DOWN TO EARTH

Paratroopers from the U.S. Army's Golden Knights team thrilled the sold-out crowd, not once, but twice, at Saturday's University of Delaware - James Madison University game. Delaware won the game 27-13 and is now tied for the number one position in the Yankee Conference.

LISTEN UP. Don't park in the lot at the Library Avenue Professional Building next to Newark High School unless you are going to a business in the office building. Is that plain enough?

Only three weeks ago, parents and teachers at the high school complained about wholesales towing during school events. Employees of Fusco Enterprises which owns the lot said the company arranged towing because vandalism was a problem there.

School officials said they advised people coming to the high school not to park at the Library building but apparently not everyone got the message.

During Homecoming festivities on Oct. 25, cars crowded out of the high school lot and overflowed onto the property next door. When Ewing Towing showed up and went right to work, principal Frank Hagen made "a couple of announcements" telling people to move their cars.

"When I finally left to go home around 10 p.m., the tow truck was still there and so was a police car," said Hagen. "Since it was Homecoming, there were a lot of alumni from out of town who parked there."

According to Captain Charles Townsend of the Newark police, Ewing Towing Company only reported towing two cars from that lot on the evening of Oct. 25. However, two police cruisers Rail safety or profits?

By MARY E. PETZAK

CONRAIL'S PLAN to reroute train cars loaded with hazardous materials through the heart of residential New Castle County and into Newark is an effort to reduce risk and provide better service, according to one company official.

Homeowners who overlook the trains from their dining room windows claim profit is the main motive.

On Tuesday night, Conrail's district superintendent in Delaware, George Womer, told a crowd of more than 100 people at West Park Elementary School that his company was rerouting railcars carrying the toxic materials vinyl chloride, propane and butane gas, and ethylene oxide from the railyards in Edgemoor to Newark.

Womer claimed the decision is based on a variety of factors, including: less handling of the cars; less handling in

Ogletown ramps open

RIGHT ON SCHEDULE, the eastbound on-ramps for the Route 273/Ogletown interchange at Route 4 are opening for business today.

DelDOT engineers Harry Cooper and Bob Muir previously made assurances that the project, due for completion by the end of 1997, is proceeding as planned despite weather problems. And apparently they are men of their word.

New patterns for eastbound 273 and Red Mill Road are as follows:

■ Traffic traveling from Newark toward Interstate 95 on Route 273 will turn left on Route 4 (as usual) but then use the new entrance ramp immediately on the right before traveling under the overpass. The ramp previously used opposite the Red Mill Road intersection is now permanently closed.

■ Traffic traveling eastbound on Route 4

NEWARK POST ♦ POLICE BLOTTER

Police Blotter is compiled each week from the files of the Newark Police Department, The New Castle County Police Department and the Delaware State Police by staff writer Mary E. Petzak.

Gas station robbed

Newark police report that on Oct. 23 around 9:50 p.m. two white males entered the BP Service Station on Elkton Road and displayed a large dark-colored semi-automatic style pistol to the clerk and received an undisclosed amount of cash. The first suspect is described as a white male in his early 20s, 5 feet, 8 inches tall, with a thin build. The second suspect is described as a white male in his 20s, approximately 6 feet tall, with a thin build. Each man wore a black or dark blue sweatshirt with the hood tightly pulled around his face and a piece of cloth covering his face, light-colored or khaki-style trousers and dark sneakers. Anyone with information is asked to call 366-7120.

Loud music heard a block away

On Oct. 27 around 2:50 a.m. police were called to a complaint of loud noise on East Park Place from Kells Avenue. Police, who said they could plainly hear music from the sidewalk and five houses away, issued a noise summons to 21-year-old Christopher Moran.

School lot drug sales

On Oct. 21 around 8:15 a.m. a school administrator observed two people in the parking lot of Newark High School standing by a car with the trunk open. One of the people put something in his pocket as she approached. When she asked for the item, he handed her a bag containing smaller zip lock bags of a substance that later field-tested positive for marijuana. Newark police charged Shawn Bailey 21, with possession with intent to deliver marijuana.

Boys attacked on Main Street

On the afternoon of Oct. 13, two boys, ages 14 and 16, were sitting on bicycles in a driveway on Main Street across from the Newark Shopping Center. Two unknown black males stopped their vehicle in the shopping center and approached the boys. They knocked the 16-year-old boy and took an undisclosed amount of cash from his pocket. After searching the 14-year-old but finding nothing, they drove away. Police are investigating.

Charges in fatal accident

State police have filed charges against Denise M. Barnes, 20, of Salem Woods, following a two-car accident which killed 19-year-old Marcia Woods of Newark. Police said Barnes was driving and had consumed alcohol prior to the accident which occurred on May 30 at the intersection of Old Baltimore Pike and Route 273. Barnes, who obtained a drivers license with false identification to appear of drinking age, was charged with forgery, criminal impersonation, failure to yield, and alcohol offenses under the zero tolerance statute.

ELECTION DAY 1996

EVERYONE HAS AN EXCUSE: no time to go to rallies; no time to listen to debates; no time to read the newspaper; no time to watch Face the Nation.

But once every four years, voters have the chance to steal 30 precious minutes and go to the polls and make or break a president and vice-president as well as federal, state, and local legislators. It's obviously too good an opportunity to miss.

Tuesday, Nov. 5, polls are open in Delaware from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and all registered voters are urged to participate. For directions to polling places or other election information in New Castle County call the Department of Elections at 577-3464.

City employees remembered

FORMER CO-WORKERS who came to "feel like family" at Newark's city offices will be long remembered in a granite memorial unveiled on Oct. 25.

According to City Secretary Susan Lamblack, about two years ago other employees took the idea to city officials. "We noticed we were losing a lot more people to unexpected deaths while they were still working for the city and they were mostly not of an age to die," said Lamblack. "It was like losing members of your family."

Lamblack pointed out that most people spend more time with co-workers than they do their family, anyway. "We wanted to do something for these people who left the city's service under circumstances not expected in the normal course of events."

A committee of five current employees collected all the names of deceased workers available in the city records and sought proposals for the memorial itself. "It took a long time to get what we wanted," said Lamblack. "We finally chose Cecil Vault and Memorial Company who did a beautiful job."

The resulting granite stone, engraved with the names of 14 former employees stands in the courtyard of the city municipal building on Elkton Road.

Lamblack said many families of the deceased employees attended the dedication. "Jack Denney's widow came and said she was overwhelmed to know we still thought about him even though he died in 1971," said Lamblack. "He was a building director and only in his 50s when he died unexpectedly."

Kathy Galvin, the most recent employee to die, worked in the city's finance department. "She left her two children in the care of her mother when she died last year and they all came with Kathy's brother," said Lamblack. "Everyone appreciated the city's remembrance."

Other former employees and the years of their deaths include:

Roy W. Matthews, public works, 1978; Thomas A. Apostolico Jr., building department, 1981; Ernest G. Smith, public works, 1982; Robert C. Squier Jr., electric department, 1983; Bruno A. Cicone, public works, 1984; William C. Burns, water department, 1984; Donald E. Walp, police department, 1987; Joseph J. Lesniak, building department, 1987; Kathryn L. Cowgill, finance department, 1988; Samuel J. Sinopoli, public works, 1989; Kenneth L. Banks, public works, 1993; and M. Diane Zebroski, police department, 1994.

City officials said names of city employees who die in the future will be added to the memorial.

Civic group wakes up to reality of antennas on tower

By ERIC FINE & MARY PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITERS

THE WINDY HILLS Civic Association has belatedly decided to oppose installation of telecommunications antennas on a city of Newark water tower off Mulberry Road.

The group met with several representatives of Bell Atlantic Nynex Mobile Tuesday at Shue-Medill Middle School. Afterward, the association voted unanimously to keep fighting antennas that will serve roughly 7,600 users of cellular phones.

Civic association vice president Carol Hall said she would send a letter and a petition to Newark city officials asking the city to back out of a $1,000-per-month contract granting the telecommunications company use of the water tank.

In May, the 5-year contract was approved in city council by a vote of 6-1 after two council meetings and hours of passionate public discussion and hearings.

Hall also said she would contact the office of U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden (D-Delaware) for help. "All and all, whatever it takes I'll do within the limits of the law," she promised.

In September the city issued a building permit to Bell Atlantic Nynex Mobile of Plymouth Meeting, Pa., to install 12 antenna units around the existing 154-foot high tank and to construct a 400-square-foot maintenance building to house an emergency generator and other equipment.

The association contends the antennas threaten the health, safety and property values of residents who own houses near the water tank. Moreover, the association believes the antennas could jeopardize the life of Frank Albanese, who had a defibrillator implanted two years ago after bypass surgery.

"No one has done any research on defibrillation," said Albanese, 63, who lives on Mulberry Road, about 50 feet from the tank. "You don't know whether (or not) it's a health factor."

"You people cut me completely out of this decision," he claimed angrily. "You didn't include me in a damn thing."

Hall shares his concern.

"I understand technology has to go forward," said Hall, a former Delmarva Power employee. "But in every piece of information I have received, no one has come forth and said this will not harm Mr. Albanese. They're really not giving him a choice."

During the council hearings councilmember Irene Zych, who represents Windy Hills' district, repeatedly voiced the concerns asserted by Albanese. However, despite notification of residents along Mulberry Road by city officials, no Windy Hills residents attended the hearings.

"I felt like I was spitting in the wind," said Zych. "None of them came, even after I photocopied information and documents and hand-delivered them to their doors myself."

Dr. Kenneth Foster, a Bell Atlantic Nynex consultant, disputed claims the antennas were dangerous to Albanese. Foster said he has come across only "one anecdotal report" while researching the antenna's effect on defibrillators. The incident involved a theft-detection system in a Wal-Mart.

Other residents speculated that competition and demand would increase the wattage being transmitted, and expressed concern that the safety standards on which city officials based their decision were written in 1975.

Bell Atlantic Nynex officials said the company had made a sufficient effort to compromise with its new neighbors. "We have taken a number of your concerns and put them into the plan," said Janet Collieran, a Bell Atlantic Nynex real estate and zoning manager.

Collieran said the company spent twice the installation cost to use the water tank instead of mounting the antenna units on a new structure. Other companies — including AT&T Wireless and Sprint Communications — operate similar antennas in New Castle County, she added.

Wiring schools for the internet

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Six elementary schools in the Christina School District took part in NetDay '96 on Oct. 26, a nationwide effort to bring public and private schools into the Computer Age.

Faculty, parents and other volunteers at Bayard, Brader, Downes, Drew/Pyle, McVey, and Pulaski schools spent part of the day wiring the schools to make the computers at each building accessible to the Internet.

"NetDay is meant to be a symbolic jump-start," Christina spokesman John Holton said.

"These schools will kind of leap ahead (from the rest of the district) a little bit."

The grassroots effort on the part of parents and the business community will minimize the cost to both the individual schools and the districts, Brader principal Gerri Pinkett said.

Pulaski Elementary School, an intermediate school in Wilmington which will become a theme school in 1998, figures to benefit the most. The school is spending the year focusing on Spanish. Besides taking language classes, pupils will study Latin American history and culture.

Principal Beatrice Spear wants to take advantage of the "Net" to establish pen pals for pupils participating in the Spanish-theme program, among others things. But Spear believes going on-line will offer other benefits.

"I think it is a great opportunity for the school to get, even if it's on the ground floor. It gets us off and running. It starts the chain," she said. "Just the fact that we have the (school's) staff and the community working together shows there is interest in integrating the school with the real world."

Drew/Pyle Principal Bob Klatzkin said the day will lay the foundation for the intermediate school's communication-arts theme during the 1997-98 school year.

He said the school's staff and about 35 volunteers wired five fourth-grade classrooms and the main office. "We used a lot of wire (and) a lot of tools," he said.

Perhaps the most ambitious of the group is McVey where third-grader Paige Sacher chronicled the event with a digital camera donated by Kodak. The resulting images will be downloaded onto the school's computer system.

According to Bell Atlantic Delaware which sponsored the event in the state, more than 700 volunteers chipped in their services at 70 public, private and parochial schools in Delaware to wire at least five classrooms and a library in each school.

Pet owners receive a 5X4 color photo for a $5. donation per pet, proceeds to benefit the Childrens Miracle Network. Only two pets are allowed in each photo.

Pets need to have appointments by calling (800) 506-7387. Their next event will be at: Elkton, MD - Wal-Mart Sunday • Nov. 10th

A second term

WHEN TOM CARPER became governor four years ago, Delaware was facing the loss of one and perhaps both of its automobile plants, including the now fast-growing facility here in Newark.

Carper worked to forge stronger relationships with both General Motors and Chrysler executives and labor leaders. While an improving economy obviously helped, Carper deserves a measure of credit for saving more than 5,000 high-paying jobs. Chrysler officials are not shy about telling you it was Carper's work and Delaware's willingness to play ball that led to the current astronomical investment in the Newark Assembly Plant.

The Carper administration has come up with a number of other initiatives that have put the state in a strong position to preserve existing jobs, recruit some out of state firms and in general put the state on a much better footing. It is this strong economic development performance that makes it easy to endorse Carper for a second term.

However, Newarkers stuck in traffic jams here may disagree. Whatever state transportation officials and planners say, the general feeling among many Newarkers is that Ann Canby's Department of Transportation is out of touch. In his second term, Carper must correct this situation. WILMAPCO's bike paths and bus routes just won't cut it.

Carper's opponent, Janet Rzewnicki, has based her campaign on a 30 percent tax cut plan. While bold in scope, details remain vague and we suspect that the result would be sharply higher property taxes as funds are slashed for education and other sacred cows.

Carper has followed the practice of governors who have made small cuts in the income tax. While we see more room for spending and tax cuts, we believe that steady progress in cutting the tax has created a predictable environment for business. When combined with strong credit ratings, the state may be in as good shape as any.

We are also disturbed about an old and discredited allegation of spousal abuse by Carper. The contemptible effort was launched by a small Republican group from Virginia. Rzewnicki tried to distance herself from the allegations, but we remain unconvinced that the smear campaign did not have its roots somewhere in that candidate's camp. Recent revelations only confirm this suspicion.

Carper has picked up endorsements from virtually every large organization in Delaware for good reason. The record speaks for itself and he deserves a second term as governor of the First State.

Other recommendations

THERE ARE THREE local races of particular importance to readers of this newspaper. We offer the following comments:

■ If there ever was a freshman legislator who deserves a second term, it's the hard-working 25th District Representative Stephanie A. Ulbrich.

Her success during her first stint in Dover has caught the attention of many beyond the limits of her Newark district, not the least of whom are state Democratic leaders.

They have mounted a formidable campaign with the candidacy of Karl F. Kahlbacher. While we believe his campaign mailing with a photo of Rt. 896 road construction and text implying the mess was Ulbrich's doing was a cheap shot, we like Kahlbacher. We know he is a good, decent family man who is willing to work in the community. We urge him to consider public service again in the future.

But the choice for 25th District voters is clear. Ulbrich's enthusiastic and tireless efforts on behalf of constituents — whether or not state issues are involved — is rare and noteworthy. And her accomplishments during the 138th General Assembly, most notably the school choice bill, has made many in the state, including us, consider her a "newcomer to watch."

Republican Ulbrich has made a convincing case for full-time legislators and we urge her constituents to return her to Dover.

■ In the 27th District race, we believe that Republican Vincent A. Lofink should be returned to the state House of Representatives.

Repeat Democratic challenger Barbara L. Erskine's community service and involvement in development issues are indisputable and laudatory, but she provides no compelling reasons to turn the visible and experienced Lofink out.

■ Likewise, we urge Newarkers in the 23rd District to reelect freshman Timothy U. Boulden. While his mark on the General Assembly pales in comparison to Ulbrich's, the Republican deserves a second term, and certainly should not be unseated by the Johnny-Come-Lately, "no budget" candidacy of Libertarian Eric M. Doerr.

■ A final word: There are other important legislative races affecting Newark, however, our staff concentrates its coverage on these three districts.

In recent weeks, the Newark Post has offered candidate profiles on most local races. We leave the decisions — as it ultimately is in all cases — to the voters.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, for our historic presentation, we present a shot taken five Christmas seasons ago on Main Street in Newark. It shows Jimmy's Diner, which today sports a new sign but few other changes. "Out of the Attic" features photographs from Newark's history, recent and long ago. If you have a historic photo, we'd like to share it with our readers. Special care will be taken so that it can be returned to you after it is printed in this feature. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

Local ghost lore abounds

It's suprising that for its size, the tiny state of Delaware is remarkably haunted. Most of the tales told here are ones that have been told and retold down through the generations.

Welsh Tract Church and graveyard, built in 1747 along the Newark road bearing its name, has many ghost stories associated with it.

The spirit of an Indian is said to walk along the banks of White Clay Creek at night where he used to hunt and fish.

And last but not least Edgar Allen Poe is said to have placed a curse on Saint Patrick's Inn and Tavern. (the Deer Park Tavern was built on those foundations) after he was kicked out of the tavern in 1843. Tradition says Poe can still be seen or felt haunting the place.

AMUSED & BEMUSED

There are many ways to do it

By MARVIN HUMMEL

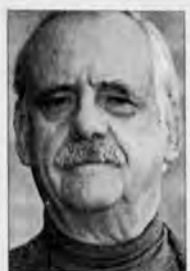

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

BARNEY DID PRACTICALLY nothing at the gatehouse, and Harley helped him do it. As far as I could see through the gatehouse windows while I was painting the building and surrounding fences, all Barney did was shuffle the workers' time cards occasionally and rudely answer the phone with, "Yeah? Waddya want?" or, "You got the wrong number, stupid!" Barney fancied himself a tough guy and loudly bragged that he had intentionally flunked twice in grade school in order to beat up his classmates. Harley was less nefarious: he had failed on merit.

The third inhabitant of the gatehouse was Mr. Wensla, a cryptic gentleman who had a faint, distinguished (but not distinguishable) accent. He had his own entrance, office, and bathroom, and when he moved to one of his many filing cabinets, he pulled down the blinds so a very interested painter could not see in. Mr. Wensla's classic, tailored suits and ties made Barney's and Harley's ragged, faded T-shirts (with their emblazoned slogans celebrating excreta and other subjects they still found fascinating) look even worse than they were.

Barney and Harley hated Mr. Wensla, who did not acknowledge their nasty existence. When a representative from our Calcutta plant arrived, Mr. Wensla would give him a ceremonial namaste and greet him in his own language. He delighted our Tokyo rep equally with appropriate Japanese, and when the Hamburg and Paris plants sent people, he gratified them with his knowledge of their languages. I was as impressed as Barney and Harley were livid; their loud, open mocking of these foreign conversations was embarrassing to hear, but Mr. Wensla and the reps were deaf to the dullards—which, of course, made them worse.

Barney and Harley played out their anger for a growing crowd of workers who abandoned the cafeteria to watch the two dummies steal and eat Mr. Wensla's lunch on a near-daily basis. It the gentleman wasn't wining and dining guests at exclusive area restaurants, he would bring in a gourmet lunch, replete with table cloth and wine and read Homer in the original. It he went to the main building before lunch, Mr. Wensla would return to find his door off its hinges and smell the memory of his filet mignons which had been broiled on his hot plate and then gnoshed by the "boys" while the audience of workers giggled like schoolboys. These men overstayed their lunchtime just to snigger at the "Suit Man" who merely called Maintenance and had his door replaced on its hinges. He had a standing order with them.

That last morning, Mr. Wensla returned to the gatehouse earlier than usual and Barney and Harley still were gorging themselves; bulging cheeks and a half-empty bottle of claret told him what he already knew. Mr. Wensla walked through where a door would normally be and went to his desk drawer, pulled out something I couldn't recognize and confronted the idiots: "You have gone too far! In my country, the cat is sacred, and when it dies, there must be the closure of a sacramental meal! When you ate my Boojums, you defiled both of us! Here! Do it all! Wear Boojum's fur and flesh as a holy stole!"

With that he wrapped a blood-soaked pelt around Barney's neck, the face of the cat dangling under his gray-green face. "Now you are forever one!" He walked out of the guardhouse. "Young man! Two of your coworker are violently ill and both bathroom doors are unaccountably jammed. Dial '9' and ask for Maintenance, please."

His broad wink as he drove off helped settle my own stomach, but the other workers joined Barney and Harley in missing lunch.

UPON MY WORD

A different breed of dog

By SHIRLEY TARRANT

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Tarrant

I HAD a "Windy City" (Chicago) lunch the other day, without ever leaving Newark. A mid-morning doctor's appointment stretched into an early lunch hour, so I decided to treat my taste buds to something different: "Windy City Beef and Dogs."

A recent kitchen feature which appeared in this newspaper led me to seek out Newark Shopping Center's newest eatery, "a hole-in-the-wall specializing in hotdogs." The shop's plate-glass window welcomes customers at the door: "A Taste of Chicago." And "taste" I did!

There was no "abrasive type" behind the counter, nor did anyone curse or yell or throw food at me. Instead, a friendly gentleman filled my order of a Chicago Classic Chili Dog, french fries and a soda. As he prepared my sandwich, I informed him that I have never been to Chicago and I am totally unfamiliar with the so-called Chicago Classics. That all Steve Pearlman, co-owner of this four and one half week-old deli, needed to hear, as he launched proudly into a litany of Chicago's gustatory delights.

In my crash course, I learned that "the hotdogs are all beef; the Italian beef is top-of-the-round; a classic chili-dog has cheddar cheese and onions; hot giardiniera peppers are the best; and all of the ingredients come from Chicago." That is what makes them "Chicago Classics."

Mr. Pearlman told me that Chicago sells more hot-dogs than hamburgers. Phew! This means that McDonald's does not have to move over!

As I was enjoying my chilidog, Mr. Pearlman insisted that I try a complimentary Italian beef sandwich with, of course, Chicago's famous giardiniera hot peppers. The chilidog had to be set aside (and saved for dinner), as I devoured this dynamite "classic." The hot peppers really are special.

The bright red menu boasts that all Chicago classic sandwiched include "the works": mustard, onions, tomato, relish, celery, salt, pickles, and sport peppers.

I never heard of sport peppers, so I asked what they look like. Mr. Pearlman was unable to describe them; he had to show me and I, in turn, had to taste them. Sport peppers turned out to be tiny, green, pinky-finger sized and shaped like hot peppers. When I bit into one, the juice squirted my face. Now, I can vouch for the good sport peppers. Maybe someone can vouch that I was a "good sport" for trying something new and different. Are you hungry?

THANK YOU FOR RUTH KELLY'S wonderful column, entitled "Death of innocence," that appeared in the Oct. 25 issue. I experienced such a range of emotions as I read, from joy and happiness at imagining two young girls from different cultures sharing life's simplest pleasures, to absolute anger at what prejudiced adults can and will do to innocent children.

I applaud Ruth Kelly for her courageous actions in the face of a difficult situation. Her column has given us such food for thought. I hope Ms. Kelly's daughter knows just how lucky she is to have the mom she has.

Holiday survival strategies

THE HOLIDAY SEASON is right around the corner and eating healthy for the holidays is beginning to come to mind as we plan for our holiday meals. Many people strive to keep the pounds off. The Master Foods Educators will be offering a Healthy Eating for the Holidays program on November 20, from 7-9p.m. This program will review strategies for healthy eating and methods for altering recipes to reduce fat and calories. Reserve your seat by calling 831-1239. Here are some of the tips that will be offered to those who attend.

Eat lean. Calories add up fast with fat-rich foods. Limit the sauces, dips, eggnog, rich pastries, chips and fatty meats. Some ways to save calories are to pass on the butter, margarine and sour cream. Scrape all but a thin layer of gravy off your meat. Adapt your recipes to be lower in fat and calories or try some new low-fat ones.

Be picky. You don't have to eat everything. Limit indulgences to special foods. Don't waste calories on foods you don't want. Remember this is not the last event on earth and you will be able to have these foods again in the future.

Use the buddy system. Tell someone who cares about you to help keep you in line. It's easier to stick to a commitment once you've told someone. If you start to slip, the other person can help keep you on track.

Stick to your guns. If you feel you are being forced into eating something you don't want, be strong. Most people will accept "no thanks". If you usually take seconds, take smaller portions the first time or fill your plate with low calorie foods.

Don't play feast or famine. Don't starve all day before a big meal or party. By the time you eat, you'll be ravenous. Eat regular small meals and snack on fruit or a salad to curb your appetite before heading to the party.

Don't be hard on yourself. If you overindulge, get back on track the next day. Guilty people are prime candidates for overeating. Keep in mind moderation. Enjoy your food! Focus on the spirit of the season: go caroling, enjoy friends and wrap presents.

Moms: on the job

Moms and kids get on board for the trip home after a recent morning of scarecrow-making at the home of MOMS Club member Sandi Trate.

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

PARAPHRASING a well-known comedian, some moms don't feel they get any respect. "I hate it when people ask me what I do all day," said Ginny Macedo, mother of a 6-year-old and a 3-year-old. "I tied shoelaces 17 times among other things — what do I say?"

The women in the MOMS (Moms Offering Moms Support) Club of Southern Bear feel they are lucky but not lazy to be stay-at-home mothers. "It's a hard job raising kids," Macedo said. "And many of us have to sacrifice having things so we can be home with our kids."

Like many of the women who belong to the club, Macedo believes raising her children is her "top priority" and was able to stop working outside the home to do so. She sought the company of other mothers for the usual job-related reasons — training and networking.

"There used to be a lot more people home during the day," said Macedo. "Women had friends and support — someone to share ideas on raising children."

In addition, the greater majority of the moms in the club moved from out-of-state — most within the past five years — unlike Macedo who has lived in Delaware most of her life and has family here.

"I moved here in 1991 from Pottstown, Pa.," said Sandi Trate, who has an 8-year-old and a 3-year-old. "It's very, very hard to find other moms to talk to when you're not a native of the area."

Trate, who serves on the MOMS board with Macedo, said she loves the club and plans to stay in it even when both her children go to school. "You don't have to have preschoolers to belong," said Trate. "In the summer and in school breaks, for instance, we try to gear our activities more for school age children."

The club draws women from throughout New Castle County and even Maryland and Pennsylvania. Members hold a business meeting once a month and also have a welcome tea for new members every month as well.

"We have babysitters available at these activity scheduled each week which everyone can do.

The group also does service projects among which is a bi-monthly visit to the Millcroft Nursing Home. "We take the kids and visit with the residents," said Macedo. "This month we wore costumes."

Social life on their own is limited to one night a month called Mom's Night Out. "The club is really to help with the job of raising kids, so we only have one event for the mothers themselves," said Trate. "But when we have a mom's craft day, we'll take turns watching each other's kids so all the moms can have an uninterrupted chance to do the craft."

Some of the women who join the club also share activities on their own. "A lot of us join play groups that meet throughout the month at each other's homes," said Deborah Grawl, mother of a 2-year-old and expecting a second child in May. "We become friends outside the MOMS club."

Grawl said a play group mother has offered to help her hang wallpaper before the new baby comes. "She said she can do the wallpapering if I watch the kids," laughed Grawl.

Macedo agrees that this is one of the other benefits of the club. "We try to help and be there for each other," said Macedo. "Some of us made meals for the family of one of the moms when she had to go in the hospital."

While none of the current members work full-time, many do have part-time paying or volunteer jobs — or both. "There's no rule about it but it's a little hard to participate if you're not home during the day," said Macedo. "The main thing is that these are women who believe raising their children is their number one job, no matter what else they do."

For more information about the club, call Katy Reinhold at (410) 885-5626 or Sandi Trate at 834-6675.

'Everything' is in store at the Grand next week

NO WONDER Ken Wesler and his staff at the Grand Opera House are smiling these days. They have scheduled a performance for next week that has literally everything related to the fine and performing arts in one package on the stage of the Grand Old Lady of Market Street.

Let's turn first to stage and screen. The narrator for the program of Saturday, November 9, is a star of television, movies, opera and concert stages: Werner Klemperer. Known to most Americans for his role as Commandant Wilhelm Klink in the "Hogan's Heroes" series, Klemperer has narrated many orchestral and operatic performances and has appeared in operas such as "Die Entführung aus dem Serail" and "Die Fledermaus." His movie roles have included "Istanbul," "Flight to Hong Kong," "Death of a Scoundrel," "Judgment at Nuremberg" and more. A sampling of his stage credits: "Cabaret," "Master Class," "Idiot's Delight," "Dear Charles" etc.

My next topic is music and, as I turn to that art, I would point out that Werner Klemperer is the son of the great Otto Klemperer, conductor extraordinaire.

The musical portion of the evening will be provided by the Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia under Music Director Marc Mostovoy. This world famous group is relatively new by classical music standards, having been founded in 1964. The group specializes in the music of the 18th century and, under Mostovoy, has earned a reputation for performances of both Baroque and Classical works. It is one of only two professional chamber orchestras in the entire country.

The first fine arts portion of the evening will include a large screen projection of over 200 color slides of master artists of the ages. The second fine arts portion of the evening will feature large screen projection of color slides of the Delaware Valley by four outstanding area photographers.

Back to music, this time the center of the whole event. There will be two compositions performed next Saturday. Both of them have the same name but they are light years apart. The first — with the projections of the master painters — is Antonio Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons." The second — with Delaware Valley photos — is "A Philadelphia Four Seasons" with its composers, Spring, David Saturen; Summer, Jonathan Holland; Fall, Eric Sessler and Winter, Luis Prado. Each photo will be identified as it is projected to make full enjoyment easier for everyone.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

Werner Klemperer will read sonnets and descriptive texts to add to the music in the older opus. For the newer one, he will read poetry created by area writers: Spring, Major Jackson; Summer, Nathalie Anderson; Fall, Margaret Holley and Winter, Cindi Kim.

The contemporary photography for this multi-media event hasn't been overlooked by the Grand Opera House. While the great painting masters will be shown during the Vivaldi, these local photographers will have their works shown in the second half of the program: Spring, Frank Leone; Summer, James Wassermann; Fall, Sandy Sorlien and Winter, Peter Checchia.

This Grand presentation is really what the melding of the fine and performing arts is all about. And where else would it happen in our area than at Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts?

The Four Seasons as you have never heard or SEEN it before is just one example of the kinds of superb performances at the Grand Opera House this season. In such a short period of time the current administration has brought the great house from the brink of oblivion to a Mecca for the arts.

The curtain is at 8 p.m. next Saturday. Tickets range from $20 to $36 with special discounts for senior citizens, students with proper ID and groups. The Grand is trying to exclude no one from enjoying great music, art, and theater.

You can get more information about this program, or the others to come this season, right now. You may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Mall, or reach them by phone at 302-652-5577 or 1-800-37 GRAND; on the Marc Mostovoy, the Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia and narrator Werner Klemperer will all be on stage at the Grand Opera House Saturday, November 9, for a rare artistic delight.

Erskine challenges Lofink for second time in 27th

'People-friendly' civic leader challenges Lofink

BARBARA ERSKINE, Democratic challenger for the second time in the 27th District, said the number one reason to vote for her is that she is more in touch with the community.

Barbara Erskine points out the drainage ditch recently completed in the development of Melody Meadows where she serves as president of the civic association.

"When I have a problem with government, I don't go to the legislature," said Erskine. "I do the work myself. I like it—I'm good at it."

According to Erskine, she has met people while campaigning who don't know who to go to when they have a civic problem. Erskine said she can help these people because she has spent a most of her life organizing for her family and community. "As a little person you can have an effect," said Erskine. "I don't always get what I want but I get something."

A senior secretary for DNREC, Erskine is president of the Melody Meadows civic association and serves on the board of advisors for the Bear/Glasgow YMCA.

The transportation infrastructure is in "serious trouble" in the district, said Erskine. "DelDOT has known that this area was slated for intense growth, but failed to make substantial improvements."

Erskine said the state and the county need to work together on the growth and transportation problems. "I've had experience getting the state and county to work together on a civic level," said Erskine. "But the county council is capable of doing what is right and I don't think the state should take over county planning."

Another issue Erskine sees as very important is open space above the C and D Canal. "When I moved here 19 years ago, Peoples Plaza was not there and you had to pass cows just to get to my neighborhood."

Erskine said she favors community-based schools. "However, lack of funding has made it extremely difficult for schools to meet their students' needs," said Erskine. "School funding needs to be addressed."

Incumbent believes he has 'been on the ball'

VINCENT LOFINK, Republican state representative from the 27th District, has not let success slow him down.

"I think the fact that I got more than 65 percent of the vote in the last two elections speaks for itself," said Lofink. "I try to do a good job."

According to Lofink, transportation and growth management are the hot issues in New Castle County. "That's a given," said Lofink adding that both the state and the county "have some land use planning credibility problems."

Lofink pointed to a number of bills which were introduced but not passed in the state legislature to slow or reduce development while transportation improvements were not in place. "DelDOT would be hammered to improve intersections and we could slow but not stop some rezonings (if these bills were law)," said Lofink.

A "firm believer" in the expansion of county council, Lofink said, "It's been the nature of the growth and geography in the area which make people feel they don't have a voice now."

Lofink said he believes he has "been on the ball" in addressing land use in his district. "I've been to all the planning meetings and sent out over 1,400 notices to people about the improvements at Routes 40 and 7 alone," he said. "I want people to be aware when there's a project out there."

Commenting on one constituents claim that she had not seen a politician in 60 years on Buck-Jersey Road, Lofink said, "I just took care of a drainage problem on Buck-Jersey Road. It's not that those people are not represented."

On other issues Lofink said he was pushing for the Bear Library as well as other community organizations in the Route 40 corridor. "There's more than 275 acres of public land near the intersection of 896 and 40," said Lofink. A Christina District school, a Glasgow library, a fire company, a community Y, and the national guard are already part of possible plans, said Lofink. "I'd love to see a county park there," he added.

The father of four sons, Lofink said he helped pass School Choice and is very much in favor of neighborhood schools, "but the ball's in the school district's court, now."

Karl Kalbacher

FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Dear Friends & Neighbors,

Since announcing my candidacy on April 15th I have walked through your neighborhood several times and talked with many of you on the phone. Through my conversations and literature pieces I have shared my views on neighborhood schools, juvenile crime prevention and redevelopment of abandoned shopping centers. I strongly believe that these are all important issues for the residents of the 25th District and I will work hard to help solve these problems.

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank you for spending the time to greet me at your doors and talking with me. It has been a very exciting campaign and I hope you will support me on November 5th.

Sincerely,

Karl

to eastbound Route 273 will also use this new ramp before the overpass.

■ Until the next phase of construction is completed, traffic eastbound on Red Mill Road to Route 273 must now turn right onto Route 4 westbound and travel to the intersection of Route 273 and Salem Church Road where they can turn right onto another new ramp and enter eastbound Route 273.

■ Traffic westbound on Route 4 can no longer make a left turn onto eastbound Route 273 but must also continue under the overpass to the intersection of Route 273 and Salem Church Road where they can turn right onto the ramp to eastbound Route 273.

■ Traffic westbound on Route 273 will not have any changes in travel patterns at this time.

Christine Gillan, spokesperson for DelDOT, said the new traffic patterns may cause some confusion at first but they are trying to minimize any problems. "We distributed flyers to local employers and during rush hours to drivers at the intersection this week explaining the new patterns," said Gillan. "If we can get through the first week, it should be OK."

Signs are posted to guide drivers through the new patterns and DelDOT is asking all motorists to use extreme caution when traveling through the area as people become familiar with the changes.

Sometime between the summer and fall of 1997, all lanes in both directions will be opened on the new roadway, according to Cooper and Muir. At that time, additional ramps and further changes in traffic patterns will be announced. (see Newark Post issue of Oct. 4, 1996).

New rail routes travel past residences

populated areas; reduced rail miles in the northeast corridor; not routing the long freight trains through the Wilmington passenger station; putting the materials seven miles instead of 17-18 from the customers; and saving money for Conrail by reducing travel miles.

"It's a win-win situation," said Womer, who declined to name customers but said anyone could read their names off the trains as they passed.

Womer emphasized to the crowd that the hazardous chemicals on the trains were already traveling through Newark on a daily basis and this change would only increase the number of railcars. "Of the total 42 cars that currently come here, approximately 28 are carrying hazardous materials and we plan to add another 6-7," Womer said.

In defending the plan against persistent suggestions that the main motive for this switch in rail yards was profit, Womer admitted that "reduced handling and rail miles" was basically "just shifting the danger from the Wilmington corridor to Newark" but not reducing the overall risk at all.

In addition, the nearest school in Wilmington is eight blocks from the Edgemoor yards while the Newark Center for Creative Learning is two blocks from the Chrysler Industrial center. "(But) it appears to me that the risk of a spill is greater over-the-road than while switching in a yard," said Womer, while also admitting that the Edgemoor yard is almost a mile from a home.

"In Newark, homes sit right on top of the tracks!" said one woman. "And we're told 'if a train derailed with chlorine gas, gather your children, close the windows and seal them with tape' - thank-you, I'll sleep better now."

Residents also expressed unhappiness about the additional noise and possible expansion at the Chrysler rail yards where the trains presently unload.

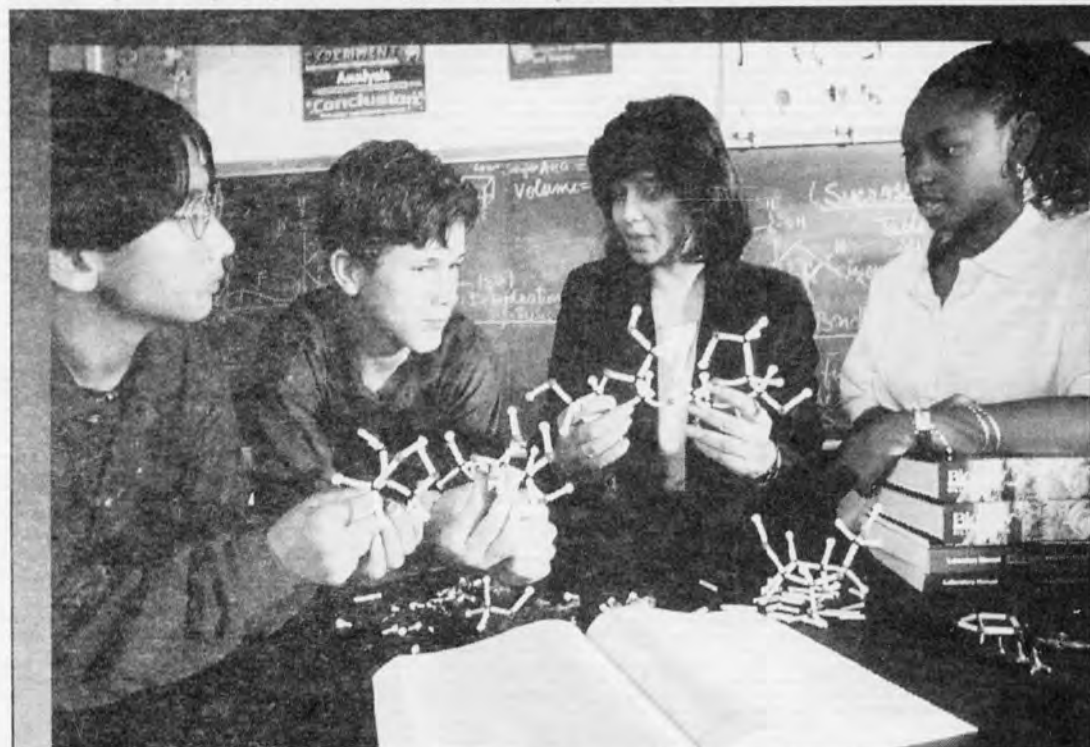

Womer said Conrail has no present plans to expand, and in fact, there are few places left to do so in the county. "However, when Chrysler comes back and builds utility vehicles, it's very likely they'll be going to three shifts a day," said Womer. "Then they're going to want us to shift cars around the clock and we can't do too much about it."

State senator Steven Amick told residents that the state cannot preempt federal laws and under federal law, Conrail cannot be prevented from making this change. "All the permits are in place," said Amick. "This is a matter of interstate commerce."

Amick and other legislators and their representatives at the meeting said local residents could only inform themselves and try to prepare a response.

Conrail representatives said the company had set up a Responsible Care Program to address safety concerns and would be happy to work with local residents in setting up as plan in the event of an emergency. These programs were created by companies dealing with hazardous materials following the toxic gas leak disaster in Bhopal, India, which killed 2,000 people in 1984.

"We want to be good neighbors," concluded Womer, adding that the company constantly reviewed equipment and safety procedures. "Because of improved technology, we have a much safer operation and since 1980 there has only been one death in the United States caused by hazardous materials on a train."

Police say illegal parkers not innocent victims were on the scene from approximately 9 to 11 p.m. to prevent a breach of peace. "The tow truck drivers call us when car owners get angry and things might get out of hand," said Townsend.

Townsend, who believes that the lot in question is "relatively well-posted," said he doesn't have a lot of sympathy for people who park illegally. "These are not innocent victims," said Townsend. "After all, technically, they're also trespassing and we could arrest them for that."

Anthony Fusco said he doesn't know what people expect from him. "When two sections of the fence between the high school and the lot were knocked down, we called the school," said Fusco. "Did they offer to cooperate or help us? No, they said, 'call the cops!'"

Both Townsend and Fusco said unauthorized parking in a lot after business hours has risks. "I have an investment here," said Fusco. "I could be sued if someone got hurt while the building is closed."

Hagen said he had not personally tried to talk to Fusco. "I know people from the night school here talked to him and they said he wouldn't let us use that lot even for special events," said Hagen.

Want it towed anywhere special?

MOST OF THE complaints people voice about towing companies center around inconvenience and cost. However, at least one alleged business practice of a local towing company seemed a little unusual.

"I was going to pick up my car after it was towed around the middle of September," said Newark resident Peter Roybal. "On a whim I decided to follow a Ewing Tow truck that passed me."

Roybal said the driver went to the lot at the Library Avenue Professional Building, turning off the tow truck lights when he drove through the lot. "It was dark and there were about five cars parked at the end near the School Lane Apartments," said Roybal. "The driver loaded one of the cars onto the truck and I followed him out of there to a lot near the general services building on the university campus where he left the car."

Roybal said the tow truck driver "raced back" to the Library Avenue building, turning off his lights as he drove through the lot, got another car, and started out again. "This time I followed him to a lot around behind the Calvary Baptist Church where he stashed that one," said Roybal, who assumed the driver went back to move the rest of the cars. He did not follow the truck anymore that night.

Captain Charles Townsend said there is nothing to forbid private towers from moving cars to a temporary "holding" spot as long as it doesn't cause any harm to the vehicle or add to the towing costs. "The Newark police have authorized city towers to do that when we need a lot of cars moved quickly," said Townsend. Normally city towers are required by contract to take vehicles directly to the pound.

Newark city solicitor Roger Akin said he has heard before about this practice by towing companies. "It is one of the things we're looking into," said Akin. "If there are any improprieties, we want to try to deal with it."

Akin said he will be making some suggestions to city council about possible towing regulations for companies operating in Newark. "There's only so much we can do, though," said Akin. "Perhaps we can regulate signage and require them to post rates," Akin explained. "But when it comes down to private business, the city can't really interfere."

Re-Elect

Stephanie Ulbrich

Dear Friends,

For the past two years it has been my privilege to serve as your full-time State Representative in the 25th District. During this time, I have come to know many of you ... at your door, at your monthly civic association meetings, or working together to solve a local problem.

Among friends and neighbors, we have discussed many issues. Your concerns and suggestions regarding education and crime have resulted in legislation signed into law.

We have worked well together and I thank you for all your support. As I campaign for re-election, I want each of you to know that I will continue to work hard for you in the future to make our Community and our State a better place for all of us!

I hope I can count on your support on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

We support Joe Biden for re-election because of his outstanding record on the issues that are important to Delaware and because he is an important voice on national issues.

The Biden Crime Law is putting 100,000 police on the streets -- 44,000 so far nationally and 148 in Delaware. It also bans 19 types of military-style assault weapons without in any way jeopardizing the rights of sportsmen and hunters. Joe Biden is also a strong supporter of the Brady Bill which has already prevented more than 60,000 felons from purchasing a handgun.

Joe Biden was the first national legislator to take action against the epidemic of family violence. He developed and wrote the Violence Against Women Act, which provides shelter spaces for an additional 900,000 battered women and their children, increases courts' ability to protect women who are being stalked, and creates a national family violence hotline to get immediate help to women being abused.

On fiscal matters, Joe recognized early on the need to confront growing deficits and proposed freezing federal spending across the board. He was the author of, and a supporter of, Constitutional amendments to balance the budget, and he offered a specific plan to balance the budget by the year 2002.

Joe Biden understands the importance of education and has proposed a $10,000 tax deduction to help pay the costs of college. He opposes a Constitutional amendment to deny a women's right to choose. Joe Biden also joined with Mike Castle in introducing the same welfare reform bill.

All this reflects the fact that Joe Biden takes a moderate, bipartisan approach to getting things done. And this approach has worked for Delaware.

Time and again, Joe Biden has teamed up with Senator Bill Roth and Representative Mike Castle to get things done for Delaware. When 47 states ganged up on Delaware, the experience and seniority of the Biden-Roth-Castle delegation saved the state $200 million for its 21st Century Fund. Whether it is bringing businesses and jobs to Delaware, making improvements at Dover Air Force Base, investing in Amtrak, building a new bridge over the C&D Canal, protecting our poultry markets, or serving our veterans, Joe Biden and our delegation in Washington has been there for us.

Joe Biden has earned our support. We hope you will join us in voting to re-elect Joe to the Senate.

Border Crossing offers 'the whole enchilada'

BORDER CROSSING in Newark picks up where its predecessor, El Sombrero, left off. Where the latter offered a menu made up predominantly of Mexican food, the former takes a step southwest (of here). "Steaks, ribs, chicken...the whole enchilada" is the bar/restaurant's new slogan.

But even more obvious than its new name and new menu is its Florida room, a 1,500-square-foot dining room that fronts Elkton Road. The room, which sits adjacent to the outdoor deck, gives the restaurant a second bar and another 15 tables.

Sliding glass doors and the soon-to-be-added wood-burning stove, cocktail table and sofa provide a unique atmosphere. The room will serve as the focal point for Thursday "cigar nights."

But the food is still the biggest change at Border Crossing, which was re-named last March.

"Border Crossing, to me, means a mix of Mexican and Texas [cuisine]," says Jim Lacey, who operates the bar/restaurant with his family. "Mexican specialties and full-line steakhouse. We've got the best Margaritas in the world. We've got the largest selection of Mexican beer and tequila."

"I get as many as I can get my hands on," Lacey added.

Border Crossing also boasts two new chefs, one of whom is an authentic Texan. "They're putting together some of the best food served here," Lacey said. "The reason I changed was diversify the menu."

The Laceys had grown tired of being known exclusively for their Mexican fare - especially with other area establishments serving Mexican-style appetizers and entrees.

So they finally did something about it, even with their enviable reputation as a Mexican eatery earned over nearly two decades of operation. The menu now includes tender baby back ribs, which all but melt in your mouth, and steaks broiled over mesquite and charcoal.

"We tenderize a whole loin and hand-carve steaks to order," Lacey said.

Of course, their Mexican favorites have survived the slight change of formats. Check out the burritos and the enchiladas, whose fillings are prepared fresh daily.

And the "signature" appetizers, which serve four, like the Iguana: seasoned steak fries with melted Monterey Jack and Jalapeno cheddar served with bacon and herb dressing.

And the same homemade salsa and habaneros (that's a pepper with the heat turned all the way up!)

"We're starting fresh," Lacey said. "If you haven't been here, we want you to come out and give us your opinion - which we value for our future success."

■ Border Crossing is open seven days a week: Sunday and Monday from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m.; and Tuesday through Saturday from 3 p.m. to 1 a.m. Call (302) 738-0808 for further information.

Fall feasting: peanut soup

THE FOLLOWING RECIPE for Fall Peanut Soup is from the companion cookbook to the public television series "Cooking Secrets of the CIA," which airs nationwide on PBS stations every weekend.

2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 stalk celery, chopped

1 generous tablespoon honey
1 cup heavy cream
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

Add the chicken stock; stir to mix thoroughly. Bring to a simmer; add the bay leaf and peanut butter. Blend thoroughly and simmer for 40 minutes, stirring frequently.

Add the honey; stir. Remove from the heat, strain and add the heavy cream. Adjust the seasoning with salt and pepper and garnish with chopped peanuts, if desired. Serve hot. Makes 12 six-ounce servings.

POST GAME

By MARTY VALANIA

A great day for Hen fans

ANYONE THAT sat in the stands during the Delaware-James Madison football must now realize how much more fun it is to go to a college football game than it is to lay on a couch and watch one.

First, it was a splendid autumn day weather wise. Second, the stadium was filled to capacity with an enthusiastic crowd. Third, it was a big conference day between two teams vying for a title. Fourth, the usual college atmosphere (tailgating, bands, etc.) was even better than normal because of the addition of the James Madison band and the Golden Knights parachuting team. And fifth and, perhaps most importantly, the home crowd was happy because of the big win.

"I just really enjoyed it," said Delaware Coach Tubby Raymond about Saturday's atmosphere. "It's been a long time since I had that much fun. Delaware football was made to be like that."

In addition to all that, Delaware's win Saturday catapulted the team back into the Yankee Conference championship race and put the Hens back among the country's elite I-AA teams.

With tough road games against William & Mary and a powerful Navy team still ahead, a win against the Dukes was a necessity.

Following the 27-0 loss to Villanova on Sept. 14, the Blue Hens and their fans went through five lackluster weeks on the field and in the stands. Sure, Delaware won, but they certainly didn't look like a championship contender. And sure the fans showed up, but in mediocre numbers and with less than great enthusiasm.

The Blue Hens showing against JMU cured all those ills. The team beat another good team and looked impressive in doing so. The fans, with the help of Parents' Day, packed the house and made some noise.

Everything was right again — at least for a week.

High school tourney mania to begin

Ready or not, here they come.

The next two weeks will give us as many high school state tournament games as we could possibly want.

The volleyball tournament begins Saturday with undefeated St. Mark's being the favorite. The soccer tournament will start Tuesday night with defending state champ Glasgow, number one ranked St. Mark's, Newark and Christiana all taking part.

St. Mark's running back Mike Watkins bursts up the middle in the Spartans' come-from-behind victory over ST. Elizabeth Friday night at Baynard Stadium.

Face another No. 1 Friday

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

WILMINGTON — St. Mark's High scored five second-half touchdowns to defeat St. Elizabeth 32-28. The Spartans' reward? William Penn on Friday, who have reeled off six straight wins since losing on opening day.

But St. Mark's Coach Vinnie Scott all but gushed over his team's latest top-ranked foe. "I really like to play William Penn," he said. "They're a challenge. They're so well coached. They're disciplined. They just epitomize a great program. They always find a way to win."

Scott said the key to staying with the Colonials would be maintaining a balanced attack — like the Spartans did against St. Elizabeth in the second half of last Saturday's spectacular come-from-behind win.

After picking up only three first downs in the first half, St. Mark's overcame deficits of 14-0, 14-7, 21-14, 21-20, 28-20 and 28-27 before finally taking a 32-28 lead with 1:30 left to play.

The Spartans' Mike Watkins scored all five touchdowns while rushing for nearly 150 yards. Watkins said he expected his team to recover, but admitted the second-half explosion surprised him.

"I knew we'd come back with some heart. But I never dreamed we'd score five touchdowns," he said. "We knew this would make or

St. Mark's sweeps past Christiana

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

CHRISTIANA — The St. Mark's High volleyball team wrapped up its first undefeated season with a 15-11, 15-10 sweep of Christiana High. Monday's win assured the Spartans of the No. 1 seed in the state volleyball tournament, which begins Saturday.

"Christiana is No. 2 [actually No. 3] in the state," St. Mark's outside hitter Allison Sternberg said. "We knew a lot was at stake, so we really took it seriously."

The Spartans (17-0) emphasized an outside attack, kicking the majority of their sets to outside hitters Sternberg (8 kills) and Kristin Darby (11 kills) for two reasons:

□ They to go around Christiana's height advantage, especially in the middle. The Vikings (13-4) use three players who are around six feet tall and athletic.

□ And both of St. Mark's middle hitters were hurting: senior Kate Hubbard (4 kills), a first-team All-Stater, was battling a cold, and sophomore Jen Mack (4 kills) was playing with an injured finger on her hitting hand.

The strategy worked well enough.

"It was a tough match," Mack said. "They had a great defense, and there blocking was there. We had to find the holes in their defense. ...Whatever works, whatever we get points off of I'm comfortable with. Whatever it takes."

St. Mark's opened up a 10-1 lead in the first game, but the Vikings battled back to tie the score. The Spartans finished them off afterward, then jumped out to a quick lead in the second game.

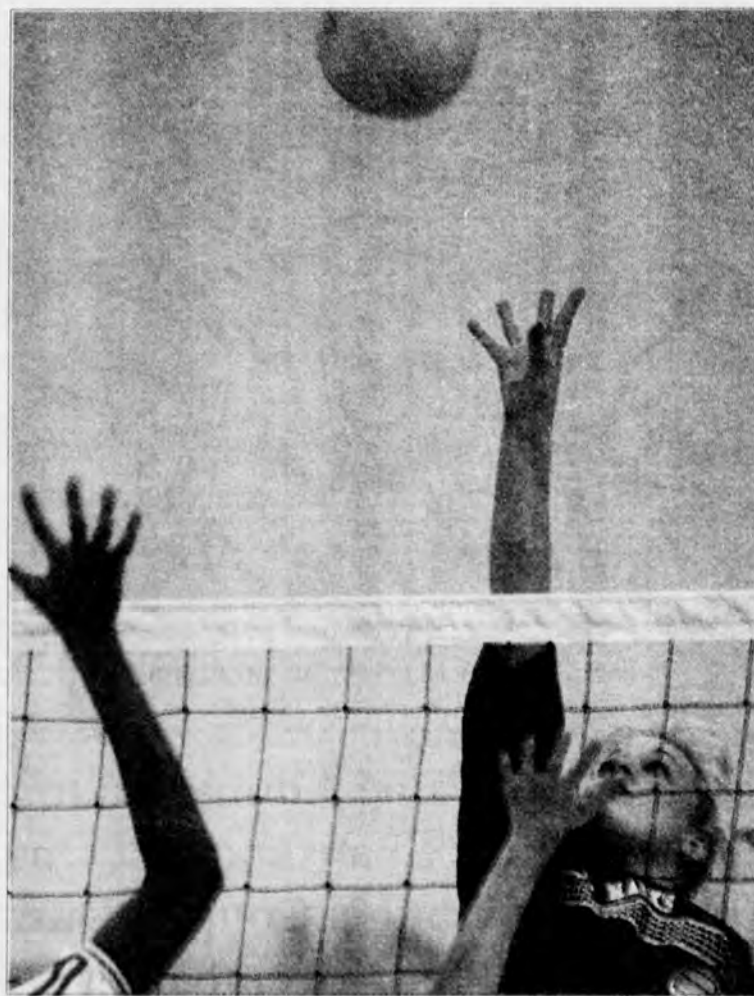

"When we have to play catch-up, it's really hard for us to get the intensity back," said Christiana's Erin Pfozter, a setter and outside hitter. "But when we do get our momentum, there's stopping us. ...This is one of the best matches we played all year."

"Even though when we were down, we still kept our heads into the game. We never felt like, 'This is game-point.' We kept trying."

Both Pfozter (7 kills) and Christiana Coach Kim Huggins admitted the team suffered from inconsistency that Huggins attributed a lack of confidence.

"The kids walk in with the idea that St. Mark's is undefeated, that

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

John Adams – Glasgow

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

John Adams rushed for 323 yards in leading Glasgow High to only its second win of the season in seven tries.

But equally important, the junior tailback carried the ball an amazing 50 times while wearing shoulder harnesses to protect two separated shoulders. He also scored two big touchdowns in the Dragons' 34-25 win over A.I. DuPont.

Adams, a 16-year-old Newark resident, will likely undergo operations on both shoulders after the season. For now, his mind seldom veers away from football. Despite his team's poor start, he is fast closing in on a 1,000-yard season – which will put him in the select company of only a handful of Dragons: Eddie Davis, who turned the trick twice in 1992 and '93, and University of Delaware alumnus Pat Williams ('88, '89). Shane Riley ('91) and Mike Hubbard ('81) are the others.

Adams downplayed his physical problems. "If I stick my arm out and try to stiff-arm somebody, that hurts," he said. "So I try to keep my arms close to my body."

He gave credit to his linemen – John Babb, Chad Blackson, Brian Timpson, Bobby Bryant and Greg Kirby – for opening up holes in A.I. DuPont's defense.

"If they knock somebody down, they'll go onto the next guy and the next guy... instead of just standing there," Adams said.

As for keeping his head up in what has been a down season, Adams follows the seasons of rival backs like Newark's Corey Wallace and Richie Parson and Christiana's Calvin Carr Jr.

"I'm trying to out-do them," he said. "That keeps me motivated."

While lacking Wallace's size and perhaps Parson's speed, the 5-foot-10, 175-pounder compensates with deceptive moves and toughness. "He's a very shifty runner," Glasgow Coach Dave Scott said. "He gets the ball through the middle, then slides. You're not sure where he's going to come out."

Adams believes the Dragons should win with the caliber of talent they have. He said teammates like quarterback Ike Wilson and split end Brian "Bird" Miller are among the best at their positions in the conference.

"We put it together all week in practice. Then we get out there [in a game situation] and I don't know what happens. I couldn't tell you," he said.

break our season if we lost to a Division II team."

He credited his line for poking holes in the Vikings' defense, but said his team's lack of enthusiasm in the first half was the real culprit. "This was just another close win we should have won by more than four points," he said.

St. Elizabeth scored two touchdowns in the four minutes to take a 14-0 lead over the listless Spartans. But in the second half, St. Mark's quarterback Ryan Zarzycki took to the air, completing nine of 13 passes for nearly 200 yards.

Scott said the team can afford no such lapses against William Penn. He said his team would need to establish its running game early. "We're going to make our living running the ball," he said. "You can't make any mistakes. You make a mistake against them... they just nail you."

Strong second half boosts Bucs to win

BEAR – Caravel Academy continued its second half success and, in doing so, kept its perfect season alive.

The Bucs scored twice in the second half and shut out Tower Hill to earn a 25-14 victory. The win improved Caravel's record to 7-0 and left it as the state's only undefeated team.

Quarterback Alex Faircloth led the Bucs' attack by throwing two touchdown passes and running for another one. Faircloth, running a triple-option offense, ran for a 55-yard touchdown and threw a 61 yard TD pass to Dave Macelroy as well as a 40 yarder to Dave Restucci.

Larry Steward got Caravel's other touchdown by running into the end zone from 13 yards out in the third quarter.

Caravel, trailing 14-13 at half-time, took control of the game in the second half. The Bucs ran nearly twice as many offensive plays and gained more than three times as much yardage as Tower Hill in the second half.

"We've been a good second half team all season," said Caravel Coach Dave Needs. "If you look at our season, we score most of our points in the second half. I really can't single anything out. This was a team performance."

Caravel now turns its attention to Mount Pleasant – a Flight A team who the Bucs play on the road Saturday afternoon. The Bucs also have games with St. Elizabeth on Nov. 9 and Archmere Nov. 22 left on their schedule.

POST PICKS OF THE WEEK

It was a wild week in the high school football ranks.

We did get four wins to improve our record to 23-7 (.767).

Let's move on to the games this week.

GLASGOW (2-5) VS. BRANDYWINE (6-1) – Friday night at Glasgow, 5. The Dragons got a nice win last week against Alexis I. DuPont. The Bulldogs have been on a roll since an upset loss to Concord earlier in October. Brandywine is eyeing a conference championship and a state tournament berth. The Pick: Brandywine 14, Glasgow 8.

ST. MARK'S (5-2) VS. WILLIAM PENN (6-1) – Friday night at Baynard Stadium, 7:30. This is a huge game in the high school football season. The Spartans still have legitimate hopes of making the state tournament. A win here, though, is a must. The Colonials have been passing tests week after week and have climbed their way to the number one ranking. The Spartans, amazingly, have a 2-0 record against number one teams (Christiana and St. Elizabeth). The Pick: St. Mark's 21, William Penn 20.

NEWARK (6-1) VS. DELCASTLE (4-3) – Saturday afternoon at Delcastle, 2. Once upon a time this game was a walkover. The Cougars, however, have become a team to reckon with this season. Delcastle is 2-2 in Flight A with its only losses coming to league leaders William Penn and Brandywine. Newark, though, is one of the best teams in the state and must keep winning to prove it. The Pick: Newark 27, Delcastle 14.

CHRISTIANA (3-4) VS. A.I. DuPONT (3-4) – Saturday afternoon at Christiana, 2. Both teams come in sporting 3-4 records. That does not mean, however, that both teams are equal in quality. The Vikings losses have come to St. Mark's, Newark, William Penn and Brandywine – four of the toughest teams in the state. The state tournament maybe out, but a winning season is not. The Pick: Christiana 28, A.I. 6.

CARAVEL (7-0) VS. MOUNT PLEASANT (1-6) – Saturday afternoon at Mount Pleasant, 2. The Bucs are on a roll. They earned two big wins over Tatnall and Tower Hill and now face a 1-6 foe. The Green Knights, though, do play in Flight A and many of their losses have come against quality teams. Caravel needs to keep winning to stay in the hunt for a berth in the state's Division II state tournament. The Pick: Caravel 21, Mount Pleasant 18.

HODGSON (4-3) VS. CONCORD (5-2) – Saturday afternoon at Concord, 2. The Silver Eagles have lost two conference games while the Raiders are undefeated in the league and also own a big win over Flight A co-leader Brandywine. The Pick: Concord 24, Hodgson 22.

Spartans earn top seed in volleyball tourney

St. Mark's High earned the top seed as it opens defense of its Delaware High School Volleyball Tournament championship Saturday night.

The Spartans cruised through the season with a 17-0 record and won the Catholic Conference title. They will now try to win four more matches and their second straight state championship. A state title for the Spartans will mark the first time since 1993 (Ursuline) that a team went through the entire regular season and tournament undefeated.

The 16-team, 22nd annual tournament begins at four sites Saturday night. St. Mark's will face 16th-seeded McKean (9-7) at 6:30 p.m. at Alexis I. DuPont and eighth-seeded Tatnall (14-2) will face ninth-seeded Brandywine (10-7) at 8. At Mount Pleasant, No. 4 Newark (14-4) will play 13th-seeded Sanford (12-4) at 6:30 and fifth-seeded Archmere (13-3) will face No. 12 Tower Hill at 8.

The two winners at AI will play each other at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Newark while the two winners at Mount Pleasant will face each other Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at St. Mark's.

In the other half of the bracket, second-seeded Ursuline (12-5) plays No. 15 Dover at Christiana at 6:30 p.m. Also at Christiana at 8, seventh-seeded Glasgow (12-4) plays 10th-seeded Padua (8-8).

At Newark High, third-seeded Christiana (13-4) will face 14th-seeded Alexis I. DuPont (8-8) at 6:30 while sixth-seeded Concord (12-4) plays 11th-seeded Dickinson (11-5) at 8.

The winners of the matches at Christiana will play Tuesday at 8 p.m. at St. Mark's while the two winners at Newark will play at 6:30 Tuesday at Newark.

The semifinals are slated for Thursday, Nov. 7 at Glasgow High while the finals and the consolation game are scheduled for Nov. 9 at the Carpenter Center beginning at 7 p.m.

they couldn't be beaten because nobody else [has done it]," said Huggins, whose team faces A.I. DuPont at Newark in the first round of the state tournament Saturday.

"I think St. Mark's is beatable. In the first game, had we not gotten behind, who's to say whether we would have lost that game? I don't think they crushed us in any one aspect. I hope we'll get to see them again," the coach added.

St. Mark's Coach Dave Stover said his team was less than 100 percent, and it affected its performance. "The kids weren't real happy with the way they played," said Stover, whose team faces McKean at A.I. DuPont Saturday. Christiana "served real well, they passed much better than they did against Newark; they played good defense.

"We just had a little more fire-power," he said.

Stover expressed a little concern over his team's lack of aggressiveness on Monday. He prefers seeing his hitters miss a kill rather than play it safe by pushing the ball over the net.

Rejuvenated Hens ready for W&M

Win over JMU catapults UD

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POSTSPORTS WRITER

The bandwagon is packed again as it heads toward Williamsburg, Va.

The University of Delaware football team re-established itself as one of the elite teams in the Yankee Conference — and the nation — with its 27-13 victory over James Madison last Saturday.

The stakes, however, rise again this week as the sixth ranked Blue Hens visit number 15 William & Mary. The Tribe enters the game with a 6-2 overall record and, more importantly, a 4-1 mark in the Yankee Conference. The Hens, with the win over the Dukes, moved to 7-1 overall, 5-1 in the league. JMU, with the loss, dropped to 6-2, 4-1. Villanova, who beat Delaware 27-0 in September, also holds 6-2, 4-1 marks.

William & Mary's loss in the league came in a 26-21 setback to James Madison on Oct. 12. Following Delaware, the Tribe still has to play UMass and Richmond in league games. The Hens have just one league game (Rhode Island) remaining in addition to a matchup with Navy.

James Madison and Villanova close the regular season Nov. 16 with a big conference game in Harrisonburg, Va.

That being noted, it's not hard to see why Saturday's game is such a big one.

"This is huge," said Delaware offensive tackle Chris Nocco of the game. "This is a big game. If we don't win this week it will be difficult for us to go on."

Despite William & Mary's loss at JMU, the game will be anything but easy for Delaware. The Tribe leads the league in total defense and is

CHRIS NOCCO

second in total offense.

"William & Mary is an exceptional football team," said Delaware Coach Tubby Raymond, who is 11-6 in 17 games against William & Mary. "Their four down linemen are an all-star group in this league. All the names I saw in a spring depth chart are the same ones I see going into this game. They have experienced players, haven't been injured and just have a good football team."

"I thought they were the best team we played last year."

William & Mary coach Jimmye Laycock tried to downplay the importance of the game. "It's a big game because it's the next one on the schedule," Laycock said. "We've had some big games with Delaware and it's always big in the conference. But we try not to put too much emphasis on one game."

"We're well aware, however, that Delaware is a premiere program. They're a good, solid football team."

Raymond, with all of his team's success against a good team like James Madison, knows that the Hens must keep improving.

"Now we have a new problem," he said. "The football team has finally reached a place where it should be. Now what are they going to do? Are they going to go to another level?"

"If we're going to keep winning, then they're going to have to."

"Now we improved immeasurably over the last two weeks. I mean immeasurably. Two weeks ago, we couldn't even throw the ball."

That hasn't been a problem for William & Mary as sophomore quarterback Mike Cook leads the Yankee Conference in passing and total offense.

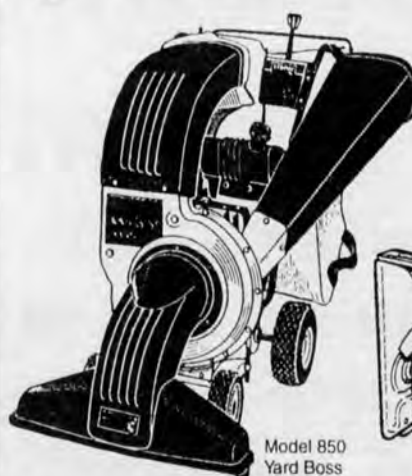

"He's been a nice surprise for us," Laycock said. "He's improved a lot."

Not surprisingly, a big crowd is expected to see the matchup. The winner will leave in outstanding shape as far as the conference title and the playoffs are concerned; the loser will be in trouble.

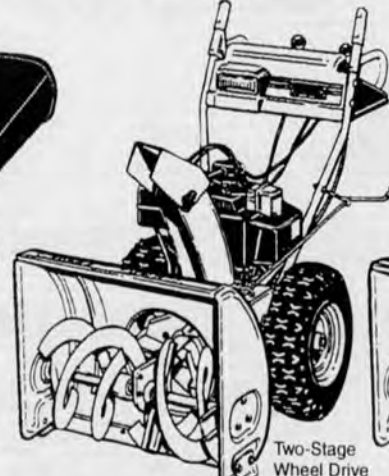

"I think the team is getting sick of hearing it," Raymond said. "This week we play for the conference championship. We said that last week too. But we had to win last week to get in position this week."

Fall Fest Days at Senior Center

Fall Fest Days are coming to the Newark Senior Center next weekend. Organizers plan entertainment and booths with gift items, baked goods, and crafts, as well as flowers, produce, toys and books.

Some of the possibilities include:
the Gold Connection with new, used and "antique" jewelry; Death by Chocolate with anything and everything made with chocolate; Crafter's
Gallery with handiwork of yarn, cloth, silk flowers and beads;
Basketville for those seeking woven containers; and Rags to Riches with gently-used clothing.

The Bargain Bin will have white elephants and household items while American Gifts and Antiques offers new gift items and collectibles.

The North Pole Wonderland and Grandma's Corner will have suggestions about Christmas presents as well as toys and children's items.

Staff and members are hoping this will be the first of many successful fundraisers in the new senior center and everyone is welcome.
Hours for the fest are 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 8, and 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 9.

For information or to volunteer to police, and a representative from the Wilmington Area Planning

Council will be the guest speakers.
