the ACP payments to farmers would total approximately $592,000.

One of the features of the affair was the presentation of a one-act play, "Saturday's Children," by Maxwell Anderson, by the Puppets and Footlights Clubs of the university.

Miss Blanche Lee directed and the cast included: Samuel Grayson,

He said that his chief quarrel with such organizations was the poor selection of plays.

During the morning session, Dr.
Kase and staff members of the E-52 Players conducted a consultation on individual problems of stagecraft, acting, and directing. Miss Margaret Smith led a discussion on publicizing basis for cast selections which was illustrated by competitive tryouts by qualified students from several high schools was given by Paul Randall, director of dramatics at Temple University.

The general meeting was held in the afternoon with Dr. Kase presiding.

of the university, extended greetings and told about the theater during his college career.

Greetings Extended
Dr. H. V. Holloway, state superintendent of public instruction, extended greetings from the State Board of Education and said that he was personally interested in the work of the group. The principal address was given by Prof. Arthur department at Pennsylvania State College, who said that it was beneath the dignity of any school or little theater group to put on "trashy" productions.

Drama Group, led a discussion on acting and directing and Paul Randall spoke on the technique of stagecraft.

Wilmington Senator Enlarges
On Views Concerning SchoolsIssues Bulletin
Anent Teaching
Of Art-Music

In an effort to clarify and enlarge on published statements made in connection with joint budget committee hearings regarding appropriations for the State Board of Education, Senator Paul R. Rinard, of the First Senatorial District, New Castle County, issued a lengthy release on the subject this week.

While both houses of the 107th
General Assembly, now in session at Dover, are embroiled in numerous party measures, Senator Rinard's interest in the education board is regarded by leaders in rival camps as a strictly non-partisan move.

A former teacher, Senator Rinard is emphatic in his denial of being opposed to the study of art and music in the public schools. His contention is that while the state is faced with a shortage of funds, "certain so-called 'non-essential subjects'" should be curtailed in favor of more necessary and fundamental subjects.

His greatest concern is in whether or not basic subjects are being taught as thoroughly as they should be, or whether or not they are suffering from an over emphasis of general cultural values such as art and music. His complete statement follows:

Text Of Release

Inasmuch as a certain amount of publicity has been given to criticisms made of secondary education in the State of Delaware by me in the proceedings of the Budget Committee of the State Legislature, I feel that the public is entitled to know more definitely what those criticisms are.
To be partly quoted is sometimes as bad as being quoted, and although in the main, the article dealing with this subject was correct, I feel that a fuller discussion of the entire subject is necessary in order to ascertain how definitely public opinion may be for or against such criticisms.

In the first place, I want it very clearly understood that I am interested vitality in the subject of secondary education, not only as one of the biggest industries in the State, but as a phase of our American system that should be of interest to every citizen throughout the United States.
Also I want broadly to state that I do not contend that there is no value in certain so-called "non-essential subjects."

Relative Value Important
I feel that there is some value in any kind of education upon any subject. It is a matter of the relative value that is most important. My most vital concern is in whether or not basic subjects are being taught as thoroughly as they should be, or whether or not they are suffering from an over emphasis of general cultural values as opposed to those subjects which form a basis for a sound cultural education.

To begin with, the state is in exactly the same position as a parent in the matter of educating the children within its confines. As a wealthy indulgent parent can afford to send his child to college for an education,
give him a racoon coat and a roadster,
money for the opera or other entertainments of similar character, no one can say that he should not do so, but if adversity overtakes that parent and his income is so decreased that he finds himself no longer able to afford these things, it seems a matter of common sense that he should cut down upon the very pleasant but

Senator Paul R. Rinard

INTRODUCE
ANNEX ACTRhodes Presents
Town Measure
Before House

The request of the Council of Newark for power to extend the annexation of the town was introduced in the House of Representatives yesterday by Dr. George W. Rhodes as House Bill No. 108.

Under the proposed act, approved
at the February meeting of Council, areas immediately adjacent to the boundaries of the town can be annexed, providing the application is signed by 25 per cent of the free-holders of real property — individuals and corporations — in any area specified.

Drew by John Pearce Camm, attorney for the Council, the act directs that a careful survey of land proposed to be added to the town, and a plot made of the same.

Upon completion of the survey, the Council shall then proceed to submit by referendum the question of the proposed change to the free-holders of the land proposed to be added to the town, and the proposed change be submitted by referendum to the free-holders of the town.

Current Taxes Govern
Two forms of ballots, "For the Addition" and "Against the Addition," are stipulated in the bill. Each free-holder in the town shall have the right to cast one vote for the current year, and each free-holder of the land to be added shall have the right to cast one vote for each dollar of county taxes paid for the current year of the referendum.

Any duly appointed official or representative of any corporation involved, either as town or county taxpayer, will be permitted to vote on the same basis as free-holders.

One provision is made in the bill for an unanimous request for annexation.
No referendum will be required in cases where the written consent of the owners of all the real property to be transferred

Following a joint session of the a survey of a tunnel project already

Speaker Frank R. Zebley (R) introduced the first bill and a moment later identical proposal.

The Speaker's bill would clothe the commission with authority to make application to the federal government for a $5,000,000 grant with which to help pay for a $15,000,000 tunnel.

J. Warren Marshall, Charles Warren,

Checkered Lines Mark Basket-Ball Boundaries

Checked boundary lines have been painted on the University of Kansas basketball court. Dr. F. C. Allen, coach, says the "spots" make the boundaries more discernible for spectators as well as fast-moving players.

nevertheless non-essential things in which he has theretofore indulged his child.

Circumstances Have Changed
The state is in no different position. In the glorious days preceding 1929 and shortly thereafter, when the funds of this state were ample to indulge almost the slightest whim, little was thought and little discussed about what was good or bad in our secondary educational system. No thought was given to whether we were spending money for something that was unnecessary, but on the contrary we prided ourselves that our state could give almost anything for the broad purpose of education.

However, circumstances have much changed since then. This state, both in its educational budget as in every other, is faced with the reality of having to curtail its activities and its projects, or exact new taxes, or borrow money to continue as heretofore. Now it seems to me, and I think this will appeal to any person who reasons the matter through, that education must be shorn, or at least curtailed in those things which may be classed as non-essential, although they may be highly desirable.

value may be summarized as cultural. I believe that anyone is better prepared to enjoy life to its fullest by reason of having pursued the study of these things and perhaps acquired some knowledge of them, but I am not persuaded to believe that more than an extremely small per cent of secondary school students derive any real value, either cultural or otherwise, from the study of art. The argument in favor of the study of art advanced by the theoretical pedagogues is that it gives to the students a sense of balance, of proportion, of arrangement, and of symmetry. I am firmly persuaded that there is more art and more orderly arrangement and more symmetry in the writing of a legible, clear, sensible sheet of English than there is in the awkward rudimentary attempt at so called art.

Moreover, I am persuaded from my own experience as a student and a teacher, and I believe that most art teachers will honestly admit this to be true, that at least 95 per cent of the classes in art regard the time spent in the classroom as a lark and little more. The remaining five per cent of the students who take this course are those who have a natural aptitude or talent for art and were these same teachers allowed to design a class and conduct a course for those talented few, they would derive an immense value from it, uninterrupted and uninterfered with by the disciplinary problems which arise from teaching a subject which is little cared for and not appreciated by the remaining 95 per cent.

Haven For Unambitious
At the very best there should be no academic credit given for a subject which is so little valued.

Values In Music
I also believe that there is a certain value derived by subjecting the entire student bodies on occasion of assembly periods, comparable to college hours, to concerts, either by the reproduction of records or through work done by talented students in the field of symphony music or other worth while musical programs. I would be very loath to see any school without a member of the faculty being capable of conducting these things, but I cannot believe that any child should be given credits toward promotion and graduation by reason of having taken part in such, nor do I believe the activity is of such value in comparison to the other courses that it justifies the expenditure of money for a state supervisor of music or city supervisor of music in a school. I believe that it is the responsibility of any able principal or superintendent that a properly qualified teacher in charge of these activities with in the school, perhaps in conjunction with other work that that teacher conducts.

Stand Fast On Point
Perhaps the proper field for art and music is that of adult education if it can be conducted inexpensively and as the need and demand require. Here in this field we have an entirely different group who are interested to the extent that they voluntarily and gladly seize the opportunity to benefit themselves, and therefore derive a real value from the time spent in such classes.

However, looking at the field of music and art as a secondary educational course, at the risk of being termed a barbarian in the temples of learning, I must reiterate and stand fast upon the point that this is a subject which can be curtailed without any real loss to the children in schools of our state. (In a subsequent article I will touch upon other subjects in which I wish to clarify my position and to present my ideas about other things that can be corrected to the benefit of our secondary education and not to its detriment as might have been supposed by previous statements in the press.)

Roamin' with Rutledge

Let's Go! EVERYBODY!

Ordinarily it's easy enough for a community to support a winning team, but only profound loyalty will retain rooters for a losing cause. In Newark the situation seems to be unique. Athletic teams produced at the local high school, for instance, never get an over abundance of support from the public whether they are good or bad.

Taken as a whole and looking merely at the record of teams participating in their own class, Newark High School does a generally good job of producing athletic winners. There are "bad years," of course, and as far as the last two seasons are concerned—with something like three victories in thirty starts—the Yellowjackets of the basketball court have run into a near-record slump.

Undoubtedly a lot of reasons for this situation can be laid to the lack of interest indicated by the local public. If parents and older people, especially former athletes, aren't interested in what the youngsters are doing, there is no special reason why the kids themselves should be bubbling over with enthusiasm. It was ever thus.

The Grand Finale?

Newark High School completes its basketball schedule on the home floor next Tuesday night against Conrad. The chances are that the local lads will finish second to the visitors from Richardson Park.

But win, lose, or draw, let's go down to the Academy Street institution, all of us, and give the youngsters a grand finale with some attention for their efforts. Somebody put a bee in Coach Bill Gillespie's bonnet about making next Tuesday a civic club night, with members of the Rotary and Lions Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce receiving special requests to drop their quarters into the till.

Why confine it to groups? Let's all go out to the ball game. It's the final one the kids will play at home this year and who can tell, they might feel like coming back in the 1939-40 campaign with a dash of spirit that will knock the drolmours of the last two seasons into the proverbial cocked hat.

At least it won't hurt the local general public to extend an invitation for them to come back by showing a little interest in their affairs. The Jayvee game starts at 7:15, with the Varsity skirmish getting under way at 8:15. And at a mere two-bit piece, what can you lose for the night?

Noted In Passing

All the shouting that attended P. M. C.'s 49-39 court win over Washington College last week failed to include the information that Kardash and Neubert, two Chestertown regulars, were unable to appear against the Cadets. . . . Kardash was injured in the Western Maryland tilt, while Neubert was bedridden with the flu.

Which is reported as bad and good news for the University of Delaware basketball team. The Shoemen will probably be at full strength by the time the Hens hit the Chestertown Armory Saturday night. . . . But the Pennsylvania grey clads won't be as hot at Taylor gym on February 25 as the Washington score indicates on the surface.

Add social note: Bruce Lindsay, basketball captain of the Delaware quint, has broken with that swanky home in a nearby village. . . . Where he was head man with a not-too-old widowed mother and her not-too-young debutante daughter. . . . At the same time, "It's nice work, if you can do it," opines Lindsay.

Still It Passes

Charlie Davis, touted as the local table tennis king, has broken out as a crooner-arranger. . . . His vocal rendition of "Summer Is Iumin' In" rolled the boys on the floor at Martin's after sundown recently. . . . Especially his "cool" chirping of the line: "Growth seed, bloweth mead, cue koo, cue koo!" Claims it's an ancient number written about 1226 by a collection of monks. . . . He's trying to revise it in swing time.

While the Delaware Y. W. C. A. and other "girl" groups pull their hair over the naming of an official state bird, the U. S. Biological Survey bemoans the fact that no big game abounds here. . . . But the big game census fails to include the Clan duPont. . . . Members of which are always ducking shots fired by the brethren of the Delaware swamps.

New Phil pilot will keep stars, according to a recent head referring to Dr. James Prothro. . . . But the only stars he'll see will be on opposing teams. . . . And when his players bump heads stumbling through the darkness of the National League cellar. . . . Unless he proves to be another miracle worker.

Those bright lights of Broadway (and Brooklyn) didn't hinder Delaware's dribblers while they were humbling Pratt Institute and Brooklyn Poly last week end. . . . But the returning warriors showed wear and tear (plus deep, dark cricles) and the Philadelphia National League team dropped the Centerville franchise at the end of the 1936 season after operating for two years at a reported gross loss of $4,000.

Centerville sportsmen have formed the "Queen Anne's Sports Activities, Inc." to sponsor the team this year. . . . Discussion of Sunday baseball hinged about the situation at Salisbury, where the diamond game can't be played on the Sabbath. . . . The Sunday double-header proposal was turned down on the basis that should the Maryland Legislature pass a law permitting games in Salisbury on the Sabbath, the league ought to go easy and play but one game until sentiment is fully determined.

League franchises are held in six Maryland towns—Salisbury, Cambridge, Federalsburg, Easton, Pocomoke, and Centerville—with Milford and Dover representing Delaware and rounding out the circuit.

Pro Grid Loop Vetoes Membership Increase. The National Football League took unanimous action against increasing its membership or sponsoring the organization of other professional circuits.

President Joe F. Carr said no formal applications for franchises in the league had been received, but several cities, including Cincinnati, Buffalo, and St. Louis, have expressed a desire to join the league.

Without a dissenting ballot official of the ten clubs voted to retain the present membership. They gave no official recognition to reports that other leagues were in formation involving cities already represented in the National League.

The league also reinstated Ken Strong, former New York University star, who will rejoin the New York Giants, which he left three years ago to play with a rival pro group.

The league set up rules for an annual post-season game in Los Angeles in January. The game will be between the league champions and another team composed of all-stars picked by a newspaper poll from the other nine league teams. The game will be played at Wrigley Field the next two years, thereafter at the Coliseum.

Coach Fritz Crisler Discusses Football. To Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler, Michigan football coach, winning is not the main thing to emphasize in football.

"There is a bigness to the sport that does not show on the scoreboard," he says. "Football serves to prepare young men for life. It teaches players to control their emotions and to do their level best whatever conditions may be. They must learn to accept things as they are and to exert themselves fully without offering any alibi."

JACKETS AND REDSKINS TO MEET HERE TUESDAY

Record Breaking Attendance Expected; Locals Determined To Bolster Weak Season And Avenge Previous Defeat

By Bill Fletcher

Despite the long lines of defeats and the too few victories extending over a period of two seasons, followers of the Newark High School basketball team are expected to turn out in full force when the Jackets wind up their home season in the local gymnasium with the Conrad passers Tuesday night.

Squad Handicapped

Special arrangements have been made by Coach William K. Gillespie to accommodate a record-breaking crowd and invitations have been extended to local service organizations, including the Lions Club of Newark, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Newark Rotary Club for the battle with the Redskins, who will represent a school fast becoming the foremost athletic rival of the local institution in this section.

Handicapped by a squad of candidates last year lacking both stature and experience, the Jackets were forced to admit defeat in fifteen consecutive tilts, a losing streak that was carried through six more games of the current season, before the locals could pull out of the rut and force A. I. duPont to take the short end of the count on January 30.

Salem Was Victim

But despite this favorable reversal of form, the Gold and Black has been able to salvage only two conquests from eight battles since that time. Salem High School was victimized in easy fashion by the Jackets on both occasions.

With the large number of supporters expected to back the local quint in its final home engagement, however, the local combination is expected to "turn it on" Tuesday night, not only in order to avenge a previous trouncing at the hands of the Redskins, but to provide a stiff contest for the crowd.

Parents, friends, club members, and students are all being urged to turn out for the home finale and support the team. The preliminary tilt, between the junior varsity teams of both schools, will start at 7:15 o'clock.

Vocational High School will furnish the opposition tonight (Thursday) in the local gymnasium, while three away games. Vocational on February 24, Wilmington on March 1, and Bescom College on March 3, will wind up the schedule.

Coach Gillespie's charges fell for the second time this season before New Castle High School when the William Penn cagers chalked up a 39-28 victory on their own court Tuesday night.

Angelo Cataldi led the local cagers with ten points, four field goals and a pair of fouls, while Walls, with thirteen, and Bowen, with eleven, paced the victors in point collecting.

In the preliminary tilt, the Castilian junior varsity outfit blanked the local reserves from the field to hang up a 27-8 triumph. Attick converted four shots from the charity stripe to pace the Jackets, while Russell, with eight points, was best for the hosts.

Ralph Guldahl Eager For Test With Cotton. Big, drawing Ralph Guldahl, National Open golf champion, issued an "anywhere, any time" challenge to Britain's Henry Cotton Saturday.

The former Dallas amateur who made himself golf's No. 1 man by winning the Open two years in succession sprawled in the shade as he finished his second round in the $5,000 Texas Open and snapped: "I'd jump at the chance to play this Cotton. I've only seen him hit two or three shots, but I know he must be a grand shotmaker. I'd like him at 72 holes—just anywhere he cares to play. It might be that we could fix up a 'home-and-home' match if I go to the British Open this year, as I plan."

Recent reports that Cotton was negotiating for an American appearance—for a light $18,500 guarantee—stirred up the Guldahl-Cotton possibility.

"Right now I feel as if I could beat Cotton and win the Open for the third time," said Guldahl. "My shots are just as good as ever today. I draw the line at one thing, however—cold weather. I'm not much when it's cold."

HAVERFORD BOWS TO HEN FIVE

Delaware Team Takes Invaders In Full Stride

Paced by Captain Bruce Lindsay and Earl McCord, who accounted for nine points each, the University of Delaware basketball team scored on easy 43-23 victory over Haverford College in Taylor Gymnasium Tuesday night.

The Hens grabbed the lead in the early minutes of play and increased their margin throughout the tilt. Outscored 18-7 from the field, the invaders managed to convert nine of seventeen shots from the charity stripe while the Blue and Gold cagers were accounting for only seven of the same number of chances.

Field Day For Hens. Trailing 2-1 in the first few minutes, the Hens starting hitting their stride and at the end of the first ten minutes, led 11-4. This edge was steadily increased to 21-11 at the intermission.

Coach Steve Grenda's charges enjoyed a big five minutes immediately at the start of the second half when they accounted for five field tosses to boost the count to 31-15. At the end of the third quarter, the score stood 37-19.

In the preliminary tilt, the Delaware junior varsity outfit turned in a 19-17 victory over the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, Carty Douglas, with six points, was best for the losers, while Tommy Ryan, also with six counters, led the winners.

The Hens will attempt to avenge an earlier defeat when they invade Chestertown, Md., Saturday night to face the crack Washington College outfit.

Billiard Leaders Unchanged As Tourney Continues At Martin's

Morrison, Tweed, And Keeley Victor; Daly Blows Lead, Stopped By Smith

By "Cue Keeley" Leaders in the class B pocket billiard tournament at Jimmy Martin's State parlor remained unchanged this week as Curtis (Huck) Morrison, the front runner; Dick Tweed, defending champion and runner up, and George Keeley, in number three position, registered victories. Steve Gula, fourth in the standing, was idle.

Morrison topped a dangerous foe on Saturday afternoon when he downed Clyde Crowe, 90-51. Although far down in the pack, Crowe is noted for his ability to bump off leaders, but Morrison always had enough on the ball to hold the edge throughout the match.

Tweed also held a trying opponent when he stopped Jake (Tiger) Hogan, 75-58, Monday night. Only a half game separates the defending titlist and Morrison, with the former having played ten matches to play to the latter's nine.

Daly Blows Lead. Sporting a lead of 46-33, Charles (Spike) Daly was the victim of a surprising rally by Ernie Smith Tuesday night that brought the latter under the wire a winner by a 55-47 count.

Daly, one of the most colorful players in the tournament, had the gallery in stitches with his expressions of pained anguish as Smith was cutting into his lead coming down the stretch. The Tuesday afternoon meeting between Bayard Oscar Perry, Jr., and Curt Riley was postponed, as was the Wednesday meeting scheduled between Marty Howard and Harry B. Williamson.

Surratt Stagers Home. Grover Tennyson Surratt almost blew a 20-ball lead in limping home ahead of Rube Heath Wednesday afternoon by the close count of 65-60. He was handed a trimming on Friday night when George Keeley retained his hold on third place with a routing 60-48 victory. Surratt, who has been ill, was making his first tournament appearance in three weeks.

In the one other match of the week, Jack Sanders was kicked into the cellar by Frank Porter, who took a 65-49 conquest Wednesday afternoon.

PHYSICAL CONDITION OF MEN IMPROVED

By Joseph A. Shaw The correct and early use of physical education facilities is essential to the improvement of the physical condition of men.

In explaining the importance of physical education, it is essential to know that a look into the past of themselves picture the advances that have been made. Our present man is a different man from the man of the past.

Newark Enjoys Winter Sport

For the last two days bells have been jingling merrily along Main street, and a number of exciting brushes have attracted interested spectators to the town. It was believed there would be no sport of this kind this winter, owing to the rough condition of the streets, following the installation of the sewer, but Main street, between the two railroads, is found to be in fair condition. Laurels so far, have gone to Victor G. Willis, proprietor of the Washington House, won by his mare Gertrude B. Others out were Thomas Greedy, with Silver Queen; Frank Godwin, with Newsboy; George Johnson, with a fast bay horse, and Homer Vanzant with his dun horse.

In 1911 and '12, Della March, owned by the late Mrs. Courtman Daniel Thompson, was recognized as queen of the snowpath and defeated all comers. Should the snow last for several days, there are many fast horses in the locality who will doubtless contest for the championship.

Social Notes

Mrs. Whittingham gave a delightful Valentine luncheon of twelve covers on Saturday, followed by Auction. The table looked beautiful with the glow of the red-capped candelabra and a large trimmed basket of luscious fruit, with a centerpiece, while the place cards of hearts and cupids strewn over the table added to the effect. Heart-shaped cakes and confections, with the ice cream in individual heart shaped moulds, with a cupid in white upon the red heart further carried out the Valentine idea.

Luncheon over, Auction was enjoyed. Miss Harter won the first prize, a Madeira center-piece, and Mrs. J. P. Cann the second prize, an embroidered guest towel. Mrs. C. B. Evans got the consolation prize, a decorated chocolate heart in a Valentine box.

Mrs. Whittingham's guests were, Mrs. Daniel Thompson, Mrs. J. P. Wilson, Mrs. Harry Hayward, Mrs. C. B. Evans, Mrs. J. P. Cann, Mrs. E. W. Cooch, Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Miss Alice Wilson, Miss Maxwell, Miss Elinor Harter, and Miss Whittingham.

Mrs. Edgar Dawson after a pleasant visit with Newark friends has returned to her home in New York. Miss Eliza Messick of Bridgeville, Del., and Miss Alice Morgan of Seaford, Del., have been visiting Prof. and Mrs. Morgan.

Mrs. Charles C. Herman, Jr., has issued cards for Auction on Saturday, February 21st, at two o'clock. Prof. and Mrs. Hayward entertained the Agricultural students, last evening at Five Hundred. Sections from the Victrola added to the pleasure of the guests. Refreshments of salad, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake, were much enjoyed by the boys. Those present were, Miss Beattie Whittingham, Miss Edythe Whittingham, Miss Eliza Messick, Miss Alice Morgan, Miss Elinor Harter, Miss Alice Kerr and Mrs. Morgan; Messrs. what to do, but also what not to do—where they stop and where the physician begins. By so doing, we protect not only the student, but also the physical educator.

Doctor Is Important

In our scheme, the role of the doctor is extremely important. Each case, however inconsequential, is checked by him and, needless to say, his advice is always followed. During this past year we were especially indebted to Dr. E. Earl Waggonman and Dr. Wallace M. Johnson for their interest and effort in behalf of our athletic teams. They gave unparagoning of their time, advice, and treatment.

The use of the equipment and facilities is not limited merely to varsity athletics. Students participating in the intramural program, the general student body and the faculty all take full advantage of the resources of our department. Thus the facilities find an all-year around use.

Used All Year

It must not be inferred that the laboratory is used only during the fall season. During basketball season, sprains, floor burns, and similar injuries are constantly being cared for. Our swimmers attempt to stave off colds by taking regular doses of ultra-violet. Track men take heat treatments for pulled muscles, shin splints, sore arms, etc. The baseball players come in for treatment of sore shoulders, strawberries, sprains, etc.

We also cooperate with the local high school in clearing up injuries or long standing. In several instances we have effected improvements in chronic cases, thereby enabling local players to continue their athletic usefulness to the local high school.

Looking to the future, it's our hope that facilities, equipment and personnel will be increased enough so that treatment might be effected more often and more efficiently.

Fixing Left-Over Fowl

Here are several happy endings for Sunday's fowl: Dice and add to cooked rice or mashed potatoes, shape into cakes and brown in fat, or slice and layer with boiled noodles for a casserole dish using left-over gravy for the moisture. Chopped and mixed with salad, sandwich or canape blends it really becomes quite an upstage food.

Novel Benefit Arranged By Stanton P.T. A.

By Miss Emma S. Maclary
Stanton, Feb. 15—The ways and means committee of the Stanton Parent-Teacher Association has arranged a rather novel benefit for playground equipment for the school. A small piece of red material to represent a cherry has been sent out in a little verse of poetry to put a dime in the cherry and return it to their Washington social on Thursday evening, which will be held following the business meeting of the Stanton P.T.A. Valentine Social.
