Heineman

Dear Mr. Heineman:

You are such a busy man that you probably do not know that I have left South America and am now stationed in Berlin. I want you to know that we are here, so that in case you and Mrs. Heineman, or either of you, should be coming here, we may have the opportunity of seeing you. I am quite sure that you must make an occasional trip to Berlin, and the next time you come I hope you will be able to let me know so that we can have at least lunch or dinner together at the house. We have taken a very comfortable apartment in the Tiergarten, at 2 Drake Strasse, which, I am sure, is a familiar section to you, as the house of Mr. Deutsch is just on the corner, and I understand his widow is still living there. I remember one day having lunch with you when Mr. Deutsch was there with Otto Kahn.

In many ways we are quite glad to be back in Europe, although I enjoyed our stay in South America very much. During the last six months that I was there I made a trip which took me pretty well over Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, Chile, and the Argentine. I was doing some special work for the Department, which was particularly interesting. Dechamps, whom we liked very much in Buenos Aires, has taken over our house there, as he may have told you. When I see you there are many things which I should like to chat with you about and in which you may be interested.
