Getting what they deserve

BELFAST, MAINE – It's 11 degrees below zero as I write. My motel room has a door to the outside but it does not seal tightly. My fingers are so cold I can barely type. I think I'll put my gloves on.

Iy pikl inm thf midddy farf, givoen thje circumsszstances. I think I'll take my gloves off.

I haven't been back to coastal Maine in a decade. When we lived in Waldo County from 1988 to 1992, I always enjoyed winter. Yes, the snow and cold could be bothersome if you allowed it to get to you. But the grandest benefit was the increased interaction with friends and family. Mainers get more fraternal when the cold sets in. I wanted to get another taste of this warmth, hence, this trip.

The Kingston Trio performed a song on their first Decca album in 1964 titled "Poverty Hill." Nick, Bob and John sang, "...the summer folks call it Paradise Mountain, but we call it Poverty Hill."

And so it was here in Belfast and Waldo County 15 years ago.

CARVING OUT HIS NICHE

By ROBIN BROOMALL

NEED a life-sized statue of Robert E. Lee? A six-foot cigar store Indian? A bronze water fountain of dolphins? Or Elvis with his guitar?

These are only a few of the hundreds of wood carved and bronze cast statues, figurines, garden fountains, and decorative items designed by Darren Hussey, of Newark.

Hussey's company, All Classics Ltd., started partly out of necessity and a little bit of a desire to have his own business.

Twelve years ago Hussey's full-time job was sales in the electronics business. But when the bottom dropped out of the electronics industry in the early 90s, he found himself out of a job.

Carving decoy ducks was a hobby Hussey really enjoyed, but he knew it would take carving more than just a few decoys to make a living. He also knew to make a go of his business he needed good quality pieces and good prices.

So he decided to follow the larger companies and go overseas with his designs.

He started his business in his garage, designing cigar store Indians. He had

A proposal for a new rental permit for multi-family dwellings in mixed-use facilities could create an additional $2,035.00 in revenue for the city.

On Newark city council's agenda for this Monday is the second reading for a proposed change in the ordinance for property maintenance code that would require a rental permit for multi-family dwellings in mixed-use facilities. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building on Elkton Road.

Under the proposed change multi-family dwellings would include "residential units of any number located in buildings that contain non-residential use groups."

Gunman robs liquor store

TWO gunmen robbed a busy South College Avenue liquor store last Friday, Jan. 31, Newark police reported.

Officers said two black males, 20 to 25 years old, entered Peddlers Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave., at 7:26 p.m. The two displayed a gun and took an undisclosed amount of cash before fleeing on foot.

K-9 dogs and police searched the area but failed to immediately locate the suspects.

Investigation is continuing. Any person with information about the robbery is asked to call Newark police at 366-7110, ext. 135.

Man, 20, arrested at gunpoint here

A 20-year-old Newark man was taken into custody at gunpoint following a shoplifting and chase that began at the Pathmark store in College Square shopping center.

Newark police said they were alerted at 3:07 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 31, that a shoplifting suspect, who had been stopped by store security personnel, pulled a knife and began slashing at the store employees.

Police said the suspect ran and jumped into the back of a pick-up truck. When he was surrounded by security personnel, the man again began slashing at his pursuers. The man then fled on foot with store personnel and, soon, Newark and New

Register now for NPD's youth academy

THE Newark Police Department will host its third annual Youth Police Academy for 30 young adults between the ages of 12 and 17, June 16 to 20.

The program is designed to give young people, who are interested in law enforcement or emergency services as a career goal, an opportunity for insight to learn first-hand about the duties and responsibilities related to these professions.

The academy cadets will participate in a paramilitary and disciplined environment, which will include class study on: modern day police academics, leadership and character building, crime scene processing, volunteer projects, cultural diversity, personal safety, and daily physical fitness activity.

Police Officers and Emergency Services Personnel from various agencies throughout the State of Delaware will participate in the education of the cadets. In keeping with the academy's principle message, which is devoted to the recognition of the sacrifice and selflessness made by these professionals, they will take a field trip to Washington, D.C. to visit sites dedicated to these heroes.

The program cost is $100 and space is limited; it will be filled on a "first come first served basis." The application period opened Feb. 1 and will close April 30, or earlier if capacity has been met.

Persons with questions can contact the program's administrator, Sgt. Gerald R. Simpson at 366-7110 ext. 125 or check out the website at http://newark.de.us/docs/departments/youth_academy.html Castle County police in pursuit. The suspect was taken into custody in Kimberton, police said.

Damion R. Mata, 20, of Kimberton Drive, Newark, was charged with robbery, aggravated menacing and possession of a deadly weapon during the commission of a felony. He was arraigned, then taken to Gander Hill prison after failing to post $220,000 cash bail.

Two gunmen rob travelers

Five persons — including a month-old baby — were robbed at gunpoint in the unit block Prospect Avenue at 1 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1.

Newark police said the victims were in a car and stopped on Prospect to drop off a passenger.

Two men inside a gold, four-door Chrysler arrived and blocked the driveway where the victims' car was parked, police said.

Each displayed a silver handgun and demanded cash and other items. The suspects took an undisclosed amount of cash, got back into their vehicle and fled eastbound on Prospect Avenue, police said.

Investigation is continuing, police said. No one was injured.

The suspects are described by police as: a black male, 18-22 years-old, around 5-foot-8, 130-140 pounds, wearing a black hooded sweatshirt and blue jeans; and a black male, 18-22 years-old, 5-10 to 6 feet tall, 180-190 pounds, with slight facial stubble, wearing a black hooded sweatshirt.

Police have asked any person with information about the armed robbery to contact Det. Andrew Markovitz at 366-7100, ext. 135, or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Cash taken during break-in Newark police said an undisclosed amount of cash, DVD player and Playstation were taken from a home in the unit block Elkton Road, it was reported at 8:10 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 31.

Police said entry was gained through a bedroom window and the intruders exited through a rear door. The residence was ransacked.

Investigation is continuing. The owner's loss was estimated to be $804.

Man arrested outside Kate's

A 23-year-old Surf City, N.J., man was arrested outside Klondike Kate's early Sunday morning, Feb. 2, after he had been ordered out of the popular Main Street nightspot.

According to Newark police officers who were working a plainclothes alcohol-enforcement detail at 1:29 a.m., a man wearing a shirt that read "Kiss Me, I'm Drunk" was observed standing on the steps of Kate's stopping patrons exiting the bar and asking them to read his shirt.

Police said bouncers escorted the man off of the restaurant property and told him not to return.

Officers said they watched as the man stood inches from the deck outside Klondike Kate's. When a bouncer approached, police said the man starting screaming "I'm not on your deck" to the degree that his face became very red.

Police approached the man and ordered him to calm down, but the man ran to a nearby sign pole, twirled around and continued screaming. When one of the undercover officers displayed his badge, the man shoved the policeman and screamed an obscenity. Police placed the man under arrest.

Thomas E. Sokolis was charged with disorderly conduct and offensive touching, and was released pending a court appearance.

Armed robbery on Barksdale Road

The Newark Police Department is investigating an armed robbery on Monday, Feb. 3 on Barksdale Road near Colonial Court.

Newark police said the victim was walking eastbound on Barksdale near Colonial when a dark-colored car stopped near her. The two occupants of the car got out; one was armed with a knife. Police said the pair pushed the woman to the ground and stole her purse. The suspects then fled in the car.

During the struggle, the victim was struck in the face by the knife, causing a small laceration to her cheek. She also suffered sprains to her ankle and wrist, police said.

The suspects are two white males, 20-30 years of age.

Information regarding this incident can be reported to Det. Andrew Markovitz at 366-7100 ext. 135 or anonymously to Crime Stoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

SWAT team storms home in Salem Woods

On Wednesday, Jan. 29, the New Castle County Police SWAT Team arrested Dwayne Sullivan after executing a search warrant at a home in Salem Woods.

Police said Sullivan, 21, was wanted for an armed robbery that occurred last July in the community of Sparrow Run. He is accused of robbing a 27-year-old Elkton, Md., man at gunpoint in the early morning hours. Police assert Sullivan and at least one other person brutally beat the victim during the robbery.

Investigators received information regarding his whereabouts on Jan. 29. At about 7 a.m., detectives and SWAT team members set up surveillance near a home in the unit

Farrell wants to retain council seat

By ERIC G. STARK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

NEWARK city councilmember John Farrell IV announced Monday that he is seeking reelection to the District One seat in the April election.

He joins current councilmember Jerry Clifton, who has already said he is running for reelection in District Two. Last month Dave Athey announced his candidacy for the vacated District Four seat, which was formerly held by council member Tom Wampler, who decided not to run for a seventh term.

"I have been happy to serve on city council for my neighbors of the First District, and I would like to continue that service," Farrell said. "Newark has been good to me, and I have made many friends in the city over the years."

His background in emergency services, he believes, has given him the insight on what is needed for the continued protection of the City of Newark. He listed increasing the size of the police department and working to fund programs needed to outfit the department with the latest in crime fighting technology as two of his achievements in law enforcement.

Related to his job in emergency service, the sprinkler system ordinance he helped write and sponsor has made Newark a leader in life safety issues in the nation, he said. This fire sprinkler system became very helpful at preventing a potential disaster during a fire at Newark Manor Nursing Home two weeks ago. The sprinklers helped to contain the fire.

When he first joined council,

Farrell said he worked to stabilize the rental issues in Newark neighborhoods. The ordinances were adopted to protect the rental properties and maintain the residential make-up of the neighborhoods.

With the support of Newark Mayor Hal Godwin and other councilmembers, Newark took the lead in implementing another in a series of life-saving ordinances.

"I introduced an initiative to reduce the blood alcohol content for driving under the influence from .10 to .08. I see the tragic consequences of traffic accidents involving drinking and driving first hand from my involvement with the fire department and working on the ambulance. Newark's DUI ordinance will most likely become the blueprint for the entire state.

Farrell said he enjoys working with Delaware's Secretary of Transportation Nathan Haywood on traffic issues in Newark. He said DelDOT has done some good things in Newark, but there is more to do.

"Lack of a smooth traffic flow through three or four city intersections makes me angry, and I am sure we can convince DelDOT to do a better job with traffic in Newark," he said. "The realignment and standardization of pedestrian crosswalks and bicycle lanes in our city is a project that I have also asked DelDOT to complete."

The mayor and council's fierce protection of Newark's right of annexation has enabled new industry to locate in Newark and has allowed for the expansion of the Newark Charter School within the city limits.

"I work closely with the residents in the neighborhoods I serve," Farrell said.

"From parking issues in Blair Village, DART bus routes in Nottingham Green, traffic control signs in Oaklands, leaf collection in Timber Creek and traffic concerns in Abbottsford, I pride myself in the attention to detail that has become the history of every city councilmember who has served the First District," he said.

"I strive to maintain the excellent delivery of city services to all of our town's people and I look forward to the opportunity of continuing to represent my neighbors on city council," said Farrell.

Concert set Feb. 16

The Capitol Brass and three organists will join forces in a concert entitled "Piping to the Angels" on Sunday, Feb. 16 at the Cathedral of St Peter, West and Sixth streets, Wilmington.

The program begins at 2:30 p.m. and a suggested donation of $10 per person or $15 per family is requested.

The Capitol Brass is under the direction of Donald L. Bansbach who plays trombone.

Other members of the group are John Band - tuba, Amy Boyd - horn, along with trumpet players Jeff Mark and Reed Gallo.

Organists performing on the program include Robert Wallace - St Thomas Episcopal Church, Quentin Lane, Newark United Methodist Church, and Michael Davidson - Cathedral of St Peter.

Guest soloist at the concert will be coloratura soprano Mary Ellen Schaubert of Wilmington. As an opera singer she has performed with such companies as Gold Coast Opera, Pennsylvania Opera Theatre, Queens Opera, Amato Opera, East Coast Opera, Mozart and Friends Opera Festival, and Goliard Music Festival. The New York Times reported that Ms Schaubert "sang with distinction" in her New York City debut as Isolde in Frank Martin's Oratorio "Le Vin Herbe" at Merkin Hall. She has received numerous awards for her gifted talent.

This spring, Mary Ellen will appear as Violetta in La Traviata at the Amato Opera, New York. Locally she is conductor of choirs at St Joseph on the Brandywine, Greenville. Mary Ellen studies with Dan Pressley and Dr. Nancy G. Pressley.

This year's concert features the baroque period and includes some of the most exciting music written for brass, organ, and voice. Among the composers to be heard are Bach, Handel, Gabrieli, Comprà, Marcello, and Pretorius. A rousing hymn tune, performed with the brass and organ, will involve the audience. The two organs at St Peters offer an excellent setting for a program of this type.

This is the fifth year that the Capitol Brass and Wilmington area organist have combined their talents to offer a program of majestic music seldom heard in a concert.

For more information, call 697-7759.

NEWARK POST PHOTO BY CHARLES BALLARD
It's a bit hard to see but the gray finch shown in the circle has taken up residence in the Acme store at Suburban Plaza.

Look who flew in!

By CHARLES BALLARD

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

FOR nearly three weeks, a small gray finch has claimed the produce and bakery section of a Newark grocery store as its temporary home.

A rogue bird has been staying out of the cold and living the good life for several weeks at the Acme supermarket at the Suburban Plaza on Elkton Road.

The bird flies harmlessly throughout the day in its corner of the store.

"This has been the longest time a bird has stayed in the store," said the store manager, who declined to give his name.

Employees at Acme did not want to give their names when discussing their uninvited houseguest. The feathered freeloader has eluded capture by the employees, who called several agencies such as the SPCA and Humane Society to ask for advice on how to catch it safely.

"We set several traps in parts of the store where the bird likes to visit," the Acme manager said. "We almost caught him several times with a net."

Customers appear unfazed by the bird perched on a light fixture above their heads.

"No one has complained about it, they just brought it to our attention," said another employee.

The bird, being a polite guest, has not damaged anything in the store, and an employee said it has not torn up anything, preferring to peck at stuff here and there.

Newark resident Marie Lunsford said she hopes it gets out of the store unharmed. She said she notices birds flying in and out of stores all the time in the summer. Lunsford's seven-year-old daughter, Amanda, stated the bird was cute and hopes it gets home to its family soon.

The store hopes to show its unwanted guest the door soon.

"He is loving life, but we really need him out," the store manager said.

TO LEAD NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

It's time for Tymes

CLINTON Tymes, of Newark, state director of the Delaware Small Business Development Center Network, based at the University of Delaware, has been elected chairman of the board of directors of the Association of Small Business Development Centers (ASBDC).

ASBDC is a national partnership program uniting private enterprise, government, higher education and local nonprofit economic development organizations.

"Tymes' election is a tribute to his years of hard work on behalf of the Small Business Development Center and small businesses in Delaware," according to a statement from the association.

Tymes was named director of Delaware's Small Business Development Center in 1993, after serving as its training coordinator/business analyst since 1989.

Before that, he owned and operated his own small business and worked for Hercules Inc. for 12 years in a variety of positions.

Tymes received his bachelor's and master of business administration degrees from Wilmington College.

He keeps on the go traveling around the First State but finds time to be an active member of the Newark Morning Rotary Club.

Russians visit UD, Newark libraries

THE University of Delaware Library and the Newark Free Library hosted a visit by five Russian university library managers Jan. 28-31, enabling the visitors to examine the role of libraries in a democracy.

The visit was conducted under the auspices of the Open World Program, managed by the Center for Russian Leadership Development, an independent agency at the Library of Congress.

Open World brings emerging Russian political and community leaders to the United States to see how American democratic institutions work at the local level.

Russian library managers visited the UD Library on Friday, Jan. 31. The visit brought together Irina Petrovna Burger, director, South Ural State University Scientific Library; Susan Brynteson, the May Morris Director of Libraries, University of Delaware; Larisa Valentinovna Tananykina, deputy director for scientific work, Research Library of Dagestan State University; Olga Viktorovna Vershinina, director, Research Library of Tver State University; Alla Yakovlevna Luchina, deputy library director, Library of Vladivostok State Economics and Services University; and Irina Mikhaylovna Novikova, manager (assistant director), American Information and Educational Center.

Cathy Wojewodzki, UD librarian, and Charlesa Lowell, director of the Newark Free Library, organized the visit.

Before coming to the University, the group visited Washington, D.C., for briefings at the Library of Congress and traveled to the American Library Association (ALA) midwinter meeting in Philadelphia.

While in Delaware, the group visited the Newark, Appoquinimink, Wilmington and Bear public libraries and spent a day on the University of Delaware campus visiting the Morris Library.

GHS student picked as semifinalist

OLAYINKA Sophia J. Taiwo, a student at Glasgow High School has been selected from over 100,000 applicants nationwide as a semifinalist in the 2002-2003 Coca-Cola Scholars Program.

The Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation, a joint effort of Coca-Cola bottlers across America and The Coca-Cola Company, is one of the largest corporate-sponsored, merit scholarship programs of its kind in the United States.

The program recognizes a diverse group of extraordinary high school seniors who have demonstrated academic and civic excellence in their schools and communities.

She ranks with over 2,000 seniors who are in the running for $1.8 million in college scholarships being awarded by the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation. Students are selected to advance to the next phase based on the level of excellence, leadership and achievement demonstrated in school and community activities.

This year marks the fifteenth year Coca-Cola will be awarding these scholarships, providing a total of $23 million to assist young scholars nationwide in the pursuit of their educational goals.

As semifinalists, students must submit additional information that will be reviewed in February by a committee comprised of 27 educators from high schools and universities throughout the United States.

If advanced, Olayinka will be among a total of 252 Finalists who will travel to Atlanta April 24-27, 2003 to attend the Coca-Cola Scholars Weekend. During their visit they will attend a final interview process which will determine whether they are designated as either a National or Regional Scholar.

The 52 National Scholars will each receive a $20,000 renewable scholarship award, while the 200 Regional Scholars will receive a $4,000 renewable scholarship.

The program was created in 1986 by the Coca-Cola Bottlers and The Coca-Cola Company to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Coca-Cola and to establish a legacy for the education of tomorrow's leaders through college scholarships.

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

AFTER the bowl game this year, the governor of West Virginia demanded an apology from the powers-that-be at the University of Virginia for their "pep" band's halftime performance, during which it made very nasty fun of the state of West Virginia. I did not see the game, but a person who was actually at the game said it was "really bad, way beyond good fun!" West Virginians were portrayed, my informant and the governor of West Virginia claimed, as stupid hillbillies in the Jed Clampett family mold.

In quizzing several people, I found that none of them had seen the game, and the only way they knew anything about the game was through the articles about the West Virginia governor's complaint. And, several of those I quizzed thought the governor had seemed "extremely sensitive" about it — as if in his mind at least, there was truth in the Cavaliers' twitting of the Mountaineers!

College rivalries can get stupid very fast, and ignoring the whole thing is one way to make it go away. Another stratagem is to bide your time calmly and wait until it hurts the most — then do IT! Texas A&M and the University of Texas have a classic hate going on between them, and a very stupid politician made dozens of "A&M" jokes the feature of his campaign. Well, the "Aggies" kept silent until election day, at which time they and their friends voted him out of office! His cries of poor sportsmanship did not succeed in getting the election results invalidated. Good "burn!"

Sometimes things beyond anybody's control make an already bad situation impossible to deal with in a mature fashion. One of the schools involved in the incident is a highly regarded private school, and its in-state rival is a state college and, therefore, in some eyes, not as fine a school as the other. (Accuracy is not a characteristic of rivalries!) The state school's mascot is a bulldog, and he and his predecessors had been carefully trained to strut ahead of the Bulldog's band. One year, the inevitable happened—the Bulldog surrendered to "necessity," and the band marched straight into that "necessity" and out the other side — but not without damage! Bitterness ensued.

All of this reminded me — the first game we saw at fabled Franklin Field was between the Fighting Quakers and the West Point cadets. Suddenly, at halftime, one of the field's walls slid away and in came the cadets' world-famous marching band. It was an incredible, eye-popping performance. Guns were spun like 40 synchronized airplane engines, done with a "Snap-slap" instead of a roar. Feet banging down as one on that turf—orders snapped out like rifle fire and responded to with alacrity—and the band's skill with martial airs made you consider enlisting then and there. A man sitting close by pretended his arms were a trombone, his right hand sliding appropriately with the music. Down below, a man rolled up two programs, and made a pretend-drum out of his thighs. (The woman with him looked as if he were nuts. Besides, one of those "drumsticks" was her program!) To the enthusiastic roars of an amazed and delighted Franklin Field crowd, the cadets marched out of the stadium again, the wall fast closing behind them.

On came the Fighting Quakers' band. A wave of sympathy—both expressed and silently felt—went out to those men: they could not possibly do well after Perfection marched off and out. But clearly, we were going to be supportive—the Quakers could not be blamed for looking bad—everybody around me said so and excuses for them were being made before they took their first corporate step!

First, a band member's cap fell off, and as he quickly bent over to pick it up, the trumpet coming up behind him banged into him. The man behind him could not stop in time, and he banged into the trumpeter who had stopped to check for broken teeth. Somebody in front of all this dropped his rifle, and it began to look as if he would have to wait until the entire band had passed by. But he knew that wasn't good, so he finally reached among the parading legs—and in pulling the rifle out and away, he tripped a marcher. And when that man went down, he took another band member with him.

The man who had recovered his rifle frantically chased his rifle mates—and lost his cap. He wavered between going back and getting it or rejoining the riflemen bareheaded; that moment of hesitation caused another collision and another cap

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, "Out of the Attic" features an undated photograph of workers as they dismantle the Newark Shopping Center sign. Since the center was built a half-century ago, bright red neon letters alerted passers-by of Main Street retail opportunities. Other reminders of things past are the Bank of Delaware sign, now PNC Bank, and the Agway placard, which was recently razed to make way for a new project by the Lang Development Group. "Out of the Attic" features historic photographs from Newark's history, recent and long ago. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

Aetna Company holds important meeting

The Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company held its first meeting last Friday night under the new officers. John R. Fulton, president, presided.

After routine business had been attended to, the president appointed the various committees for the coming year and announced the Carnival dates. The Carnival will be held from July 27 to August 4.

Dead man identified as John Stevenson

The body found in a woods near the Gregson Farm, between Elk Mills and Cherry Hill, Md., Monday by Donald Carter, was identified Tuesday as that of John M. Stevenson, of Elk Mills. The man's face had been eaten away by buzzards, or animals of some kind, to such an extent that it was first feared that identification would be impossible.

Expect to build new Post Office this year

From information received by Postmaster Evans from Congressman

Robert G. Houston, it is expected that construction on the new $70,000 post office building for Newark is very likely to start in the Spring. While the final papers have not been signed, it is practically secured that it will be erected on the site recommended on Main street, across from the old Academy building.

Winnebagos from July 4th through Labor Day (with a slight fringe tourist season for what the Mainers call "the gray-haired leaf peekers.") Americans love picturesque Maine.

But the same beautiful area was pretty much devoid of economic activity at other times (save those hearty souls who venture out into the Atlantic Ocean in sub-zero weather to check their lobster pots).

In early 1990 when I was blindsided with a pink slip, thanks to a change in newspaper ownership, our first plan was for me to find another job here in the Pine Tree State.

The only publisher's job was now the new owner's. I'm not a mechanic, or a logger, or a carpenter. But certainly, if I wasn't picky, I'd find a job.

Not!

After six months of searching for any full-time job (that was indoors), in spite of my best efforts, clean record and low expectations, I could not find a job. I gave up and ventured down the path that eventually led us to Newark.

The statistics of high unemployment that I had been reading about in the three newspapers I published along the Maine coast suddenly became meaningful. (Waldo County's rate was 31 percent when I was standing in unemployment lines.)

For the first time, I understood why so many of my neighbors and our friends had three or four part-time businesses (lobstering in summer, cutting firewood in spring and fall, snow plowing in winter) to make ends meet and why so few aspired for anything better. There was little to aspire to.

I recollected one of my first observations of the Maine lifestyle shortly after we moved to Belfast from the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

For a month or so, every time I went into the local McDonald's (something your Diet Coke-addicted writer does frequently), I felt something was different.

Standing in line, I'd look around. Every Golden Arches outlet in the country generally looks the same. The menu was identical to restaurants in Maryland-Virginia-D.C. (save the McLobster sandwich).

Then it dawned on me—it was the employees who were different. They were like me.

They were not teenagers. They were in their 40s and 50s.

The workers were not recent immigrants who took jobs at fast-food outlets because life-long Americans did not want them.

The employees were people who cherished the fact that they held down a full-time job in a land where opportunities were scarce.

Back here this week, I am rejoicing in the bonds of friendship. With a wood stove blasting nearby, I've just been sitting around, talking, catching up with friends like we've never been apart.

Maine people are good souls. Honest, family-oriented, hard-working and appreciative of having a job. My chats this week have reminded me of these exemplary traits.

Not much has changed here in Belfast. They now have a Wendy's to complement the Mickey D's. One or two new stores and a few "for lease" signs.

But there is one significant difference and it has a Delaware connection—MBNA is the largest employer in Waldo County.

Probably half of the people I have visited have a family member that works in the green-awning-adorned buildings that line Rt. 1. MBNA moved here in the early 1990s to take advantage of the work force.

I have noticed that people dress better. There are more newer cars. Restaurants are busier than I remember them in wintertime. People in Belfast seem happier.

And, while they hold on to their New England instincts to distrust any big business, particularly one "from away," they are grateful that they have an option other than life on Poverty Hill.

added a dot to the sword.

Suddenly and simultaneously, the crowd "got it": this was the most hilarious spoof of the precision of the cadets that anybody could imagine! Instead of three Stooges, you had 80! By now, they were marching off in all directions, caps flying, an occasional man falling down, and once I saw two bareheaded guys bang heads. Swiftly, the field was littered with all those caps, one cymbal, a rifle, a drumstick, and, somehow, a long, white leather glove! In their own Saturday Afternoon Live fashion, they were as brilliant in their farcical satire, their "camp" sophistication as those men of West Point had been in their breathtaking precision! As the survivors ran off—yes, ran!—separately and in every direction known to a compass—we rose as one and cheered their wit, their gorgeous, antic never-to-be-forgotten takeoff on Perfection!!! Until!

Just as the governor of West Virginia might well have ignored those people from Harlotsville (the true name of UVA's town, many claim!), the public address announcer should have kept his big, fat, pompous mouth shut. But he didn't.

"I am ashamed of you people!"

Those boys were doing their very best—and you can't ask more of them than that! Members of the Fighting Quaker Band and their girl friends and families—let me APOLOGIZE in behalf of all these people for their outrageous behavior! They are NOT acting in the true Fighting Quaker spirit!

Silence. Then everybody looked at everybody else, all through the packed stadium and said the same thing: "OH MY GOD!" Then repeated it. And no one looked at anyone else for the rest of the game. I have no idea who won. The Quakers were ahead at half time, but after that?????

Luft speaks out on recent inquiries about his staff and city operations.

"I just want to give my opinion about this," said Luft. "My staff and I are not perfect, but we're not liars and cheats, either."

Luft said the questioning by councilmember Nancy Turner about personal property found in a storage area of the Newark Water Treatment Plant was not just "Uncomfortable," but possibly outside the bounds of her authority.

On Jan. 12, Turner told council that she had received a call that someone was sleeping in the city's water treatment plant.

She also distributed photos of clothes, a mattress leaning against the wall, and other items in a loft storage area reached by a metal ladder in the plant.

Holy Angels make plans for new church

St. John's-Holy Angels Parish in Newark may soon join St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish in having a dramatic new worship site designed by architect George Yu.

Parishioners of St. John-Holy Angels were given a peek into the future at a town meeting in the church hall this week where ideas for the design were presented by Yu.

Council getting it again

This is hopefully the next to last story about plans to develop the former Roy Rogers site at 59 E. Main Street in Newark.

When last we tuned in, the project was being sent back to the planning commission after developer NewCap Main Street revised their "final" plan days before city council could review it on Jan. 12.

On Jan. 12, architect Lee Sparks presented yet another plan to city council for a two-story building with a 12,300 square-foot "footprint" which would allow the much-discussed sycamore tree on the site to be saved.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

A LOT has been written and said about Delaware's new smoking law. We've heard from politicians; restaurant, bar and casino owners; and health professionals, as well as smokers and non-smokers. Everyone has an opinion about this new legislation, which is designed to protect the health of people exposed to second-hand smoke. Despite the fact that the law has been in effect only two short months, it looks as if the casinos (who produce percent of the states income) will make a big push for having legislation passed that will exclude them.

The one group we haven't heard from, however, is the group that ultimately will be most impacted by this legislation—the kids. I recently quizzed a number of Newark-area teens about this issue. They had some interesting things to say.

Sean Splane of Newark High School supports the law, he says, because now he won't have to wait as long for a table in a restaurant. Mary Beth Daly, who attends St. Marks, supports the law because "even when you get a non-smoking table, you won't smell bad when you leave the restaurant." Even teens like these two, the ones who don't smoke, can come home smelling as if they did.

Bailey Kung, who also attends St. Marks, supports the law because she has asthma; the new smoking law will make life and breathing easier for her and others like her. Megan Prime of Newark, who attends Ursuline, has relatives who smoke, so she figures they'll all be spending more time at home together. I never looked at the law as a way to increase family time, but perhaps for some families that

WITH the threat of war imminent, it's the quiet heroes at home who will help make a difference. Those quiet heroes are members of the blood banks who routinely spend about one hour donating blood to assure there is an inventory sufficient to meet the needs of others.

Blood Bank of Delaware/Eastern Shore, which is located on Hygeia Drive, across from the Christiana Hospital, is preparing to support the military with blood supplies should war begin in the Middle East.

The blood bank is part of the network of community blood banks, members of America's Blood Centers, that on Jan. 29 signed an agreement with the military to provide blood for the war effort.

While the military collects much of the blood that supports U.S. troops, it still depends on backup from civilian sources, especially in times of major conflict.

"We hope civilians will rise to the call of duty, to help both their military troops and other civilians who need blood," Colonel Michael Fitzpatrick, Director of Armed Forces Blood Program Office, said.

"The larger blood banks around the country are considered hubs for supplying the military directly if there is that need," Emily Fowlie, spokesman for the local blood bank, explained. "Our blood bank is not large enough to be a hub, however, we would in turn help to refill their (the hub) inventories that are depleted."

To be prepared to fulfill this contract, the blood bank will be calling on members of the community to take turns donating. For people who have not donated recently, the blood bank encourages calling to set up an appointment.

"People can donate up to six times a year, or every 56 days," Fowlie said.

Blood supplies generally drop during the winter months, with higher incidents of colds, flu, bad weather and holiday travel, Fowlie said. But the blood supply has not been impacted here in Delaware.

"We are very fortunate that we can sell to other blood banks around the country," Fowlie said, attributing the constant supply of blood to the unique membership program.

"Our blood bank is the only one in the country where you pay to be a member," Fowlie explained. "People in this area seem to know blood is needed every day."

"People look forward to donating blood to help save lives," Fowlie said. "When the military calls, people respond well."

Since 1955, the Blood Bank of Delaware/Eastern Shore has been calling on members to give blood about every 18 months.

"If people would come in twice a year, that would help keep inventories up," Fowlie explained. "We need 300 donors everyday to maintain blood supplies."

57 channels and nothing on – really

By ERIC G. STARK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

I blame Richard Hatch. Who? Don't you remember him? He's the guy who won the first Survivor series – "Survivor Australia," fighting the elements that just happened to have a resort on the other side of the trees, where a cell phone was as close as the nearest camera man.

But make no mistake, it was Hatch and also MTV which started this national craze with reality TV (more on MTV later).

In the mid 1990's Bruce Springsteen wrote a song called "57 channels and nothing on." I guess it came out before digital cable, where now you have 500 channels and nothing on. Are people that desperate to be on TV? Andy Warhol would be rolling over in his grave.

To think, some people use up their 15 minutes of fame eating pig brains on "Fear Factor."

About four weeks ago I was sitting on my couch with the remote control and was amazed at the lack of good television. First, there was the new "Star Search" with Arsino Hall, who still thinks he's hosting his own show, with the hoots he wanted the crowd to do and his arms waving as he announced, "Let's get busy!"

I did, by turning the station.

Next up was some show where the guy brings several women to his parents' home and the parents rate which woman they want their son to date. (And who said chivalry was dead?)

I turned the channel again, this time my eyes were frozen on a beautiful red-haired woman in a long black evening dress. She waited as groups of men slowly got out of limousines and greeted her. The show was "The Bachelorette," which features Trista Rehn, the runner-up on the first of two "The Bachelor" shows. This time it was Trista, a pediatric physical therapist and

OCP sells out the house on regular basis

MOZART and Verdi will be very much in charge of our tri-state area musical life during March. These two giants have works being presented next month at the Academy of Music as part of the 2002-03 season of the Opera Company of Philadelphia.

The operas "Cosi fan tutti" by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart and "Macbeth" by Giuseppe Verdi will alternate throughout March giving us all an opportunity to enjoy the OCP delivery of these very diverse masterpieces. "Cosi" is the more frequently performed of the two. "Macbeth," is much more difficult to cast and stage. To have the opportunity to see them both in such a short period of time will be the highlight of the season for the area's opera cognoscenti.

"Cosi" will open at the Academy on Friday, March 7. Fair warning: If you are looking for 21st century political correctness, you may want to skip "Cosi fan tutti" whose title roughly translates "All women are like that." However if you want an evening of hilarious theater and great music, don't even think about skipping the performance! Playing the two fickle, siblings are soprano Mary Dunleavy, last seen here in "Die Entführung aus dem Serail" in 1999, and mezzo Ruxandra Donose, last seen with the OCP in "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" also in 1999. There talent for singing and comedy was clearly displayed in both operas each ending with standing ovations.

The two "tested" lovers will be sung by William Burden, Ferrando, who last month thrilled us in "La Traviata" and Nathan Gunn, Guglielmo, returning to sing the same role as he did in 1996.

The principal conductor of the opera company, Maestro Maurizio Barbacini, will be in charge. The stage director will be Italo Nunziata. Pasquale Grossi will design both the set and costumes. The lighting designer is Andrew Billiau.

When one combines the word-smithing genius of William Shakespeare and the musical acumen of Giuseppe Verdi the result has to be superb. In this case the collaboration produced "Macbeth." The tragic elements former Miami Heat cheerleader, who was getting to pick out her future boy friend.

"You only live once. Why limit any opportunity to meet a man who could give me what I dream of...love and a family," Rehn said on ABC network's web site. Yeah, and flying around the country and having ABC pay for it isn't bad, either.

I blame Hatch, MTV and even Trista (we're on a first name basis), for my rushing home last Wednesday night to make sure I was in front of my TV by 8:30 to see the 90-minute "The Bachelorette," which was followed by "Celebrity Mole."

It took me longer than others, but yes, I too have been sucked into reality TV. Maybe it is because I'm curious. Maybe I was bored and need a new hobby. Maybe it is because Trista is my age (she just turned 30 on the show). Or maybe it is because, deep down, myself and the millions of people who watch these shows have a little bit of voyeurism in us. We are all voyeurs into other people's experiences and lives and that's why we watch. There's something interesting in exposing people's values.

Do people really have sympathy for hapless contestants who compete for love on the boob tube? The contestants on dating reality shows merely sign up just to get on TV, which makes them a public figure.

Remember Darva Conger? The highlight of their life is that they actually got on TV and people knew them for 15 minutes. It's like a higher form of Ricki Lake and Jerry Springer talk shows. It is basically an excellent scheme that takes the seedy genre of reality TV to its most characteristic lowly level. Obviously the public finds amusement in emotional exploitation of people (I know I do).

Is the exposure worth it?

Radio talk shows discuss what was on the night before, and late night TV hosts like David Letterman and Jay Leno put them on as guests. There are magazine deals and guest spots on actual TV shows. But their fame appears to fade away. Where is Richard Hatch now? The former casts of "The Real World" only show up on reunions that MTV puts together.

Think about how many shows have appeared recently. Off the top of my head here are a few shows that have not been mentioned: "Cops," "Road Rules," "MTV Cribs," "Blind Date," "5th Wheel," "The Osbournes," "Big Brother," "Boot Camp," "American Idol," "High School Reunion," "Temptation Island" and "The Surreal Life." There are even reality animal shows like "Emergency Vets" and "Animal Precinct."

Last week Fox's "Joe Millionaire" and "American Idol" combined to give the network its highest rating for a week ever. "Joe Millionaire" about a guy who pretends he has money to get women (now what single guy hasn't tried that?) is averaging 20.3 million viewers. Last week back to back broadcasts of the "American Idol" last Tuesday and Wednesday attracted 26.5 millions and 24.9 million viewers, respectively, according to a Netscape entertainment story.

Netscape TV news ran a poll with the question: "What is your favorite reality show airing now?" Getting a 35 percent nod for first place was "American Idol," followed by 26 percent for "Joe Millionaire," 22 percent for "The Bachelorette," 13 percent for "The Real World," 3 percent for "The Surreal Life," and 2 percent for "High School Reunion."

It's sad that TV has come down to this, and it shows that our society doesn't have a lot of value or depth in our own lives (yes, I'm including myself).

On a small, less viewed market, MTV got things started when it let the camera roll with its show "The Real World," where seven people, from all walks of life, came together to live in a loft in New York City. Now the music video television network (which does not air many music videos, predominately airs reality-based shows).

Television networks love it because it is cheap. There are not a lot of expenses involved, just get a camera and a few microphones and you, too, could have a reality TV show. Does your ego need a boost?

When will it end? When everyone has their 15 minutes of fame? Maybe. The reality programs appear to be scrapping the bottom of the barrel and can not go much lower. If that is the case, maybe really well-written shows will emerge.

Let's hope.

Until then, tune in next Wednesday to see who Trista chooses for her final rose. It better not be Russell, he's not good enough for her, and I can't believe she didn't keep Greg around.

Romance is in the water at the National Aquarium in Baltimore. Couples of all stages are invited to experience a memorable escapade among the splendor of the sea throughout the Valentine's season. The adults-only program will provide the perfect setting to ignite new sparks or rekindle old flames. During the guided tour through the aquarium, couples will discover what animals do after dark — the unique ways they meet, mate and duplicate. Beer, wine, snacks and breakfast will be provided. The sleepover begins at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 7 and ends at 9:30 a.m. on Feb. 8. Reservations are required and participants must be 21-years-old or older. Pricing information is available by calling 410-727-FISH.

"It Is Our Pleasure to Serve You"

Opera fun for entire family

of the story are actually deepened and magnified when the works of these two men are brought together. Truly in this case, the whole is greater than the sum of its parts.

An OCP favorite, Greg Baker, is making his role debut in this work. In 2000 he gave back-to-back performances with the company in two other tragedies, Baron Scarpia in "Tosca" and Jokanaan in "Salome." He brings everything the thane who would be king needs to bring to this difficult work, and more.

Soprano Lauren Flanigan will perform the role of the malevolent driving force of the opera, Lady Macbeth. She performed it last fall with the New York City Opera to the great pleasure of the audiences at Lincoln Center. Ms. Flanigan has also performed with the La Scala, San Francisco and Metropolitan Opera Companies.

Thomas Studebaker will interpret the role of Macduff; Eric Owens, Banquo; Joslyn Romphf, Lady-in-Waiting; Jason Collins, Malcolm; Matthew Rose, the doctor and Francis Courtenay the servant.

Meastro Jaques Lacombe returns to the pit for the second time this season for this Verdi tragedy. Ralf Langbacka is the stage director. Sets and costumes are by Anneli Qveflander and the lighting design is by Andrew Billiau.

"Macbeth" will begin its run Friday, March 14, and run alternately through the month with "Cosi fan tutti." What a great duo of works to see in the space of one month. OCP boss Robert Driver scores again!

The trip to the Academy of Music is a lot shorter and much less expensive than a trip to the opera in New York. You don't have to stay overnight at an overpriced hotel or be subject to out-of-sight restaurant costs. Simply drive up I-95 to I-76 and you are only a few blocks from an evening of great opera.

If you have some teenagers who have yet to embark in the glorious journey through the world of opera, you might want to consider "Cost." Your girls will love it and your boys will say, "All women are like that!"

For tickets and information you may call 215-893-1999. Ticket prices begin at $5. Knowing how OCP has been selling out the house on a regular basis, may I suggest an early call?

Enjoy!

■ Toman has authored this column for four decades. He is a long-time Newark resident.

Right: Metropolitan Opera star Lauren Flanigan is performing with the Opera Company of Philadelphia next month in seven performances of Verdi's tragedy "Macbeth" at the Academy of Music.

'You never know when you'll actually need it'

► BLOOD, from 8

18 hospitals and seven renal facilities in Delaware and the eastern shore of Maryland. More than 75,000 donations are needed each year for patients in our local area.

After Sept. 11, 2001, people felt the need to do something, so there was a huge influx on blood banks around the country. There were stories where blood had to be dumped because there was too much in some areas.

"We were fortunate that didn't happen here," Fowlie said in regard to the over-supply. "We had some people waiting in line for two hours, but with careful planning and asking people to come back next week, we never had to throw any away."

A pint of blood is good for only 42 days, so there needs to be a constant supply of donors to keep up the inventory.

Andy Heinz, of Wilmington, has been donating twice a year for the last ten years, once for himself and once substituting for his mother.

"It's a very good program," Heinz said. "You never know when you'll actually need it."

Tom Tully, of Newark, is a member of the Lifesavers Club, where members are willing to donate whenever their particular blood type is in short supply.

"I've been told one in 16 people have my blood type," Tully said, while munching on cookies following his donation. "I come every eight to ten weeks, maybe five or six times a year."

When told of the military contract that was just signed, both Heinz and Tully said they were glad they could help.

"With any luck, we won't need it," Tully added.

For scheduling, call 737-8400.

Let's mobilize these articulate teens

► OUTLOOK, from 8

will be an outcome.

Sisters Jenna and Tara Morris, who attend Newark High School, support the law but wish there was a way to stop kids from smoking in school restrooms. Brothers Brian and Sean Martin hope the law will encourage people to quit smoking, especially their mom.

Not all the teens support the law, however. Emily Balderson, who attends Charter School, feels that the law is harsh for the people who are addicted to cigarettes and worries that restaurants will lose business. Kelly McCormick of Glasgow High School believes that the law infringes on smokers' freedoms. By and large, though, the group of teens I talked to were supportive of the new legislation.

The tobacco settlements brought huge sums of money to the states, some of which is actually being used in smoking-prevention programs aimed at teens. The best way to break the cycle of smoking - and it is proven to work - is to prevent kids from starting to smoke in the first place. This legislation will take three to five years to have an impact in the First State, but in the long run, it will work.

Now we have to find a way to mobilize these articulate teens to lobby the Legislature to raise the taxes on cigarettes. If a pack of cigarettes costs $5 to $7, as it does in New York City, we will be a long way toward our goal of a healthier Delaware.

Registration begins Feb. 15

Registration for Newark Cooperative Preschool the 2003-04 school year begins on February 15. The school offers two days per week programs for children who will be three years-old by Dec. 31, and three days per week programs for children who will be four by Dec. 31. Visitations are currently being scheduled. For more information, call 368-0178.

POST GAME

By all measures, Bastianelli a great coach

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

There may be some question of whether Steve Bastianelli's 200th career victory came Wednesday night against Newark or earlier this season. But there is no question about how great a coach Steve Bastianelli is.

Bastianelli has put up staggering numbers in his 23 years as head wrestling coach at St. Mark's. In those 23 years his teams have finished first or second in the state an amazing 17 times, including 10 titles. He has produced 56 of the 58 individual state champions the Spartans have had.

Valania

His dual meet record is at least 200-67. There is some question on whether multiple dual meet victories in the Gilman Duals back in the 1980s counted as one tournament victory or multiple dual meet victories. The conservative counting puts his win total at 200. The realistic count puts him over the mark. Whatever the exact amount is, he ranks fourth among the state's winningest wrestling coaches.

His total also comes against the most consistently difficult schedule in the state. His team also wrestles in more tournaments than any other and that cuts down on the amount of dual meets his team wrestles. For example, this year's his team's record is 6-2. Other teams have wrestled around 15 dual meets.

Bastianelli was 84-0 and won three state titles as a high school wrestler at Sussex Central. He was also an All-American at Lehigh — one of the nation's top wrestling

Wrestling classic a big hit

St. Mark's pounds Wm. Penn

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

There are years when the annual St. Mark's-William Penn wrestling match has provided more drama and suspense than any other event on the high school calendar. This season wasn't one of them.

The Spartans dominated from start to finish, winning 11 of the 14 bouts on their way to a 44-12 romp over the Colonials before over 3,500 fans at Carpenter Center Monday night.

St. Mark's-William Penn was one of three high school matches that preceded the 37th annual National Wrestling Coaches Association All-Star Classic. Caesar Rodney-Sussex Central and Easton (Pa.)-Absegami (N.J.) were the other two.

The win improved the Spartans' dual meet record to 5-2 on the season and completed a weekend that also saw a 30-24 victory over Colonial Forge — the No. 2 ranked team in Virginia — on Saturday.

"I thought we wrestled a lot better (Monday) than we did Saturday," said St. Mark's coach Steve Bastianelli. "There's always something here or there where we could've done better, but I'm pretty happy with the way we wrestled."

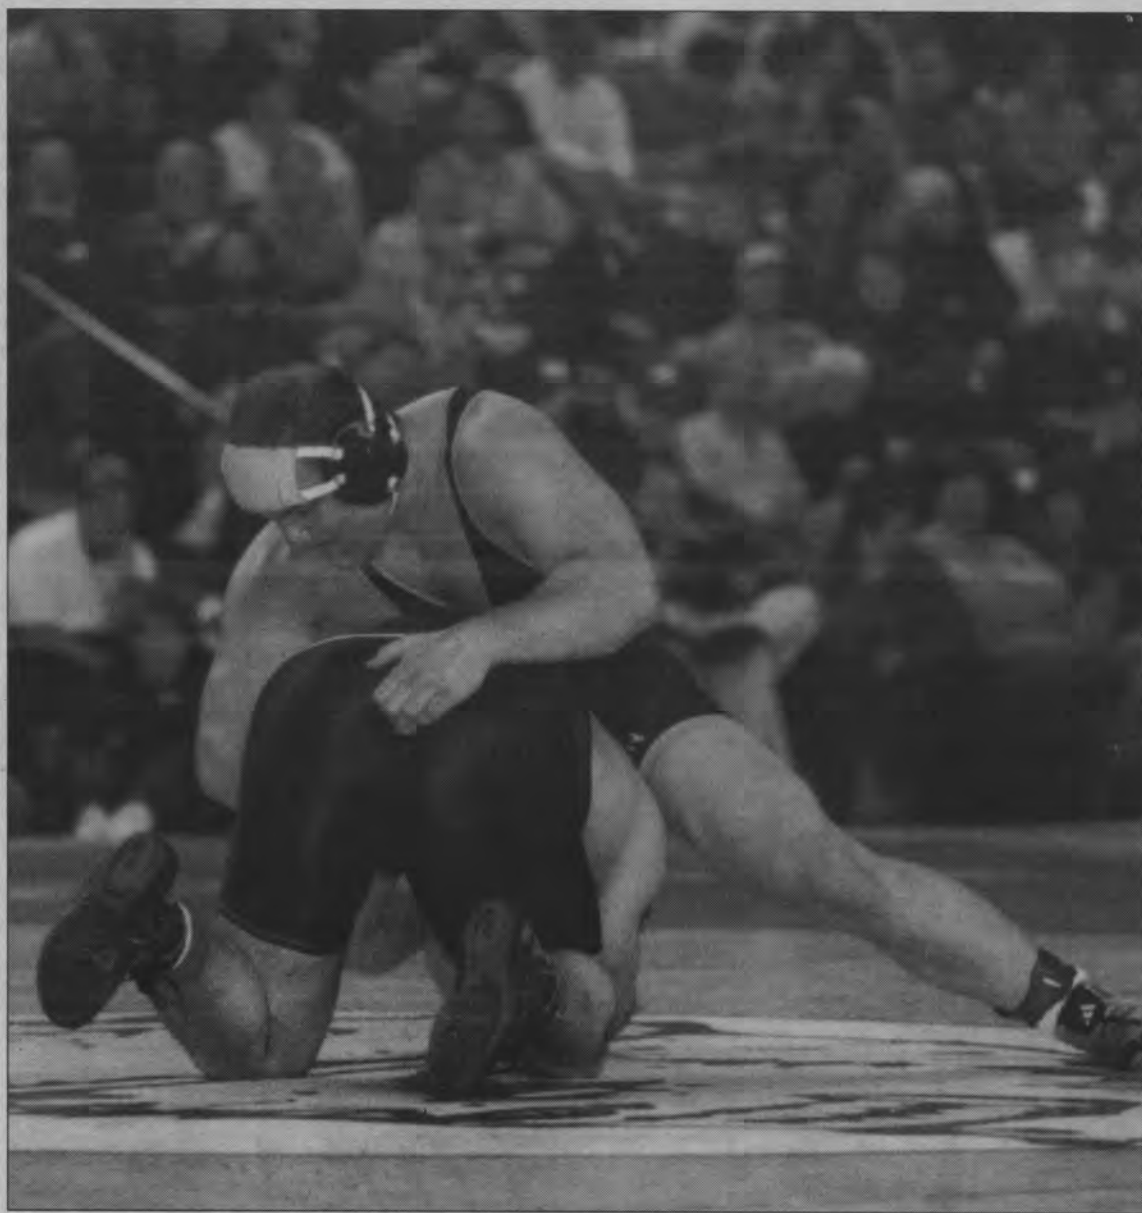

Freshman 103 pounder Jeremy Shaw set the tone early for St. Mark's, gaining an 11-3 major decision over Joe Reyes.

"That's huge to get off to a good start," Bastianelli said. "And Jeremy is such a good person to get us going. He just continues to wrestle hard all the way through and other guys feed off that."

The Spartans went on to win nine of the next 10 weights to build an insurmountable 38-3 lead.

Senior Eddie Quinn picked up a 4-1 decision at 119 pounds and freshman Andrew Bradley, who missed the early part of the season with an injury, followed with a 16-0 technical fall at 125 pounds.

Over 3,500 fans turn out

The sport of wrestling appeared to be the big winner in Monday night's National Wrestling Coaches Association All-Star Classic at the Carpenter Center.

A trio of high school matches and the star-studded lineup of college all-stars brought over 3,500 fans to Newark for the evening. It is one of the largest crowds ever for the 37-year old event. It was also the largest crowd ever for a wrestling match in the state of Delaware.

"It doesn't get any better than this," said Vic Leonard of the Delaware Wrestling Alliance — the group that helped run the event with NWCA. "You couldn't script a better night. We had two good Delaware high school matches a fantastic match between Easton (Pa.) and Absegami (N.J.) and all these great college wrestlers."

Leonard estimates that over 1,500 fans bought tickets on a walk-up basis.

"That's just excellent to get this many people here and show that there is a great interest in wrestling in Delaware," Leonard said.

Easton, the defending Pennsylvania state champion, came into Monday's event ranked No. 5 in the nation. Absegami, the defending New Jersey state champ, hasn't lost a dual meet in three years and was ranked No. 8 in the country.

Easton held the lead for most of the match but was caught at the end by Absegami. The final bout of the match went to over-

Hens blow out Wm. & Mary

The University of Delaware bombed away for a season-high 16 three-pointers and ran up its highest point total and winning margin of the season with a 91-57 rout over William & Mary in a Colonial Athletic Association men's basketball game Saturday night at the Bob Carpenter Center.

Senior guard Ryan Iversen, who missed several days of practice this week after suffering a head injury in drills, came off the bench to hit on 6 of 9 three-pointers and finished with a career-high 23 points as the Blue Hens (11-8, 6-4 CAA) handed the Tribe (7-10, 3-6 CAA) its sixth loss in the last eight games.

Delaware's Mike Ames connected for five three-pointers and finished with 19 points while Calvin Smith added 14 points, including three slam dunks on ally-oop passes, and a team-high eight rebounds, and Maurice Sessoms added 12 points off the bench. Delaware point guard Mike Slattery matched a career and season-high with 15 assists.

William & Mary got 10 points and six rebounds each from forward Mike Viglianco and guard Sherman Rivers. Adam Hess, the CAA's second leading scorer at 20.7 points per game, was held to just two field goals and four points for his lowest output of the season and only his second game below double figures this year.

The Hens, who entered the game as the CAA's top three-point shooting team with 6.9 made per game, bombed away for 16 three-pointers in 35 attempts, both season highs, as six different players nailed at least one from long distance. The Hens hit on 7 of 18 three-pointers in the first half and 9 of 17 in the second stanza. The 16 treys were just two shy of the school record 18 set vs. New Hampshire Dec. 7, 2000.

Iversen's six three-pointers were two shy of the UD single game mark.

Delaware shot 60 percent from the field in the second half (21 of 35) and committed just seven turnovers, matching a season-low. The Tribe, which converted just 30 percent of its second half shots, shot 34.5 percent (19 of 55) for the game and managed to shoot just 3 of 15 from beyond the three-point arc.

The Hens connected on seven first half three-pointers on their way to a 39-28 halftime lead and never looked back. The Hens scored the first nine points of the second half and by the time the Tribe's Jack Jenkins hit his team's first bucket of the half four minutes in, the UD lead was up to 18 points at 48-30. Delaware led by at least 20 points the final 10:40 of the game and went up as much as 36 points, the team's biggest lead of the season, at 91-55 with 43 seconds remaining in the game.

All-State football team honored at banquet

"Strive not only to be the best athlete you can be, but also be the best person you can be," said New York Giants offensive lineman Luke Pettigout, to the All-State Class of 2002. "And don't let this achievement be the peak of your athletic career, but rather a stepping stone towards your personal goals," he said.

Pettigout, a graduate of Sussex Central High and Notre Dame University, was named the "Delaware Athlete of the Year" Thursday night at the 54th Annual Delaware Sportswriters and Broadcasters Association Annual Banquet.

David Hearn, coach of the three-time, Division Two, defending state champion Delmar football team, received the "Tubby Raymond Award", as the 2002 Coach of the Year from the DSBA members.

Salesianum's nationally-ranked swimming and diving squad was named the "Team of the Year."

The banquet, held at the DuPont Country Club, honored the 2002 All-State Football Team.

Newark's Sean Heverin, Glasgow's Saul Rosario, and Hodgson's Larry Cyle and Lenzie Davis were among the local honorees. The full squad was announced recently.

Newark coach Butch Simpson, last year's "Coach of the Year", said Heverin was a fine player during his career as a Yellowjacket.

"Sean was a good leader on and off the field, and well respected by coaches and players alike," he said.

Christine Brennan, sports columnist for U.S.A. Today, and a television sports analyst, was the keynote speaker.

She discussed Title 9 and its importance and impact on women's sports in this country. The outspoken Brennan also criticized the Bush Administration for recent attempts to weaken the law that gave women greater opportunities to play collegiate sports.

The guest list also included Delaware State University football coach Ben Blacknall, Baltimore Orioles manager Mike Hargrove, former Wilmington Blue Rock manager Jeff Garber, Phillies vice president Larry Shenk, and West Chester University basketball coach Deidre Kane.

Former South Carolina State University football coach Willie Jeffries, recently retired from a long and distinguished career, brought down the house with his southern charm and humorous poems. Jeffries was the first African-American coach of a Division One program at Wichita State.

Jeffries urged the All-State players to set person goals, push themselves to the limit, and be mindful of the company they keep when they attend college and later in life.

block of Whitson Drive and waited for Sullivan to appear. The SWAT team moved in at 2 p.m. after a small child and woman exited the home. Sullivan was located hiding inside and was arrested without incident.

Sullivan was charged with robbery in the first degree, possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony, and felony assault. His arraignment disposition is pending, police said.

Woman charged

New Castle County Police have arrested Kyle McVaugh, a 21-year-old female who resides in the unit block of Renee Lane in Newark. She has been charged with two counts of burglary in the second degree, three counts of conspiracy, four counts of theft, one count of attempted burglary, and one count of criminal mischief.

On Wednesday, Jan. 29, county officers went to a residence in the 2600 block of Whittman Drive in the community of Heritage Park to investigate a report of a burglary that just occurred. A female victim told police she had just returned home and noticed a white Oldsmobile parked in front of the residence. The woman said she saw two men flee from inside her home and into the white car. She was able to obtain the license plate number.

Detectives gathered enough information and evidence to link the registered owner of the vehicle, McVaugh, to the crime. Further investigation revealed she was connected with other recent burglaries in the area. Police are presently working on identifying other suspects.

McVaugh was arraigned on Jan. 29 and committed to the Women's Correctional Institution after failing to post $14,200 secured bail.

Unregistered vehicle

A variety of charges were levied against a Newark man following a traffic stop by Newark police at Library and East Delaware avenues at 10:36 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 31.

Newark police said they stopped a 1994 Dodge Spirit and learned that the tag it was displaying belonged on another vehicle. Ronald O. J. Sutton, 22, of Newark, was issued summonses for fictitious registration, failing to have proof of insurance, and operating an unregistered vehicle. He was released pending a court appearance, police said.

Charges at NHS

A 16-year-old female was charged with offensive touching, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct following a fight on the first floor of Newark High School, 401 E. Delaware Ave., at 12:35 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 29.

Police reported that a Newark Police Department officer, stationed at NHS as the School Resource Officer, was struck by a thrown shoe after the altercation had moved into a NHS classroom.

The youth was handcuffed and later released to custody of a family member, police said.

The officer was not injured.

Later the same day, a shouting match, related to the earlier fight, involving a family member took place in front of the school. A warrant for disorderly conduct is expected to be issued soon, police said.

Vandalism spree

Newark police are investigating a series of reports by citizens reporting that their vehicle windows had been shattered.

The incidents, which police believe took place between midnight and about 7 a.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 29, took place at: 30 W. Hawthorne Ave., 15 Adelene Ave., 414 Stafford Dr., McKees Lane north of East Cleveland Avenue, 134 Woodlawn Ave., and 384 Stafford Ave.

Police said a BB or pellet gun may have been used to cause the damage. Investigation is continuing.

Police on lookout

Newark police are looking for a suspect, believed to be a drug user, who broke into the offices of the LS Construction Co., 1269 Old Cooches Bridge Rd., on Tuesday, Jan. 28, at 8:52 p.m. The intruder broke glass to enter the building, confronted an employee inside and took cash and a check before fleeing.

Investigation is continuing.

DVD player gone

Newark police were told that a VCR-DVD unit was taken during the burglary of a home in the unit block McKean Place, it was reported at 4:29 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 28.

The owner told police the missing unit was rented and that the front and rear doors were unlocked when the burglary was discovered.

The player was valued at $360.

Alcohol arrests

Officers of the Newark Police Department continued their stepped-up enforcement of alcohol-related laws recently. Some of the recent arrests include:

Morgan R. Weinstein, 19, of Newark, was cited for underage consumption of alcohol after he was seen leaving Klondike Kate's, 158 E. Main St., at 1:09 a.m. on Sunday, Feb. 2. Police said that when officers approached him and ordered him to stop, a chase began. Officers eventually took Weinstein into custody near the Burger King at East Delaware Avenue and South Chapel Street.

Weinstein was released pending a court appearance.

On Saturday, Feb. 1, at 8:14 p.m., Newark police charged Casey Jean Dixon, 20, of Colora, Md., with underage entry into a liquor store at Peddler's Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave. She was released pending a court appearance.

On Saturday, Feb. 1, at 7:42 p.m., Newark police charged Christina M. Schied, 20, of Sterling, Va., with underage entry into a liquor store at Peddler's Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave., and displaying false identification. She was released pending a court appearance.

At 11:38 p.m., Friday, Jan. 31, a Newark officer on patrol on Wyoming Road noticed a man carrying what appeared to be an open container of beer. When the police car turned around, the suspect fled into a nearby woods. Later he came out at the officer's request. An open container of beer was found nearby, police reported. Tyler L. Spey, 20, of Youngstown, Ohio, was charged with underage consumption of alcohol and possession of an open container of alcohol, and was released pending a court appearance.

Three arrests were made on Thursday, Jan. 30, at 11:09 p.m. at the Main Street Bar and Grill, 45 E. Main St. Newark police said Benjamin M. Grunberg, 20, of Newark, John T. Mozzillo, 20, of Cherry Hill, N.J., and Ryan M. Smith, 19, of Sickleville, N.J., each were charged with misrepresenting their age. Grunberg also was charged with underage consumption of alcohol. All three were released pending court appearances.

Minutes earlier at the same location at 11:01 p.m., Kelly A. McMullin, 20, of Villanova, Pa., was cited with misrepresenting her age and released pending a court appearance, police said.

At 8:49 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 30, Newark police charged Matthew W. Whaley, 19, off Newark, with underage entry into a liquor store at Peddler's Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave., and released pending a court appearance.

On Saturday, Jan. 25, Newark officers cited a number of persons for underage entry into a liquor store. Cited were: at 11:04 p.m., Rebekah Nowasielksi, 20, of Newark, at Newark Discount Liquors, 230 E. Main St.; at 9:55 p.m., Thomas J. J. Craner, 20, of Wilmington, at Newark Discount Liquors, 230 E. Main St.; at 7:44 p.m., Brian J. McKeown, 18, of Wilmington, and Kevin M. McKeown, 20, of Philadelphia, at Peddler's Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave.; at 7:36 p.m., Michael R. Savino, 19, of Hillsdale, N.J., at Peddler's Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave.; and at 7:29 p.m., Michael R. Mailey, 19, of Berwyn, Pa., at Peddler's Pit Stop, 610 S. College Ave. All were released pending court appearances, police said.

Condemned building would be razed

► NAPOLI, from 1

Main St.

The applicant, Dominick Procope, who owns Cafe Napoli on Kirkwood Highway, is requesting development approval to demolish the existing two small two-story buildings currently condemned by the Newark Building Department and the State of Delaware Natural Resources and Environmental Control.

Procope then attends to replace these buildings with one two-story 2,175 square foot "footprint" building. The new building is intended to contain a 75 seat sit-down restaurant and three upper floor apartments. The upscale restaurant featuring Italian cuisine will be open to serve lunch and dinner between

Why is Cafe Napoli different from Bistro?

By ERIC G. STARK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It took nearly two hours before someone asked the question many in Newark were wondering. Why can Cafe Napoli sell alcoholic beverages when the Italian Bistro could not?

What's the difference? Cafe Napoli, the new upscale restaurant featuring Italian cuisine proposed for 76 E. Main St., is across the street from the Newark United Methodist Church.

"The difference," Newark Planning Director Roy Lopata said, "is that it is not adjacent to the church property. The Italian Bistro joined in the back with the church."

Current provisions prevent businesses adjacent to what is known as "protected use" facilities such as residences, churches, schools and dormitories from selling alcohol and liquor.

The Newark Planning Commission unanimously passed a motion Tuesday night to recommend approval to City Council for the minor subdivision and parking waiver for property which formerly housed Fatty Patty's at 76 E. Main St., which state and city officials condemned.

The applicant, Dominick Procope, who owns Cafe Napoli on Kirkwood Highway, wants to demolish and build a Cafe Napoli restaurant at the location. The 75-seat restaurant will serve beer and wine with meals. Only three percent of his business is made up of alcohol sales, officials said.

Lopata said, if approved by City Council, Cafe Napoli can serve alcoholic beverages, but there are some stipulations, which include:

■ No live night club or floor show-type entertainment such as dance will be permitted by patrons;

■ No alcoholic beverages can be sold after midnight;

■ No carry-out liquor service;

■ No bar facilities, defined as any counter in which alcoholic beverages may be stored, displayed, prepared, and served, and at which patrons sit and or stand and consume alcoholic beverages shall be permitted;

■ No less than 50 seats in the facility; required to provide a full restaurant service with lunch, dinner and dessert menus and

■ The service of alcoholic beverages shall be clearly incidental and complementary to full and limited restaurant service.

The Italian Bistro closed this summer allegedly because it could not obtain an alcohol license.

Locke, a leader of the Downtown Merchants Committee, said. "This is a man of his word and this is truly a family-owned restaurant."

The restaurant will be permitted to sell alcohol, but Locke pointed out that Procope strictly sells beer and wine to go with the meal and these sales make up less the 3 percent of his businesses.

A request for a parking waiver on 23 spaces also received Planning Commission approval.

In other action, the proposed community of Westbrook, which is to be located at 416 Paper Mill Road, gained approval by the Planning Commission for its recommendation to City Council, but not without a few amendments.

Marra Corporation submitted a major subdivision for the 7.11-acre property for the construction of seven single-family homes, which will be built off Rt. 72 (Paper Mill Road).

Each home site will be at least a half acre. The original home at 416 Paper Mill Road will remain with .95 acres of land. This equates to one unit per .89 acres.

At this time, Marra Corporation is projecting a sale price of $400,000 per home. They hope to start construction this spring.

Four amendments were passed by the Planning Commission before it was approved to recommend the project to City Council. Amendments for landscaping, foot printing, a name change and having no property within 100 feet of the eastern property line and the area butting with the pond should not be disturbed.

Concerns about the project were storm water management, the slope of the land and the name of the development.

Planning Commission member James Bowman said he wanted to see a different name because there are several other places that start with "west" and emergency crews have difficulty finding developments because they sound alike.

Commission member Alexine Cloonan had concerns about stripping existing top soil right down to the flood plain.

She believes seven units is too many for the location. She had concerns about the 3 to 1 slope for the homes as well, because of runoff.

She would like see three homes, not seven, at the location.

In other events, the Planning Commission recommended City Council approve the revised fourth draft of The Comprehensive Plan, which covers adjacent areas land use and Newark's comprehensive development plan.

Casting done in Asia at 20% U.S. cost

► NICHE, from 1

30 or 40 different designs, some of his own, some from historic reproductions and pictures.

His inspiration comes from seeing pieces in museums or pictures of other designs.

As his designs expanded, so did his space. He currently has two warehouses near Newark and has hired two employees.

Hussey will draw, mold from wax, coat with rubber latex, and create his own molds. Then he sends his design overseas to China, Malaysia, or Taiwan to have them carved from wood or cast in bronze. He works with several different foundries.

"Taiwan does the best quality at 20 percent of what it costs here," he explained.

Hussey prefers to do the design work himself and leave the carving or casting to the artisans.

"The artists working on the molds are extremely talented," Hussey said. "They are basically self-taught. The challenge with working internationally is finding people you can trust. You can get stuck with a lot of junk. That's part of the risk."

By going overseas the wholesale price for a finished piece can be cheaper than buying the wood here in the states.

"Every design is unique, not any one style," he said.

If he has a really good three-dimensional sample and photos, a piece can be completed in a week overseas.

Several finished pieces of a design are usually done at the same time. One organization wanted a life-sized Robert E. Lee. Since there is so little done on Lee, Hussey had to work from a photograph.

He sold one piece. Now the second one sits in his warehouse waiting for a home.

His pieces include life sized animals, horses, cows, elk, pigs, calves, eagles, chickens and dolphins, sports figures, Roman soldiers and modern soldiers, Indians standing and riding on horses, mermaids, Santas, policemen and tiki. A pair of buddas is inlaid with real gold. There are even hamburgers, six-foot hot-dogs and ice cream cones.

There is a replica of a famous mermaid statue found in the harbor in Copenhagen.

Garden statuary, fountains, and large animals sit wrapped in bubble wrap and crated waiting to be shipped out.

His inventory is definitely eclectic.

If you can imagine it, Hussey has probably already designed it and had it carved or cast in bronze.

Who buys these statues?

Businesses and retail stores will often purchase them for display in front of their buildings, he said. Every smoke shop wants a cigar store Indian. Six-foot wooden tikis are hot in New York restaurants. Sports figures are popular in front of sporting goods stores.

"The statues become very memorable," Hussey explained. "People won't remember a sign."

A large bronze piece will become a landmark in a town.

"A company can purchase a large bronze animal for less than they can make a sign," he said.

Selling them is not hard.

Hussey does a little advertising in national up-scale magazines, but most of his business just comes to him.

"One in 50,000 people will want a certain product," Hussey said, "and if they want it, they'll buy it."

A lot of bronze garden statues and fountains are going to upper-level priced residences in Maryland, Philadelphia, and New York areas.

"The empty-nesters are building their large dream houses and want something big, a statue or fountain, in the garden," he said.

Many of his finished pieces are shipped to Japan and Europe.

The hottest items right now seem to be anything to do with children, running, playing, working, individuals or in groups. He has a bronze boy with a paint bucket in one hand and a paint roller in the other, like he's ready to paint the wall.

"I want to do a little newspaper boy sometime," he said.

If you drive past his home on Casho Mill Road, you will see in the front yard his bronze fountain of three children playing. Right now it is frozen in ice.

"I try to change my fountain piece every year," he said. "Last year's was a display of dolphins."

His next challenge? Working with solid marble that comes out of China. But that requires another warehouse for more space.

Inspections by city would start in 2003

► COUNCIL, from 1

"I believe this wording should take care of inspections for one and two apartment units in the city that neither previously had rental permits nor been inspected," said Ronald Sylvester, director of building for the city, stated in a letter to City Manager Carl Luft.

This would affect approximately 37 units in the city, requiring that the landlords pay the $55 fee for apartment rental permits. There are approximately 29 units on East Main Street, one on New London Road and four on Cleveland Avenue and three on Elkton Road.

According to Sylvester, this change would take care of inspections for one- and two-apartment units that have neither previously had rental permits or inspections. Since the Fire Inspector does annual inspections of commercial properties, these apartments could be included in the inspection process.

If passed, the inspection process would start in 2003 to coincide with the commercial properties at that address.

In other events on the agenda, council will discuss a request to rezone 301 S. Chapel St., in an effort to retain the integrity of the Newark residential neighborhood.

This is a second reading for the request to rezone Dr. Jerome Kayatta's .344 acre parcel from the existing RD (single-family, semi-detached) to BL (business-limited) zoning.

In a letter to the Planning Department dated Oct. 12, 2002, Kayatta cited the "less than positive" changes he has seen in the neighborhood over the last 25 years, due to the "destructive and pejorative attitude of some of the students and landlords nearby."

Kayatta requested the BL zoning so "we can guarantee the stability of this property for the future benefit of Newark."

City Council had granted Kayatta a special use permit for his dental office at this location on June 13, 1977.

Zoning of other properties in the vicinity of 301 S. Chapel St. is mixed, currently including RD, BL, MI (general industrial) and UN/MOR, containing University of Delaware office buildings.

Even though the Newark Comprehensive Development Plan II calls for single-family residential uses at the location under review for rezoning, the same plan stipulates that professional buildings, such as Kayatta's dental office, "may be accommodated very satisfactorily along with or adjacent to residential uses depending on the specific use involved, site design considerations, proposed site amenities, and the availability of adequate service facilities."

The five-member Planning Commission unanimously approved the zoning request at their December meeting, believing that the proposed rezoning to BL would not conflict with the Plan's land use guidelines.

It will also be proposed to provide a stop sign on Haslett Place at Thompson Circle and prohibit parking at all times on both sides of West Park Place between Apple Road and Willa Road.

John R. Mather, world-renowned climatologist, professor at UD

NEWARK area resident John R. Mather died on Friday, Jan. 3, 2003.

Mather, 79, was a world-renowned climatologist, ever-popular professor, mentor, and long-time chairman of the Department of Geography at the University of Delaware. He was a 40-year resident of Daretown, N.J.

Dr. Mather began his career in climatology following his doctor of philosophy from Johns Hopkins University in 1951. He was Professor of Climatology at Drexel Institute of Technology in Philadelphia from 1957-1960, and was president of C.W. Thornthwaite Associates/Laboratory of Climatology of Centerton, N.J., from 1963-1972. During this same time he became a professor of geography at the University of Delaware where he built, and for 25 years, chaired the Geography Department there providing graduate training to several generations of the United States leading climatologists. He personally taught physical geography to more than 12,000 students in his thirty-five years at the university.

During his distinguished career, Dr. Mather authored several books on applied climatology and water resources, and was U.S. editor on a joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. book on global change. He was president of the American Association of Geographers in 1991 and recipient of the Association's Lifetime Achievement award in 1998 and the American Geographical Society's Charles P. Daly Medal in 1999. He was Delaware's State Climatologist for many years.

Church Clothes.

God doesn't require suits and ties, so why should we?
At Calvary Fellowship, we know that church isn't about how you look. It's about finding God's answers for your everyday life. We feature modern music, relevant messages, a casual atmosphere, and real people who would love to meet you.

WHAT IF...

there was a church that took the time to find out what was relevant in your life?

SUPPOSE...

there was a church that made the effort to bring the timeless truths of God alive in new and exciting ways?

IMAGINE...

if there was a church that used fresh new music for a new millennium and you could come in casual clothes?

JUST PICTURE...

a church that modeled care and compassion, where you were important just because you were you.

IN THE COURT OF CHANCERY OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE IN AND FOR NEW CASTLE COUNTY (IN JURISDICTION OF THE REGISTER OF WILLS)

IN THE MATTER OF:

THE ESTATE OF ELIZABETH L. SCHREFFLER
REGISTER OF WILLS FILE NO. 127881

CM 10899-NC

TO: ALL PERSONS CLAIMING TO HAVE AN INTEREST IN THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE ESTATE OF ELIZABETH L. SCHREFFLER, DECEASED, INCLUDING PERSONS CLAIMING TO BE HEIRS, LEGATEES, BENEFICIARIES OR OTHER DISTRIBUTEES OF SAID ESTATE.

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that an application has been made to the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware, in and for New Castle County, for authority to sell real estate of said decedent and that the application has been set down for a hearing before the Court on the 14th day of March A.D. 2003, at 9:30 AM. in the courtroom of the Court of Chancery in the Courthouse in the City of Wilmington, Delaware.

You are further notified that if you desire to make any claim to an interest in the distribution of the estate, or to all or any part of the distributable amount of the estate, you must appear before the Court at the time and place of aforesaid and present such claim together with any evidence you desire to present to sustain such claim. Such evidence should include such documents, materials, witnesses and all other evidence, which establishes your claim to all or any part of the distributable amount of such estate. You will be required to present such documents and materials and the testimony of such witnesses as support your claim at the time of such hearing and you should therefore arrange such documents with you to such hearing and arrange for the attendance at such hearing of the witness whose testimony you plan to present to the Court.

You should advise the Petitioner, Kenneth Weakland, by writing to his attorney, Larry D. Sullivan, Esquire, 111 Barksdale Professional Center, Newark, DE 19711 (302) 286-6336 by March 4, 2003 of your intention to appear at the hearing scheduled as aforementioned and present evidence at the hearing.

Your failure to appear and present your evidence at the time and place aforesaid will be at your peril.
