COUNCIL VOTES EARLY START ON STREET PROGRAM

Will Publish Notice To Bidders Within Three Weeks, Will Start Work On Chapel Street; Other Streets Will Be Improved In Their Turn

$40,000 AVAILABLE

At a meeting of the Council of Newark, held Monday night, it was decided to begin at once on the street building program and complete as much of it as possible this year. Mr. M. H. Sigmund was appointed town engineer to prepare plans and specifications of the work to be done, and to supervise and inspect the work. Advertisements for bids will be released, probably within three weeks. The Council estimated that it would have at least $40,000 to expend on street improvement work this year. It is planned to curb and gutter all unimproved streets and to then resurface them in their turn as funds are available. It was decided to start with South Chapel streets as the first step in the program, and then complete the curbing and guttering on other streets as long as the weather is favorable. Besides the curbing and guttering, it will be necessary to resurface a portion of South Chapel street. It is expected that one more street, probably Kells avenue, will be finished before cold weather. It was reported to the Council that it would be necessary to change the course of a water main which runs through a property owned by the National Vulcanized Fibre Company. The National Company is going to build a settling pond on this property, and this will interfere with the main. It was intimated that the National Company would bear a portion of the expense of changing the main. Councilmen Haney and Hubert reported on an inspection trip of the sewer system. They reported every-

FIND BIG STILL NEAR IRON HILL

Federal Agents Raid Morgan Farm, Find Complete Liquor Plant, Take Three Prisoners

A 500 gallon still, one of the largest ever found in this state, and three prisoners were taken yesterday afternoon by Federal prohibition agents, on a raid on a farm near Iron Hill. The prisoners were Charles F. Morgan, who is said to own the farm, James Maureoni and James Nash. The latter two are aliens. The three were taken before United States Commissioner Polk, and released in $500 bond each, on charges of manufacture and possession of illicit liquor.

In addition to the still which was found in a barn building, the agents recovered 125 gallons of alleged rum and several hundred gallons of wash. The officers surrounded the building and creeping in surprised the three men working the still. The building is a wood structure, 80 feet long and 50 feet wide. The place, according to George A. Hill, prohibition inspector for Delaware, had been a chicken house before it was converted to a distillery. The plant was well fitted up for the manufacture of whiskey, with force pumps to wash away the pulp, and a ram to pump wash water from a nearby stream. After the raid a three ton truck was sent to the farm to haul away the contraband.

V. F. W. PLANS PICNIC

At the regular meeting, Tuesday night, of the J. Allison O'Daniel Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, plans were discussed for a picnic for the combined posts of the Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Women's Auxiliary. All members are urged to attend the meeting next Tuesday evening when the date of the picnic will be decided on. A representative will also be chosen to serve on the new Permanent Memorial Committee.

HARVEST HOME AUGUST 22

The annual Harvest Home of Ebenezer Church will be held in White's Grove on Thursday, August 22. Arrangements of program and the speakers will be made later.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY 2 MATCHES

Win Team Match From du Pont, Lose To Dover; Postpone President's Cup Finals

The Newark Country Club golf team played two matches on Saturday and Sunday, winning from du Pont Country Club, at du Pont, Saturday, 48 to 46, and losing to the Dover Country Club, Sunday, at Newark, 25 to 15. The Dover match was an impromptu affair. Both matches were on a point score basis. The Dover players apparently had a higher system of handicapping than applies at Newark, for every Newark player had to give strokes to his opponent.

Due to the wet weather and the team matches on the week-end, the finals in the President's Cup matches have been postponed to this coming Saturday. Amos Collins and P. F. Pie, Jr., will play for the coveted cup, and J. P. Armstrong and C. O. Houghton will fight it out for the prize in the second sixteen.

The summary of the Dover-Newark match is as follows:

ADD TO OFFICE BUILDING

James H. Hutchison, local contractor, has been awarded a contract to add a third floor to the office building of the Continental-Diamond Fibre Company. Work was started yesterday. It is expected that the contract will be completed within a period of two months.

Council Asks That Rags Be Kept From Sewer

The Council of Newark urgently requests that all residents of Newark refrain from allowing rags to be deposited into the sewer. Rags clog the pumps at the disposal plant and causing burning out of the costly engines which run the pumps. It is to the advantage of the taxpayers of Newark to see that this expensive practice is stopped.

RED MEN CLOSE CARNIVAL, SAT.

Big Prizes Awarded; Wilmington Man Wins Auto; Colorful Parade Lst Thursday

After suffering from inclement weather, the Red Men's Carnival closed, Saturday night, with a crowd that jammed the grounds to capacity. The big prize awards were made on that evening. John Bolen, of Wilmington, won the major prize, an Essex sedan. Mrs. Louise Mercer, of Chapel street, Newark was awarded the ground prize, a diamond ring.

Other prize winners were: Mrs. John Cordrey, Newark, breakfast room suite; Mabel E. Miller, Mendin-hall, dining room suite; Willard W. Bradley, Newark, rug; Ralph W. Barrow, Newark, fireside chair; Florence Buser, Newport, cedar chest.

RETURNS FROM CAMP

Second Lieutenant Martin L. Doordan, Infantry Reserve, will return to his home in Newark this week-end after concluding two weeks of active duty at Camp Dix, N. J. He was assigned to the 16th Infantry, Second Battalion and was stationed at Battalion Headquarters doing staff work. Lieutenant Doordan played an active part in the maneuvers of the First Division which were staged during his term of active duty. He is a graduate, 1929, of the University of Delaware.

JUNIOR SHORT COURSE CLOSSES

119 4-H Club Leaders Spend 5 Days At University; C. P. Hearn Awards Pure Bred Calf

The eleventh annual 4-H Club Short Course, sponsored by the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, was held from June 25 to June 29, at the University of Delaware, under the direction of Alex D. Cobb, Acting Director of Extension, assisted by the County Club Agents and Extension Specialists of the University Extension Service.

There were 119 4-H Club boys and girls from the state enrolled at the Short Course; these club members were awarded this trip because they were leaders in their clubs in their respective counties. Their expenses were paid by funds donated by the banks, business organizations and private citizens of Delaware who are interested in educating the farm boys and girls of the state in modern methods of agriculture.

An assembly was held each day for everyone and these assemblies were given over to lectures and talks by the instructors, then the boys and girls were grouped separately. The girls were taught methods in home-making and attended demonstrations and lectures given by the Home Demonstration Departments. Millinery demonstrations were given by Mrs. Helen McKinley, State Home Demonstration Agent, and Miss Mary Graham, Kent County Home Demonstration Agent, and each of the 65 girls attending the course made an attractive white felt hat which could be sold in Paris for $15.00, but costing the girls only 36 cents when they were completed.

Other demonstrations and lectures were given by Mrs. Kate Henley Daugherty, New Castle County Home Demonstration Agent, and Miss Pearl MacDonald, Extension Nutrition Specialist.

The boys were instructed in poultry management, culling and judging by Mr. H. S. Palmer, Extension Poultryman, for several periods during the week.

The boys and girls interested in dairying were given instructions in herd management and dairy cattle judging by G. M. Worrlow, New Castle County Club Agent and Assistant Director of the 4-H Club Short Course.

Friday morning the boys visited the Blue Hen Farm owned by Mr. C. P. Hearn. Mr. Hearn spent all morning with the group, taking them over the farm an inspecting his fine dairy herd. Wishing to do something to help the boys along their 4-H Club way, Mr. Hearn suggested that a dairy cattle judging contest should be held, and he offered as a prize to the winner of the contest, a fine pure bred Guernsey bull calf. The calf was awarded to Charles Simpler of Sussex county. The boys enjoyed their visit to the Blue Hen Farm and expressed their appreciation to Mr. Hearn for his interest and help in furthering the 4-H Club Work in the state.

Another new feature of the Short Course this year was a course of instruction in rope work which included all the different hitches, knots and splices which the farm boys find use for every day. This course was given by Mr. Ray Bender of the Animal Husbandry Department.

There were also hours for recreation and play, and every boy and girl at the Short Course enjoyed an hour each day in the University swimming pool. In the evenings the club members gave impromptu entertainments and the days were closed by vesper services.

The final assembly was held Friday evening, and the program was made up of stunts, plays, songs and other entertainment by the club members.

FRACTURES ARM, JAW

On Monday Charles Haigh suffered a fractured arm and a fractured jaw, when he fell from a scaffolding at the Continental-Diamond Company plant. On the same day Frank Porter received a crushed hand when a die punch struck it.

GIVE CONTRACT FOR ADDITION

J. G. Ferguson And Company Will Build Second Floor Of U. D. Engineering Building; Work To Start At Once

J. G. Ferguson and Company, of Hagerstown has been awarded the general contract for the construction of the second floor to the new engineering building of the University of Delaware. The bid was well under $110,000 appropriated for the addition by the last General Assembly. The first floor has been constructed under an appropriation voted by the 1926 Legislature.

The first floor of the structure where all the machinery and equipment is placed that will be used by engineering students for work in connection with their courses is completed and practically equipped. It will be possible to use most of the first floor at the beginning of college in September even while construction work on the two upper stories is going on.

This will give the engineering department of the University a modern building with modern appliances for instructional work, something that has been a great need for several years.

Ferguson and Company is to start work at once and complete the building as soon as possible.

The work of excavating for the $350,000 auditorium building to be known as Mitchell Hall and which is a gift from H. Rodney Sharp is progressing. The foundations are to be advanced far enough for the laying of the cornerstone at the convocation exercises in September.

D. M. C. ARRANGES NEW STEAMER SERVICE

In line with the program of broadening the travel services offered by the Delaware Motor Club, A. A. A. J. Warren Marshall, President, announced today that arrangements have been made to secure reservations for members on steamers plying the inland waterways and along the coast.

Mr. Marshall stated that the American Automobile Association, with which the local club is affiliated, has completed the arrangement with important steamship lines for this new travel service.

"There are many motorists," he continued, "who like to break their journey by a day or over-night trip by steamer, with the car safely stowed aboard. This can now be accomplished and details arranged at the same time they secure routing. The service is also extended to members regardless of whether they are taking their car."

The A. A. A. Club executive pointed out that arrangements for this additional service to club members have been made with the following lines:

Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Co., with service between Detroit and Buffalo, Detroit and Cleveland and between Detroit, Mackinaw Island, Saint Ignace and Chicago; Cleveland and Buffalo Transit Co., with service between Cleveland and Buffalo and Cleveland and Port Stanley; the Hudson River Night Line, serving New York, Albany and Troy, and the Colonial Navigation Company, operating between New York and Providence.

Mr. Marshall pointed out that travel by steamship is of particular advantage to the car owner desiring to reach a distant point in a limited space of time. "It means that the motorists can drive during the day and by taking the steamer at night, wake up 150 to 200 miles nearer his destination," he said, "and at the same time is enjoying the daily advantage of motoring."

WILL DISCUSS TOWN MEMORIAL PLANS JULY 12

General Meeting Called For That Date To Form Permanent Memorial Committee; Most Ideas Include Old Academy Building

FUNDS AVAILABLE

There will be a meeting on Friday, July 12, at 7:30, advanced time, in the American Legion Post room, Old Academy Building, to make definite plans for a permanent memorial for the soldier and sailor dead of the Town of Newark. All organizations, institutions and business houses in Newark are urged to send representatives to serve on a Permanent Memorial Committee. The meeting has been called by the Mayor's Memorial Day Committee.

There has been agitation for more than a year on the subject, and various organizations in town have already set aside funds to be used for such a purpose. This year it was decided at a public meeting that Memorial Day contributions be used as a nucleus of such a fund. Mr. J. E. Dougherty was elected temporary treasurer, and is receiving Memorial Day contributions. All organizations who have not as yet made their contributions are urged to do so before the meeting on July 12.

Various suggestions for a Permanent Memorial have been made, and most of them include the Old Academy building as the location of the memorial, inasmuch as it is the most historic spot and structure within the town limits. At the general meeting for Memorial Day, Mrs. Ernest Frazier, representing the Cooch's Bridge chapter, D. A. R., suggested that the building itself be named as a permanent memorial, and that funds collected be used to repair, renovate and maintain the building. Another plan was to have a memorial arch constructed in front of the Academy building.

The meeting on July 12 will be conducted by the Mayor's Memorial Day Committee, composed of Wayne Brewer, William Rupp and Herbert Henning.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS 30 DAYS

Clarence Weeks Resisted Arrest, Was Fined $200 And Was Unable To Pay

Clarence Weeks, 24 years old, of West Chester, Pa., was sentenced to 30 days in the New Castle County Workhouse, last Friday, by Magistrate Thompson. He had been fined $200 on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and was unable to meet the levy.

Weeks was arrested on Main street at midnight Thursday by Town Officer Cunningham, after several complaints had been received. He had been using abusive language on the streets before he was apprehended while driving his car. An examination of his drivers' license revealed that it had been issued the day before his arrest. He was taken before a physician, who pronounced him unfit to drive a car.

Weeks put up a spirited resistance when placed under arrest and Officer Cunningham had to use force in taking him to the physician and later lodging him in the town jail.

SKETCHES LEGION HISTORY

On Monday night, Mrs. William C. Speakman, district vice-president, Department of Delaware, American Legion Women's Auxiliary, gave an interesting and instructive address to the American Legion Women's Auxiliary, Unit Number 10. Mrs. Speakman, who has long been prominent in Legion affairs, traced the origins and histories of both the American Legion and American Legion Women's Auxiliary. The J. Allison O'Daniel Post, American Legion, was invited to attend the meeting to hear Mrs. Speakman's lecture. Refreshments were served.

Tuesday night the J. Allison O'Daniel Post, American Legion, took part in the parade held in connection with the American Legion Carnival, at Kennett Square. The local Post had 25 members in line.

YOUTHS DROWN WHILE BATHING

Thomas King And Frank Mears Lose Their Lives At White Crystal Beach

Thomas King, 22, of avenue D, Worthland, Claymont, and Frank Mears, 20, Stockdale, Claymont, were drowned Sunday afternoon, while on a swimming party in Bohemia River, at White Crystal Beach, south of Elkton. Harvey Mears, brother of one victim, who attempted to rescue King, was himself rescued from drowning by prompt action on the part of other bathers when he was overcome by exhaustion and sank below the surface.

According to other bathers Thomas King was swimming near Mrs. Rebecca King, his wife, when he was seized by cramps and clinging to Mrs. King, called for help. Mears immediately swam to King's assistance, as did several others, but King had gone beneath the surface. In the excitement the crowd did not notice the disappearance of Mears.

King's body was recovered immediately by Stanley Tullschowski, Theodore Hall and Kennard Carter, of Wilmington.

Mrs. King was brought ashore by James Barcus of Wilmington, and other bathers secured Harvey Mears, who was also nearly drowned. Tullschowski found the body of King and with the assistance of others took it ashore, where they made attempts to revive him. The body was taken to Coppage's undertaking rooms and Coroner Green was notified. King's body was sent to Claymont Monday.

Frank Mears was not missed for several minutes. His brother Harvey Mears found that his clothing was still in the bathhouse when he started to look for him. Mrs. King collapsed when she learned her husband was dead. She was given treatment at the Union Hospital, Elkton.

After a search lasting from Sunday, when the drowning occurred, the body of Frank Mears, 21 years old, of Claymont, was found Tuesday afternoon at White Crystal Beach. Since Mears was reported missing and his clothing was found in the bath house which he had used, the search has been kept up and his brothers, Harvey Mears, Jr., and Ralph Mears, have been aiding in the search.

Parker Board, manager of White Crystal Beach, who was in a boat Tuesday, found the body and at once took it to the shore. The body was found about 150 yards from the old Reybold wharf, where Mears and Thomas King were drowned. The searching parties had been over the same section numerous times but found no trace of the body.

Parents of both boys were overcome with grief by the tragedy. King is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence King, also of Worthland. He is survived by his wife and his parents. They had no children.

Word was kept from the parents of Frank Mears of his death until early Monday. Mrs. Mears was overcome. Mears is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mears, of Stockdale, with whom he lived; his two brothers, Ralph and Harvey, and a sister, Miss Pauline Mears. Mears was employed at the General Chemical Company and King at the Worth Steel Company plant.

Hold No Inquest

The body was taken to the Coppage undertaking parlors in Cecilton and was later shipped to the home of the parents in Claymont. Coroner Green, of Elkton, was notified and announced that he did not consider it necessary to hold an inquest into the deaths of King and Mears. He will give a certificate of accidental drowning.

The funeral of Thomas King was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence King, 37 avenue D, Worthland, Claymont, Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Interment will be made in Coatesville, where the family formerly resided.

Elkton

Little Miss Lorene Perkins, of Frederick, Md., is spending the week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sparklin, in Elkton.

Little Miss Betty Weldon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weldon, of Elkton, fell from the porch at the cottage of her grandfather, Joseph H. Sloan, on Monday evening and fractured her arm.

Fire companies of Elkton, Chesapeake City, North East, Rising Sun, Port Deposit, Perryville, Havre de Grace, Aberdeen and Abingdon, at a meeting held in Perryville, organized the Hartford-Cecil Volunteer Firemen's Association, with Leo M. Moore, editor of the Havre de Grace Democrat, president; Charles A. Morrison, Mayor of Port Deposit, vice-president; William S. Delgar, of Aberdeen, secretary and treasurer. The following trustees were elected: John Lawrence, Perryville; Austin Case, Havre de Grace; Norwood Atkinson, Elkton; William H. Johnson, Chesapeake City; Fred Callahan, Abingdon; John S. Mitchell, Aberdeen; G. P. Craig, North East, and John Donachie, Rising Sun.

Two Elkton lawyers have been chosen officers of the newly formed lodge of Elks at Havre de Grace. Harold E. Coburn was elected exalted ruler and Joshua Clayton esteemed leading knight. For the present the lodge will have its quarters in the Odd Fellows' Hall, Havre de Grace.

Reynolds Ash, editor of the Cecil Democrat, Elkton, and Harold Perkins, a clerk in the Elkton post office, have passed examinations as lieutenants of Company E, First Maryland Regiment, and will be commissioned this week. They will leave with Company E Saturday for Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md., where the regiment will spend two weeks at the annual encampment.

Mrs. Harry W. Pippin entertained the Willing Workers on Friday evening and the Gleaners on Tuesday evening at her cottage along the river shore at Charlestown. Both organizations are connected with the Elkton Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Edith Swayer has sold her summer residence, on Elk River, to Victor Thomas. It is said the price was about $40,000.

The North East Fire Company

Marching club, band and forty members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fire Company, left Tuesday evening for Marshallton Carnival to take part in the parade at that place.

Stanton

Services for Former State Senator Benjamin A. Groves were held in St. James P. E. Church on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the Rev. E. A. Rich, rector, in charge. The pallbearers were his co-workers, members of the vestry, Alonzo Newlin, Herman Duncan, Richard H. Catlin, W. Truxton Boyce, William Banning and John Tucker. In addition to having served as State Senator, Mr. Groves had been Levy Court Commissioner for two terms; he had also been Master of Diamond State Grange for eight years. He was active in politics and had been a leader of the Republican party in New Castle county for many years. He was widely known throughout the state and will be greatly missed at many gatherings. He taught school for a number of years, being a graduate of Millersville Normal School. He was at one time principal of the Old Newark Academy. His wife died several years ago. He is survived by the following children and grandchildren, Mrs. Margaret Bowen of Kennett Square, Mrs. Helen Stewart and Norman A. Groves of Wilmington; Miss Anna Groves and Robert A. Groves of Kiamense; grandchildren, Florence and Catherine Groves of Marshallton, and Knowles, Jr., and Barbara Ann Bowen of Kennett Square. He belonged to Hiram Lodge A. F. and A. M. of Newark, St. John's Commandery No. 1, K. T., Improved Order of Red Men, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and Diamond State Grange.

The trustees of Stanton Consolidated School have placed the assessment lists in the hands of the tax collectors. The rate has been fixed at 17 cents per hundred. The new school building is fast taking on shape and it is hoped that it will be ready for occupancy shortly after the fall term begins.

Members of Unity Lodge, No. 41, I. O. O. F. are working hard on the plans for their carnival to be held early in August. The Stanton Community Association will cooperate with them and endeavor to make the carnival a more successful one than ever before.

Misses Betty Boyce, Virginia Boyce, Margaret Fisher and Alice Bradley have returned home from Kitts Hammock after spending the week with the Newport Camp Fire Girls.

Mrs. W. T. Boyce, Wm. Boyce, Truxton and Robert Boyce and Mary Ellen Frederick spent Wednesday at Kitts Hammock as the guests of the Newport Camp Fire Girls.

Hester Rich left on Thursday for a girls' camp in Vermont where she will spend the next six weeks.

The following young people attended the Christiana carnival on Friday evening: Misses Alma Lucas, Elizabeth Campbell and Mary Ellen Frederick; Messrs. Alfred Lucas, Harold Marvel and Joseph Chambers.

Miss Mary Ellen Frederick spent the week-end with her sister, Miss Leila Frederick, at Bellevue.

Miss Helen Fordham has returned home after spending the week at Ocean City, Md., where she attended the sessions of the Peninsula Summer School.

Mr. Thomas Jeffers, Sr., and son, Albert, spent Sunday with Mrs. Sarah Goodier, at Vineland, N. J. Mrs. Jeffers returned home with them.

The following young people spent Sunday at Port Herman: Misses Eleanor Vannort, Thelma Lucas, and Ella Bradley; Messrs. Ralph Carter, Willard Ritter and Roland Eastburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Wright and Mrs. Wells were the recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Dickey.

Mrs. Kisel W. Chambers is confined to her home by illness.

Chas. P. Dickey, although slightly improved, is still under the care of his physician.

J. Howard Mitchell and family have gone to their cottage at Locust Point for a few weeks.

Mr. Wm. Little and daughter, Lora were the guests of Harold Little at Fairview, on Thursday.

Mermaid

The harvest season is open and the wheat is being cut through this section. The outlook is that there will be rather a large yield per acre.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Woodward, of Roselle, entertained at their home, on Saturday evening, June 22, in honor of Miss Emilie Mitchell, who sailed for Europe on Friday. Among the guests from the Mermaid were: Miss Emilie Mitchell, Joseph Mitchell and Paul Mitchell, of Woodside Farm, Miss Belle Chambers, James Derickson and Clifford Lynam.

Dr. and Mrs. Will Wright, of Wilmington, were Sunday visitors at the home of Dr. Wright's sister, Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Whiteman.

Mrs. James Jarrell and children, of Middletown, were recent week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Jarrell.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Biddle, of Woodlyn, Pa., were guests, on Sunday, of Mrs. Biddle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brackin.

WEB SPINNERS HARD TO GET

Pests which spin a web while feeding are the webworm, which attacks trees as well as shrubs and many herbaceous plants, the red banded leaf roller which has caused much damage to chrysanthemums, violets, roses, and honeysuckles, the rose leaf tyer, the corra leaf roller and the bagworm. Due to the web or the rolling of the foliage, control methods are difficult says Nature Magazine. Penetration of the obstructive surfaces is necessary, but if stomach poisons are applied in the early stages much damage may be avoided.

The Display of the Flag

Through the efforts of the local post of the American Legion and the Newark Chamber of Commerce, there is an American Flag in practically every home and business house in the town. On several occasions Newark has had a display of flags that has outruled anything that we have ever seen in any other town or city. On other occasions the display has been decidedly meagre. On this past Memorial Day there was a flag flying or draped at almost every residence and place of business in the community. On June 14, Flag Day, there was a scant half dozen flags flying on Main street, and the display throughout the rest of the town was just as spotty. It is hoped that no flag in town will remain furled today.

Is Your Car Safe?

There is little more than a week left of the Save-A-Life Campaign, sponsored by the Delaware Safety Council and the State Highway Department. Thousands of car owners in Delaware have already availed themselves of the opportunity of having the safety mechanics on their cars inspected free of charge, but other thousands have not as yet presented their machines at official inspection stations to be checked.

Secretary Grantland, in a statement made this week, urges all car owners to have their cars inspected immediately. He points out that motor fatalities in rural Delaware this year number 26, as compared with 16 for the same period in 1928. It was to halt this rapidly mounting death toll that the Save-A-Life Campaign was inaugurated. Of the cars examined, a high percentage were found faulty in one or more of the safety devices with which they were equipped. One-third had faulty brakes; one-half had faulty lights.

There are three inspection stations in the town of Newark; the Rittenhouse Motor Company, the Dennison Motor Company, and Mackenzie and Strickland. It is an urgent public duty that every car owner have his car inspected and made safe before the expiration of the campaign. The inspection has been arranged for the convenience of every motorist, and is made without cost. Every motorist should avail himself of this free inspection, not only out of regard for the general motoring public, but out of regard for his own safety.

thing in good working order and suggested minor repairs. They recommended that the salary of Homer Vansant be increased, and the Council acted favorably on this recommendation. They also reported trouble with the pumps due to rags in the sewage, and from offal from the slaughter house of Isaac Platt. The secretary stated that Mr. Platt had been notified before that his sewage must be screened, and Councilman Wollaston said that he would take the matter up with Mr. Platt. The Council decided to ask the people of the town to refrain from allowing rags to go into the sewer system. Rags clog the pumps, causing them to stop. This stoppage of the pumps is likely to cause expensive motors to burn out.

The resignation of H. R. Baker as milk inspector was accepted, and his brother, G. L. Baker, was appointed to the vacancy. The secretary was instructed to write Mr. Baker a letter of appreciation for his services to the town. Mr. Baker also served on the Board of Health. No appointment was made to fill this vacancy.

Acting on a petition, it was voted to illuminate Center street.

The Council voted compensation of $2.50 to election judges.

It was voted to allow Mr. Robert Motherall his usual compensation of $250 for services as town assessor.

A cancelled note for $22,000, issued to the town by the Newark Trust Company, was exhibited.

The monthly milk report, the last one to be submitted by H. R. Baker, read as follows:

JULY THE FOURTH

Fourth of July is indeed America's red letter day. Although the greatest Fourth of July was 1776 when the Declaration of Independence was adopted and the United States became a Republic, yet even before that event the date had played a strange part in the affairs of brave men and women who had come from across the sea to establish a new nation in America's wilderness.

July 4, 1636, Roger Williams founded his settlement in Providence, R. I. July 4, 1676, the colonists in Virginia demanded and were granted important rights.

July 4, 1744, a vast tract of land containing the Blue Ridge country was bought from the Indians.

July 4, 1776, chief among all the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

During the Revolution the Fourth of July seemed to be the date on which big events took place.

July 4, 1777, Indians attacked Boonesboro, Kentucky. July 4, 1778, Major Clarke captured a British fort.

July 4, 1781, Lord Cornwallis evacuated Williamsburg, Virginia.

July 4, 1846, the independence of California was declared. July 4, 1826, Thomas Jefferson died, aged 83; on the same day John Adams died, aged 91. July 4, 1831, James Monroe died, aged 74.

July 4, 1848, work was started on the Washington Monument. Our Patent Bureau was established July 4, 1836. July 4, 1912 New Mexico and Arizona were made States.

Thus there are many reasons for observing the Fourth of July as a patriotic day.—American Flag Council, No. 28, Jr. O. U. A. M., A. Neal Smythe, Jr. Past Councillor.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

WHEN, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume, among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them; a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident—that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundations on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shewn that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

1. He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

2. He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

3. He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the Legislature—a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

4. He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

5. He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

6. He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected, whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

7. He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

8. He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

9. He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

10. He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

11. He has kept among us in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our Legislatures.

12. He has affected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

IN EVERY STAGE of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time, of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which denounces our separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind—enemies in war, in peace, friends.

WE, therefore, the representatives of the United States in general Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do in the name and by authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be totally dissolved, and that, as free and independent States, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and, to do all other acts and things which independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

SUMMER SCHOOL NOTES

The University of Delaware Summer School adjourned yesterday at noon for a recess until Monday. The majority of the students are returning to their homes; a number of the faculty plan to remain for some extra work during the short vacation.

Personals

Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Brady are visiting relatives in West Chester during the vacation.

Miss Rena Allen, of the Department of Education, is spending her vacation in Woodbridge, New Jersey.

Miss Rachel Taylor, of the Art Department, leaves today to visit her sister, Miss Grace Taylor, at Cragmoor, New York.

Miss Nora B. Keely is visiting her parents at her home in Schwenksville, Pennsylvania.

Dean Winifred J. Robinson is attending a meeting of the National Education Association at Atlanta, Georgia. She will return to Newark next week before leaving for her vacation in Newfane, Vermont.

Miss Amy Clarke, Director of Halls, left today for Washington, D. C., where she will visit her niece, Miss Margaret C. Fisher. Miss Fisher is the daughter of Mr. William J. Fisher, of 2312 Willard street, Wilmington. Miss Fisher was graduated from Wilmington Friends School in 1928, and has recently received an appointment as a secretary to the National Aeronautics Association, which has its headquarters in Washington.

Miss Mary C. Dennison, of Wilmington, was the guest of Miss Gertrude Sturgis over last week-end. Miss Sturgis and Miss Kelly entertained at bridge in honor of their guest.

CANNY SERVANTS

Servants, housewives say, are not so good as they used to be, nor yet so plentiful. Good servants are hard to find and their wages are so high that fewer and fewer people can afford them.

Have you ever stopped to think that this mechanical age has accomplished a lot toward doing away with the necessity for servants? We have not yet evolved an efficient Robot who can dust, sweep and clean, and also have the presence of mind to say "not at home" when you are not prepared to receive visitors. But we have something else.

The New Competition
Do you realize that more than 9,000,000,000 separate mechanical tasks which used to be performed every year in the home are now accomplished in the commercial canning factories in this country? Our population is, roughly speaking, 120,000,000, so that makes about 750 tasks per person, or 3,000 tasks for a family of four.

These tasks, performed in the home, would each take at least half an hour, for this means a saving of 4,500,000,000 hours of housewives' or servants' time in the course of a year. No wonder there are fewer servants. They can't find employment. And no wonder their wages are higher. So many of them have turned to other occupations that there is now a scarcity of them in this country.

But the best thing about these new canny servants is that they prepare safer and equally nourishing food according to the most eminent medical authorities. In this respect, certainly, they far excel the old.

Nothing is to be feared but fear.—Bacon.

SIMPLIFYING SUMMER

What is this summer going to be like for you—laborious or livable, a period of ease or hard work? That all depends on how you plan it. Here are some hints which will help enable you to while away the long carefree days out of the front porch with the rest of the family rather than painfully perspiring over an inadequate stove in your summer cottage or bungalow.

The first of these hints is to take along plenty of canned foods when you migrate for the summer season. The second is to leave your address with your grocer so that you can renew your supply from a source in which you have confidence.

What to Take Along

The first essential to right living in summer is an adequate milk supply. There may be one or many cows at the place where you elect to stay, but did you know that many farmers themselves are taking advantage of the established safety of dried, evaporated and condensed milk which comes from cows whose health has been tested and certified by Government experts? The great mail order houses are now distributing vast quantities of these products in rural districts.

For vegetables that can be quickly prepared for the table, you should, of course, take along some peas, corn, tomatoes and beans. Asparagus, beets, sauerkraut and sweet potatoes are a little more fancy products, but they will add variety to your menu at little cost.

Peaches, pineapple, pears and apricots should head the list of the canned fruits with which you provide yourself, but don't forget that apples (including apple sauce) cherries, plums and the various berries in cans will also save you a lot of time and labor.

Finally you should have some fish—salmon, tuna, codfish, mackerel, sardines—for their iodine content, and you'll find that a few cans of meat will not come amiss.

What to Do With It

When you come in hungry from a long hike, a fishing trip or any other appetite producing exercise, it's mighty nice to have a can of Irish stew, sausage, liver with bacon or onions or one of the five different beef dishes on hand ready to heat in a jiffy and to eat more slowly if you're wise. Or, if the weather seems too warm for meat dishes, you can prepare any of several main courses by combining the vegetables you have brought along with fresh vegetables. Try, for instance, these:

Tomato and Pea Cutlets

Combine one cup of canned peas, drained, with one-half cup of very thick white sauce and two slightly beaten egg yolks. Drop by spoonfuls into hot, buttered skillet, and fry brown, turning over once. Dip eight slices of ripe tomato in flour and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Sauté in the fat in which the cutlets were cooked. Serve a cutlet on each slice of tomato. This recipe will serve eight unless you happen to be very hungry.

New Potatoes with Stringless Beans
Choose very tiny new potatoes, scrape and boil or steam until tender. Toss with melted butter and finely chopped parsley and pile in center of a hot platter. Heat a can of small stringless beans, drain and season with butter, salt and pepper. Pile in a border around the potatoes. Hard-cook several eggs, cut in halves and dredge cut side with paprika. Insert at intervals in the border of beans.

Of course, it's possible to mix meat and vegetables and thus get a balanced summer menu. Here are a couple of recipes which show how:

Indian Corn

Dice one green pepper and sauté with two tablespoons butter until brown. Cut the contents of one 4½ ounce can of Vienna sausage in slices, add to pan and sauté a few minutes more. Add one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, a No. 2 can of corn, one-half cup milk and two slightly beaten eggs. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake about thirty minutes in a moderate oven (350° F.) This serves six.

Lima Beans Italiane

Dice four slices of bacon and fry to extract fat. Add one chopped onion, one green pepper, cut in rings, and two cups diced celery. Add the juice from a No. 2 can of lima beans, and simmer until the celery and green pepper are tender. Then add two cups of canned tomato pulp and the beans and heat well. Pour in center of platter and surround with one-fourth package of boiled spaghetti. Serve as a main dish with quince jelly. Serves eight.

COLOR IN THE KITCHEN

We're trying to make our meals colorful and our recipes riots of harmonious hues, but what about the kitchens themselves? Surely, it's unfair to their occupants to let them languish in dull, drab colors.

Why, even the pots and pans and the handles of the knives and forks which we buy nowadays are trickily decked with red, green, yellow or blue. So let's start our kitchens along the right trail!

For instance, if your kitchen doesn't need much to make it gay, you might try painting the shelves some brilliant color—say a cherry red. Then on the moldings of the doors, the top of the baseboard and the moldings on the cupboard doors paint narrow lines of the same color. It's surprising what a difference it will make. However, if you think entire red shelves are a little too showy to start with, color only the front edge of the shelves red, leaving the tops and bottoms their original cream or white.

And Parrots, Too!

Green may be handled in much the same way as the red, except that larger areas of it can be used, because it is not so vivid in tone. For instance, the inside of the cupboard doors may be painted green. Another amusing idea is to stencil a vivid parrot in red and green on the inside of the cupboard doors, to remain hidden until the door swings open—and what hostess, with such a design for display, could refrain from the casual gesture which will show to the admiring guest that she, at least, is up-to-date and is using color in her kitchen?

SANDWICHES THAT MAKE THE PICNIC

Picnics and sandwiches! You cannot have one without the other—they just seem to belong. Meals in the open must satisfy hearty appetites and no sandwiches are more acceptable to hungry pleasure seekers than those with a piquant meat filling. Inez S. Wilson, home economics specialist, gives the following sandwich suggestions and they will be welcomed by every one who packs a picnic lunch.

A particularly zesty sandwich filling is made from minced tongue.

Minced Tongue and Horseradish

Put a cold boiled tongue through the food chopper. Mix with enough grated horseradish to season to taste. Use as a filling between slice of rye bread.

Roast Beef

Chop rare roast beef very fine, using only the thin portions of meat. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and a salt spoon of horseradish. Mix and spread on graham bread.

Methodist Episcopal Church

Rev. W. E. Gunby, Pastor
Announcements were made last Sunday of two outings for July. The Men's League will go to Welsh Tract Tuesday, July 16, and the Church and Sunday School, to Charlestown, Tuesday, July 30.

The hour of the mid-week devotional meeting is changed to 8:00 daylight saving time for the remainder of the summer.

The Dickinson College Summer School of Religious Education is in session at Carlisle, Pa., and the Pastor with a committee of laymen from the Wilmington Conference will meet representatives from the General Education Board of the Church from Chicago, on some important matters dealing with religious education work in this territory, next Monday.

The union service last Sunday night proved a delightful means of grace. The sermon by Dr. R. B. Mathews of the Episcopal Church, was refreshing and helpful. Rev. H. E. Hallman of the Presbyterian Church conducted the service. The third service of this series will be held next Sunday evening at 8:00. The public is cordially invited.

Head of Christiana Presbyterian Church

Bible School at 10 a. m.
Holy communion at 11 a. m.

An opportunity will be given for any who may desire, to accept Christ and unite with the church at the close of the Bible School.

Parents who have children for baptism will present them at this communion service. There will be preaching service at 4:00 o'clock. The pastor will be assisted by Rev. C. C. Weir, of Lower Brandywine.

Head of Christiana cordially extends its hospitality to everyone who comes within its doors. We welcome you in the name of our Master, to all the services of this church. Rev. Moore, pastor.

Ebenezer Church

This Sunday Ebenezer Church will celebrate its 106th anniversary. The Reverend Oliver Collins, pastor, will preach the anniversary sermon, "Ebenezer, The Rock."

EGG PRODUCTION SHOWS DECLINE

Averages Slightly Lower Than Last Year: Culling For Production

The May report of the Delaware Egg Record Club has recently been issued and sent to all poultry raisers by County Agent William J. of Newark. Averages for the 161 farms reporting shows that the pullet flocks laid 17.4 eggs per bird, the hen flocks, 16.4 eggs and mixed flocks 17.2 eggs. Last year the averages for May were 17.6, 17.2 and 17.7 respectively.

Over fifty-four thousand birds were reported during the month, and of these, 23,120 were layers in mixed flocks of hens and pullets run together. A large mixed flock of over 900 birds led the entire flock with an average of 19.4 eggs per bird. A comparison of the average production per bird at the Vineyard, N. J., egg laying contest with the Delaware Egg Record Club for the first four months since last November shows that pullets at the Vineyard have laid 119.5 eggs while those on Delaware farms produced 117.2 eggs during that period.

Mr. H. S. Palmer, Extension Poultryman, in his summary for the month includes points on culling for production. His suggestions are: "When to Cull"

The best time to cull the layers is during the months of July, August and September. During these months it is easiest to read nature's evidence as to which hens have been good layers and which have been poor layers. The hens that begin laying late in the fall and winter and continue to lay longest the following summer and fall are the best layers. It is the hens that stop laying early in the season, molt, and loaf all summer that lay the fewest eggs. Summer culling then is nothing more than picking out the hens that have stopped laying and show signs that they are not never would lay very much.

Give the Layers a Chance

Do not attempt to cull a flock of layers until you consider how they have been treated during the past three months. No matter how good the layers are, if they have not been well fed with a good laying ration, well watered and housed they cannot lay eggs, and will therefore look like culls. Many other factors such as moving the birds from one house to another, giving no green feed, a heavy infestation of lice and mites, crowding in the house, sudden change of feed or method of feeding will stop the birds from laying, throw them into a panic and make it difficult to tell the good ones from the poor ones. So first give the birds a chance. Feed heavily with a good laying ration and care for the flock well for at least one month before attempting to cull. You will be surprised at the increase in eggs.

KEEPING A DOG AT HOME

To be satisfied at home, a dog must have exercise. If his master does not take him for a hike, he is apt to get up on his own hook.

The dog's kennel must be comfortable. If it is too hot or too cold, or infested with fleas he will do the very natural thing—get out and look for better quarters. Hunger, too, will make him restless, so I should say that the three fundamentals are: enough exercise to make him tired, a generous feed in the evening, and a clean, comfortable bed.

Dogs are sociable creatures. They love company, and that is the reason why the owner of two or more canines seldom has any trouble from "Bumming." One runabout, especially if he barks much, can lure dozens of other dogs out. If you can induce other owners in the vicinity to keep their pets at home, each animal will be less apt to leave his own yard.

Learning the cause for your dog's "excursions" usually simplifies correction. Slightly watch him some night and see where he goes. Often it will be found that some particular bench or garbage can is his destination. Egg-eating is common among dogs. The owner of the chickens will usually cooperate with you, and an egg can be so "loaded" (with pepper or some other disagreeable substance as to cure Tousser sharply and permanently.

Do not tie the dog up; it only makes him worse when he is liberated. Besides, it spoils his disposition. Do not whip him; unless you do so at the time he is starting. Any reproof given hours after the offense does no good, for your pet will not know its reason. Such only makes him afraid of you and more desirous of running away. If you can so plan it as to catch him in the act of running off, mild switching then will help. Accompany it with orders (always in the same words) to stay home! and lead him back every time. Do this repeatedly, being particularly good to him at other times, and he will catch on. Never under any circumstances kick or beat your dog. If you lose your temper, let him entirely alone until next day.

We tire of those pleasures we take, but never of those we give.—J. Pettit-Sen.

A BEAUTY DEVICE OF OLDER DAYS

Old books and chronicles show that the custom among women of decorating their faces with patches did not originate, as is sometimes supposed, among the beauties of the Court of Louis XV. Fairholt's "Costume in England" pictures a woman in the time of Charles I with very elaborate patchwork upon her face, the objects represented in cut-outs being a coach and horses, a star and two moons, not to mention a disk-like patch upon her chin. And the historian, R. Chambers, says the cut-out decoration was common among the Roman women.

Mr. Pepys duly recorded his wife's first appearance in patches, which, Mr. Chambers remarks, "seems to have taken place without his concurrence, as, three months afterward, he makes an entry in his diary: 'My wife seemed very pretty today, it being the first time I had given her leave to wear a black patch.' And a week or two later he declared that his wife, with two or three patches, looked far handsomer than the Princess Henrietta. Lady Castlemaine, whose word was law, decreed that patches could not be worn with mourning; but they seem to have been held proper on all other occasions, being worn in the afternoon, at the theatre, in the parks in the evening and in the drawing room at night."

In the days of Queen Anne, it is said on the authority of the Spectator, patches were used by women as party symbols, the Whigs patching on the right and the Tories on the left side of the face. Those who were neutral appear to have decorated both cheeks. Women, it seems, were even then in politics, and though they had not the vote, they held out for some of the rights that their followers later contended for. In a draft of marriage articles it is related that one prospective bride stipulated that she could wear patches on whichever side of her face she pleased, regardless of her husband's political convictions. That was in 1711. Forty years later the patch was still not only in existence, but "threatened to overwhelm the female face altogether."

Christian Science Churches

Christian Science was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 30th. Golden Text: "O send out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles." (Psalms 43:3)

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord." (Isaiah 2:1,5)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health by Mary Baker Eddy: 'In the year 1866 I discovered the Christ Science or divine laws of Life, Truth, and Love, and named my discovery Christian Science. God had been preparing me during many years for the reception of this final revelation of the absolute divine Principle of scientific mental healing.'

That Rascal, the Crow

One morning last July the grass in what we call our barn lot, which had been cut the day before, lay in smooth swaths curving rapidly under the ardent rays of the sun. All over the meadow the birds were feasting on the fallen redtop. Near the early-harvest apple tree I saw bluebirds and gold finches together, like animated flowers in the grass.

As I stood watching them another feathered visitor arrived, huge, coal-black, sailing down from his distant lookout—a solitary crow. Doubtless he was a scout sent out to ascertain what was interesting the smaller birds. He walked arrogantly about for a few minutes, not molesting the others but evidently investigating. Then, with one loud caw of disappointment, he sprang into the air and with slow, powerful sweeps of his wings, went sailing back to his pine.

Again, last winter, I chanced to be walking across the fields in the late afternoon when hundreds of crows began to appear in the sky from all directions, but chiefly from the northwest. They converged upon a bit of woodland near me and settled, with much conversation, in the branches of two or three tall trees that were well protected by a small jungle of brushwood. I had stumbled, I fancy, on one of their winter roosts. They came in no definite flock or special formation, but by ones and twos and threes. I looked to the northwest, and still they came, from as far off as my eyes could see; there seemed to be no end to them. It was a sight I shall not soon forget.

There is something about a crow that always fascinates me. He is so wise, so deliberate, so purposeful. His mental processes, so far as one can judge by their manifestations, seem almost human. His community life is so well organized and his whole attitude toward life so resourceful and self-reliant. And I am persuaded that he possesses a real sense of humor, or at least of mischief.

Most ornithologists appear to find the crow one of the most interesting of birds. Nature writers have paid particular attention to his voice. It is harsh and unmusical, like that of an adolescent boy, but it is exceedingly eloquent. It always seems as though we might, with a little more observation and study, learn the crow language. So obviously they are talking, arguing, issuing orders, sending out signals, sometimes protesting or even applauding in chorus. They have captains and lieutenants, scouts and sentries. When they hold their tree-top conclaves, there seems to be some observance of parliamentary rules. Commands are given and acknowledged. They do not make music, and yet I love to hear the cawing of the crows above the woods.

The crow is one of the most familiar and characteristic objects in our country landscape and skyline. He is as indigenous as the maple and the pine. Who that loves nature would want to leave the crow out? And yet the arrows and guns of mankind have been trained persistently against him. Thus far we have been unable to exterminate the race. And why should we wish to do so? To be sure, he is a rascal, but what a lovable rascal! Sometimes the crow steals the farmer's newly planted corn, but not if the farmer has had the foresight to dip his seed in tar. That is better than shooting. Is the loss of a little corn, carelessly planted, sufficient cause for the attempted extermination of a whole race of God's creatures? Has not capital punishment for theft been abolished in most civilized countries?

Furthermore, the ornithologists have discovered that the crow does vast good more than harm, as most supposedly noxious creatures do. Crows eat white grubs, cutworms, wireworms, grasshoppers, May beetles, and other insects. Have you never seen crows in the furrows of newly plowed land before seed has been planted? They are a not insignificant part of that great feathered army that is working year in and year out in the interests of the human race. If it were not for the birds the rapidly increasing hosts of predatory insects would not only destroy the vegetation upon which mankind is so dependent, but might even, through hunger, be impelled to attack our very bodies. And against them we shouldn't have a chance. Shall we, then, turn our guns against our allies?

Whenever I hear of some company of explosive manufacturers starting a drive against the crow, offering prizes for the largest number shot and preaching a war of extermination, it occurs to me that perhaps this is a good sign. Perhaps these murderers-by-proxy see the end of human wars, on which they have always fattened, and are fighting for their commercial existence by trumping up a war against crows. If that means that men are going to cease shooting one another, praise be! But why pick on the crow? If these manufacturers fondly imagine that their motives are hidden, they must be an extraordinarily naive race.

Fortunately, most people are too busy with more important matters to go gunning for crows, and fortunately the crow is too canny and too prolific to be easily exterminated. Meanwhile he is gaining friends every day as the number of lovers and students of nature increases. I can imagine living quite comfortably and happily in a land bereft of manufacturers of gunpowder; I should miss the crows vastly more.

John Burroughs had the saner, more tolerant view, when he wrote these lines:

"My friend and neighbor through the year,
Self-appointed overseer
Of my crops of fruit and grain,
Of my woods and furrowed plain,
Claim thy tithings right and left,
I shall never call it theft."
—Walter A. Dyer in Our Dumb Animals.

"SITTING OUT" STORMS NEW ENGLAND CUSTOM

Few persons enjoy a severe thunderstorm; many are in mortal terror when the heavens blacken and Jove shoots his jagged darts toward the earth. Dwellers in New England do not seem to have the fear of such atmospheric disturbances as they did in earlier days. Perhaps they realize that the percentage of "hits" either on persons or places is very small as compared to the "misses." Yet there is undoubtedly an appreciation of the real menace of a thunderstorm.

A custom existed a half century ago in rural New England, and in many towns and cities is still found to a certain extent. When a sharp thunderstorm threatened, the family assembled in one room. The shades were lowered and lamps were turned up as high as possible.

The theory doubtless was that under such conditions the vivid flashes outside could not be seen in the illuminated chamber. But it could not shut out the deafening of the thunder. And while the adults knew it was the lightning and not the thunder they had to fear, it was hard for them to reconcile themselves to the fact. Children clung trembling to their mothers. It was nothing unusual for a nervous woman to faint.

Occasionally these periods of "sitting out" a thunderstorm were made real family parties. Seeking the comfort of companionship, neighbors would congregate at one home as the skies darkened and preliminary flashes zipped through swirling clouds. Stories of past storms when the lightning had scored, when persons and live stock had been struck, were bound to be recalled.

But generally nobody was hurt during these occasions. The "comfort" parties were anything but comforting. The solemnity, the whispers, the con-

Do Dogs Behave Like Human Beings?

By Walter A. Dyer in "Our Dumb Animals"

There are ways, as every dog owner knows, in which canine behavior, more than that of any other animal with the possible exception of monkeys and apes, seemingly approximates human behavior. I am inclined to doubt, however, whether this similarity is as common or as unmistakable as we have generally supposed. Being the most egotistical of all animals, we men are accustomed to interpret dog behavior in terms of human ideas, motives, and responses, when perhaps the canine mental processes, to be analyzed precisely, require an entirely different idiom. We say of our dog, "He is thinking so and so," or "He's trying to tell you such-and-such." If he were a human being we would be justified, through knowledge of our own mental processes, in drawing such facile conclusions. But a dog thinks doglike thoughts, his mind works in a doglike way, and we have no real evidence to prove that it is the human way. Sometimes, as a matter of coincidence, perhaps, it seems to be almost human, and yet the most dog-wise person must confess that something remains unexplained.

I think I am safe in saying that the dog, judged by human standards, is the most intelligent of animals. But it is our human egotism that prompts us to judge by human standards and to say condescendingly of the dog that he displays "almost human intelligence." The fact is that what he displays is canine intelligence—quite a different thing. And who are we to insist that this is inferior to human intelligence? If we are honest we must confess to an occasional dim consciousness of superiority in the dog. Certainly my dog is often aware of things that I am not aware of, and this awareness is not always due to keener and better coordinated senses. I imagine that I am imparting some piece of information to him only to discover that he knew about it all the time.

Let me offer a simple anecdote to illustrate the manner in which we habitually resort to the human interpretation of canine behavior. A German shepherd puppy was presented to a man in a Long Island town whom I will call Mr. Brown. When the puppy had become accustomed to his new surroundings and had established an entente cordiale with "Lassie," Mr. Brown's old collie, he was let out of the house to become acquainted with the great world. I will let Mr. Brown tell the story in order to show how subtly the human idiom creeps into an ordinary account of canine behavior.

"Of all the residents in our town, there was just one man with whom my family was not on friendly terms. To the premises of this Mr. Smith did 'Peter' the pup, through some perverse impulse, immediately resort for his first experiment with life and humankind. The month was May. A new lawn had been planted in front of the Smith house and the young grass was just getting a good start. Mr. Smith, before going to the city that morning, had set the lawn sprinkler going.

"Peter the pup had never seen a lawn sprinkler before. It interested him hugely. He started to investigate. Advancing cautiously, with rolling eyes and frequent backward leaps, he tested the purposes and possibilities of this strange creature.

"At length Peter became aware of its power to wet him. At first this frightened and angered him and he barked furiously at it. Then it began to interest him. At last, the day being warm, it pleased him.

"Finally, Peter walked in under the spray and proceeded to dig a bathtub in the lawn. (He was already an accomplished excavator.) He made a thorough job of it. He dug a hole two feet long, a foot wide, and a foot deep, by a rough estimate. Then he stepped aside and waited for the hole to fill with water, after which he took a bath. Now don't you think that such intelligence in a mere baby of a dog is most remarkable?"

The sequel of this tale is of minor consequence in this discussion. That night Peter's master, much humiliated, was obliged to fetch a wheelbarrow and a shovel and fill up the hole that Peter had dug in Mr. Smith's new lawn.

Now Peter did behave something like a human being in all this, but the way in which the narrator interpreted his actions in terms of human mental processes is probably as inaccurate as it is characteristic. We all do it. And yet what right have we to assume that Peter's mind worked in the way that a human mind would under the circumstances? Aren't we assuming a sort of omniscience? Quite as likely Peter only pretended that he was afraid of the lawn sprinkler, and the whole act was not so much the discovery of the manufacture and uses of a bathtub as part of a delightful game which he had devised on the spur of the moment in a manner quite typical of playful puppies. He probably developed no plan for obtaining a dip; the pool was an unintended outcome, a by-product of his play. A dog will often dig himself a hole in a cool spot on a warm day, instinctively and without special thought.

THE COMMON GARDEN TOAD

To most of us the toad is familiar, but I am wondering how much gardeners really know about this homely fellow.

Men have placed him in the same group with frogs and salamanders, but he differs from the frog in several respects. First, his skin is not smooth as is the frog's, but covered with warts or enlarged areas of rough cuticular projections. These bumps add greatly to his reputation, as it has often been said that toads cause warts that suddenly appear on our hands. This is erroneous, as friendly Mr. Hop Toad has no one. Second, he is less active than the frog. His powers of jumping are somewhat restricted. Third, his life history is somewhat different than that of the frog.

Although there are several kinds of toads found in the United States, only one species (Bufo americanus) is at all common. This species inhabits gardens in particular. During the day they remain concealed in some dark corner, or beneath a stone or other object where moisture is plentiful, and at night sally forth to feed upon snails, slugs and insects, which they capture with the aid of a sticky tongue as in the case of the frog. Their tongue is fastened near the outer edge of the lower jaw and the free end lies back in the mouth towards the throat. When an insect comes near the tongue is thrown out and laps around the morsel. The sticky secretion holds the insect until it can be returned to the mouth. Thus he may capture fast-moving objects. Frogs and toads both have sharp eyesight for moving objects, and it is doubtful whether they see still objects very distinctly.

Nearly everyone is acquainted with the tadpoles of frogs, and toads have a similar life history. Early in the spring, toads lay eggs in stagnant water in strings of a jelly-like substance, instead of in clusters as do frogs. After five to ten days the eggs hatch into wriggling tadpoles which swim about in the water. Their food is mainly microscopic plants. Swimming is accomplished by means of a tail. Breathing is carried on by means of outside and inside gills. As the tadpole grows these gills are absorbed by the body, and lungs develop. The tadpole soon finds difficulty in breathing so he comes to the surface of the water to fill his lungs with air. Slowly feet appear, the tail is lost, and a tiny toad is seen swimming about.

During July he matures and takes to the banks of the pond or stream. Many other small toads are already there. After a certain number, usually several dozen or more, have gathered, a general movement or migration begins. Many farmers have seen these migrations. Often the toads will follow a ravine or cross a road, thus exposing themselves to great danger from birds and man. Crows are said to be the chief enemy of the young toad. The few that do finally reach a suitable environment, such as a garden, soon busy themselves in catching their weight in insects.

It has been estimated that one toad alone in a single season is worth $20 to the garden, because of the cutworms it devours. These worms are not the toad's only article of diet, as slugs and insects figure largely. It is indeed a poor gardener that does not value the toad. He is among the ugliest of animals, but one of the most beneficial. Let every gardener protect this friendly fellow; he is worth much.—Miles L. Peele, in "The Flower Grower."

WATCH OUT FOR THESE

There are three classes of chewing insects: those that feed upon the foliage in the open, those that surround themselves with a web, or roll the foliage, and those which feed on the inside of the stems. The first group, says Nature Magazine, is really controlled and comprises the cabbage worm, the white tussock moth, the stinging rose caterpillar, the saddle-back caterpillar and a number of others.

Big Month for Chevrolet

MICHENER SALES PACE CHEVROLET RECORD

Michener Brothers have garage at Cranston Heights and on the State Road just a mile below Market street bridge, Wilmington. If the June sales of this company holds into July it will keep up with the Chevrolet history now in the making.

May was the biggest month in the history of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Production for the month totalled 161,214 cars and trucks, breaking all records.

Under pressure of the greatest demand in Chevrolet history, its 16 giant factories in May experienced the busiest period the company has ever enjoyed. Factory wheels turned with all the speed consistent with Chevrolet's precision manufacturing methods to accommodate the demand for cars that poured in from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida.

May was the third consecutive month to set a new all-time monthly production mark. It far surpassed the March record of 147,273 units and topped the April achievement of 157,522 units.

To accomplish this record performance Chevrolet plants averaged 7,000 cars and trucks daily; an average of 777 cars and trucks were built every hour; an average of 13 were built every minute—and one was built every 4.6 seconds.

From present indications the same relatively high level of production will be maintained in June to keep pace with the demand, which officials report, continues unabated. Dealer stocks are still below normal due to the necessity of filling orders as fast as cars are received. Unfilled orders are over 300 per cent ahead of this same period last year. It was announced definitely that June production would break all records for the month.

The sixteen plants that contributed to the record May performance are located in the following cities: Detroit, Flint, Mich., Bay City, Mich., Saginaw, Mich., Toledo, Ohio, Atlanta, Ga., Buffalo, N. Y., Tarrytown, N. Y., Norwood, O., Kansas City, Mo., St. Louis, Mo., Janesville, Wis., and Oakland, Cal.

BEST LOCK PRESIDENT TO VISIT SEATTLE PLANT

Frank E. Best, president and manager of the Best Lock Corporation, 908 Orange street, Wilmington, left yesterday afternoon for an extended business trip to the western plant in Seattle, Wash. Accompanying Mr. Best was Mr. W. Ray King, auditor and assistant treasurer, who will be engaged for two or three weeks with important duties that necessitate his presence at the Seattle factory.

Mr. Best plans, on returning to Wilmington in September, to build up a staff of engineers who will speed to completion the designing of the automatic machines for the eastern factory, which will be in Wilmington. Here will be made, by automatic machinery, the junior lock core for the automotive trade, filing cabinets and similar uses.

MUNDORFF BEVERAGES FOR ATHLETIC MEET

Beverage sales at the annual field meet of the Pennsylvania Railroad Athletic Association, at Penny Field, Third and Church streets, Wilmington, were very good yesterday. H. A. Mundorff, at Thirtieth and Market streets, bottler of Orange Crush, Pepsi-Cola, Hires, Canadian Club ginger ale and other products was awarded the contract for supplying the soft drinks. The recent Claymont Firemen's Carnival was also supplied by Mundorff's.

The recent hot spell stimulated sales to such extent that extra help had to be engaged and the working schedule put on an overtime basis. Mr. Mundorff expects to have the best season since he has been in business, this summer.

BUSH LINE ADDS NEW BARGE TO SERVICE

With the volume of freight being handled ahead of last year, the Bush Line in order to provide better accommodations for its patrons, has placed another boat in service between Wilmington and Philadelphia. This enables the Bush Line to unload the freight much quicker and to get it on its trucks and those of the P. A. X. much more expeditiously.

Shipments to Wilmington and also freight to and from Baltimore via the Bush Line connection are continuing heavy.

TRUST COMPANY LOOKS AFTER WILLS

One of the departments of the Security Trust Company, Sixth and Market streets, Wilmington, is devoted to carrying out the provisions made in wills by patrons who have selected the trust department of the bank to look after affairs when the donor has passed on. To make the Security Trust Company the executor of a will means that every provision in that document will be faithfully carried out. It is one of the activities of the Trust Company that is zealously looked after.

Full details and all information relative to the operation of this department will be gladly furnished upon application.

this Wilmington printer. This is made possible through the day and night forces employed by the company.

Cann Brothers printed the hand-some program for the Shine outing at Rehoboth last week-end. It was another brilliant piece of work in colors. The firm is busy with regular work that comes along monthly from its regular patrons.

MORRIS PLAN BANK DECLARES DIVIDEND

Directors of the Wilmington Morris Plan Bank have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent on the capital stock of the bank, payable July 1 to stockholders of record of June 29.

The bank is being called upon for loans by many persons who state they need the money to pay their taxes. The Morris Plan has come to be depended upon by many for this purpose each year. The patrons are thus able to avoid any penalties for non-payment and at the same time obtain a discount and then pay off the loan in small weekly installments.

Royden W. Bryan, manager, and Mrs. Bryan, who attended a meeting of the Eastern and Atlantic States Association of Morris Plan Bankers in Vermont, report having enjoyed the trip to and from Vermont by motor and their stay in the mountains as being most delightful.

MATCH BOX "ADS" VARIED

There was once a time when a traveling man could be placed by the matches he carried, but the latest advertising fad has made that almost impossible. Smokers who refuse to use automatic lighters and prefer the paper-box matches are likely to have in their pockets matches with an advertisement of a coffee shop in Newark, as they are of a tire repair store in New Orleans.

Tobacco jobbers who sell these paper-box matches to the retailers receive millions of them without regard to what they are advertising on the inside and outside covers. It is not unusual for the average smoker to have at the end of the week a collection of match box covers that will suggest a travelogue.
