Newark ready for students

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

More than 17,600 University of Delaware students arrived in Newark this week and will make their home for the next nine months.

This annual convergence of people effects the city in a variety of ways, including the increased demand for water and electricity, congestion of city streets and Newark police being inundated with calls of noise, parking and alcohol violations.

City Water Director Joe Dombrowski said the students' return increases the water demand by one million gallons per day, swelling the amount of water used in Newark to 5.5 million gallons each day.

He said water customers will most likely not notice a drop in water pressure with the increased demand. But, Dombrowski said, it depends on how well city operators stay on top of the increased demand for water.

Newark Electric Director Dennis Smith said the demand for electricity slightly increases when university students return to the dormitories, but he said supply demand is also weather-related.

"If it's hot and muggy, then the energy supply increases," Smith said. "On a cool day the demand is not so much."

Newark Police Chief Hogan said when University of Delaware students return to Newark there is tremendous congestion of traffic with the added pedestrians, vehicles and bicycles.

He said noise complaints and alcohol arrests increase, as do the number of parking tickets issued.

Police, Hogan said, will particularly be watching local businesses that serve alcohol to make sure no underage service is taking place. The police will also patrol local apartment complexes for parties where underage consumption is common.

"We prepare as a police agency to become more vigilant in apartment complexes," Hogan said. "There are more noise complaints in the area and we anticipate problems."

He said, while most police interaction with students sounds negative there is a positive side where the police contribute to students learning by being good neighbors.

"We try to reach out to students off-campus and provide them with crime prevention information," Hogan said.

He said tips are on rape prevention, locking property and bicycle and pedestrian safety.

"We want to help them have a safe experience here in Newark," Hogan said. "For many this is the first time away from home."

"The students are part of our community," Hogan said. "We're a university community and that is what makes Newark, Newark."

Towne Court Apartments Manager Laura Schultz, said about 95 percent of tenants are University of Delaware students. She said, although students usually go home in the summer, most keep their apartments leased during the summer.

West Main St. residents want bypass

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark residents on West Main Street who are tired of truck traffic that "rattles the pictures on their walls" are sending a message to their state representatives... "No Bypass, No Vote."

Carol Peters, a 56-year-old, life-long resident of West Main Street, said the truck noise usually starts about 4 a.m. and continues throughout the day.

By placing the "No Bypass, No Vote" sign on her front porch, Peters said, "I want to send a message that I'm not going to vote for them (state house and senate candidates) unless they do something about this in Dover. I guess the next step is just to strap ourselves to the street."

Peters said she has had to replaster her walls because the vibrations from tractor trailers have shaken the house so hard.

Another West Main Street resident, Lisa Lucas, said she had to install air filter machines in her children's rooms so they could sleep through the night. The air filters provide a "white noise" that muffles the tractor trailer noise.

Safety has also become an issue. "The trucks are just too big to fit physically on this road," said Lucas.

Residents said the trucks turning left on West Main Street from Hillside Road, to reconnect with Del. 896, can't make the turn

"If you don't move back you're going to get hit because they (trucks) can't fit," Lucas said. "I'm not going to play chicken with a semi."

Residents want a new road that will route traffic from Maryland and Pennsylvania around Newark instead of through it.

The road, commonly known as the Christina Bypass, has been an issue—sometimes controversial—since 1953.

When the Delaware General Assembly enacted legislation protecting the future highway right of way in 1970, plans for the bypass were boosted.

Gridlock greets drivers entering Newark on I-95

By JIM DeCOURSEY
SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Increased traffic, increased fees and limited lanes cause a gridlock for motorists passing through the Delaware Turnpike toll plaza between Elkton and Newark every weekend.

And with the end of summer approaching, turnpike officials don't see a break in backups coming anytime soon.

"We know there is problem — we see it every weekend starting Thursday night," said Alan Cherrin, toll administrator for the turnpike authority. He estimates the 60,000 cars passing through the plaza daily during the week will climb to nearly 90,000 this weekend.

Making change for the $1.25 is probably the single biggest reason for delays, Cherrin said. Yet he doesn't think the 25 cent increase, which took effect last September, has deterred people from traveling the interstate.

There hasn't been a big drop in volume because of the toll increases or backups, Cherrin said. The only people who dodge the toll are local commuters, he explained.

To deal with hectic traffic at the toll complex, turnpike officials reverse lanes into the plaza. They also add a lane by stationing collectors along the shoulder of the toll complex, Cherrin said.

"We put a flagger down the road to wave traffic over and post a supervisory person out there with a trash can to collect the money," he said.

Cherrin also blames snarls on changes at the Maryland Transportation Authority toll complex in Perryville, which only collects fees from northbound traffic.

"Maryland can throw traffic faster at us than we can handle it," Cherrin said. It's tough to filter traffic through an eight-lane plaza when it's being sent from a 13-lane complex in Perryville, he said.

Coalition, Council look for resolution to UD charter issue

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark City Council believes discussion is the way to action. Local residents, however, are taking action.

Council members are calling for a special Town and Gown Committee (City and university leaders) meeting to study the charter-change issue, while a handful of Newark residents are taking to the streets and Newark Community Day to get signatures on petitions.

The residents, calling themselves The Coalition to Establish Good Neighbors, is in favor of bringing the University of Delaware under Newark's zoning laws.

Newarker Michael Fahey addressed council about a month ago asking them to write a resolution requesting the Delaware State Legislature amend the two charters (University of Delaware and City of Newark.)

A charter is a document issued by the state legislature which gives municipalities and educational institutions certain powers to govern themselves.

Currently, the university's charter says it must follow building codes but are exempt from local zoning laws.

Newark City Councilman Tom Wampler said the city has called for a special September Town and Gown meeting to discuss the proposal. "We

Newarker arrested for growing marijuana

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Delaware State Park Rangers arrested Newark resident, Dennis L. Cannon, Aug. 21 and charged him with growing marijuana in White Clay Creek State Park, off Wedgewood Road.

According to Mike Mahaffie, spokesperson for Delaware Department of Natural Resources, Rangers spotted the plants in a wooded area of the park. They needed to witness someone tending the plants before any arrests could be made.

After a two-month surveillance, Mahaffie said Rangers saw Cannon, 26, allegedly harvesting the plants and cultivating others. Officers seized 12 marijuana plants, a shovel, a container of liquid plant food and a car.

"It's important for people to know you can't use public land for just any purpose...and certainly not for growing drugs," Mahaffie said.

Rangers say they will now consult with the Delaware Attorney General's office to determine if the recently enacted "Drug Free Parks" law is applicable.

Cannon was released on a $1,500 unsecured bond. Rangers credited Newark Police with assisting in the investigation.

AREA ELECTION COVERAGE

Lofink seeks reelection

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

State Representative Vincent Lofink (R-Bear) recently announced he will run for reelection to the 27th District in November.

Seeking his third term, Lofink promises continued attention to public transportation, and is in line to become Chairman of the House Transportation Committee, if elected and Republicans remain the House majority.

Noting the recent expansion of DART and DART services along the Route 40 corridor, Lofink said, "This is only the beginning of the Route 40 Corridor getting its fair share of the public transportation dollar." Lofink said he would also be a member of the Bond Bill Committee, potentially affecting money distribution for transportation issues, if elected.

"Because of the nature of growth in my area, I really want to get public transportation and DART below Route 40," Lofink said. "It used to be you could only get DART service if you were getting dialysis... It might not seem real important now, but when we get to comprehensive parts of the Clean Air Act and people have to car pool or take public transportation, then it will."

The candidate said his strong points lie in his ability to work as a liaison to state agencies and civic organizations.

As a member of the Special House Desegregation Committee, Vince Lofink will run for reelection in the 27th District.

he successfully fought Gov. Thomas Carper's school desegregation Consent Order.

He supports neighborhood schools and the idea that a school's governing board should be localized and not in the hands of the State School Board.

As a representative in the fastest growing area in the county, projected to expand by almost 72 percent by the year 2010, Lofink promises to continue to monitor the speed of growth.

He cited the illegal construction debris buried by some developers of the Fox Run community as one of the fast-paced growth issues he helped to correct. The debris pits were unstable and could release toxic gasses over time.

"The State has spent more than $2 million on this project," Lofink said. "Hopefully, Delaware will recover all of their costs from the responsible parties."

As far as infrastructure, Lofink said he plans to remain active in the Route 40 Corridor Study, which is now in its beginning stages.

Lofink said the study, which calls for resynchronization of traffic signals on U.S. 40, "should have been done 10 years ago, but it will be done by the end of this year."

The intersection along U.S. 40 where Del. 1 and 7 cross, is the "biggest jam in Pencader 100," according to Lofink, but he said he is confident the problem will be addressed.

The candidate said he would support building the new Bear Post Office as part of a proposed Glasgow Town Center.

He promised to investigate the state's role in such a project and "see if we can help them (the county and private investors) in a bond bill."

Lofink is challenged by Barbara Erskine (D), who lost in the 1992 Democratic primary to Mike Begatto.

The candidate, his wife of 21 years, Donna McBride Lofink, and their children, Brian, 18; Michael, 17; Tony, 16; and Richard, 12; live in Caravel Farms. They are members of St. John's-Holy Angels Parish in Newark.

The Newark area 11th Senate District Democratic Primary candidates may have come late to the race, but have managed to stir some debate.

Paul G. Clark announced his candidacy for the seat soon after 22-year incumbent Sen. Roger A. Martin (D-Windy Hills) announced he would not seek reelection last month. Martin and other party officials are backing Clark.

Anthony J. DeLuca announced soon after Clark he would also run. DeLuca is running with the support of the AFL-CIO and Sen. Thomas Sharp (D-Pinecrest).

DeLuca's success could help Sharp get back his majority leader position, which Martin took after Sharp was ousted this summer.

Faced with innuendoes that he would be a mouthpiece for organized labor concerns, DeLuca said he "hasn't figured out yet how to over come that problem."

"Opportunity to run became apparent when Sen. Martin retired," DeLuca said. "I want to run to make improvements in the systems we have."

Clark, who lives in Sherwood Forest and is the Regional Coordinator of the garden division of Boscov Department Stores, said if elected, one of his top priorities would be to improve the state's education system.

As a former public school teacher, Clark said his experience in the public school system will help him represent residents in the 11th district.

He supports legislation to gain local control of schools saying, "Forty-five minutes on a bus is ridiculous." Clark also said he would work to lower class size and supports the idea of alternate programs from disruptive children.

"The first thing I would do, if elected, is sit down with the Governor and try to work on education," Clark said.

DeLuca, who is the business manager for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) Local 313, also said he supports alternative programs for disruptive students.

If elected, he said he would like to see a non-tax based source of income for the schools and suggested money from state slot machines could be invested in the school system.

"We have to get teachers in an atmosphere where they can teach," DeLuca said.

Both candidates agreed something needs to be done to improve traffic concerns in the area.

Clark said, "It seems like we wait for everything to get done, then we look at the problems." He cited Old Baltimore Pike as an example. "We all saw the land around Old Baltimore pike being zoned for housing, it didn't take a professional planner to realize Old Baltimore Pike couldn't handle it." He suggested that a good county and state relationship, which he promised to cultivate if elected, would help reach proactive planning methods.

DeLuca suggested improvements to the mass transit system would help alleviate congestion.

"We have to look at rail and monorail so people can get around in foul weather," DeLuca said. "We should use an existing commuter rail line instead of funding one new road after another and start funneling money into 21st century mass transit needs."

DeLuca, 48, and his wife Janet live on Trevett Drive in Newark. They have one daughter, Jennifer, who is 18. He served as recording secretary for IBEW from 1975-1978, president from 1978-1984 and has been business manager since 1984.

DeLuca is a former member of the New Castle County Democratic Committee and has worked on other candidates' campaigns. He was also president of Varlano Civic Association for two terms.

"I represent people for a living and I've been involved with the community," said DeLuca. "I believe I could do a good job."

Clark, 38, divorced, has two children, Holly 15, and Alyssa 10.

He ran unsuccessfully for the 26th Representative District seat in 1992 and has worked on the 26th District Democratic Committee and other candidates' campaigns.

Whitsel-Piechocki to challenge Venezky

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark area resident Carlene Whitsel-Piechocki (R) announced this week she will run against Karen Venezky (D) for New Castle County's District 5 council seat.

Although the deadline to file for candidacy has passed, the New Castle County Republican Committee is exercising its right to appoint a candidate by Sept. 1. Until now Venezky was running unopposed.

"We had several meetings with her (Whitsel-Piechocki) and decided she would be a good candidate," said Rick LaPenta, Chairman of the NCC Republican Committee. "She's been active at the Party level and with various civic groups in the Newark area."

Whitsel-Piechocki said she became interested in running after county council passed a 4.6 percent property tax increase this spring.

As an associate at Wilmington Financial Group, Whitsel-Piechocki said she believes her background in budgeting, financial analysis and debt reduction will allow her to represent the fifth district.

"I feel I have the skill and the knowledge to help better utilize our tax dollars," Whitsel-Piechocki said.

The candidate has lived in Delaware for 13 years, the last seven in Scottfield. She has been married for 2 1/2 years and has a daughter who attends the University of Delaware and a step-son who attends Glasgow High School.

said. Police said the car was searched after the driver, Reinaldo Hernandez, 49, of New Jersey, gave police vague answers of his destination.

Police report the driver fled into a wooded area when the drugs were found, but was later found.

They're back!

LABOR DAY WEEKEND is here and, traditionally, that means the end of summer for people all over the country. Most people use the weekend — and the ensuing weeks of September — as a transition to autumn.

For a select few towns, Newark being one of them, the end of summer is distinct and very abrupt. It's hard to have a long transitional period when 15,000 people march back into town for a nine-month stay.

For some residents this student invasion is seen as a nuisance; for others it is a welcomed influx.

The City and its residents have had their share of confrontations with the University of Delaware and its students. However, many of these problems are no different than are experienced in other college towns.

Many, especially some business owners, are extremely happy to see the students return.

The return has been compared to the Christmas season. That's certainly one advantage to having 15,000 consumers — all at once — come back to town.

But businesses aren't the only ones that benefit from UD's location in Newark.

Believe it or not, there are people in town who look forward to the students being around. From the pageantry of a home football game against a big rival to a play at Mitchell Hall; there are many more things going on in Newark when classes are in session.

Newark, for over 160 years, has been host to this environment and another one is about to start.

As posted in last week's issue of the Newark Post, the year is off to a good start with the Wilburfest compromise being forged.

Hopefully, that is just the start of what will be a good nine months.

FROM THE HEART

Volunteering is worthwhile

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

THE FIRST TIME I volunteered at a nursing home it was uncomfortable, but gradually as I got to know some of the residents I saw just how important my visits are.

I'm in the community service club of the Newark Rotaract Club, which is a for people ages 18-30 and sponsored by the Newark Rotary Club.

Newark Rotaract was formed about one year ago and our first project was to spend time with residents of the Newark Manor Nursing Home.

It was, for most Rotaract members, their first time volunteering with elderly people and, after long silences and some residents rambling during conversations, we didn't know if it was an experience we wanted to relive.

But Doris Kennedy of the nursing home explained to me that even if some residents are incoherent, talking to them is very important because they are exercising their vocal cords — something they wouldn't be doing if we hadn't taken the time to be there to make conversation with them.

Also, there are the residents who are so friendly and warm to us that some members have come to know them by name.

I remember recently not being at the nursing home for months when I went there to see Doris on business. She asked me to look in on one of the residents because he had taken a bad fall and needed some cheering up.

But I was thinking to myself, this man won't remember me and, besides, I'm in a hurry with so much writing to do for work.

But I took the extra 10 minutes and went down the hall to visit the man. I walked in and he was resting with his head hung and his eyes closed. I said hello and he slowly lifted his head to look at me and as he recognized me a big smile spread slowly across his face.

And at that moment I knew that I, in those few minutes, had made a difference that day. I had given and had received a very special gift of friendship.

These have been some of my experiences through the Rotaract club.

The club continues to spend time at the nursing home. Other projects there have included baking cookies for residents, Christmas caroling and playing games with them.

Besides befriending senior citizens, last year the club raised $850 for Midwest flood victims through a bowl-a-thon.

Also locally, we sort food at the Delaware Food Bank, have an adopt-a-highway stretch of road we clean up near Hockessin and are soon adopting-a-stream, which is a tributary of the White Clay Creek. We will monitor the water way for pollution and clean up the area.

UPON MY WORD

Women's conference opens eyes

By SHIRLEY TARRANT
NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

LOOKED ACROSS the room filled to capacity with 550 people (only a half dozen men) and there was New Castle County Councilwoman Karen Venezky. Later, I saw an old high school classmate and also, someone from AAUW. Those were the only people I knew in the room.

Latecomers had been turned away. It was the "Region III, U.S. official preparatory meeting for the UN 4th World Conference on Women, held in Wilmington Aug. 5, 1994. Pretty impressive, huh? (Region III includes Del., Washington D.C., Md., Pa., Va. and W.Va.) The theme of the conference was: "Women Thinking Globally — Acting Locally — On the road to Beijing and the 21st century."

I must admit that I am not into global issues. I read about them, continually am shocked by world conditions, discuss them now and then but, I have never been proactive or involved at an international level. When I received this conference invitation, it was the words "acting locally" which caught my attention, because that's what I think I have been doing for 30 years. I am glad that I decided to attend.

The last time I had any serious international thoughts/involvement was a high school trip to the UN. Thinking about my registration for the conference reminded me that it has been almost three decades since 1975 was declared by the UN as "The Year of the Woman."

Work to advance women across the globe has been ongoing all these years, and there still is much to be done, as I learned at this conference. The 1975 Women's Conference in Mexico City (6,000 attended), the 1980 conference in Copenhagen, and the 1985 conference in Nairobi were just the beginnings of constant meetings across cultural boundaries. They provided an opportunity for women to learn when to bow and when to take a stand, where governmental bodies are dictating women's everyday lives.

The Region III prep meeting opened with a video of past conferences, with Helen Reddy singing the statement in the background: "I Am Woman." Much was said and much was seen via this "Visions of the Decade" video. The fast-forward words and pictures challenged my eyes and my brain as I listened to phrases such as "redefinition and redirection," "the struggle is just beginning," and "everywhere women are changing." I actually wrote down the following words because they are so poignant: "Each woman's bondage mocks my claim

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This photo, submitted by H.B. "Whitey" Wilson, shows the Jacob Thomas Co. wall paper mill after it burned to the ground in 1913. The building was built in 1908 at the southwest corner of Cleveland Ave. and North College Ave. — later the site of the Newark Lumber Co.

Council again defers action on milk ordinance

Town Council held its regular monthly meeting on Monday night. The Milk Ordinance, action upon which was deferred from the August meeting was discussed at some length but no action taken because of the absence of two of the members. Several bills were ordered paid and a number of sewer and water connections to curb ordered to be made on South Chapel Street where surfacing is being done, so that future sewer and water connections will not necessitate tearing up the street.

Housing situation eased somewhat by shifting about

The housing situation which for several years has been acute in Newark shows no signs of improving. Those blessed with sufficient wealth to enable them to build with material and labor at any price, are wary of making this form of investment, and those of limited means have adopted a policy of hopeful — not watchful — waiting for prices to drop.

Issue of September 3, 1969...

School is mandatory 6 to 16

According to a new law, all children from and including age 6 to 16 are required to attend public school in Delaware.

Author and sponsor of the bill, HB 62, Representative John G.S. Billingsley R-Newark said he was motivated to write the bill because "some parents, particularly in disadvantaged areas, were not concerned with their child's welfare and did not bother to send their children to school."

City buys farm for park

The City of Newark will soon have seven more acres of parkland and a two story barn to boot if a purchase approved by city council last week is consummated.

The property, part of the Vannoy Farm, lies adjacent to Fairfield and is being purchased by the city for $65,000. Last week the council agreed to bind the saddle and authorized a $5,000 payment to be made to the Vannoys.

District, teachers reach accord

Negotiators for the Christina School District and its teacher's have reached a tentative contract agreement.

The accord between the District and the Christina Education Association, which represents more than 1000 classroom teachers, came Monday, according to District spokesman Dr. Philip A. Toman.

It came the same day that the teacher's old contract expired, and just nine days before the return of students to public schools on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

WSFS opens Newark branch

At a ribbon cutting ceremony Aug. 24, Wilmington Savings Fund Society president and chief executive officer J. Walton St. Clair Jr. officially opened the newest WSFS branch at College Square shopping center.

This is the 20th WSFS branch and the first new branch opened since 1978.

Young adults wanted

Also, for the coming school year the club is going to adopt Brookside Elementary School in the Christina School District. We are working with Brookside Principal Marlene James and hope to work with children in their classrooms, do mentoring, tutoring and work with the school's PTA on events such as their annual fun fair, open house and skating party.

Other opportunities in the club include professional development and international service.

Professional development includes having speakers talk about occupations and business-related topics and members touring businesses and industry.

While the Rotaract Club is thriving when it comes to being involved with the community, we now are seeking individuals ages 18-30 to join us.

We need members. I don't know if people just don't know about our club or think they are too busy to be committed, but we need young adults to build our membership base.

Currently we are on a membership drive and are sending letters and flyers to business and churches to inform the community of Rotaract. So please support our club by telling people in our age group about Rotaract and posting flyers (when sent them) in the windows of your businesses.

Newark Rotaract meets the 2nd and 4th Wednesdays of the month at the Provident Mutual Building behind the Christiana Hilton Hotel.

Rotaract members will have a booth at Newark Community Day on Sept. 18 on the University of Delaware mall. So if you're interested in meeting some of us who are working to fulfill needs in the community and want more information, stop by and say Hello.

Women's conference discusses issues

► TARRANT, from 4A

to freedom." Wow!

The morning and afternoon breakout sessions went far beyond talk of sexual harassment, abortion and pay equity. These sessions addressed such issues as racial and ethnic understanding, violence against women, overcoming poverty, changing national and international economic policies: the impact on women.

One of the keynote speakers and advocate for 58 million working women, Karen Nussbaum, director of the Women's Bureau for the U.S. Dept. of Labor, is founder of "9 to 5: National Association of Working Women," with chapters in 250 cities. Nussbaum described the organization as one "with a vision of empowerment and advancement for women, a life of dignity." It was startling to hear her cite the following statistics: a) about 80 percent of professional women earn less than $25,000 a year; b) one of five women earn below poverty level ($11,000 a year, mother with two children) c) pay for the top CEO in the U.S. is $203 million a year (Disney) - that equates to a half million dollars a day or $75,000 an hour and d) the average U.S. CEO earns 149 times that of the average worker which is $22,000 a year.

She went on to describe how women with children are still working today in sweatshops for $1 an hour. The owner closes down at day's end, moves down the street and doesn't pay the last month's wages. And how the catfish industry allows five minute bathroom breaks per week, with no doors on the stalls. And how airline workers pay $1,200 for training so they can earn $6.50 an hour - "high heels to earn low wages." And how one woman's work performance was evaluated with the comment, "two minutes of unaccounted-for time; let's work on that." In closing, Nussbaum mentioned an animal word association game played at an office one day. The associations went like this: top CEO- barracuda (vicious); supervisor- chameleon (changeable); office worker- donkey (plodding and reliable). The worker commented after the game, "If it were up to me, I'd be something that flies."

One shocking presentation at the session on health care that sticks in my mind is the fact that several insurance companies no longer cover victims of domestic violence, because domestic violence is considered a "preexisting condition." That is ridiculous.

I have only touched on a few of the intense and far-reaching issues discussed at this conference. It was almost overwhelming to be in the same room with so much energy, enthusiasm and genuine concern for global problems. These women have solutions. I heard them. One major solution to world problems is to stop proliferation of arms, assault weapons and violence. World peace starts with me. And it starts with you.

What you don't know about heart disease may kill you.

Most women don't know that aging, as well as smoking, diet and lifestyle, can dramatically increase their risk of heart disease.

Every year, an estimated half a million women past 45 will have a heart attack. Nearly half of them will die. Making it the number one killer of women in America today.

But it doesn't have to be. If women would only speak to their doctors, there's a good chance heart disease could be prevented.

What you don't know about heart disease may kill you. But what you do know may save you.

Groups eye UD charter change

► CHARTER, from 1A

(Newark City Council) can't change the university's charter," Wampler said. "The City of Newark has no say whatsoever about what the University of Delaware does."

He said the Town and Gown Committee will study the idea and report back to council.

Fahey said the citizens are making the proposal because of the loss of the back two-third of Daughters Hall and all the possible negative consequences to the community by the University of Delaware student center/parking garage project being built off Main Street.

"How can we effectively shape the growth of our community?" Fahey said, when the university is not subject to the public review process. He said if the university's charter is amended, their land use development will be subject to the City of Newark zoning regulations and public review process.

Fahey said he knows the university's student center project is not the last. "How much more do they (university planners) want to develop?" he said. "Let's hash it out. The university should bring their development plans to the City of Newark like the rest of the developers do."

A big point, Fahey said, is that many members in the group are graduates of the university and honor it as a learning institution. "The problems are with the administration of the university who have become more business oriented," Fahey said.

"We live here and it's not getting better," he said. "So we move to act. It's grassroots democracy, trying to improve our town."

Fahey said he does not think this issue will get resolved at the Town and Gown Committee but, he said, talking about it is a step forward.

The Town and Gown Committee meeting to discuss this issue will be held Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the City Building on Elkton Road and is open to the public.

Newark ready for student invasion

Sarah Midnight has seen for 20 years how university students influx to the apartments on Elkton Road. She said about 80 percent of people dwelling there are students. She said students live in Park place for the obvious reason of being just six blocks from the University of Delaware, reasonable rent prices and the university buses running along Elkton Road. "It's a busier time for us but most of the students are very nice," said Midnight. "I'm glad to see the students back and I hope they have a wonderful year."

Bypass idea sparks hot debate

► BYPASS, from 1A

In 1973 Newark City Council unanimously resolved to encourage the Delaware Department of Transportation to expedite the highway's construction. The City of Newark's power is limited on this issue because the roads in question belong to the state.

Ten years later, in 1983, the Christina Parkway was finished, which was to be the first segment of the bypass. Residents want the job finished.

During a February Old Newark Civic Association meeting, Ray Pusey, director of state highway operations for DelDOT, said the issue of rerouting traffic around Newark was shot down in 1970 by vocal residents.

"You got what you asked for," said Pusey. "I don't remember all the details, but I do know that it was over community objection that it wasn't built."

Environmental concerns topped the list of objections to the traffic, more than 25 residents in western Newark held a 22-hour truck watch in 1988. In two or three person shifts, residents - including University Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity brothers - stood on the corner of Cleveland Avenue and West Main Street. They counted 310 trucks, excluding local delivery.

In 1991, some of the same residents conducted a similar study. They counted 364 tractor trailers and large trucks, excluding 100 local delivery trucks.

Politicians speak out

State representative for the 23rd district, Catherine Wojewodski (D), said, "It's one of my top priorities, I've been working on this for two years."

Wojewodski, who serves on the House Transportation Committee, said new Federal Laws, such as the Clean Air Act, have changed the planning process.

The first step begins with the Wilmington Metropolitan Area Planning Coordinating Council (Wilmapco) comprehensive plan due this October, according to Wojewodski. However, she said the plan is already behind schedule and DelDOT officials have told her it probably won't be finished until spring 1995.

"We have to document the need for the road, or if there are ways to encourage traffic to use other roads," said Wojewodski. "Because of new federal rules, we have to go back and review all the data and reverify it...it is not budgeted because we have to pick a pathway, then do site studies, but first we have to validate the need for the road."

Once the issue is opened up to the community as a whole, Wojewodski said, "I think they'll find the whole Main Street) want the road." She said the Sierra Club and conservation groups will probably oppose the bypass.

Wojewodski said she calls either DelDOT or Wilmapco officials once a month to remind them and "keep the issue on the front burner."

"I can't imagine we'll have a road to drive on less than five years," said Wojewodski.

Tim Boulden, Republican candidate for the 23rd house seat, said, if elected, he would make the bypass a prominent issue.

"I think it can be done, it will take cooperation with Maryland and Pennsylvania," said Boulden. "The issue has been floating around for 40 years now and nobody has made it prominent."

Newark area representative in the 25th district, Steve Amick (R), said the bypass is his highest road priority in Newark.

"There is no magic wand I can swing and all of a sudden the bypass happens," said Amick, who is currently running for the District 10 State Senate Seat.

"Frankly, we haven't done a very good job as a community," said Amick. "When I mention the bypass in Dover, they say they haven't heard from residents about it."

The area potentially affected by the bypass isn't in Amick's representative district - although it is in the senate district he is campaigning for. He said he will "make every effort to find an accommodation with Maryland and get it done."

Democratic candidate for the senate 10 district seat, Paul Lesniak, said, "If elected, it will be one my top transportation priorities...I will see what kind of state and federal funds, because it will probably require more money than just the state can handle, including state funds from Maryland we can get - then it has to be written into the budget and done pronto."

Republican candidate for the same senate seat, Nancy Kelsch, said it would rank among her top priorities if elected. She said the "general idea" is a good one and would work to get a safe transportation route.

The current 10th district state senator, James Neal, was out of town and not able to comment.

Local workers look forward to holiday

Keppel keeps rolling at Blue Hen Lanes

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark Julie Keppel, sales director for Blue Hen Lanes, works and plays at her place of employment.

Keppel can't seem to get enough of her work place. She works five days a week and bowls in a league there year round — one summer and a fall league. She said her bowling average is a 165 but she never practices because she is already at the bowling alley too often.

Keppel grew up in Newark and says she has a special fondness for the senior citizens leagues. "I have a personal friendship with most everyone of them (the seniors) and some I've known since I was a little girl," she said.

Her job duties include coordinating and building league bowlers, organizing on-going bowling programs in schools and putting on bowling tournaments.

She said leagues are important to the bowling alley because they bring in repeat customers and guarantee revenue.

With fall leagues beginning in the next couple of weeks, Keppel is busy organizing the more than 1,700 league bowlers. That number does not include the 200 junior bowlers.

This fall, specialized leagues include the pizza and beer league with each bowling team during league games getting a pizza and pitcher of beer to split and the Pro Sports Jacket league with every bowler getting their pick of a NBA or NFL jacket.

"From the middle of August to the end of September, I really kind of live here," Keppel said. She must attend each beginning league meeting.

It was 1978, when Keppel started working at Blue Hen Lanes — her stepfather managed the place. She left in 1988 to work for a Nationwide Insurance agent and returned to Brunswick in Newark in 1992 to her current position.

She won Sales Director of the Year for 1994 and 1985 for the northeast Brunswick region, competing against 24 other directors.

But although work is important, she just a few weeks ago became a grandmother for the first time when daughter, Jessica, and her son-in-law Kurt gave birth to a son, named Tyler. Keppel has rearranged part of her schedule to spend time with her grandson.

History of Labor Day

With Labor Day coming this Monday, Sept. 5 most workers are looking forward to taking a holiday to celebrate the people who — like most of us — work for a living.

Labor Day, the first Monday in September each year, recognizes the alliance of working people in most nations of the world, according to Holiday & Anniversaries of The World.

The United States Congress established the holiday on June 28, 1894.

Labor union leader, Peter J. Maguire, was the originator of Labor Day.

According to the book, The Folklore of American Holidays, a direct passage depicts Maguire's origination of the holiday:

"He suggested to the Central Labor Union of New York a celebration honoring the American working man. Acting on this idea some 10,000 workers paraded in Union Square, N.Y."

Labor day remains important because it marks the end of the vacations season and provides a good time for family picnics, sporting events, political rallies, reunions of various kinds and festivals not necessarily tied to a fixed date.

Kepple's husband of 22 years, Gordon, is an engineer with DuPont. They have a second daughter, Amanda, 17.

Shell man can do it all

By TONJA CASTANEDA

One local worker who will not be working on the Labor Day holiday, even though his place of business will be open, is Carl Husfelt of Elkton, Md.

Husfelt, beginning his 23rd year today (Sept. 2) might be better recognizable if you drive your car through Godwin's Shell Station on South College Avenue and ask the attendant to fill it up.

Husfelt, 54, has been working at the gas station since 1972 and was hired because of his expertise as a mechanic, fixing Volkswagen cars and vans.

Harold Godwin, owner of Godwin's Shell Station, said in the 23 years Husfelt has worked he has probably missed only 15 days and that includes a short hospital stay.

"I think what makes him special is his commitment to business in general," said Godwin. "He does his absolute best everyday he comes to work."

Husfelt seems to be jack-of-all-trades. He said he pumps full service gas, paints, is a mechanic, runs the cash register and even plants flowers as part of the landscaping for the station.

"There is always something to do to keep a service station clean and presentable," Husfelt said.

As a mechanic, he does basic maintenance and repairs such as brakes, alignments, tire labor, exhaust systems, shocks, belts and hoses. He said he learned to fix cars years ago with on-the-job training.

"Cars are more difficult to repair than when I first started in the business," he said.

times dislikes about his job is getting dirty because he is required to wear a white shirt with a yellow and red tie (Shell colors.)

Husfelt said he remembers when all gas stations were full-service gas only and said he misses those days because of the constant people interaction.

He said the concept of self-service gas pumps were implemented when gas companies tried to keep prices down by encouraging stations to offer lower prices if people pumped their own gas.

He said he also remembers in the 1970s when gas was scarce and the last number on a license plate, odd or even, determined if it was a day a person could buy gas or not.

Husfelt said his full-service gas customers who come in still depend on him to take care of their cars.

"I fill up the gas tank, clean the rear and front windows, offer to check under the hood and check the oil, window washer and water levels and visually inspect tires for problems," he said.

"I give courteous, quick and the best service I possibly can," Husfelt said.

He has been married to his wife, Shirley, since 1962 and has three sons — Tony, 29, Mark, 24 and Kevin, 15.

Education a priority for Kelly

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It's still one week before the school year starts but Newarker Ruth Kelly has already written a letter introducing herself to her daughter's new teacher.

But Kelly, a single parent, is like that — she has learned to take initiative when it comes to her daughter Kimberly's education.

Kimberly, 8, a third-grader at Marshall Elementary School loves school.

"I find out Kim's teacher each year before school and write a note to tell the teacher a little bit about myself and about Kim," Kelly said.

She said she lists her daughter's strong subjects and ones she needs extra help. Also, she lists parental activities she can volunteer for.

Kelly is active as the Marshall PTA secretary, with the state PTA monitoring educational issues in the Delaware State Legislature, on the Christina Community Task Force and types Marshall's monthly newsletter.

But she is also involved with the school and the district informally by getting to know Kimberly's teachers, stopping by the school to eat lunch with her daughter and chat with Kimberly's friends. She even wrote Superintendent Iris Metts a thank-you note at the end of school last year because she thinks Metts is doing a good job.

Kelly also is trying to organize a work-site based PTA at her job at the DuPont Chestnut Run Site in Wilmington.

"Kim's education is the most important thing in the world and I want to make sure she is successful in school," Kelly said. "It's the only thing I can give her that no one can take away from her."

"I want to know what's going on and I feel like both of us are in school in third grade," Kelly said. She said she is learning so much about educational practices and policies that by the time Kim is in middle school she'll "be a force to be reckoned with."

"I can't speak and be an advocate for Kim unless I know what is going on and how the school system works," Kelly said.

Kelly, an African-American, also coordinates Diversity Workshops at school for teachers and parents.

She said being black is what first got her involved with the school district because she had heard so many horror stories from other black parents about minority children being put into specialized classes and passed over.

"I was distrustful and scared," Kelly said, "but I found that was not the case in the Christina School District at all."

Kelly encourages all parents to get involved with their children's school. She said parents don't have to go to a lot of meetings, but could send in food for a class party or attend parent-teacher conferences.

"I know it makes [Kim] proud when I go to her school," Kelly said. "Kids really love it when mom and dad come to school."

"I can't think of not being involved at school with [Kim]," Kelly said. She said it brings her and her daughter closer together. "I'm learning and she's learning and I'm in it for the long haul," she said.

Helping to sustain local agriculture

In my last column, I talked about sustainable agriculture — agricultural production that is economically sound, environmentally friendly and socially acceptable.

I also explained the importance of maintaining agricultural production in Delaware, particularly here in New Castle County, despite increasing pressure from competing land uses such as housing developments.

One key component of sustainable agricultural production is integrated pest management (IPM). A farmer who employs IPM practices uses all available and appropriate methods to control crop pests — including insects, weeds and diseases — while minimizing risks to humans, animals and the environment.

These technologies include cultural and mechanical practices such as crop rotation and cultivation; crop protection chemicals; genetic-engineering of plants to make them resistant to pests; scouting for pests to identify the ones causing the damage; and monitoring the crop to time control sprays if and when the pest begins to affect profits. No doubt many of you use many of these IPM techniques in your home gardens.

For many Delaware producers, Delaware Cooperative Extension's IPM program has become the most practical first defense against crop pests, for both vegetables and agronomic crops, and more recently in nurseries and greenhouses.

In 1993, Delaware added 6,000 acres of vegetables to the IPM program, a 27 percent increase over the previous year. Because this crop acreage received fewer pesticide applications, growers saved $100,000. IPM practices were used on 193,000 acres of soybeans, corn and small-grain acres, resulting in reduced pesticide use.

Last year, Extension conducted pest management training programs for 16 greenhouse growers. They learned new sampling methods and alternative strategies for insect management in the greenhouse.

A Delaware/Maryland Pest Management School was conducted for 55 agribusiness representatives and private consultants, who learned IPM techniques during the intensive four-day event.

Delaware's agricultural producers, the University of Delaware, and

This week's author: Carl Davis

Clowning around a serious subject for Newark resident

By HEATHER HARTRIM
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

More selective than Harvard or Yale, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus isn't looking for high SAT scores or a resume of extracurricular activities. Rather, they're looking for the heart of a clown, Mark Riddell, the public relations coordinator, said.

"Teaching someone to be a clown is like teaching someone to be a human being," Riddell said. "We're looking for a natural ability to be funny."

Newark resident Jim Maltman upstaged some 2,000 applicants to join a class of thirty at the Clown College Aug. 8 at the Circus World Museum in Baraboo, Wis.

Maltman auditioned for the college in the Meadowlands, N.J., after learning to juggle while performing in "Barnum."

"I had gone just to check out what they'd be like, but I became really interested," he said.

That interest led to filling out an application, which required Maltman to do some soul-searching. "I was taken aback at the questions," he said. "I wasn't expecting to be asked when the last time I cried was and what my future will be."

For now, Maltman is taking things one day at a time.

"Each day seems like one week," Maltman said. "I'm loving every minute though."

He enjoys the family spirit of the students and the staff.

"We're growing into a family," he said. "Everyone supports one another. They are always there as a safety net."

Maltman will need a safety net for the type of clowning he enjoys. He likes physical comedy — acrobatics, falls and tumbling.

He aspires to be an Auguste clown — the prankster of the clowning world.

For now, he is developing his clowning skills in the intensive two month college. Classes meet six days a week for 14 hours a day and include mime, make-up, and stiltwalking.

"Three days ago I ate fire," Maltman said. "The week before we had a pie throwing day. We had 70 gallons of pie filling; we had a ball."

The most memorable day for Maltman, however, was the first day. He and the other students were bused to the college and dropped off in front of a garage door. One student knocked and music started playing and the door started coming up. The students grabbed hands only to be welcomed by a standing ovation from the faculty and staff.

"We were the first class to walk in as one," Maltman said. "Some of these friendships will last a lifetime."

The friendships will not be the only thing that stays with him.

"I feel like I've been touched by a magic here; a magic that pushes you to a higher plane," he said. "It's been one of the greatest experiences of my life."

Maltman is looking forward to graduation and the opportunity to audition for one of ten spots in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Show. If he is selected, he will stay at Clown College for another two weeks for graduate studies that will define his character.

"I hope to move on to the 'Greatest Show on Earth,'" Maltman said.

Daugherty windows find home

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The historic, eight stained-glass windows taken from the Old Presbyterian Church (Daugherty Hall) on Main Street have been given to a Methodist Church in North East, Md.

The windows were preserved last month when the brick addition, built in 1927, of the original First Presbyterian Church was demolished. The original church was built in 1868 and still stands.

The windows have been donated to the Harts United Methodist Church, according to Stephen Moore, president of the board of trustees at the First Presbyterian Church on West Main Street in Newark.

"Our (church trustees') desire was that the windows go to a Protestant religious affiliation that will make good use of them," Moore said.

He said although letters about the availability of the windows were sent to local Presbyterian churches, trustees received no responses of interest.

Moore said Harts United Methodist Church congregation learned about the windows because one of the construction members who worked on the demolition is a member of the Maryland church.

Nancy Neal, Clerk of Sessions at the First Presbyterian Church in Newark, said the North East church, to begin with, can only afford to put in four of the windows and will raise more funds to install the other four.

Neal said the feelings of some church members is that the North East Church "is close enough to visit."

"We are real excited to get the windows," The Rev. Ruthann Hibbs, minister of the Harts United Methodist Church said. "It's definitely a treat, especially since this will come when we're celebrating our 200th year. The windows have found a happy home."

She said their place of worship is an old country church with plain glass windows and has never had windows made of stained-glass.

Hibbs said the date to begin installing the windows has not been decided, but it is known that some renovations will be needed to fit the windows into the church.

Also, the First Presbyterian Church of Newark now has possession of the 1927 time capsule and cornerstone, according to Neal, which were found when the back part of the church was demolished about a month ago.

Neal said the time capsule is a small lead box about one foot wide and 4 or 5 inches high.

Moore said a date for the opening of the time capsule has not been set, but said the event will most likely occur during a church function and the public will be invited.

Traffic will back up at toll booths on weekend

Possible solutions to delays are now being studied by traffic experts. Cherrin expects a report to be finished in January.

A 1991 study of the problem didn't favor one-way tolls like those now used in Maryland. "They found there were too many ways around it. And installing ramp tolls weren't the answer either," Cherrin said.

Now that the Maryland Transportation Authority and Delaware River Authority — managers of the Delaware Memorial Bridge — have one-way tolls, the idea is being reconsidered, he explained.

But having one-way tolls doesn't mean an end to all backups. The I-95 toll plaza in Perryville is a perfect example. The plaza collects a $2 fee from northbound motorists and is typically the scene of rolling back-ups.

Opera Delaware celebrates 50th anniversary

DIFFERENT THINGS bring different reactions from different people. (Now there's a bit of news!)

As an example, consider this weekend. The Labor Day weekend will bring sighs and a bit of sadness for the youngsters as they consider the loss of summer fun and the return to the classroom. Parents on the other hand... Well, you get the point.

There is, however, some news coming from Opera Delaware that has just about every opera lover in the state very happy. The 1994-95 season is going to be a "golden" one for the company and for audiences. For the company, it is their golden anniversary, the 50th year of bringing us that near perfect mixture of music and drama — opera. It is going to be a golden season for those of us who have loved Opera Delaware for so many years because of the operas they have planned for us.

On the boards at the Grand Opera House will be Giuseppe Verdi's "Aida" and Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus." As if those two weren't enough to bring shouts of "Bravi!" to our lips, Opera Delaware's Family Opera Theater is presenting the world premiere of "The Phantom Toll Booth" with the story by Norton Juster, music by Arnold Black and lyrics by Sheldon Harnick. See what I mean about a "golden" season?

World premieres are always exciting, but nothing new for Opera Delaware. "The Phantom Toll Booth" will be the eleventh for the company! As Artistic Director told me, "We have grown into a professional opera company with a national reputation for high quality productions." But, truth to tell, I think they are still exciting for Lee too. They certainly are for me.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

The subscription series opens with "Aida," an opera filled with espionage, suicide, treason, lust — all those things that make us love opera so much. And, of course it is filled with love and great music. Verdi pulled out all the stops for "Aida." No sooner has the curtain gone up until we hear one of the most glorious tenor operas ever written, "Celeste Aida." The grand march in act two has come to symbolize the great pageantry of opera. The final duet in act four is one of the greatest scenes of love and sacrifice ever to leave Verdi's pen.

We will have four opportunities to attend the season opener, November 26, 29, December 1 and 3. All performances begin at the Grand at 8 p.m. The opera will be staged in the original Italian with English subtitles. The opera will be conducted by Stephen Lord who returns to the Opera Delaware podium after his triumph in the 1991 production of "Rigoletto." Cynthia Tobias, whose name means great opera in this area, will be back to direct. University of Delaware Associate Professor of Voice Marie Robinson will sing the title role.

The subscription series will end May 13, 18 and 20 with one of my all-time favorite operas, the delightful and hilarious Strauss gem, "Die Fledermaus." So that we can get all of the great, comedic lines in the opera and enjoy every nuance of Dr. Falke getting his revenge on Gabriel von Eisenstein with an elaborately built plot, it will be staged in English. There is fun and great Strauss music in every act from the brilliant overture to the tortured (to Gabriel) but fun (to us) scene in the jail in the last moments of the opus.

To add to the brilliance of the evening, Wilmington's own Stefan Kozinski will return to conduct. Stefan was last here in 1992 to offer us Lehar's "The Merry Widow." Bill Fabris will make his Opera Delaware debut as stage director and Rosalinda will be sung by Amy Schroeder.

English is really a superb choice for "Die Fledermaus." Even though I have heard the opera many times in its original German, it is never as much fun as when it is in English. The lines are too fast and my German simply isn't that good. If anyone has ever tried to convince you that opera is "too stuffy," be sure to attend "Die Fledermaus" and put that idea to rest!

On March 5, Family Opera Theater will offer "The Phantom Toll Booth." The world premiere is made possible by a grant from Meet the Composer, Inc. Lee Kimball will direct and Evelyn Swenson will conduct. The cast has not yet been announced.

Subscription prices for the two major productions range from $32 to $72, with a special student ticket priced at only $24. For information or a season brochure you may call Opera Delaware at 302-658-8063.

I hope you and your family get a chance to enjoy this golden season.

Soprano Amy Schroeder help will lead the casts of "Aida" and "Die Fledermaus" at Opera Delaware this season.

Glasgow seeks best year yet in soccer play

By JOHN HOLOWKA
NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

GLASGOW — After a decade of disappointment, Glasgow High's soccer team is ready to look time right in the eye.

Glasgow finished runner-up to crosstown rival Newark in the Blue Hen Conference last year, and this season the Dragons are ready to make a run for the conference crown, a title that has escaped them since 1984.

"In terms of team goals I would think to get beyond the first round and go deeper into the tournament would be our goal," said Coach Bob Bussiere. "Another thing we're pointing towards is winning Flight A; Glasgow hasn't won it since 1984. Ten years later we'd like to win it again."

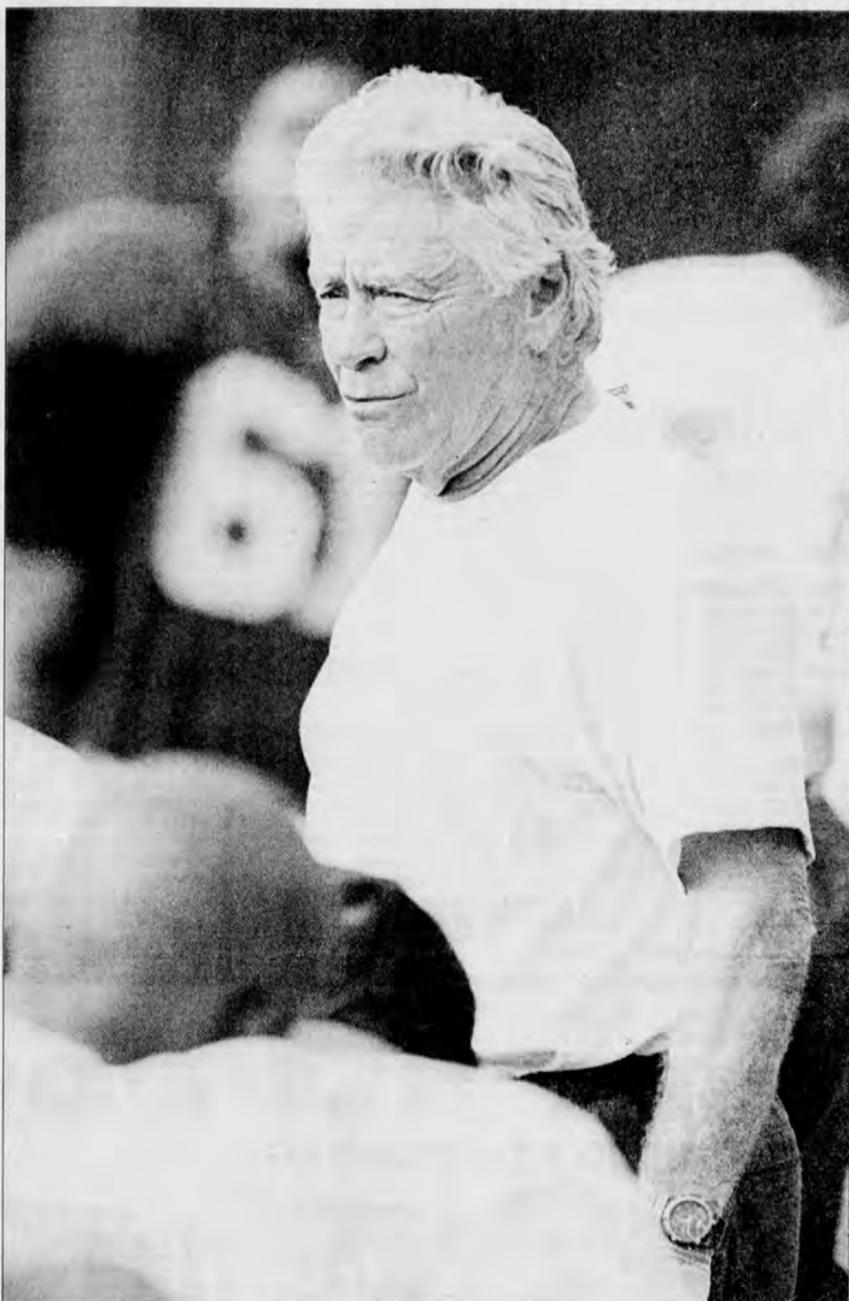

"Last year we were 10-5-2 and second behind Newark in the conference at 6-1 so I think we have already accomplished something; the team's done pretty well," said Bussiere, the third-year coach who has taken the Dragons to the state tournament the last two years, including in 1993 when they lost in the first round to Caesar Rodney.

The Dragons, who haven't experienced a losing season under Bussiere, return 11 starters and will be especially strong up the middle.

Blue Hens continue prepping for season

Team scrimmages twice with questions still to be answered

Delaware Coach Tubby Raymond looks forward to his 29th season at the helm of the Blue Hens.

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

As the days go by the urgency picks up at the University of Delaware's preseason football camp.

The Blue Hens open the regular season next Saturday at William & Mary. The highly touted Tribe will have had an extra week of practice and a game under their belt by the time the Hens roll into Williamsburg. Don't think that's not on the minds of the Delaware coaching staff.

"We know there's a football team there," said Delaware Coach Tubby Raymond after the second of the team's preseason scrimmages Tuesday afternoon. "We just keep wondering when it's going to show up. I'm terrified we won't arrive on time."

The good news from Tuesday's scrimmage is that the defense looked very good. The not-so good news was that the offense broke down a number of times with false starts and other assorted miscues.

"The defense was much better," Raymond said. "Kenny Bailey had a hit that lit up the stadium. A number of [players on defense] are really playing well."

"We just haven't been able to put things together offensively though. It's one thing after another."

The passing game wasn't especially sharp in either of the team's first two scrimmages but Raymond insists he's not worried.

"We've had some great seven-on-seven drills," said the coach. "Plus we haven't had everyone available for the scrimmage. It takes a lot more than just the quarterback throwing the ball to make a good passing game."

Leo Hamlett was the first under the center in each of the first two scrimmages while Keith Langan also saw action with the first team.

The running backs, led by powerful Daryl Brown and speedy Pat Williams, have looked superb.

"We have a great set of backs," Raymond said. "They have good speed and have done well."

Raymond also noted that the overall team speed was better than ever, especially on the defense.

Batts to remain with team

One piece of good news for the Hens was that redshirt freshman split end Courtney Batts has decided, for at least three more years anyway, to pass up a chance to play in the New York Mets farm system.

Batts, a 24th round draft pick of the Baltimore Orioles out of high school, was taken in the 48th round by the Mets this past June. The 6-foot, 172-pounder played in the Northeastern Collegiate Baseball

Young Newark soccer team could be as good as any

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

The Newark High soccer team knows what it's like to go into a season highly touted. It also knows what it's like to get bounced from the state tournament in the first round. The players will try to use both experiences to their advantage this season.

The Yellowjackets enter this season as one which many opposing coaches point to as one of the best.

"We've done that before," said senior captain Dave Benin, a third-team All-State selection last year. "Last year everyone thought we'd be really good and we were knocked out of the tournament in the first round. We've been knocked out in the first round the last two years now."

"We don't want that to happen again so we're not worrying about how good people think we're going to be. We're just going to go along a lot slower. We're going to worry about each game one at a time instead of what's going on in November."

Benin happens to be one of the reasons why everyone is talking highly of the Jackets.

"He's really been a leader for us," said

Newark Coach Hugh Mitchell. "He and the seniors have been a great example to the other players this year."

"I really feel good about this team. It's a real team. There are no stars and no egos to worry about."

Joining Benin — a midfielder — in the starting lineup will be senior forward Dan Gennusa, senior wing fullback Jason

It's definitely football season now

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

WHAT BASEBALL STRIKE?

Last Saturday afternoon, it wasn't hard to tell what season it really is. I pulled up to the University of Delaware Fieldhouse about five minutes before the Blue Hen football squad was scheduled to have its first open-to-the-public scrimmage and people (complete with coolers and food) were streaming to the football practice field (located behind the Fieldhouse).

A few hundred die hard fans surrounded the field to get their first glimpse of the Hens in what they hope will be another successful fall.

What they saw was the first-team offense, led by All-American fullback Daryl Brown, shred the second-team defense. The fans also got a chance to see the off-maligned first-team defense play against the second team offense. After a less than auspicious beginning, the defense did come around and look respectable.

The big question of the summer was who was going to start at quarterback.

Leo Hamlett was the first to take snaps Saturday, though, Keith Langan also got time with the first team offense. "[The quarterbacks] both needed this experience badly," said Delaware Coach Tubby Raymond following the scrimmage. "It's the first time they've really had people come after them."

Look for Hamlett to get the nod next Saturday against William & Mary. It would be a major surprise to many if he didn't.

Raymond was generally upbeat after watching his team go through the scrimmage.

"For the first scrimmage, obviously I'm pleased."

High school football preview

The early word on the high school season is that everything is up for grabs.

There doesn't seem to be any clear-cut favorite to win conference or state championships this season.

Salesianum may have the best team, but the Sals also have a killer schedule.

Newark, Glasgow and Christiana all should compete for a possible state tournament berth. This may be a year when a 7-3 or 6-4 record might be good enough to squeeze into the Division I state tournament.

Newark will certainly have a good

St. Mark's soccer tough as always

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Despite having just two starters back from last year's state finalist squad, the 1994 St. Mark's soccer team will look to live up to its rich tradition.

This year's team is also entering the season not having won the state title for the first time in four years. How will it handle these two things?

"Well every year we have a group of guys that work out together on their own over the summer," said St. Mark's Coach Tom DeMatteis. "This year that group was bigger than ever. I think they really want to do better; and that work is really starting to show up."

The Spartans lost Delaware Player of the Year Jamie Iudica, along with two other first team All-Staters and two third-team All-Staters. Between graduation and transfers, St. Mark's lost nine starters.

"It's a lot different than before," DeMatteis said. "Last year we had so many close games that we didn't have a chance to play our subs as much as we wanted. That means that many of these guys haven't had a lot of quality varsity playing time. But, then again, they've worked very hard."

Junior sweeper Brian Clark and senior halfback Ken Vanella are the two returning starters.

"[Clark] has just been outstanding," DeMatteis said. "He was a very important part of our team last year and didn't get a lot of recognition. He's one of the best around."

Young Viking soccer squad looks defensive

By JOHN HOLOWKA
NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

CHRISTIANA — Christiana Soccer Coach John Kendall gets a little defensive when you talk about about the Vikings' chances this year.

"It's got to be the defense this season that has to be consistent," said Kendall, entering his 15th year at the helm. "I haven't been able to play everybody together yet, but our defense looks strong. Goalie is going to be a problem, but we're pretty strong up front; we have some good players up there."

Anchoring Christiana's relatively young squad are returning seniors Jeff Arnold at fullback and Tommy Hutchison at midfield.

"Those are our two main seniors that will be back," Kendall said. "Tommy (Hutchison) playing center half will have to show up every day. He's one of the important players on the team. "Other than that we look pretty young. We probably will start five sophomores."

Returning juniors Wesley Gates will play forward/fullback, Steve Robinson saw varsity experience last year as the Vikes' stopper and Bobby Trimble returns as sweeper

Joey Joachimowski, another senior with little varsity experience will add depth to the forward line, and Chris Giroso is a junior front-runner on the line as its first-time player Matt Frosch.

"We looked real well in scrimmages we've had," Kendall said. "But I really won't know what people I want on the field until after we really start playing hard."

Christiana, which turned in a winning record last year and fell to state tournament runner-up St. Mark's in the opening round of the playoffs, has scrimmaged six teams: Caesar Rodney, Archmere, Milford, Tower Hill, A.I. du Pont and will scrimmage the Spartans today.

"We've looked better, but once we get everybody together we should be OK, although we won't be too deep."

One position Kendall hopes will improve throughout the season is at goalie, where the Vikings lost talented keeper Sean Lavelle to graduation.

"You just can't replace someone like him," Kendall said.

The Vikings open the season with three straight away games starting with Middletown. Christiana's first home contest is against A.I. on Sept. 23.

"Glasgow is tough this year," Kendall said. "(Bussiere) has a good team there. I think our real goal this year is just to win more games than we lose."

Newark tennis team wins title

Newark's 3.5 men's tennis team won the United States Tennis Association's League championship and is headed for the Mid-Atlantic championships in Princeton, N.J.

The Newark team posted a 9-0 record on its way to the title. The team competed against eight other Delaware Tennis Association/USTA teams and were victorious in the league playoff, which was held at the Tatnall Tennis Courts.

Newark girl in national track meet

Newark's Nina Haley fished eighth in the 13-14 year-old girls 200 meter race at the Hershey (Pa.) National Track & Field Youth Play ran Aug. 13. Haley ran the race in a time of 29.07.

Kirkwood Blast win tourney

The Kirkwood Blast won four straight games to capture a round-robin soccer tournament championship in Lower Merion, Pa. last weekend.

The Blast defeated Lower Merion 4-1 in the title game with Josh Michner, Adam Flanigan, Adam Stuller and Brian Healy all scoring goals.

To get to the championship game the Kirkwood team defeated Rosetree 3-0, Havertown 8-0 and Back Mt. 3-0.

Alex Facciolo, Jason Carty and Matt DiGiacobbe scored the first-game goals. Brian O'Conner, Flanigan, Facciolo, DiGiacobbe, Kenny Reid and Adam Pahl scored in the second game.

Nolan Dzielak led the charge in the third game with two goals while O'Conner added one.

Goalkeeping duties were shared by Joey Alessandrini and Alex Facciolo.

Senior Eric Buckingham, a first-team all-state midfielder will anchor the offense along with seniors Mike Benson, Joe Rager and Dan Stubblebine. Andy Marschhauser, a forward who saw spot playing time last season, will provide depth.

Senior fullbacks Ken Rinehimer, Jason Stowell and Keith Thomas will protect all-conference goalkeeper David Owens. Juniors Matt Hasty (midfielder) and forward Matt Lantagne, a first-team conference and third-team all-state selection add punch to the already powerful front line.

"We return a lot of guys at midfield," Bussiere said. "Most have played varsity since their sophomore years. We have a lot of experience coming back. They are really the key players."

"I think with all those experienced players, we won't have any problem getting the team to gel as a team and generating team chemistry. "We're a pretty close-knit group; we've been together as a varsity team for three years, so we know each other and know how to play as a team."

"We're really coming along," Bussiere said. "The most pleasant thing I can say is that we have good talent in each grade. I'm just tickled that in my third year that the foundation is there for the future. I'm really thrilled the whole program is coming together."

Glasgow did lose second-team all-state forward Long Le, which takes a little speed away from the attackers.

"One of our concerns is overall team speed; we don't have a real fast line," Bussiere said. "It doesn't hurt as much because we have experience, but if we get into a foot race we're not that fast."

League for Schenectady this summer and at one time was convinced that he wasn't going to play football this fall.

"I really was," said Batts, who hit .270 as a second baseman. "When I started doing well, it was a great feeling."

However, the Mets didn't come up with enough money to make the speedy receiver make the jump. He also took some advice from his father, who thought playing three years of college baseball as well as football would be a great benefit.

"Not too many athletes get a chance to play two sports," Batts said. "I'm ready to go now. I want to win on the football field and just hope for a chance to play baseball in the spring."

Russell joins squad

Former Newark High first team All-State end and the 1993-94 Newark Post Athlete of the Year Jody Russell was able to join the team for practice Friday (Sept. 1).

A new rule limiting the number of players in preseason practice to 90 kept Russell on the sideline until now.

He didn't decide to play football until the mid-July and by that time the Delaware coaching staff had made their 90-man roster.

Russell, though, is somebody the coaches feel could help the team.

idea of how good it will be after a Sept. 9 opening night meeting with defending state champion Salesianum. The opening weekend continues on a good note Saturday when Hodgson hosts Caravel in a neighborhood Division II tilt.

Former Caravel Coach Larry Cyle, who led the Bucs to back-to-back state championships in 1989-90, is now at Hodgson. That should add some spice to this game.

A deeper look at the high school season will come in next week's high school football pull-out section.

A LOOK AT COMMERCE IN AND AROUND NEWARK

Army scouts Louviers site for research lab

By JENNIFER L. RODGERS
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

CORPORATE downsizing, conservative spending and improved technology have greatly influenced the market for office space in New Castle County. One of the county's most visible corporations, DuPont Inc., has not escaped the crunch. Two of the most noticeable DuPont properties the company has vacated are Louviers, off Paper Mill Road, and Eagle Run, off Del. 273. A short-term lease with the Army's Materials Research Lab, a composites plant formerly located in Watertown, Massachusetts, could be signed if DuPont's proposal to the Army agency is accepted. According to Tom Compton, properties manager for DuPont, the company is currently working on a three-year lease plan to submit to the Army agency for the 90,000 square-foot engineering building. The bulk of the property, the 600,000 square-foot office building, is still for sale. "It's in good shape and well maintained, but its an old building and its big," Compton said. The Base Closing Commission required the Massachusetts facility to relocate in Aberdeen, Md. However, the Aberdeen site will not be ready for two years, according to Rob Skomorucha, Sen. Biden's Delaware Projects Manager.

"We would just about have wandering research people up and down I-95" Skomorucha said. Although the Base Closing Commission's word is usually final, Skomorucha said, "we hold a glimmer of promise that we can address the two year gap problem...this is one of the largest projects Sen. Biden has, it rivals the crime bill in terms of importance." DuPont's Eagle Run site, for sale since 1991, became somewhat of a controversial issue when it became clear that Wal-Mart would buy the property if DuPont successfully rezoned it. "Our agreement with Wal-Mart has expired and we have redoubled efforts to sell it as manufacturing,"

Compton said. "DuPont has come to the conclusion that that particular rezoning plan is not possible because of traffic." DuPont has also slashed the price from $16 to 9 million and increased the commission rate for real estate brokers. Other DuPont sites for sale include: • Glasgow. About 700 of more than 900 acres on this site, located off Del. 896 across from the Pencader Corporate Center, will be sold to the Capano organizations. "We are in the process of completing the work it takes to go to close," Compton said. The land is currently zoned for M3 and Compton said the Capano's will apply to rezone it to residential. • Parkview Building. A relatively small, 20,000 square foot building in downtown Wilmington is for sale for $1.8 million. Compton said DuPont has had some offers on this building, which has been on the market since January, but no deals have been made. • Barley Mill Plaza, near DuPont's Chestnut Hill Office off Del. 141, will be either leased or sold as soon as DuPont decides on a marketing plan. The total amount of space equals almost 1 million square feet, about one-third of which DuPont doesn't need, according to Compton. CB Commercial, DuPont's real estate broker, said in a recent study that new communication technologies have made a central location, such as Wilmington, less important, allowing office jobs to follow the flow of workers to the suburbs. "The abundance of reasonably priced land, excellent access to the interstate highway system, lower occupancy costs and perceived safety issues have all contributed to the growth of the suburban office market," according to the study. A surplus of space has driven the rental prices down, but construction of new space has slowed as well. CB Commercial's study predicts the office space market will realign itself in the coming years as long as construction remains weak and the rent increases continue.

Super sports store coming here

SPORTS AND RECREATION, Inc., headquartered in Tampa, Fla., plans to open a 50,000-square-foot sporting goods store on Chestnut Hill Road, catercornered to Beeches Restaurant, in front of the Red House Plantations townhouses. The store, expected to open in mid-November, will employ between 75 and 100 local employees and will offer a full range of athletic equipment, accessories and sportswear for the entire family. "Our stores are super-sized stores but we like to think of ourselves as a traditional sporting goods store," said Tom Jupena, Sports and Recreation's promotions director. "It's like nine stores under one roof; employees are hired into only one department." This will be the first Sports and Recreation store in Delaware. Sports and Recreation, Inc. operates 48 stores in 19 states. Tony Bariglio and Dale Peterson, of Patterson Schwartz's Commercial Properties Division, negotiated the transaction. Patterson-Schwartz's Commercial Properties Division has listed a 16,000 square foot industrial building with an additional 2,000-square-foot office on 1.2 acres on Dawson Drive in the Delaware Industrial Park. The property, located off Route 72 near I-95 in Newark, is being offered for sale at $550,000 or lease at $4 per square foot. Phil Hoge, Broker-Manager of Patterson-Schwartz's Commercial Division is the listing agent.

Price cut for Farm & Home

Cleaning activity in the former Newark Farm and Home building at 123 E. Main St. has piqued the curiosity of many passersby and merchants who are hoping a new store will fill the downtown eyesore. According to Lex Petrillo, of Prudential Preferred Properties, the owner of the property, Joseph Formisano, is sprucing it up and making sure all the mechanicals are up and running. The Main Street structure and out-building behind are going for $795,000, according to Petrillo, and he has had some "pretty big nibbles" recently. The current asking price is down from $900,000. Originally the yellow building next to the Farm and Home at 129 E. Main St. was part of the package for sale but local attorney Chris Locke, who owns Formal Affairs at 173 E. Main St., bought it.

Most inquiries about the properties, according to Petrillo, have been from apparel stores. However, he said he has also heard from restaurants, a micro-brewery, and a food market. "I was excited about the restaurant aspect, but it wasn't cost effective to convert the building into a restaurant," said Petrillo. In addition to purchasing inquiries, Petrillo said he has "no less than 15" groups ask about leasing the property. But he said Formisano wants to "liquidate the property and retire, not be a landlord." Petrillo said the buildings are environmentally sound- the oil tanks have been tested and all questions about the building's integrity have been answered. Together the properties have about 17,000 square feet of space, and 50 parking places in a paved and fenced lot. Robert Locke, manager at the formal wear rental store, said he hopes to move into 129 E. Main St. in early 1995. Plans for renovation are not final, but Locke said they will definitely be remodeling.

BIZ BRIEFS

Newark Lumber changes hands

Davis Lumber, Inc., of West Chester, Pa. purchased the Newark Lumber Store at 221 E. Main St. on Aug. 16. Davis purchased the assets of Newark Lumber from owner Fred Robinson for an undisclosed sum. Gary Allshouse, president and chief executive officer of Davis Lumber, said the company will keep the name and the old traditions associated with the store. "It's been around a long time, since the 1700s," Allshouse said. "Davis is not like some big chain like Lowe's. It's not important to us to have our name here, it's important to serve our customers." Allshouse said Newark Lumber has struggled financially over the past few years and, as a result, the inventory has suffered. He said he plans to raise the level of merchandise. "Virtually all employees will be staying," according to Allshouse. Plans to expand the business over the next few years will hopefully add "10-12 new jobs."

Pizza restaurant has new name

Valle Pizza in Pike Creek Shopping Center has a new identity. Now the Ristorante Valle, the restaurant features an expanded menu, with northern and southern Italian cuisines, Caesar salads made table side, and its own pastry chef. Reservations are suggested for the former pizza parlor that now seats 98 people. For more information, call Larry Stafford at 994-4425.

Business park gets new tenant

American Van & Storage Corporation of New Castle, an Atlas Van Lines affiliate with world-wide moving and storage services, had a "ground-breaking ceremony" at Interchange Business Park last week. Construction on a 40,000-square-foot warehouse complex with state-of-the-art equipment will begin soon.

Newark YMCA receives grant money

The Western Branch YMCA in Newark, is the recipient of a $500 Community Service Program grant from Burroughs Wellcome Co. Community Service Program grants are awarded to non-profit organizations for which Burroughs Wellcome employees volunteer. The grant recognizes Fred Kahler, a Burroughs Wellcome employee and chairman of the Western Branch YMCA board. Burroughs Wellcome Co. is a research-based pharmaceutical company based in North Carolina. Last year the company recognized its employee volunteers by contributing $296,962 to non-profit organizations.

How To Save Money On Your Family's Clothing

- Buy color-coordinated clothing which can be mixed and matched.
- Buy all-season styles, fabrics and colors when possible.
- Buy clothes of a design that will stay in style
- Look for quality fabric and good construction in clothing.
- Choose clothes with simple trim that is of good quality and requires the same care as the rest of garment.
- Before buying a garment, check fabric labels and care instructions. Is it wash-and-wear? Can it be dried in the dryer? Avoid clothing that requires special care such as dry cleaning.
- Read and follow care instructions to make clothes last longer.
- Dress up or modify an outfit you already own. Accessories can add a new look to last year's wardrobe for a minimal cost.
- Store clothes properly to protect from sun, moths, mildew and stretching.
