGH ACCHEIVEMENT

The success of Newark high, not only in football, but also in other branches of sports, is attributed largely to faithful practice by members of the squad day after day; strict obedience to the training rules and instructions of the coach and most important of all, a 100 per cent loyal student body and alumni. The student body and alumni back the teams from the start to the close of the season according to reports from the school and the benefit of such loyalty shows in the results. These facts should inspire the other high schools of the State in their efforts to reach the top in an athletic way.

Newark High, however, has one advantage over the other high schools of the State in location. The fact that Newark is also the seat of the University of Delaware no doubt has a good effect on the young athletes. They get the opportunity of seeing the results of faithful training and cooperation between the teams and student body.

Much of the credit for the success of the Newark football team belongs to "Joe" Wilson, coach of the team. Wilson is a University of Delaware graduate. His is another instance of a successful football coach who himself did not play the game except in class contests. Wilson was a star track man while at Delaware but did not play football.

$2 NOTE IS DOOMED VICTIM OF "HOODOO"

Unpopularity of Bill as Symbol of Bad Luck Hastens
Doom

The fact that the Treasury Department is still considering dropping the $2 bill from the denominations of paper currency and has omitted it in the preparation of new designs for United States notes, silver certificates and Federal Reserve notes will bring cheer to those who look on this form of legal tender as unlucky to its possessor or as a general nuisance because of its unpopularity as a business medium. There is no doubt of this unpopularity. The paying teller of any bank will confirm it. Any one who invests money in games of chance wherein the element of good or bad luck is supposed to enter will affirm that a $2 bill spells bad luck. And if further proof were needed there is the evidence contained in Treasury Department files in the form of thousands of letters of congratulation received last April when the possibility that the $2 note might be discontinued was first made known.

Another indication of its disfavor is the speed with which it circulates and becomes unfit for use. It is passed from one hand to another as fast as the exchange can be made and its life is less than six months, the shortest span of existence given to any of the forms of paper money. When the $2 bill goes back to the Treasury for redemption, bearing the marks of the ill usage which contempt for it has engendered, it is dirty, greasy, unkempt—a very hobo of a bill. Frequently one corner is torn off, and when thus mutilated it cannot go to the Treasury money laundry for washing, ironing and a return to circulation. A new bill must be issued in its place. No one hates to part with a brand new $2 bill, or clings to it as he would to a crisp, freshly printed $1 or $5 bill. In exchange for a new $2 note he will gladly take two $1 bills that bear the grime of many hands and pockets.

In August last there were in circulation 37,599,350 $2 bills, the greater part of them unwelcome to their possessors. Treasury officials admit that, with the exception of New England, the prejudice is nation-wide and prevails among all classes except paymasters who make up envelopes of cash and to whom the $2 bill represents a saving of time and muscular effort in counting. But, say the men of Federal finance, they can find no adequate reason for the dislike.

If the puzzled officials were to interrogate restaurant cashiers, cigar store clerks, theatre box office treasurers and the glass-guarded girls who sell tickets in moving-picture theatre booths, they would get light on the seeming mystery. The $2 bill is unpopular, aside from the superstition that it is a synonym for bad luck, because it represents to many persons actual monetary loss. Likewise it is a temptation to the crime known as short changing. There is a psychological side to the problem which is explained by sellers of tickets and cashiers and store clerks. To quote one of them.

"The average person thinks of a $2 bill as a $1 bill. How many times when you have been counting a number of $1 bills in which a $2 bill was mingled have you found yourself counting the two as a one? That mistake is never made with a $5 bill. The fact that one has the five is firmly impressed on the mind, even though, like the two, it is a single bill. There's no reason why the presence of the two should be forgotten unless that whereas a $5 bill is generally fairly clean and often new the $2 bill is invariably dirty and worn and in consequence seems to have lost some of its value. One associates the $1 bill with constant handling and the marks of usage and the $2 bill, because of its appearance, naturally falls into a like class and loses its identity.—Ex.

Pennsylvania Seeks To Improve Pasture Lands

That Pennsylvania is vitally interested in the pasture-land problem is shown by the fact that one-third of her improved land in farms is in pasture of a more or less permanent nature. Because many of these pasture fields are decidedly poor and comparatively few can be classed as good, the Pennsylvania Experiment Station is endeavoring to work out some economical method whereby these pastures can be improved.

In Extension Circular No. 90, issued by the Pennsylvania State College, Prof. J. B. R. Dickey points out that acid soil is the condition common on most of the poor pastures, and that a lack of phosphorus is prevalent.

In taking up this important problem of pasture rejuvenation, Professor Dickey recognizes two lines of study; namely, renewing pastures that can be plowed, and improving pastures that cannot be plowed.

In general, the use of manure is recommended as an important improvement measure. However, "where the grazing is done largely by sheep and beef cattle the manure supply is smaller, and greater reliance must be placed on lime and mineral fertilizer." Improvement treatments for pastures that cannot be plowed must take the form of top dressings. In reporting results of progress under these conditions Professor Dickey says:

"Demonstration plots in various counties show that very marked improvement can be made in a year's time in the production of a sod in the percentage of desirable clovers and grasses by top-dressing with lime, acid phosphate, and possibly manure. Obviously, the more a pasture has deteriorated the harder, slower and more expensive it will be to bring back."

WHAT DID SHE SAY?

"You are no gentleman," she said, "if you think I said such a thing as she said you said I said I had said."

"Dear girl," he answered, "you must not think I think you think you must be the kind of girl I think you must be if you said such a thing as you said she said I said you said you had said."

It seems he knew she knew he knew she said just what she said she heard he had heard her friend had heard him say he had heard her say, but with intuitive feminine tact she accepted the apology.—N. Y. Globe.

SOPHOMORES WIN INTERCLASS TITLE

Defeat Juniors for University Honors Monday Afternoon

The Junior Class team lost to the Sophomores in a close battle last Monday afternoon in the College gym. The final score was 13-9. Carroll, center for the winning team, gathered in the highest total of points, 8. The guarding was close on both sides and rarely did a player get loose for an easy shot. The Sophomores were not favored to win the title in the minds of many wise ones. The score:

MANY INSECTS WORKING FOR YOU

How many times have you been seized with a desire to kill an insect? A lot of them are your good friends and the American Nature Association suggests you investigate a little the next time you feel the desire to kill coming on.

Man must be ever alert and on the offensive if he would preserve his home and food stores, his crops, his animals, and his forests from these injurious and destructive pests, writes A. B. Champlain of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Plant Industry in Nature Magazine of Washington. This struggle has led most persons to look upon all insects as unmitigated pests and nothing else. The fact is, the majority of insects are beneficial in the wonderful scheme of nature, many kinds serving to hold the destructive ones in check.

Commercially valuable insects and their products are used by many persons in various trades. Bee products—honey and beeswax—are prized in every land. The honey bee and silk worm moth rank first in usefulness, and appear in earliest records.

Shellac, used for many purposes, is originally a resinous substance secreted by a scale insect which lives on the twigs of various trees in warm climates. Cochineal, a dyestuff of scarlet hue, consists of the dried bodies of female scale insects that live on cactus.

Insects are used as jewelry and ornaments. Beetles with bright metallic colors are made up into tie pins and cuff links; showy insects, especially butterflies and moths, are used in making ornaments such as lockets and pendants, and are worn extensively. Butterfly serving trays are decorative and useful in many homes. As food for fishes and certain kinds of birds, including domestic fowls, insects are to be accounted as being of especial importance.

Migratory locusts are eaten by the inhabitants in parts of Africa, commonly called white ants, and are said by the natives in certain places in Africa and Australia to have a fine flavor. In Mexico the eggs of a water bug are scraped from the reeds along streams and made into cakes and eaten. Caterpillars, and in one instance the pupae of moths, were used as food by various tribes of American Indians.

Larvae or grubs, especially those of the larger wood-boring beetles, form an important article of food of the aborigines in some countries. There is no reason why civilized persons should not experiment with insects in various stages as a possible source of food and a means of providing nourishment for supporting life.

A large proportion of insects are concerned chiefly with the killing and eating of their fellow insects. These may be divided into two important groups; predators, which live by hunting and preying upon other insects; and parasites, which live in or on other insects, feeding upon the body fluids of their victims, finally causing their death.

Were it not for these cannibals which help to maintain a natural balance by checking the abnormal increase of many obnoxious kinds, the destruction of many of our crops would be more continuous and complete and certain species of insects might become so plentiful that they would overrun the earth in a brief time.

In addition to their being a most effective factor of natural control, predacious and parasitic insects have been brought from other countries as a means of combating certain insect pests that had been accidentally introduced.
