State Board Introduces School Medical Examination

The State Board of Education has sent to each teacher in the State blanks designed for the conservation of the health and for the promotion of progress of the pupils, by requiring tests made of the eyes, ears, nose and throat. The examinations will be made of the scholars as they enter the schools of the term just opened, and when it is certain that all of the pupils have registered that intend to register for the year, the teacher is instructed to send in the reports to the State Board of Education, so that the board may secure the results and so tabulate them that they may be presented to the next Delaware Legislature in the hope that some legal provision may be made for the permanent health inspection of the children.

National Apple Day

The third Tuesday in October is scheduled as National Apple Day—a day on which everybody is supposed to eat apples, talk apples, display apples, beg, buy, sell or give away apples. Last year forty cities made displays of apples and competed for prizes given by the International Apple Shippers' Association.

Student Reception Committee Named

A reception committee of the students of Delaware College will meet the incoming men to welcome them and aid them in making their arrangements upon their arrival. The utmost spirit of fellowship prevails in Delaware College, and the new men will receive a glad hand. Among other students serving on the reception committee are the following: Warren C. Newton, Paul D. Lovett, Knowles R. Bowen, U. D. Pepper, A. Bailey Thomas, Morris R. Mitchell, J. W. Jones, S. D. Loomis, H. W. Bramhall, D. P. Horsey, W. H. Savin, E. S. Wilson, J. H. Salevan, H. Samonisky, J. W. O'Daniel, J. A. Hopkins, Jr., J. C. Hastings.

Help Equip Reading Room At High School

At the annual meeting of the Newark High School Alumni Association, held last June, the Association voted to equip a class room in the High School building to be used as a reading room by the students, during the present school year, with the privilege of throwing it open to the public in the evening, if such a plan seemed practicable. A committee composed of Miss Elsie Wright, chairman; Mr. R. F. Friedel, and Mr. Knowles Bowen, was named to have charge of the work. It was agreed at this meeting to hold a bake in the fall, if it should prove necessary, in order to complete the work.

The committee in charge after securing estimates, reported at a meeting of the Advisory Board of the Association, held about three weeks ago.

The contract for papering and painting was given to B. J. Blest, the work for wiring to Mr. Ray Jacobs. A Yale lock was ordered for the door, and window shades purchased. At this stage of the game, however, the Treasurer reports all the available funds used. It therefore falls to the committee to call upon members of the Association to give the bake as agreed upon in June, before the addition of reading table, magazine rack, chairs, etc., will make the room meet the original purpose.

A joint meeting of the Advisory Board and a committee of High School students, who have expressed a willingness to help further the undertaking, was held in the High School on Tuesday evening. It was decided to hold the bake on Saturday afternoon and evening, September eleventh, on the Academy lawn. If the weather is cool, in the High School building. There will be a choice assortment of home made delicacies—candy, cake, bread and rolls—also ice cream, for sale. Mrs. H. N. Reed has been made general chairman; Miss Alice Kerr, chairman of the candy committee; Miss Margaret Cook, cake committee; Miss Edna Chalmers, bread and rolls; Mr. Wilbert Ramsey, ice cream; Mr. Paul Lovett, lighting and decorations.

The public is urged to lend their support in making the bake a success. The proceeds are to be returned to the community. Plan to do your week-end buying, by order if preferred, at the High School on Saturday.

Injured By A Fall

Mrs. S. M. Curtis of Delaware and South College avenues, tripped and fell over a loose gutter board on Main street near P. M. Sherwood's store Tuesday and received a severe wound on her forehead, besides spraining her wrists. Mrs. Curtis is 91 years old and despite her age she is unusually active taking great pleasure in her daily walks about the town. Her injuries, happily, are not serious and she will be out again before long.

CONSUMERS' LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

Enrollment Of 100 New Members The Object

The Consumers' League of Delaware has reopened its office, 306 Ford Building, which has been closed during July and August. The executive secretary, Miss Anna W. Bird, will be in the office every morning from 9 until 12 o'clock.

The scholarship committee is considering some applications that have already been made for children under 14, whose family circumstances are such that the children's earnings are needed.

The big work of the league this fall is to be a membership campaign when 1,000 new members is to be the aim of the teams that will undertake the work. The league feels that only by obtaining a wider membership can it attain its object "to promote better working conditions among the workers while securing to the consumer exemption from dangers attending unwholesome conditions."

CO. E. ARMORY ABOUT COMPLETE

Workmen are adding finishing touches to the new armory, at the corner of Delaware avenue and Academy street, which will be occupied by Company E in the near future. The formal move will be made sometime before the twenty-fifth of September. Captain Jacobs and the men of the company are busy planning furnishings for the new building. To the right of the entrance is a large airy room, twenty-two feet square, which will be used for a reading room for the men. The first sergeant's room and the commanding officer's quarters are to the left, and beyond, the main part of the first floor, is the large 60 x 80 drill hall. Here, careful attention has been given to the floor, which is of hard wood. The hall, lined with windows on three sides of the building, will afford an ideal place for dances and large social affairs. The basement of the building has a well-equipped kitchen, lockers for the men of the company, store rooms, etc. The main room, directly under the drill hall, it is expected will be the scene of many banquets and church suppers.

On the second floor of the building are a number of splendid cheerful rooms, running across the front of the building, the use of which has not yet been designated. The new building has seventy-two windows.

First Students To Reach Delaware

The first students to reach Delaware College arrived today from Knoxville, Tenn. They are Andrew G. Lowe and Wymer Siler. The young men are graduates of the Knoxville high school which has a standard four year course. They will study agriculture here, feeling that Delaware College has a strategic location for this study. Their coming to Delaware illustrates the value to the college of having alumni in the high schools, the students in question having been directed to Delaware by "Benny" Ward, Delaware College, class of 1913.

PORK BRINGS THREE DOLLARS A POUND

SIXTEEN HUNDRED DOLLAR BERKSHIRE BRED ON COLLEGE FARM

A few days ago the papers announced that the largest company ever incorporated had just filed application to be incorporated in Delaware.

In last week's Post, Delaware boasted of having the coming champion hen, but not all the champions have been heard from yet.

Several years ago when the Delaware College Farm started its herd of Berkshire pigs, it builded better than it knew and while the greatest care was exercised in the

WOMEN'S COLLEGE ENROLLMENT LARGE

Members Of The Macultry Returning

Thirty-three new students have been enrolled to date at the Women's College, which including the Sophomore class, will make the total enrollment exceed ninety. Entrance examinations are scheduled for September 14 and 15, when many who intend to commute, not previously heard from, are expected. The college has still places in the dormitories for a number of girls. Prospective students will find it to their advantage to communicate with the college authorities at once.

A special course in agriculture and horticulture for women has been added this year and for that course there is a student enrolled from Virginia and another from Massachusetts. In addition to the Delaware students there are enrolled students from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland for the arts and science courses.

Another new course in botany is offered, under the personal direction of Dean Robinson. The botanical laboratory instruments have been ordered.

The extension worker, Miss Elizabeth Jefferson is already in the field and will continue to do extension work in home economics. Miss Jefferson has had two years' experience in extension work in Ohio and comes to the Women's College from Harvey, Ill., where she organized and equipped a department of home economics last year. Professor Mary E. Rich, professor of education, who has charge of the Whittier building and will reside there, will arrive in Newark from her home in Wisconsin on Sunday. Miss Moscrop, who has been studying at Cornell University with reference to giving a course in household chemistry, and Miss Brady, one of the instructors, who has been spending the summer on the Maine coast will return next Wednesday. Dean Robinson is spending this week in New York City, attending the twentieth anniversary exercises of the New York Botanical Gardens.

Many Young Men Seek Education

The Robert Bane Wheeler Scholarship in Delaware College has been awarded by the donor to Mr. Joseph P. Maxwell, a graduate of Wilmington High School. It is the purpose of Mr. Maxwell to take the course in Electrical Engineering. He is an earnest and purposeful student, and this honor comes to him as the result of his record in the Wilmington High School, and because of his promise of growth and usefulness in life.

The Scholarship, consisting of $2500, was founded by Mrs. Robert Bane Wheeler at the last Commencement, the interest to be used for the encouragement of some worthy student each year.

If the citizens of Delaware could know the appealing letters that come from worthy young men to the President's office each week, revealing their intense desire for a college training which is denied them by lack of means, they would be able to appreciate the more keenly the value and significance of the Wheeler Scholarship. No investment pays so well as a small loan fund to help struggling students to get a foot-hold in college, where they are seeking to prepare themselves for the largest service to mankind. Townspeople willing to employ students for various kinds of fall work, are requested to consult Professor H. E. Tiffany, faculty chairman of the Self-Help Committee.

Church Services Resumed

Services were resumed in the First Presbyterian Church of Newark last Sunday, after an interval of four weeks during August. Rev. W. J. Rowan, pastor of the church, was in charge, after a vacation spent at Simpson Grove, Pa. All the various societies of the church are meeting at the stated times which prevailed last winter. The church on the opening Sunday was beautifully trimmed with hydrangeas and golden-rod. The blossoms were massed around the chancel rail, and banked in a great artistic bouquet at the left of the pulpit.

St. Thomas Church Report

Because of the rain on Monday night the meetings of the Vestry and the Guild of St. Thomas Episcopal Church were postponed until next Monday night in the Parish House. At that time the guild, which has about sixty-five members, will resume its activities for the winter and it is planned to have a series of entertainments and social receptions.

The St. Thomas vestry has just issued its annual financial report, showing total disbursements of $2,031.17, divided as follows: parochial, $1,683.64; diocesan, $146.84; general, $200.69. The parish organizations show the following membership: Woman's Auxiliary, 25; Junior Auxiliary, 31; Daughters of the King, 13; Parish Guild, 63; Altar Chapter, 12; Sunday School, 44. The present number of communicants is 78. During the year there were nine infant baptisms, one marriage and four burials. There were 156 public services on Sundays, 24 on the Holy Days, and 40 on other days. The property of the parish, including the church, the parish house and the rectory, is valued at $13,500 and the Curtis endowment at present amounts to $2,000.

Ebenezer To Celebrate Ninety-first Anniversary

The congregation of Ebenezer M. E. Church will celebrate the ninety-first anniversary of the founding of their church next Sunday, September twelfth. A number of the most prominent pastors in the Conference will be present. Among the speakers will be Dr. A. M. Spengle and Dr. George P. Jones. Services will be held at ten-thirty, two-thirty, and seven-thirty. Lunch will be provided free of charge to all who attend the services.

At the evening service the pastor, Rev. Herman Klug, will preach, illustrating the sermon lantern slides. There will also be chorus singing by the choir, assisted by outside talent. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone.

COUNCIL MEETING

SEWER EXTENDED—FINE FOR GLASS ON STREET

At the meeting of Town Council Monday night an ordinance was finally passed making it unlawful to throw bottles or glass in the streets of the town and providing for a fine of from $3 to $10 for violations. Another ordinance passed will make it unlawful to injure or destroy any street pavements, curbs, gutters or castings.

The report of the treasurer showed the balance to the credit of the town to be about $4,175.

The Council approved of plans submitted by the Sewer Commission for the extension of the sewer 667 feet along Depot Road. This was done with the understanding however, that a competent engineer be secured to look after the work and Mr. Kastenhuber, who was resident engineer when the sewer system was installed, will likely be the man. Bids will be asked for on this work. The extension will give the college authority to connect the "Whittier" house which is to be used as a dormitory for students of the Women's College. A number of property owners along the street have agreed to connect with the sewer and pay their share of the expense if the sewer is extended.

William Dean was appointed to collect the dog tax and will receive a percentage of such tax collected.

Newark Children Attend Fair

Many children of Newark and vicinity attended the Delaware State Fair in Wilmington on Tuesday. Although the schools were in session as usual, those children who desired to attend the fair were permitted to do so without being marked absent for the day. Tickets were distributed through the schools.

Dr. Mitchell Named As Code Writer

The man or woman who can write the best code of morals for the instruction of children at homes and schools will receive a prize of $5000 from the National Institution for Moral Instruction of Washington. This offer is made by the institution, and each State in the Union is to have one or more code writers in the contest. In all, about 70 code writers are requested, and each State is to nominate writers. Among the following code writers have been appointed: Vice President, Penniman, of the University of Pennsylvania; President Mitchell of Delaware College; Professor Forbes of the University of Rochester; Superintendent H. H. of the Berkshire Farm School; and Principal Deatrick of the Pennsylvania State Normal School.

The donor of the $5000 prize is a prominent business man, whose name is withheld at his request. The prize will not be divided. The institution requests that nominations be made of writers and that the name of the nominees be sent to the office of the organization at Washington.

Among the hundreds of pigs developed at the College Farm, one, Duke of Sussex 6th 159,088, stands out in bold relief from all the others. This pig looked the part of a champion from the very beginning. When he was eight months old, the price put upon him was $250 but as buyers for this class of animals are very few and far between, he was not sold. He was kept in

Last fall, inasmuch as the Experiment Station was unable to use the Duke any further in its experiments, the college loaned him to Dr. Duebler, and when the foot and mouth disease (continued on page 4)

HOME STUDY AND
SCHOOL WORKPAPER RECENTLY READ BY A NEWARK
TEACHER

Every 'September's' a new beginning—so the song runs in the school world. Children who lagged behind their class last term, come braced with resolutions to "study hard" this year; teachers refreshed by weeks of rest and study, return to their work with a happier outlook and broader ideals; parents work, hope, and plan, to help everyone concerned.

The following paper on Home Study, written and read by Miss E. Frances Medill, teacher of Seventh Grade, at the April meeting of the Newark Parent-Teachers' Association, seems especially pertinent at this the opening of the school year.

HOME STUDY

To prepare a paper on home study, I had thought to quote extensively from the ideas of great educators upon the subject and then to state, briefly, my own views, but, upon consulting the works of those who are considered leaders of modern educational thought, I found the subject evaded, in fact, almost entirely ignored.

Much, very much, is said about school study, the duties of the teachers with respect thereto but very little about home study and the duties of parents. Yet we know that when the heart of the home, is in league with the school, it is well with the child.

In these days when ardent reformers would banish books from the schools, teach all subjects orally, introduce all the arts and trades, and teach children to make things, it is well to remember that written language preserved in parchments and books and scattered abroad by means of pen and printing press, is still the greatest force in our civilization and the most precious product of man's thought.

It is a tremendous fact, and a fact that may justly cause apprehension, that 40 per cent of the children in this country, where education is such a universal passion, never get beyond the fourth grade of our schools and go out into life with almost no training in the use of books, deprived of the means of selfculture and capable of reading only the sensational newspapers and the trashiest kind of literature.

As a result of this fact, the Board of Superintendents of New York City, recommends that primary children be required to study one hour out of school. Poor little children of New York City, whether of middle class families or "Children of the Slums!"

I do not feel that I can speak with authority upon primary teaching as my experience is confined to ungraded schools.

In Delaware rural schools of seven or eight grades, the "little folks" are the pathetic victims of a defective school system. The teacher has only a few minutes of each day to give to their training, no apparatus is provided except what she may buy from out her meager salary, the hours are long, the benches are hard, and the ventilation is bad. I fear if you were to inquire of the parents of my primary pupils as to my qualifications, the answer would be something like the following: "Oh, she didn't teach them anything. They were out in the yard playing all the time except when it rained and then she let them draw pictures and scribble on the blackboard." It is true, but, at least they were as happy as I could make them, in spite of an antiquated school system.

By all means, let us respect the happiness of little children. Cheerfulness—joyousness—the atmosphere of love and well-ordered liberty; these things make the heaven in which a little child lives, and in which all that is gracious and beautiful in his character thrives the best.

There is scarcely a great dinner where the most prominent men of our country gather, that some one does not refer, either by word or allusion, to the "little red school-house"; to the successful business man, or the great politician, or the railroad president who has come from the country, leans back in his chair and with eyes of memory sees again the staring windows on each side, the door in the middle, the hooks on which hung hats, coats and dinner pails, the teacher at her desk on the platform. Yet, if sentiment is ruled out of these memories, and the plain, cold facts are realized, the man knows that he is a success in spite of the "little red school-house," and what it taught him, instead of because of it.

Pardon this digression but the hastening of the day when the ungraded, rural school is replaced by the centralized school is very near to my heart. How glad I am that the right people and especially the women of our State are turning their attention to the matter. When intelligent women give their support to any cause, even in conservative Delaware, results are bound to follow.

When children reach the fourth grade, they are approximately ten years of age, and should have a short, definite lesson assigned for home study. The assigned lessons should be entirely prepared at home, because a careless child will dawdle and say to himself, "Oh well, I'll have time in school if I don't get it done here." Books taken home should not be allowed opened in school more than five minutes before recitation.

No lessons given for home study should be such as require much assistance. It may be that a child is so circumstanced that he has no access to scholarly help; and in that case an unreasonable burden is imposed upon him and the task will not be done. If he has access to such help, the influence of an intelligent home will produce far more effect in ordinary intercourse than if father or mother is reduced to the role of a school assistant.

Home has its own sacredness, and its own appropriate forms of training. School exercises should not encroach too far upon the home. The teacher should state the aim of the lesson so clearly, definitely and simply that each member of the class can fully grasp just what is to be done. Aimless work is shiftless work. So much for the teacher—now for the parents. In trying to recall some places where I have been an interested observer of home "studying," I had some amusing recollections. The pen of a Bill Nye could perhaps do justice to some of the scenes.

Why is it that the lead-pencil—innocent-looking article—is so elusive; and why, after being tracked to its lair, has it such a brittle point? I have witnessed, after much wrestling with dull knives of various kinds, the razor of the head of the house being finally brought forth by a desperate mother, to remedy the defective pencil point. After a few minutes of pretended work broken by pleas for help or a drink of water, callers appeared or the child became sleepy and retired to the couch for a nap. Turning the leaves, looking at the pictures, sharpening pencils or listening to neighborhood gossip is not study. A child should have a reasonably quiet corner to himself, where he can concentrate his attention and not be asked to run to the store or to bring up the coal, until his task is completed.

I am confident from my experience with Newark parents, that they are careful to see that their children do have favorable conditions for home study.

The amount of home work for a grammar grade pupil should be gradually increased as the child is promoted from year to year. New York City's "powers that be" in the school world, say that one and one-half hours should be spent in home study by pupils of seventh and eighth grades. It seems to me utter nonsense to specify the amount of time for each pupil of a grade. The task which one child can master in a half hour may require twice or three times as long for one of his classmates. I asked each of my pupils a few days ago, to notice just how long he spent in preparing the next day's work. The replies ranged from twenty-five minutes to two hours—average, forty-five minutes.

The question, it seems to me, is not so much—do they learn the next day's lesson in a given time, as they are acquiring the power of concentration, learning self-activity, forming the habit of study in preparation for eighth grade and high school tasks?

Experience has taught me that it is better not to assign arithmetic for home work. Doubtless some present are familiar with the story of the boy who, by the united efforts of himself and parents, solved a difficult problem and went happily away to school. On his return the mother saw that his mood had changed. "Why, son, what's the matter; wasn't your solution correct?" "Oh no, we left out two 'ands' and a 'therefore' and teacher gave me zero." Fortunately we are more than a decade beyond the day of good old Dr. Brooks and his 'ands' and 'therefores' but too often the mistaken kindness of home helps in the solving of problems defeats the principal aims of arithmetical work—perseverance and independent thinking. Spelling and physiology, or reading and history assigned for home work, seem to give best results. Occasionally the will come pleadingly to a teacher, an intensely nervous little girl or a boy with high forehead and brilliant eyes, asking for the privilege of taking home all his books. Now what is to be done? This, in my judgment, is where the parents should be warned of the danger of overstudy; but I have found that parental pride in the possession of a precocious child is very strong and does not always take kindly to the warning. Even a hint from the family physician, at the teacher's suggestion, does not have any appreciable effect. However, parents may take comfort in the fact that the majority of boys in our grammar grades do not overstudy either at home or at school, of their own volition.

As each class is promoted to my room I try to encourage the children to do their home work in the morning, rather than in the evening and some respond. Who does not deplore the prevalence of defective eyesight among children? Have we not read again and again that the light should fall upon the book or paper over the left shoulder? Are we careful to see that this rule is obeyed? About a year ago a famous oculist told me that teachers and pupils are burning their eyesight out working by artificial light. Again, is it not true that better work can be done when body and mind are rested? The old adage, "Early to bed and early to rise, makes men healthy, and wealthy and wise," is just as true today as when first said, many years ago. Is there not too much

"turning of night into day" for the ultimate good of children? A child in bed by half-past eight should not have to be called more than once, at half-past six, to arise and prepare his lessons. By so doing he will be acquiring the habit of early rising—a great help toward punctuality which is undoubtedly one of the essentials to success in whatever vocation he may engage. There are men who always fail in whatever they undertake, simply because they are always behind time. Dear friends, we are all working for the same end—the happiness and future well-being of the child; let me repeat, "When the heart of the home is in league with the school it is well with the child."

Bonus For Powder Makers

The Atlas Powder Company on Friday announced a distribution of extra profits of the current year with its employees to be made during December and also issued a statement to the effect that employees in all its plants had been put on an eight-hour day basis. Fatal Gunning Accident

Frank Rust, aged 18 years, son of a blacksmith at Dover, the first victim of the gunning season, died at Delaware Hospital on Sunday of blood poisoning resulting from a charge of shot wounding him in the right leg just above the knee on Wednesday last. Young Rust, Maurice and Frank Hartnett and Irving Boggs, three Dover youths, left in an automobile on Wednesday to hunt squirrels about five miles from town. One of the party tripped in a thicket and his gun was discharged, the load entering Rust's leg. He lost much blood and was sent to the hospital for treatment.

May Enlarge Big Building

Enlargements of the big du Pont building in Wilmington by extension along Eleventh street to Orange and along Orange to the Y. M. C. A. property is reported as likely upon reorganization of the powder company. With the extension the building will occupy nearly two entire city blocks, forming one of the largest office structures to be found anywhere. Efforts are making for the widening of Orange street from Tenth to Eleventh.

FALSE VIEWS OF COURAGE

Ideas Expressed By Medical Men

"What is true courage?" asks "The American Journal of Clinical Medicine," and answers that the world's estimate of courage is superficial and silly.

"Highest in the world's scale of heroism," it says, "is the cool, careless audacity that marches up to the mouth of the cannon with a flower in its cap and a frivolous song on its lips, as serene as on parade. Such bravery is really the very lowest in the scale, if indeed it be in the scale at all, except in the sense that zero is a part of the scale."

"It is not courage at all, but sheer lack of sensibility, either from ignorance or from accustoming. It is in quality the same mental attitude in which the ignorant, impassive mine worker walks around in the fire damps, and when they explode he, too, becomes a popular hero."

"Next highest in the world's gauge—next lowest in the true scale—is the courage that dares a quick danger in a sudden emergency. In itself this is hardly a more genuine brand of courage than the first, except that it involves a more or less unselfish disavowal of the man previous to the demand that is made on him. Even so, it is more a matter of habit than of quality. The fact that there is no time to count the cost robs it of any deliberate merit."

"Many a man, in fact, is surprised into a heroism which is really no part of him. Certainly, it is no high grade of courage. Rather, let us say, it is a negative sort of quality, to which if a man does not respond on demand we conclude there is some positively quality of poltroonery about him."

"Still lower in the world's estimation—still higher in actual worth—is the courage which calmly and deliberately holds its course of duty in the face of almost certain calamity and misfortune, the quiet resolution to meet one's fate in the face of foregone disaster and disappointment, the steadfast setting of one's face to go to Jerusalem."

"Of all forms of heroism none will so surely win the love and confidence of human hearts, which is worth a hundred times the admiration of human minds, than this."

"Higher yet in the true scale—lower yet in the popular gauge—is the courage that sustains itself, as it were, upon nothing but its own unconquerable stamina."

"The man who, though his fights be all defeats, still fights, who, though he has been a failure in the past and knows himself (as many a keenly sensitive man knows himself) to be a failure and is doomed to be a failure for the rest of his life, rises patiently and indomitably every morning to face the inevitable defeat of the day with equanimity and sweetness—there is a courage, my master, of which the kings and victors of the earth are not capable."

"But there is a yet higher quality of courage, the highest of all in the true scale, but so little esteemed in the popular mind that it will hardly be accorded a place in the scale at all unless, as I said in respect of the first type, to be zero is to be a part of the gauge."

"It is the courage of cowardice, the bravery of the man who is afraid, but who in mortal funk and abject fear, with throbbing heart and sweating brow, forces himself to do the thing from which he shrinks. This which the world sneers at as cowardice is the highest courage of all. In fact, it is the only true courage, for it sets all the fears and terrors that the powers of darkness can bring upon him."

State Camp P. O. S. Of A.

The State Camp of P. O. S. of A. for Delaware held its eleventh annual session in Seaford last week, Past President Samuel C. Wells, of Pennsylvania gave a stirring address on the work of the order and Rev. Dr. Forest E. Dager of Philadelphia, another forcible one, entitled "Getting There." The statistical report for the year showed a total of 31 organized camps, a gain of two for the year, with 2267 members, a gain of 61 for the year. The receipts for the year totalled $19,722.75 and expenditures, $18,027.73, for all the camps. Sentiment favored the placing of the order's memorial tablet to Caesar Rodney in the State Capitol at Dover. Officers were chosen as follows: State President, Joseph W. Barbour; Woodside; State Vice-President, Lewis W. Colmery, Union; Master of Forms, E. Y. Williams, Kenton; Treasurer, George E. Auster-muhl, Wilmington; Secretary, Thomas F. Duped By Slick Artist

Young men of Milford welcomed the appearance of Professor Thomas of New York, who recently canvassed the town for students of dancing, agreeing to perfect them in all the up-to-date features of the art for the modest fee of $10 for 20 lessons, paid in advance. He secured pupils, female as well as male, and a goodly number of fees. To one pupil he confided that he had been quite successful in another town. The pupil 'phoned a friend there and got the tip that the professor had skipped the town with fees but without service. The pupil demanded and got his $10 but before he could post others of the class the professor flitted away.

Not long after his acquisition by the celebrated breeding establishment his fame began to spread thruout the length and breadth of the Berkshire world and the papers have recently announced that Mr. C. H. Carter of Whitguern Farm, West Chester, Pa., has just purchased him for $1600. This sale makes the Duke of Sussex 6th the highest priced living pig of any breed. His individuality and his success as a sire is an illustration of what is possible in the breeding of pigs when care is used in selecting breeding stock and in their development. Delaware has the credit of breeding and developing the greatest pig of his time.

DEATH OF "COLONEL"

Leaves Estate To K. A. Boys

George Washington Hall, colored, for a number of years manager of the Kappa Alpha fraternity house, died in a Philadelphia hospital last Friday. Hall was an unusual character, who has many times proved his devotion to the boys of the fraternity. "Colonel," as they fondly called him, was raised in Dover by the late Alden B. Richardson and wife, parents of ex-United States Senator Harry A. Richardson, and was a trusted servant of the family. He remained in Dover for several years after the death of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, before coming to the Newark fraternity.

Hall left full directions about his funeral, which was held from the undertaking rooms of W. L. Pritchett, Dover, on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. All colored people were barred, white people only being admitted. Rev. Benjamin Fish Thompson, rector of Christ P. E. Church, Dover, had charge of the services, and interment was made in Croker's cemetery, in the northern part of the town. According to the wish and will of the deceased the body will not lie under ground, but will be placed in a slate vault, weighing several hundred pounds, which will be buried in the ground sufficiently to cover the casket in which his body will be encased.

Members of the college fraternity will attend the funeral and will act as pallbearers.

Having accumulated some little wealth, about $5000, Hall willed the same to a member of the fraternity, who has practically made all the arrangements for the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Richardson each left a small bequest to Hall, because of his long and faithful services to the family.

STATE FAIR BEST EVER

Record Breaking Crowds Encourage Management

The seventeenth annual Delaware State Fair opened on Monday at the Wawaset Driving Park on Monday, and despite intermittent showers during the afternoon a record-breaking first day crowd was on hand to appreciate the biggest, best, and brightest fair that the local association has ever known. Although the exact figures were not given, it is believed that over nine thousand persons visited the grounds during the day. There were no special features on the opening day. The horse racing started on Tuesday when there were also special features for the children. It is estimated that 10,000 were admitted free to the grounds.

One of the feature attractions is undoubtedly the Krause Greater Shows, which the crowds on the grounds patronize in great numbers. The night fair on Monday and Tuesday evenings proved that the innovation was well-favored in the minds of the attending public.

The fireworks sent off from the oval have proved popular. The crowds lingered around, and business on the ground was at a standstill during the exhibition. The illumination was artistic and beautiful and several of the later inventions in pyrotechnics were introduced for the first time in Wilmington. The free vaudeville show and band concert at the grand stand was another welcome attraction. These performers held the crowds in that section of the park throughout the greater part of the evening.

The fair management should be congratulated upon the forethought and pains they have taken to protect and care for the visitors at the grounds. One of the new features is the turnstile gates at the entrance. Instead of the patrons purchasing the usual tickets at the gate, fifty-cent registering turnstiles have been installed. It is necessary for all persons entering on paid admission to deposit a fifty-cent piece to work the mechanism of the gates and gain admission.

The authorities have cornered the half dollar market of Wilmington to accommodate the expected crowds at the change windows. Although the supply held out on Monday it is thought that on the big days that money of that particular species might become scarce and as a consequence, the silver supply of Philadelphia is being called into use. This machine will also assist the management in finding the total attendance for the days.

Among interesting booths is that of the Equal Suffrage booth, located near the Industrial Building. The booth is resplendent in decorations of yellow suffrage pennants and other suffrage paraphernalia.

The speaker during the afternoon was Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles. Those receiving during the day were Mrs. John A. Cranston, Miss Ella Johnson, Miss Mary R. de Vou, Mrs. Annie Arniel, Mrs. Robert H. Richards, Mrs. John F. Richards, Mrs. Frank Stirlith, Mrs. Mary Brown, and Mrs. James Cranston. Yellow roses, "votes for women" fans and streamers were sold at the booth. A large number of visitors registered at the booth.

The Y. W. C. A. restaurant and rest tent, near the suffrage tent, was well patronized throughout the day. Lunches were served at all hours and a hot dinner is served daily between the hours of 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. The women in charge include Mrs. L. G. Thompson, Mrs. W. S. Prickett, Mrs. Samuel Holmes, Mrs. E. J. Humes, Mrs. W. B. Thompson, Miss Mabel Fowler, Mrs. Harry Frazier, Mrs. I. W. Phillips, Mrs. Cramer, Miss Laura Truss, Mrs. S. J. Dennison, Miss Annie Hilles, Mrs. S. C. Hill, Miss Clara Kobold, Mrs. B. C. Grommon, Mrs. T. B. Brown, Mrs. Bertha Pierce.

Next to the Y. W. C. A. tent is the Community Centers tent, which is in charge of Miss Irene Earll, head of Hagley Community House. Under the auspices of the Mothers' Club of Hagley, a rest tent is being conducted in connection with the community center exhibit. This tent is for mothers and babies and is attractively fitted up with cots and easy chairs.

The Delaware Association of College Women have a display located in the Industrial Building which is attracting considerable attention. There is exhibited a model of the Moulthrop movable and adjustable school chair and a Kundtz adjustable desk. The school children seemed much interested in the exhibit and were anxious to try the new desk. Miss Jeanette Eckman and Miss Miriam Webb were in charge of the booth yesterday. On the walls were charts explaining the value of fresh air and proper temperature. A jacketed stove that prevents fires is another new and desirable feature.

Aside from the attractions which have been named there are many others of interest to the women folks. The exhibits of merchants showing new appliances for house work and new and desirable articles of furniture was a revelation to many in home economy.

W. H. M. S. Meeting

The Newark auxiliary of the W. H. M. S. of the M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. A. E. Grantham Friday afternoon, Sept. 10th, at 2:30 o'clock.

Two Views Of It

Some one has advanced the opinion that the letter "e" is the most unfortunate letter in the English alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time. For some reason he overlooked the fortunes of the letter, so we call his attention to the fact "e" is never in war and always in peace. It is the beginning of existence, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there could be no editors, devils or news.

Letter From Travelers In West

Interesting letters have been received by Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Pollard, from their daughter, Miss Helen Pollard, and their son, R. M.

Pollard, who are enjoying a trip through the West. Extracts from the letters follow:

(From Miss Helen, San Antonio, Texas, August 28)

"We are six hours late as the recent flood washed all over the branch line, which made the ground very soft, so that we just crawl along. * * * We see all sorts of things growing, rice, cotton, sugar-cane, and many varieties of palms. We crossed the Mississippi on a big steel ferry, for about three-fourths of a mile. Two tugs towed us over. Talk about mud! The water in the river is so muddy that you can see the mud floating on the surface. We passed some sulphur mines yesterday. Stopped at Atlanta, Montgomery, and San Antonio. The last named has a very pretty station, surrounded by palms. We see almost no people except Mexicans."

(From R. M. Pollard, On Board Train, August 30)

"Yesterday we passed through 'Castle-Can-You,' through which the 'Devil's River' runs. It certainly seems as if human hands must have carved out the walls of this canon. We saw great caves where wild-cats live and snakes stay in winter. The cliffs of the canon were so near the train I could almost touch them. The wind was so strong, that blowing continuously as it did, caused my face to become chapped and sore."

"We reached El Paso at five, this a. m. About one thousand feet from the station we got into the heart of the mountains. We are at an elevation of five thousand feet now. We have had very little hot weather since leaving New Orleans. It was so cold this morning that I had to have an extra blanket on my berth. We made our first stop in New Mexico, about half an hour ago, at Denning. Our time changed an hour at Atlanta, and another at El Paso, so that with you it is 9:50."

WHAT CONSTITUTES WEALTH?

A Persian Philosopher—who albeit a Philosopher was very wise in the things of this world—when asked as to what constituted wealth replied: "To constitute wealth there must be three gifts. No. 1, Money. No. 2, More Money. No. 3, Still More Money." There is more in this than appears to the casual eye. First, let us say, open a Bank Account at The Newark Trust & Safe Deposit Co. with a little Money. Add to it and you will have More Money. Continue adding to it and you will have Still More Money—and before you know it, you have WEALTH.

WEDDINGS

Bland-Dawson

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bland, Shady Brook Farm, when their daughter, Miss Adelta Wakefield was given in marriage to Mr. Earl Frampton Dawson, of Newark. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Roberts, pastor of the Newark M. E. Church. The living room where the wedding party assembled was beautifully trimmed with ferns, white blossoming vines and hydrangeas, in keeping with a green and white color effect. The wedding march was played by Mr. William Bland, brother of the bride.

The bride wore a handsomely embroidered gown of white voile, with veil, held in place by sprays of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a shower of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Marian Hartis of Newport, the maid of honor, in a dainty frock of white batiste, carried a bouquet of pink gladiolus. Miss Edna Campbell, bridesmaid, also wore white batiste, and carried a bouquet of white asters. Mr. William Van Hickle, of Philadelphia, acted as best man. Roberta Bland and Helen Viehl made charming little ribbon bearers, and Verna Bland, flower girl. A reception followed the ceremony after which Mr. and Mrs. Dawson left for an automobile trip, expecting to spend Wednesday in Washington. Many beautiful gifts were received by the happy couple.

Mr. Dawson holds a responsible position with the Continental Fibre Company. The bride and groom will be at home to their friends on Choate street, after October first.

Good Reports From Old Friend

The following clipping is from the Oxford News, (Pa.), dated September 8, 1915:

The many friends of James Patterson McClurg will be interested to know that he is at present the Republican candidate for the legislature from his district in the city of Baltimore, Md.

"Pat" has a host of friends in the vicinity of Oxford and Lincoln, where he spent his boyhood days as well as in Newark, where he graduated from Delaware College before entering the legal profession in Baltimore.

Here is another Oxford boy coming to the front against strong opposition in an over-crowded profession in a big city, all of which goes to prove that it is our country boys who get there every time.

Supper Date Announced

Ladies of the Newark M. E. Church will hold their annual poultry supper in the banquet hall of the Newark Opera House on November fourth.

Return From Trip West

Professor and Mrs. T. F. Manns and family returned Friday after an extended visit with relatives in North Dakota and Minnesota. Mrs. Manns and the children left early in June, for the former's home, where they were called by the illness of Mrs. Manns' mother. The summer has been spent with relatives in the West.

Mrs. Manns in speaking of her trip today commented upon the great change in climate from which she suffered the latter part of last week. The party came direct from Duluth, Minnesota, where they spent several weeks on a delightful highland overlooking Lake Superior. Mrs. Manns also referred to the bumper grain crops in the Dakotas—the largest in many years. Yields of fifty bushels of barley and forty bushels of wheat to the acre, are heard of frequently. Professor Manns joined his family at Duluth several weeks ago, and accompanied them on the return trip.

Newark broken even in a double header with Parkside on Saturday, losing the first game 1 to 0, and winning the second 4 to 1. "Buck" Hoch was on the mound for Newark in the first game and pitched his usual good game, but the team failed to hit back of him. At that Hoch held Parkside safe until the ninth inning when they scored one run and won the game. Pete Coffin pitched a fine game for Parkside.

In the second game Hogan topped with Parkside all the way and Newark easily won out by the score of 4 to 1. He did not allow a hit until the eighth inning and fanned 13 men. The southpaw has had Parkside's goat all season and if the other teams had been as easy for him, Newark would be in the fight for the pennant.

Elk Mills Wins Double Header

The great all-around work of Hoffecker was responsible for a double victory for Elk Mills over Traction Co. Saturday afternoon. Hoffecker pitched the first game and held Traction Co. to four hits. He played shortstop the second game and his fielding and hitting was a feature. In the two games Hoffecker scored two runs, made five hits and accepted 24 chances without an error. Jimmy Huston's batting was one of the features of the second game. Bobby Wallace pitched fine ball for Traction Co. in the second game but his support was ragged. The score by innings:

Continental made a good start towards the independent championship of New Castle County, Saturday morning when they defeated Wilder A. C. by the score of 3 to 0. The game was featured by the fine pitching of Crow who allowed but three scattered hits and fanned seventeen men. Crow made what is thought to be a local record when he fanned eight men straight. He struck out the last man to face him in the second, three in the third, three in the fourth and the first man up in the fifth.

Continental won by landing on Farley in the fourth inning. Four hits, a pass and an error brought in three runs in this inning. With the exception of the fourth Farley also pitched air tight ball. Fast fielding back of Crow and especially three double plays got him out of some tight places. The score follows:

Del-Mar League Season Ends This Week

With the games scheduled for Saturday the Delaware-Maryland League baseball season will end. It may be possible that Parkside and New Castle will have to play an extra game to decide the pennant winner. In the games on last Saturday Newark split with Parkside and Elkton split with New Castle which leaves the teams in exactly the same position as before these games were played. New Castle leading by one game. Parkside is scheduled to play the final game of the season at New Castle on Saturday and if they should win it will tie the two teams. In case New Castle wins, however, it will settle the race.

By a winning streak during the past several weeks Elkton has drawn away from the other three tail end teams, namely Newark, Elk Mills, and Traction Co., and is practically sure of third place in the race. Elk Mills by winning a double header on Saturday managed to tie Newark for the cellar position with Traction Co. only half a game ahead of them. Newark is to play Elk Mills a double header here on Saturday and the last place will depend on the result of these games.

Elk Mills In The Cellar

The fact that Elk Mills played a game on Labor Day with Parkside and was defeated 6 to 0, places that club in last place. New Castle also defeated Traction Co. Monday afternoon and thereby the leaders are still one game ahead of Parkside. The score by innings of the Elk Mills game follows:

Elk Mills
Parkside	0 2 0 0 0 3 1 0 x-6	8 1

Batteries: Elk Mills—Hoffecker and Thomas; Parkside—Coffin and Austin.

Leaders Defeat Traction Co.

Ingram was strong against Traction Co. on Monday and New Castle won out 5 to 3. The score by innings follows:

Traction Co.
Traction Co.	1 0 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 3	8 2
New Castle	0 0 0 0 0 2 2 1 x-5	6 4

Batteries: Traction Co.—West and Huston; New Castle—Ingram and Cobb.

Fight For Independent Championship

It promises to be a pretty fight between Continental, East End, Delaware Hard Fibre, Wilder, Chesbrook, and Tremont for the Independent Championship of New Castle County. Continental got away to a good start on Saturday by defeating Wilder in the first of the series for the championship. Tremont was scheduled to play here Monday morning but got "cold feet." The manager of the team cancelled the game over the telephone and admitted that his club had no chance against Continental. Delaware Hard Fibre was scheduled for Monday afternoon but the game had to be called off because of rain.

The standing of the clubs in the fight for the championship follows:

Delaware Hard Fibre	2	0	1000
Continental	1	0	1000
East End	1	0	1000
Wilder	0	1	0000
Tremont	0	1	0000
Chesbrook	0	2	0000

Double Deck Barn Destroyed

Fire thought to have been caused by tramps smoking or cooking, early on Friday morning destroyed the large double deck barn on the farm of Homer H. Jeffers, in the Yorklyn section, with many tons of hay and straw and 1000 bushels of wheat. Neighbors rallied and saved the thoroughbred cattle. Three horses were taken back into the flames but were finally secured after severe scorching. The dwelling was saved by the hard work of volunteers. The loss is said to be partly covered by insurance.

Blow On Head Proves Fatal

The crew of a B. & O. R. R. shift engine early on Sunday morning found Thomas McMonigle, 33 years old, of 1412 du Pont street lying senseless along the tracks at the Shallockcross avenue crossing in Wilmington. On his head was a wound, made apparently by a blunt instrument. He was taken to Delaware Hospital where he died without regaining consciousness. A small amount of money was found in his pockets. It was thought at first that he might have been struck by a passing train but it is possible that he was attacked by highwaymen or was hurt in a quarrel.

Medical Examinations as Preventive

Michigan's Plan For Tuberculosis Day

Michigan has recently had a state-wide observance of "Tuberculosis Day" as the result of a proclamation issued by Woodbridge N. Ferris, governor of the State, in which referring to the nature of the disease, he emphasizes the need of detecting the plague in its early stages, and requests "all physicians engaged in the practice of medicine, to examine any who present themselves, warning any who have symptoms to take precautions before it is too late."

Practically all the physicians of the State responded to the appeal, remaining in their offices throughout the special day designated, and examining without charge, or any obligation whatever, all those who presented themselves.

The habit of going to a physician at stated intervals to be examined before the malady is beyond remedy, just as one goes to his dentist, to keep the destructive decay from ruining the tooth unawares, seems a splendid one to cultivate. The life insurance companies have been quick to catch the wisdom of the plan and are already working upon schemes to provide free physical examinations for their policy-holders at least once a year. There are 20,000,000 policy holders in this country, yet the life insurance companies have figured that the expenditure of $100,000,000 (a hundred millions of dollars) every year on doctor's examinations would amply repay them. These examinations would detect tendencies to disease before these tendencies become set. They would detect the beginning of disease while yet it could be easily eradicated. And thus life would be extended. The object of the life insurance companies is, of course, purely mercenary. By extending the life of the policy holder the companies collect more premiums. But it is important to notice that the companies do not plan to extend life by treating the man after he falls sick. And examinations are thus authoritatively recognized as being preventive.

It isn't the sick man who profits so much by such examination as the well man. That is, the apparently well man. When the engine breaks down a very cursory examination will reveal the cause. But when the engine is apparently whole, it may really be on the verge of a breakdown. A nut may be loosened to the last thread. A bolt may be cracked. A sudden jar or strain may bring about an engine failure. It is engineering wisdom to make examination of the engine to detect such defects before they have time to progress to the point of breakdown.

The body is our physical engine. It is our automobile, our locomotive, carrying us about the streets. It is our feed mill, grinding up our food. It is our chemical laboratory wherein the elements of nutriment in the food are transmuted to blood and strength. It is our pumping station, carrying the streams of blood irrigation to all parts of the body. It is our faning mill, taking air through the nostrils and lungs for the purification of our system, carrying off in fluids and solids the poisonous waste of this physical factory wherein are produced the essentials of life and efficiency.

Consider what a complicated engine your body is and then consider how little care you give it. You stoke it with food, but is that all there is of good engineering? You let it run down a little at night, you wipe off its outer parts in bathing—but what do you know about its condition otherwise?

The soldier will give his first care to the horse which carries him. The locomotive engineer will go carefully over every part of his engine before taking it out on a run, and after the journey it will be carefully examined in the roundhouse again. But this body, which must carry us through every hour of every day for 50 or 60 or 70 years—we too often think it can get on without particular attention!

When, through our inattention and lack of knowledge, a part rasps and grates and jars so as to give us pain, when we have forced the special box constructed for her on the parade ground to give many a wee youngster the happiest moment of its life through the bestowal of a smile, a hand clasp or a kiss.

In a letter of Mayor Clarence E. F. Hetrick of Asbury Park, in which he invited Miss Pickford to be the city's guest of honor on this occasion he wrote: "Believing Miss Pickford to be the idol of the children as well as of the grown-up people of the world, it affords me great pleasure to invite her to be present at the silver jubilee of the children, as the guest of the city of Asbury Park." From the moment of her arrival at the resort until the time of her departure on Thursday morning Miss Pickford was the center of vast crowds of cheering and applauding admirers.

IN SUMMER TIME

Many people suffer from EYE STRAIN caused by the intense brightness of the sun, more particularly when driving or on the water. Frequently colored glasses (of which we have a most complete stock) will give relief—but in other cases it is necessary to have glasses made to correct some error of the eyes that cannot endure the increased strain. In either case consult our Optometrists, they'll advise you conscientiously.

Plan State Convention

The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Delaware Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Harrington, September 22, 23, and 24. The program for the convention was arranged a short time ago at a meeting held at the home of the State W. C. T. U. recording secretary, Miss Levenia P. Lynch, Mt. Pleasant. The speaker at the two evening meetings will be Daniel A. Poling, secretary of the Society of Christian Endeavor and Miss Belle Kearney of Mississippi, noted traveler and lecturer. The address of the first evening will be preceded by a demonstration by the Young People's branch of Harrington, composed of 90 members.

Rural Schools

And The State

Before children from the rural district schools can enter the graded schools in the towns, under a new law they must pass examinations prescribed by the State Board of Education. According to the Milford Chronicle, of the 49 children in Kent county who have just taken this examination only eleven passed with an average of seventy-nine. If the passing point had been lowered to seventy only six more children would have been added to the list of eligibles.

The State pays twenty cents a day for each day of attendance for the rural children at the town schools. Under this system the people of the rural districts have been relieved of the additional expense of providing for the instruction of their children in the town schools.

Formerly no examinations were required. But under the new law the State has a protection. Rural children may go to the town schools and be beneficiaries of the bounty of the state, but they must pass examinations showing that they are qualified to receive such instruction. Under the old method it can be readily seen that there was little incentive to keep the standard of the rural schools as high as they should be. In fact, according to the Chronicle, many of the taxpayers in the rural districts did not seem to care what sort of standard was maintained in the country schools. They could shift the advanced education of their children upon the shoulders of an all too willing State. It was an easy process by which these rural taxpayers were relieved of the burdens of taxation that they should carry.

The examinations have disclosed as the Chronicle points out, the low standard in the rural school system. They have merely confirmed what has long been known by those who have kept informed concerning the rural schools. It is a short-sighted policy, we think, this neglect of the rural schools.

If parents in the rural districts had the welfare of their children at heart, as they should have regarding their education, they would want the country schools to be much better, even if the education of the children should cease when they left the country schools. Wilmington Morning News.

TRAINING IN COMMUNITY CIVICS

Specialist In The Field In Dealware

At the meeting of the Department of Superintendents, in Cincinnati, Superintendent Scott, of the Wilmington public schools, succeeded in interesting United States Commissioner of Education Dr. P. P. Claxton in the educational needs of Wilmington and Delaware and in securing his promise of aid from the Federal government in furthering the project in which Superintendent Scott was especially interested. The particular lines along which cooperation was solicited were the home and school garden movement, the neighborhood survey and the extension of civics instruction through the grades. It has long been felt by those having the work in charge and by those who have been watching it closely from the outside that the work of the civics department of the Wilmington High School should be preceded by citizenship training in every grade of the system. To make this possible, Superintendent Scott and Governor Miller, together with Professor Harry Hayward, of Delaware College, and Dr. Charles A. Wagner, state commissioner of education, were appointed a committee representing the educational interests of the state to secure the services of Dr. Arthur T. Dunne, a specialist in civics instruction in the Bureau of Education, for Wilmington and the State. In order to bring Dr. Dunne here it was necessary to raise locally the sum of $1,500 to complete the fund of $4,000 required for the work. This amount has been secured and Dr. Dunne is already in the field ready to take up the installation of the work in the city schools and throughout the rural schools.

Dr. Dunne will outline a course of children of all ages in our schools, giving the younger of them an appreciation more especially of the meaning of community life and their relation to their environment and everything that goes to make up their social welfare. To make children sensitive to governmental control through an understanding of the meaning of government is one of the primary objects of community civics. Dr. Dunne will meet the Wilmington teachers and those in the rural schools in groups and inaugurate the movement. Wherever possible teachers with special aptitude and interest for the work will be selected. There will be public meetings at which the teachers and patrons of the schools will be asked to hear Dr. Dunne discuss the possibilities and future of the work in Delaware. It is expected that one of these meetings will be held under the auspices of the Civics Alumni Association of the Wilmington High School.

In the lower grades no textbooks will be used. The teachers will make civics one of the vital school subjects and correlate it in as many ways as possible with every other subject in the curriculum. Dr. Dunne has already conducted the course he proposes to introduce here in the schools of Indianapolis with splendid results.

With the financial help of the National Bureau of Education, the National Municipal League and of Governor Miller, this course is now available for every child in the public schools of the State. Wilmington is proud not only of having done the pioneer work in this important field in Delaware, but also of Superintendent Scott's part in securing the extension of civics instruction throughout the city and state systems by soliciting help from the Bureau of Education toward that end. A number of graduates of the civics department of the Wilmington High School are now teaching in the county schools, and wherever these young women are to be found Dr. Dunne will find it an easy matter to start the course he projects.

With so many failures at the beginning of the new year, it is extremely gratifying to Superintendent Scott to know that nothing is to interfere with his ambition and plans for the extension of citizenship training into the schools in which he is especially interested and widely over the entire State.

THE EYE is the most delicate, most used and most abused organ in the body. It is nearly spherical in shape and is composed of 3 envelopes or coats, averaging one-twentieth of an inch in thickness, with three fluids or humors filling same.

Array of light proceeding from an object to the eye passes through the CORNEA No. 1, AQUEOUS HUMOR No. 2, CRYSTALLINE LENS No. 3, and VITREOUS HUMOR No. 4 before it reaches the RETINA No. 5 on which it forms the image, which is conveyed to the brain by the OPTIC NERVE No. 6.

The media in the normal eye form a nearly perfect lens corrected for color and with the assistance of the IRIS No. 14 for spherical aberration.

Smith and The Post Delivery Service

Some day when the history of Civilization is written, the name of SMITH will be conspicuous among the leaders of progress. Smith is synonymous with pioneer. In reading the Encyclopedia or the World's Who's Who, you will find ADAM Smith. From Adam down to our own John Smith of Pocahontas fame, who declared that he who does not work shall not eat, the Smiths have played an important work in the world. If the Smiths, Schmits, and Smythes were to band together against the U. S., we would need right well to "prepare." But the Smiths are loyal. Our Country has the greatest army of Smiths in the world. It's the Smiths, not the DeHavens, Beauchamps, et al, that have made this country what it is. Hail to the Smiths!

A village without a Smith family stands no show in a Republican form of Government for a Post Office.

THE NEWARK POST has a SMITH. Perhaps that's one reason for its increasing business. He has had a share in it, I assure you. And that's what this story is about.

Norris Smith of the Post Organization is a real Smith. He works. Never out of a job but once. Then he asked for something to do,—said he didn't like to do "nothin'." Our Smith is known as Norris in the Family Bible, but socially, I believe, he is called "Lefty." Just why is not generally known.

Norris blew in here over a year ago, shy, polite, walking around with his hat under his arm. That, understand, was over a year ago. Step in and see him now. Hear him talk,—"galley's," "leads," "pica," "6 point reglet," "out of register,"—he has learned a new language, practical, scientific. He has an eye for color, quick to catch a battered slug,—a printer in the making. He can wash up a press quicker, and get more ink on his face than any boy that ever "kicked" a press since the days of Franklin. But here's the point,—he has the care of the machinery,—and it's clean. He's on to his job and in for a raise in his envelope. With this he has won the good will of the Shop and Office. Everybody banks on Norris. Why shouldn't they? He's a Smith.

Aside from his duties in the Shop he is well read in his side lines. Jess Willard and Norris are confidential friends, and if Newark Baseball Team would listen to him—well, they couldn't do much worse.

The delivery of printing on time is one of the policies of The Post. Chief of Deliveries is Norris Smith. Leaving out one 15-minute side trip to the Circus, Lefty has always delivered the goods and returned ahead of the schedule.

Norris with his Smith-Packard is on the job. No need to call here with your printing. Just 'phone. We'll put it up to Smith. He'll be there in a minute.

The Land Of By-and-By

There is a land, as I've heard tell, where nothing's ever done; the people who therein do dwell, no work have yet begun. "Tomorrow" is the watchword there, and "Pretty soon" the cry—the name of this unpleasant land?—the Land of By-and-By.

Procrastination there is king; he rules with a high hand, but makes no laws or anything to benefit the land. The lessons they are never learned—no use to question why; the chores are left unfinished in the Land of By-and-By.

And if YOU put things off and say you'll do them pretty soon, and shirk your tasks from day to day, perhaps some afternoon they'll take YOU off to this bad land—no friend will heed your cry—and there is no Tomorrow in the Land of By-and-By.
