TUESDAY November 16, 1999 Volume 126 Number 18

> Non-Profit Org. U.S. Postage Paid Newark, DE Permit No. 26

> > FREE

Landlords file lawsuit against city

BY MARIA DAL PAN

Newark Landlords Association filed a lawsuit Monday against the City of Newark, stating that the city discriminates against student renters.

The suit, which was filed in New Castle County's Court of Chancery, aims to dissolve two ordinances passed by the city that attempt to regulate off-campus student housing rentals. It also seeks reimbursement for attorney fees to cover the cost of

The NLA, which represents more than 800 Newark landlords, stated in a press release that provisions within the city's zoning laws discriminate against students on the basis of their age, marital status and occupation.

John Bauscher, president of the NLA, said these ordinances are an attempt to take rights away from students and should be repealed.

"I would like to see those laws knocked down," he said. "Students should have the same rights as anyone when it comes to student housing.'

Several city officials, including Mayor Harold F. Godwin, refused to comment on the lawsuit at this time, but said they continue to support the legislation the city has passed regarding student housing.

"I think the record will show that I voted in favor of all of those ordinances," Godwin said.

Councilman Thomas P. Wampler, District 4, said he also agrees with the legislation the city has passed.

"We passed the legislation and we did it in good faith," he said. "So we stand behind it."

One of the ordinances the lawsuit is aiming to overturn is Ordinance No. 99-14, which classifies a student home as "a living arrangement in a single-family detached dwelling comprised of post-secondary students, unrelated by blood, marriage or legal adoption [who are] attending or about to attend a college or university or who are on a semester, winter or summer break from studies at a college or university, or any combination of such persons." The ordinance allows the city to create additional restrictions on these student residences, which Bauscher and the NLA said they find discriminatory.

In the lawsuit, the NLA states that this ordinance violates both the Delaware Fair Housing Act and the Delaware Landlord Tenant Code in its treatment of students.

Count One of the lawsuit states that the Delaware Fair Housing Act prohibits discrimination toward renters based on age, marital status, race, color, national origin, religion, creed, sex, familial status and handicap.

It then states that because students are generally of a certain age and marital status, Ordinance No. 99-14 violates the Delaware Fair Housing

In Count Two of the lawsuit, the NLA states that the ordinance is also in violation of the Delaware Landlord Tenant Code, on the same grounds as it states that he ordinance violates the Delaware Fair Housing

The lawsuit also aims to nullify Ordinance No. 99-10, which gives landlords the ability to evict tenants upon receiving more than one violation — such as noise, underage consumption of alcohol and property maintenance - within a one-year

Nine people were arrested and charged with drug-related offenses at the DaimlerChrysler plant on Route 896 Thursday.

Student ODs by Old College

BY DOMENICO MONTANARO

A female university student heading to a party was rushed to Christiana Hospital early Friday morning after she was found to have overdosed on a drug-related substance in the Old College area, university officials said.

University Police Capt. James Flatley said that after receiving a call from a friend of the girl at 12:44 a.m., university police went to the Old College area, where they found the female student convulsing and unconscious in the grass.

She was then brought by ambulance to Christiana Hospital and released later that day, officials said.

Police did not release the student's name because charges had not yet been filed, Flatley said.

Until police receive the toxicology report, Flatley said, he does not want to speculate on the nature of the drug involved.

Seminars give women skills to pay the bills

BY LURLEEN BLACK

Learning to manage money was the focus of a daylong seminar geared toward women at Clayton Saturday, 1,000 women swarmed the building to participate in Delaware's first "Everywoman's Money Conference.

Launched by State Treasurer Jack Markell, the conference provided tips on how people can better manage their money.

Markell said he organized the event to promote financial education and help Delawareans acquire the knowledge to make their money grow and work for "This is important because if people become financially independent, they won't have to depend on taxpayers' dollars," he said.

Although the conference was designed for women, facilitators said all college students could utilize the Bernadette Evans, representative from Primerica Financial Services, said the best way for college students to plan for their future is to invest and stay away from credit cards.

"Students should avoid using credit cards," she said, "because if used improperly, they can cause great debt."

Evans said one way for college students to gain money is to invest in stocks and mutual funds.

"If a college student invests $50 each month in a mutual fund at a rate of 12 percent, in 10 years they would have doubled the amount of money that they invested."

But Karen Sheridan, conference coach, said that although students need to invest and make their money work for them, they still need to budget according to how much money they make.

"Making more money is not the answer. If you mismanage $20,000, you will mismanage $100,000."

She said there are three characteristics of people who do not struggle with money.

· people who are willing to take responsibility for themselves and their

· people who are not in debt; · and people who invest in growth assets.

"You do not have to follow your parents' way of saving," she said. "You are allowed to change your mind for the better." Sheridan also said students should write down their financial goals. "People with a written plan always do better," she college-aged Some students who attended the see INVESTMENTS page A6

The Lorax was part of a demonstration against sweatshops on Main Street. Please see related story on page A11.

Drug sting nets nine at Chrysler

BY STEVE RUBENSTEIN City News Editor

Nine people were arrested and charged with 30 drug-related offenses Thursday as the result of a seven-month investigation at the DaimlerChrysler plant, Newark Police said.

Chief of Police Gerald T. Conway said eight of the nine people arrested worked in the plant on route 896. The ninth was a relative of another plant worker, he said.

Hope M. Mathis-Iancu, 20, of Newark, was the lone nonemployee arrested. She was charged with delivery of marijuana and second-degree conspiracy. She was turned over to the Department of Corrections in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Bryan Scott Adams, 22, of Elkton, Md., was charged with delivery of marijuana and seconddegree conspiracy. His bail was set at $6,000.

Carri Sue Adams, 25, of Elkton, Md., was charged with delivery of marijuana and seconddegree conspiracy. Her bail was set at $1,000.

William Matthew Swyka, 20, of Elkton, Md., was charged with delivery of a noncontrolled prescription drug (Skelaxin) and delivery of a narcotic scheduletwo substance (Percocet). His bail was set at $3,000.

Curtis Edward Brown, 23, of Elkton, Md., was charged with delivery of marijuana, maintaining a vehicle for keeping a controlled substance, second degree conspiracy and delivery of a narcotic schedule-four (Darvocet). His bail was set at $8,000.

Thomas Ray Smith, 49, of Newark, was charged with delivery of marijuana. His bail was set at $1,000.

Jeffrey Earl Riggs, 30, of Bear, Del., was charged with two counts of delivery of a narcotic schedule-(methamphetamine). His bail was set at $5,000.

Mark Wayne Games, 30, of Middletown, Del., was charged with two counts of delivery of marijuana, one count of delivery of a non-narcotic schedule one substance (Valium) and three counts of delivery of cocaine. He was also charged with two counts of trafficking cocaine, one count of maintaining a vehicle for keeping controlled substances and one count of second-degree conspiracy. His bail was set at $32,000.

William J. Cline Jr., 24, of Newark, was charged with two counts of delivery of marijuana and one count of second-degree conspiracy. His bail was set at see DRUG page A8

Gun buy-back program first in state

BY JEN LEMOS

A new program designed to buy back firearms will come to New Castle County later this month due to a partnership of the Delaware State Police and the state chapter of the

According to a police press release, the Gun Buy-Back Program will "seize and destroy weapons that would otherwise be used to commit crimes.'

Lt. John A. Yeomans, public information officer for the Delaware State Police, said citizens may receive up to three certificates and will not be required to present identification or paperwork of any kind.

Citizens who dispose of their firearms at Minquadale Fire Company on Nov. 20, will receive a $50 gift certificate for a local business.

"You just turn in your gun," he said,

"no questions asked."

According to the Delaware State Police, stolen firearms will be returned to their owners, and other weapons will be melted down and completely

Police officials said donated guns must be unloaded and wrapped in a paper bag that is secured with tape or

The safety must be on and the chamber or the cylinder must be open. Yeomans said NAACP Chapter President Charles A. Brittingham first approached the Delaware State Police with the idea. Yeomans said he hoped to advertise the program as much as possible in order to ensure its success.

"I'm hopeful," he said. "But the biggest thing will be how well we

The New Castle County Gun Buy-Back Program is a kind of pilot program that would extend to the other Delaware counties if there is enough community response, Yeomans said.

Police officials advocated the disposal of personal weapons, citing factors like keeping firearms out of the hands of curious children.

Other concerns, they said, were removing guns from the homes of those who may be suffering from depression and preventing burglars or other assailants from using a weapon against Local businesses that have joined the effort include Borders Books and Music, Home Depot, Kmart, Regal Cinema, Sullivan's Steakhouse, Accent Music and Genuardi's Family Markets.

THE REVIEW / Mike Louie A program to buy back guns so they can be destroyed will begin later this month.

Inside

The new millennium will also bring new apartments to Main Street

One editor's quest for the long-lost tunnels that lurk beneath campus

.....B1

Football team shuts out Rhode Island, 35-0, keeping playoff hopes alive

NCCo official's spending scrutinized

BY JEN LEMOS

The use of government credit cards by a top New Castle County official and his aide will come under investigation, Delaware Attorney General M. Jane Brady said last week.

County Executive Thomas Gordon and Chief Administrative Officer Sherry Freebury were criticized in a recent article published by The News Journal for the purchase of exorbitantly priced luxuries using county credit cards.

According to the article, the officials' purchases included steakhouse dinners, New York City theater tickets and alcoholic beverages.

The newspaper revealed charges of $13,500 in meals at local restaurants, $14,000 on furniture and office décor and $83,000 on staff trips since taking office in 1997.

New Castle County Council members said they are still looking for

Two Army

unprepared

BY BEN PENSERGA

could affect the country's military readiness and lead to additional federal funding, officials said last press release that a recent internal evaluation graded the 10th Mountain Division of Fort Drum, N.Y., and the 1st Infantry Division in Germany as "C-4"

Low evaluations in two U.S. Army divisions

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Eric Shinseki said in a

A "C-4" rating indicates a lack of manpower,

Shinseki said the main cause of the low ratings equipment or training, he said. It also means that units are not ready for combat in a major region was lack of military personnel within the units.

Both divisions have approximately half their troops currently involved with peacekeeping activities in

R. D. Murphy, a deputy garrison public affairs

"We have the best-trained, best-equipped

All military branches have noted before that

The ratings of these divisions drew some officer from the 10th Division, said the rating does troops," he said. "The rating reflected is because of peacekeeping missions put a strain on resources and divisions

for war

- the lowest rating of readiness.

not reflect the quality of the soldiers.

personal training, Shinseki said.

BY STEPHANIE DENIS

ruled on Oct. 28 to give foster parents the legal right to seek guardianship of children in their care, Supreme Court spokeswoman decision made by Family Court regarding a custody battle. The decision sets a precedent in Delaware, increasing the rights of all foster parents seeking custody of standing to petition for guardianship of foster children under their care,"

Chief Justice Eugene Norman

specific rules governing custody cases like these, and it is the prerogative of the court to decide how to interpret the law code of Lafferty said foster parents previously did not have the right to interfere with the guardianship of children placed in their homes by the

"This case sets a precedential

Division of Family Services.

Delaware.

Veasey's stated that there are no

Veasey said in his court opinion.

"We hold that foster parents have children in their care, Lafferty said.

The appeal case affirmed a Gayle Lafferty said.

The Delaware Supreme Court

Bosnia and Kosovo.

availability."

answers regarding the expenses listed in The News Journal.

"My office has been deluged with inquiries about this matter," Brady said in a statement read by spokesman Todd Halliday. "In light of the information which has become public, it would be irresponsible not to conduct an

The decision to investigate the report was made Nov. 8 and made public Wednesday, but Brady did not comment on what specific allegations would be examined.

Council members have also revealed plans to look into the situation. A public meeting is planned for today to discuss the situation.

Councilwoman Karen Venezky said that while the meeting may eventually go into private session, she will not vote to close it to the public.

Venezky said the County Council is already looking into the situation of the credit-card charges through an auditor and an independent firm in order to verify the information that has been revealed.

Right now what we have is a trial by The News Journal without due process," Venezky said.

She added that she felt a detailed investigation would allow the public to respond to the allegations based on

"I believe that's fair," she said. "I believe that's what the public deserves."

Although some council members have since been quoted as saying that Brady's move might be motivated by interest in running for governor, Venezky said she had no opinion as to Brady's reasoning at this time.

Gordon released a written statement the day after Brady's announcement, accusing The News Journal of presenting misleading and inaccurate information.

"The use of credit cards, in every

Two U.S. Army divisions were given the lowest rating of readiness for combat, indicating a lack of manpower, equipment or training.

orize and fund 17 new National his mother

father.

"According to DFS, although David was under the Butlers' care, DFS maintained legal custody over him and was responsible for his best birth parents when it discovered in 1994 that his mother was addicted to prescription drugs and his father was imprisoned for the domestic abuse of Butlers, and in 1995, DFS decided to return David to his mother. The ruling was stayed after the court discovered David's mother was still of 1995 that David's father had been released from prison, and DFS started a gradual reunification program between David and his not be trusted to act in David's best interests and that the reunification program with [his father] was desire to adopt David, while still keeping him in contact with his

The Butlers made known their improper," Veasey stated.

"The Butlers felt that DFS could

The court learned in the summer addicted to drugs, Lafferty said.

David was placed with the DFS took David away from his

"Anytime a division commander reports C-4, we

Lack of military funding and its resulting effects on army divisions could lead to increased support for additional appropriation bills, such as the National Defense Authorization Bill currently before the U.S. Senate Committee on Armed

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., stated in a Aug. 6 press release that the bill would provide financial relief by increasing funding for military readiness

Guard Rapid Assessment and Initial Detection

Ruling gives foster parents more rights are concerned," Shinseki said. "We'll see what apprehension by the Army, he said.

corrections need to be made."

by $1.5 billion.

effect going forward," she said.

guardianship rights.

Lafferty said former Family Court precedents existed ruling both in favor of and against foster parents'

a 1993 custody battle involving a child whose name was given as names are given as the "Butlers," asked the Family Court for guardianship of David because they did not believe his natural parents planned to return David back to his natural mother or father, and said

foster parents do not have the standing to petition for guardianship.

where DFS's interests were directly opposed by those of the foster

Lafferty said, "This is a case

The Supreme Court's ruling is limited to the issue of this case,

Lafferty said. Foster parents will not be able to separately petition for guardianship if their interests are opinion

adequately

said,

being

The Division of Family Services were capable of taking care of him.

"David" in Veasey's opinion.

The Oct. 28 ruling was sparked by David's foster parents, whose

It would auth

instance, was fully in accordance with all policies, procedures and laws," he

Gordon said he and Freebury have since destroyed their credit cards and closed their accounts.

He also announced new policies that would regulate both credit card use and reimbursement for meals and travel expenses.

Gordon said the new changes in policy would require executives to list all guests dining in restaurants at county expense and note the business purposes of meals.

The policies would also require travel procedures to be pre-approved by managers, reviewed by the county finance office and audited quarterly by outside agents who will report the findings to the County Council.

Gordon said in his statement, "The public perception of possible problems far outweighs any benefit [the cards might offer]."

THE REVIEW/ Internet Photo

Teams to respond to terrorist attacks in the United States. It would also make the military more attractive by offering better benefits for potential decline in readiness, troublesome recruiting and retention problems, aging equipment and newly emerging threats on the horizon," Warner said.

simply over-stretched.

"Our armed forces are faced with a measurable

"Our forces, while performing with great

The resources authorized in this bill will allow

In June 1997, "[Family Court] determined that David's physical, mental, or emotional health and well being would be threatened or impaired if he was returned to the custody of his father, who needed to learn appropriate parenting

Guardianship was granted to the Family Court found that David

Butlers, and David's mother and was "dependent," meaning his guardian threatened David's well-being through inadequate care,

Family Court's decision. " D F S argues that the trial court erred as a matter of law in granting the Butlers guardianship, Veasey stated, on the ground that foster parents do not have standing to seek or contest custody awards for foster children

DFS said David's best interests without the consent of DFS.

DFS and David's father appealed father were given visitation rights.

techniques," Veasey said.

Lafferty said.

distinction in the recent conflicts in Kosovo and in numerous other deployments around the world, are us to begin rebuilding and modernizing our military forces while improving the quality of life for our

In the News

SOUTH KOREA DEVELOPS NEW MISSILE

SEOUL, South Korea - South Korea announced Monday that it will deploy a new surface-to-air missile in December but denied charges it was developing longer-range missiles in violation of an agreement with the United States.

Seoul's defense ministry said the deployment of the first locally developed short-range missile, code-named Chonma, or Pegasus, will mark a milestone in South Korea's effort to improve its defense capability.

South Korea relies on the United States for almost all its weapons.

A statement from the ministry said the missile, designed and developed by the state-run Agency for Defense Development, has a six-mile range, high mobility and an advanced guidance system.

Earlier yesterday, South Korea denied a New York Times report that it is hiding parts of its missile program from the United States. "U.S. officials have visited every facility we have and they have been fully informed of what we did and are doing," a foreign ministry official said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Quoting Pentagon officials, the Times report said U.S. satellite photos revealed that South Korea had built a rocket motor test station without notifying the United States. Under a 1979 agreement with Washington, South Korea must get U.S. approval to develop and possess missiles with a range of more than 112 miles. That restriction was recently lifted, allowing South Korea to develop a missile with a range of up to 187 miles.

South Korea now wants U.S. permission to do research and development for missiles with a range of up to 312 miles.

U.S., CHINA AGREE TO REDUCE TRADE RESTRICTIONS

BEIJING - After 13 years of talks and six days of bargaining, Chinese and U.S. negotiators signed an agreement Monday that would remove trade barriers and clears the biggest hurdle to China's entry into the World Trade Organization.

The agreement obligates China to cut tariffs an average of 23 percent and promises greater access to the relatively closed Chinese market for U.S. banks, insurers, telecommunications firms and Hollywood film exporters.

None of the terms will take effect until China gains entry to the WTO, and most would be phased in over five years or longer.

To get into the WTO, China still needs to negotiate separate access agreements with other key trading partners, the European Union foremost among them.

Terms of the U.S. deal will not apply until China gets WTO membership.

However, a WTO official in Geneva said China is unlikely to join before the WTO's 135 current members meet in Seattle on Nov. 30 to try launching new trade liberalization measures.

DEATH PENALTY CASES UNDER FIRE

CHICAGO - Death penalty cases in Illinois have been riddled with faulty evidence, incompetent lawyers and unscrupulous trial tactics, according to a newspaper.

The Chicago Tribune examined all 285 death-penalty convictions since capital punishment was restored in the state 22 years ago. The investigation included analysis of court opinions and briefs, trial transcripts and lawyer disciplinary records, as well as interviews with witnesses, attorneys and defendants.

The review revealed a system so plagued by unprofessionalism, imprecision and bias that the state's ultimate form of punishment has been rendered its least credible, the paper concluded in Sunday's editions.

Twelve of the defendants were completely exonerated, and 74 others received something less than a death sentence.

In at least 46 cases, prosecutors relied on jailhouse informants. Critics contend that informants are an unreliable form of evidence because they often receive reduced sentences in exchange for testifying.

Most of the new trials and sentencings were ordered due to errors by trial judges, such as inadequately screening jurors for bias or allowing prosecutors to present doubtful evidence, the Death penalty problems have prompted the Illinois Supreme Court and Legislature to examine reforms, including the adoption of minimum standards for prosecutors and defense attorneys in capital cases.

EX-NURSE GETS 360-YEAR SENTENCE

BRAZIL, Ind. - A judge yesterday sentenced former nurse Orville Lynn Majors to the maximum of 360 years in prison for killing six elderly patients under his care with lethal injections.

The judge gave Majors six 60-year sentences, to be served consecutively, effectively giving him a life sentence. Majors would have to serve at least 180 years before being eligible for Prosecutors said the deaths were consistent with injections of potassium chloride, epinephrine or both. Police found containers of those drugs at Majors' house and in his van.

With six convictions, Majors is the most prolific killer in the Investigators suggest Majors actually gave lethal injections to dozens of patients at the hospital, pointing to two studies that were never presented at trial. A nursing supervisor's study showed Majors was present at 130 of 147 deaths from March 1993 to March 1995, when the hospital

However, prosecutors pressed charges only in the seven cases

- compiled from Associated Press wire reports by Jen Lemos were for it, not the Butlers, to decide. The Supreme Court found the they felt certain they could prove in court.

natural parents. CAMPUS CALENDAR represented, she said.

Veasey's

parents."

already

Today is the beginning of late registration and change of registration via UDPHONE and SIS+ for Winter Session 2000.

Also today, a workshop titled "A Valediction Permitting Mourning: American Women and the Material Culture of Loss," will be held as part of the Technology, Society and Culture series. The workshop, presented by Susan Stabile of Texas A&M University, will be in 203 Munroe Hall from 12:15 to 1:45 p.m. Call 831-2371 for more information.

Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" will be performed by ACTER tonight in the Bacchus Theatre of Perkins Student Center beginning at 8.

For information, call 831-2637. On Wednesday, Russell Murray, Jr. of the university will give a lecture titled "A Composer Is A Composer Is a Composer? Creating a History of Women in Music." The lecture will be held in the Ewing Room of the Perkins Student Center beginning at 12:20 p.m. For information, call 831-6597.

Also on Wednesday, "Too Heavy a Load: Black Women in Defense of Themselves" will be presented by Deborah Gray White of Rutgers University in 208 Gore Hall at 4 p.m. A book signing and reception will take place at 3 p.m. at the Center for Black Culture. Call 831-2681 for more information.

On Thursday, registration for Spring Semester 2000 begins, with schedule request forms due to the Student Services Building by Friday, Dec. 3

A lecture will be presented on Thursday titled "A Stitch in Time: Quilting on the Web" by Julie Brewer as part of the Electronic Library Series. The lecture will be held in the Class of 1941 room of the Morris Library from 12:10 to 12:50 p.m. Call 831-2231 for information.

- compiled by Deneatra Harmon

Family Court correct in its ruling that David was better off in the custody of the Butlers for the time

Police Reports

RAPE AT TRAVELODGE A 19-year-old Newark man was arrested and charged with third-degree rape Saturday,

The man had consensual sexual intercourse with a 15-year-old Newark girl at the Travelodge Motel on Main Street. police said, between the hours of 3 and 5

Under Delaware law, it is illegal for a person under the age of 16 to have sexual intercourse with a partner more than 4 years

Police said they learned of the rape after investigating the report of a missing juvenile. The report was filed by the mother of another girl who was present in the Travelodge room at the time of the rape,

ROBBERY AT PARK PLACE

Unknown people broke into an apartment in the 600 block of Lehigh Road while the residents were away for the weekend, Newark Police said.

police said.

The tenants of the ground floor residence, located in the Park Place Apartments Complex, were sure they had locked their doors before leaving, police said.

The break-in occurred sometime between 11:00 a.m. Saturday and 4:00 p.m. Sunday, police said.

A Pioneer stereo receiver, a jar of change, hunting knives and a Zippo lighter were taken, police said.

The total value of the property stolen was $380, police said, and there are no suspects

SATELLITE TV IS CHEAP — BUT NOT THAT CHEAP

A Wilmington man attempted to steal a satellite dish from RadioShack in the College Square Shopping Center Saturday, police said.

The 38-year-old left the store without paying for the dish and fled on foot, police

Police said they spotted the man in front of Newark High School and confronted him.

A store employee positively identified the man, police said. He was arrested and charged with shoplifting and turned over to the Wilmington Police Department for an outstanding warrant, police said.

ATTEMPTED SWORD SWIPING Two witnesses observed a man place a two-foot ninja sword in his trench coat Sunday, and leave Days of Knights on Main Street, police said. Police gave the following account:

A witness noticed a man hide the sword in his jacket and leave the store. The witness then asked a store employee if the sword had been paid for. Upon finding out the sword was stolen, another witness spotted the man wearing the trench coat outside the store and confronted The man returned the sword and fled.

Police said the sword was valued at $180.

- compiled by Steve Rubenstein

More apartments to open on Main Street for 2000

BY HIDE ANAZAWA

Two new apartment buildings on Main Street are scheduled to open Jan. 1, 2000, officials said.

Owen Thorne, general manager of Rainbow Records and Books, said his store is completing a third building between its two existing structures.

He said the business will use the first floor of its new building for retail space and the second floor for apartments.

The building will add three new apartments to the complex's existing five, he said.

Thorn said each apartment's bedroom has two closets, one bathroom and enough space for two Capano Management is also completing construction on its new Main Street building, which is almost directly across the street from Rainbow Books and Music.

The ground floor will be home to the Capano Management-owned Charcoal Pit Restaurant. Main Street Commons, an apartment complex, will be on the second floor.

Trippe Waynan, leasing manager of the apartment, said there are seven apartments on the second floor, each with two bedrooms and a kitchen and living room.

Each bedroom will have one bathroom and two closets, he said.

Waynan said the building will have two types of apartments, the difference being that one will have a slightly larger living room and deck.

Linda Carey, director of housing assignment services, said that although more off-campus apartments have been built in the area, more undergraduate students prefer living in university residence halls.

"Nowadays, there are quite a bit of off-campus housing options," she said. "But it does not affect oncampus building residence."

According to Housing Assignment Services' Tenth Day Occupancy Comparison reports, a greater number of undergraduate students have opted to live on campus in the last three

Currently, 7,229 students are living on campus, up from 6,892 in the Fall Semester of 1997

Carey said Housing Assignment Services continues to work to providing students with favorable residence hall conditons.

"We have worked with administration offices such as financial aid," she said, "to provide a variety of dormitory living spaces to

Rainbow Records and Books plans to open three new apartments in January.

Former smoker urges quitting to pack of students, employees

BY PAUL MATHEWS

He smoked three packs a day for years and now breaths through a hole in his

Due to his condition, it was difficult to hear his message, but even harder to

Ralph Rose, an EMT and ex-smoker, spoke in Kirkbride Hall Thursday afternoon as part of a workshop offered by the Employee Wellness Center to help people stop smoking.

Rose talked either with the aid of a microphone that gave an almost robotic quality to his voice, or without the microphone in a barely audible, slow whisper.

"It took me three years to learn to talk without it," he said.

Rose appealed to the audience's sense of logic when he questioned their attitudes toward cigarettes

"If this room was filling up with smoke because of a fire, what would you do?" he said. "You would run because the smoke would kill you. Why don't we look at cigarettes in the same way?"

Rose said he could not plead ignorance as an excuse for his years as a

"I was an EMT in Newark for 21 years," he said. "I knew what I was

"We never think about the future - I didn't. I thought I was invincible." Rose also said he empathized with the audience about the difficulties a smoker faces when quitting the addictive habit.

Rose said the only time he stopped smoking was in the army. However, he said, he hegan again when he was released.

The only long-term measure that Rose said helped him to quit for good was using a nicotine patch system. He said he was also aided in his efforts by the motivation the fear of death offers.

"It's up to you," he said. "I know I love the taste of a cigarette, but if I smoke I'll end up in the ground."

Carol Brower of the graduate studies department listened to Rose from the audience.

Brower, a former smoker, said she was supposed to speak in addition to Rose but didn't know if she would be able to get up in front of the audience to tell her story. However, she did share certain aspects of her life as a smoker from her seat.

"I decided I didn't want to speak, but I thought it was important to participate," she said. "I smoked on and off for 30 years, and I ended up with lung cancer.' She said the lung cancer was discovered when she went to the hospital to be treated for pneumonia.

"If I hadn't gotten pneumonia, I wouldn't have known I had cancer," she said. "I would have died."

Carrie Buckley, a graduate assistant at the Employee Wellness Center who organized the lecture, said she was disappointed with the turnout.

THE REVIEW/ Scott McAllister A former smoker urged people to quit smoking at a workshop Thursday.

Buckley said the program was aimed at university employees. However, because of its timing, a number of students who had class in the lecture hall listened to Rose's message.

"We only had about seven people sign up [to come listen]," she said, "but this is the first year we have had enough people to run the program." She said this type of event generally has a low attendance. "Quitting smoking is not the type of thing you just decide to do one day," she said. "You have to already have it in your mind that you want to quit."

Cancer Society plans national smokeout

BY JAMIE M. PANFILI

Thousands of Americans will soon join the fight to quit smoking as part of the 23rd annual Great American Smokeout, American Cancer Society representatives

The smokeout takes place every third Thursday of November. It encourages smokers to break the habit and nonsmokers to refrain from starting.

American Cancer Society representative Rhonda Hoag said the Commit to Quit Program is a new addition which will help participants stop smoking.

Chris Green, ACS assistant communications director of the mid-Atlantic region, added that many branches in the region offer "Commitment to Quit kits" containing information on beating the Green said the program is supported through public donations and varies from region to region. "It's a voluntary program, and individual communities can implement it in a variety of ways," he said.

some smokers who sign up for the program in order to discern success rates, Green said. "Last year nationally, there were about 8.9 million smokers who indicated they were participating in some way," he said. About 10 percent of those polled said they were still following the program after one week, which Green said was a good indicator of success because withdrawal symptoms usually appear within that time. Deciding, preparing and following through are the three parts that constitute this program, according to information provided by the American Cancer Society.

Officials recommend several tips to aid with the psychological aspects of quitting.

They suggest not to hide, but to make it known that you are going to quit, and to ask for the support of friends and family members.

It may also be helpful, officials said, to sign a contract and post it for all to see.

Along with keeping cigarettes and paraphernalia away, other possible steps may be to clean your car, house and clothes in order to remove the smell of smoke.

Smokers may also follow the "four D's" to combat cravings - take deep breaths, drink lots of water, do something else and delay reaching for a cigarette when a craving hits.

Hoag said the smokeout, which has inspired millions to lead smoke-free lives, was started by one man. In 1971, Arthur P. Mullaney asked people in Massachusetts to give up cigarettes for one day, she said.

Mullaney asked the people to donate the money which would have been spent on cigarettes to a local high school scholarship fund, Hoag said.

In 1977, the program was picked up by the American Cancer Society. The Great American Smokeout targets ACS officials try to keep in contact with supeople of all ages, and some university students said they have given thought to joining the program: " and a martin il A Junior Mariane Venezia said she hopes to quit smoking for health reasons. "I would consider quitting," she said, "because I feel out of shape and my grandfather has lung cancer."

Venezia said she has not seen many announcements advertising the event this year, despite the number she has seen many

Sophomore Lynn Pabian said she feels there are not many advertisements this year because they do not work well. "The signs are ineffective because they don't grab your attention," she said.

Margot Zarella

Sophomore gets sudsy for charity

The average family in Haiti makes $10 per month, sophomore Margot Zarella said. A bar of soap costs $2.

Soap - a commodity Zarella said Americans take for granted - is in great demand in the tiny country, less than 700 miles from the U.S. border.

To help ease the need, Zarella, an English education major, has organized three soap drives since she has been at the university.

"In my junior year of high school, a missionary from Haiti came to speak to us on a global awareness retreat," she said. "She told us about a project she had run with the Haitian Health Foundation in Connecticut."

The project, Zarella said, not only helps to keep families clean by giving them soap they would not ordinarily be able to afford, but it also gives mothers an incentive to take their children to clinics for important immunizations.

"In Haiti, they put bars of soap with a washcloth in a Ziploc bag and give the bags out as rewards when mothers return for their babies' final vaccinations."

Zarella said she decided to organize a soap drive at her high school after hearing the speaker. She was able to collect 638 bars of Last year, Zarella started the soap drive again at the university through the St. Thomas More Oratory and collected 2,986 bars of

"One day, I was in Rite-Aid, and I had 45 bars of soap in my hand," she said. "One woman came up and said, 'You're going to take one heck of a bath, aren't you?"

She said the response was so overwhelming last year that she had to eventually ask people to stop making donations, since she could only transport one carload to Connecticut. The soap is then shipped to Florida for free by Manchester Moving Company, and then it is sent to Haiti.

This year, Zarella has once again supervised a soap drive. During the past few weeks, she has collected 1,613 bars of soap - enough to fill nearly ten large cardboard

"I'm a little disappointed this year with the response," she said, noting that she may have started the drive too early in the semester. But she said donations will be accepted through Sunday at the St. Thomas More Oratory, and she is still hopeful that donations will continue throughout the week.

Zarella, who said she grew up in a closeknit, religious family, plans to continue the drive throughout college and into her adult

"When I do become a teacher, I know I want to continue with the soap drive," she said. "It will always be in my life, one way or

- By Shaun Gallagher

Program helps faculty deal with holiday grief

BY ERIC J.S. TOWNSEND

The recent loss of a family member can be especially painful as the holidays approach, but according to one expert, there are ways to appreciate the season despite the absence of a loved one.

Self-awareness and self-compassion combined with support from friends and relatives - allow people to grieve their losses and move on with their lives. More than 25 university faculty and staff members gathered Thursday for a program titled "Coping With Loss, Grief and Stress During the The program, hosted by the university's department of labor relations and human resources, included participants whose histories ranged from the death of siblings to divorces and separations. Linda Wills, a counselor from Delaware Hospice Inc., gave attendees advice on making the holidays less painful after losing someone What usually happens, Wills said, is that the holiday season acts as a "triggering event" for those who did not allow themselves to grieve during the year. Traditional activities become emotionally stressful as memories surface from previous celebrations. Also, she said, part of the reason for not dealing with grief is because of other people's expectations.

"What our society expects is [for us] to pull ourselves together and function," Wills said. 'That's because other people who aren't grieving are so uncomfortable to see you do it."

Wills added that society tends to view deceased relatives and friends as being "gone." Rather than do this, she said, individuals should realize that people who die never go away, for their influence has become a part of other's "Keep the people you loved as part of you," Wills said. "It's healthy to carry them with you, talk about them and acknowledge them."

The holidays can be approached through awareness, compassion, planning and support, she said. People should focus on their specific needs while allowing time for a break from

"If you don't want to put up a [Christmas] tree, then don't put up a tree," Wills said. Other options she suggested included the donation of money or the adoption of a family for celebrating the memories of those who were Wills said she hopes people don't ignore the fact that the holidays are approaching, and that individuals empower themselves to make the most of the season. "The scariest thing for people in your lives who love you is that you are disappearing," she said, referring to the withdrawal some survivors go through when trying to cope with death or And more importantly, Wills said, it is essential that grieving parents explain to children any change in their attitude. "You need to tell children, 'This isn't what I'll always be like, but this is what I'm like now," "she said. Despite an emphasis on the holiday season, Wills stressed the importance of grieving, no matter what the time of year. "You need to acknowledge that you need the time [to grieve], and that you should make the time," she said. "If you keep yourself busy all the time, you're not valuing yourself. "Grieving is very, very painful, but it's really important to move through the process."

THE REVIEW/ Scott McAllister

Newark Mayor Harold F. Godwin is trying to keep large trucks off Route 896.

Truck ban pushed by Godwin

BY PAUL MATHEWS
Staff Reporter

Newark Mayor Harold F. Godwin is planning another trip to nearby Pennsylvania townships to get support for his proposal to lift the truck route designation of routes 896 and 273 in Newark and surrounding

"I am hoping to visit Franklin and New Britain townships very soon to discuss the proposal," he said, though no specific date has been set for his visits.

Godwin said his proposal focuses on eliminating heavy truck traffic in the downtown area.

"There is a lot of pedestrian traffic on Main Street, and most of it is students changing classes," he said. "It must scare them to death to have to contend with these trucks while crossing the street."

He said he wants to have the trucks rerouted around Newark, especially those that are not delivering goods to the town.

"The roads in Newark are too small and have too many sharp turns for these big trucks," he said. "Many of them use these roads to avoid paying tolls."

Earlier this year, Godwin visited New London and London Britain townships. He considered the trip to be fruitful, he said.

When he visited the townships, Godwin said, he brought a letter with him addressing the truck problem.

He said he was hoping to have the letter signed by the Pennsylvania townships he visited and sent to the Delaware and Pennsylvania Departments of Transportation.

"I choochoo-choose The Review." "When I visited these towns, they agreed that the trucks were a problem, but they did not sign the letter because of the way it was worded," he said. "I encouraged them to write their own letters."

He said the people he talked to in Pennsylvania thought many of the trucks driving through their town were bound for the DaimlerChrysler plant in Newark.

"There are a lot of trucks that are headed to Chrysler," he said. "I think we need to talk with Chrysler and see if there is another route for their trucks to travel on."

He said most of the parts DaimlerChrysler has shipped to its plant come from Harrisburg, Pa. where there is a train depot.

"Maybe Chrysler could bring in more of its parts by train," he said.

This would not increase train traffic at the end of Main Street, he said because DamilerChrysler uses the Amtrak lines.

"There is a representative from Chrysler on the Newark Traffic Relief Committee," he said. "Hopefully, they will be able to help out with a solution to the problem."

Godwin said he has enlisted the help of the committee in executing the proposed redesignation of these roads.

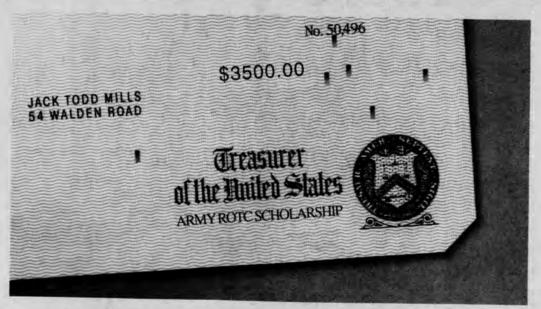

However, he said, he is not necessarily looking to pass any legislation at this point.

"I am hoping for a cooperative effort," he said. "I am hoping we can gain improvements working state to state and town to town."

engineering & science . sales & marketing human resources · information technology services. Come play Armstrong Trivia on November 17 from 7-9pm at Clayton Hall, Room 123. Here's your chance to learn more about the exciting choices an Armstrong career offers to See us at your college graduates. Info Session November 17 We're a global, multi-billion dollar leader in the Bring this ad with building products industry with 80 locations in 16 you to enter our floor coverings and acoustical ceilings, and our excellent reputation for quality and design flexibility is recognized by builders, homeowners, and architects everywhere. When you make thoughtful choices, real work is developmental. Armstrong provides you the opportunity o grow, build, and design the career of your choice. Hint for the Trivia game: Until we see you, find out more about us on our website or through your career services center.

By choice, Armstrong is an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to workforce diversity.

Minorities and women are encouraged to apply

CASH IN ON GOOD GRADES.

If you're a freshman or sophomore with good grades, apply now for a three-year or two-year scholarship from Army ROTC. Army ROTC scholarships pay tuition, most books and fees, plus $150 per school month. They also pay off with leadership experience and officer credentials impressive to future employers.

ARMY ROTC

THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE

For details, call UD Army ROTC at 831-8213

RWJ gives free soda to drivers

BY MICHAEL LOUIE

Posters advertising free sodas for designated drivers will soon be distributed among Newark bars as part of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's ongoing effort to fight binge drinking.

John Bishop, assistant vice president for student life and university director of the RWJ program, said many Newark bars and restaurants agreed to the idea, which allows a designated driver to receive free sodas for the evening.

Leon Barrett, general manager of Klondike Kate's, said the program comes as a rejuvenation of a similar — but not very successful — program that RWJ initiated three years ago.

Bishop said the plastic mug program, which was initially presented by a university student, was part of RWJ's first year as a university program.

"Unfortunately, we heard from establishments that taking care of the mugs was a pain," Bishop said.

"We also heard there were problems with the mugs themselves. Students would rather drink soda out of a regular glass than draw attention to themselves."

glass than draw attention to themselves."

Bishop said he felt that not all establishments were participating and that the program was going into a period of decline.

"The posters are part of reestablishing the designated driver program's presence" he said "The new program is driver program's presence," he said. "[The new program] is less of a hassle for the establishment with the posters."

So far, eight restaurants and bars have agreed to post the advertisements, including the Stone Balloon, Klondike Kate's, the East End Café, the Ground Floor and the Deer Park.

The 11 by 17 inch posters, which are in the process of

The 11-by-17-inch posters, which are in the process of being distributed, should be situated in the bars this weekend, Bishop said.

Although many of the bars on Main Street already supply free sodas to designated drivers as part of their own policies,

Bishop said, the cooperative arrangement is a good indication that people agree giving away free sodas is a reasonable thing to do.

"It's hard to gauge the effectiveness of the program before it begins, but the cooperative effort promotes the idea that this is an important issue," he said. "This is an agreement on how to drink responsibly."

Barrett said Klondike Kate's tries to be as responsible as possible, even before its new affiliation with RWJ.

"Giving away free sodas to designated drivers has always been our policy," he said. "But we're all for anything we can do to promote responsibility."

Like all RWJ programs, the posters are aimed at university students. Barrett said while RWJ's newest campaign has good intentions, he isn't sure the new posters will be very effective for students who drive to area establishments.

"As far as students go, we find that about 95 percent of the people in here drinking have walked here," he said. "But the program may attract the attention of people other than While university graduate Liz Koelzer cannot recall the former designated driver program, many students believe having the posters can be beneficial.

"I don't think the posters are a bad idea," Koelzer said.
"It's smart to create awareness that designated drivers don't have to spend money in a bar, even if it is through advertising"

 Students like junior Joseph Stillwater, however, question why the university would put money and effort into an already established practice.

"I don't really understand what the university is trying to accomplish," he said. "Most bars give away free sodas whether you tell them you're a designated driver or not.

"I think the university would be better off putting money into things that don't already exist."

Undergraduate Seniors

Interested in a Career in IT/Operations Consulting

$30 / HOUR

Participants wanted for Research Focus Groups to discuss "Career Search Perceptions"

Group A

Liberal Arts Seniors Interested in IT or Operations Consulting Thursday, November 18th, 1999/ 5-6 PM

Group B

Engineering Seniors Interested in IT or Operations Consulting

Thursday, November 18th, 1999/6:30-7:30PM (sign up for one group only)
Location: Clayton Hall, Rm. C122

Sign up: <www.haniganconsulting.com/focus/index.htm>

Protect your brain — you need it!

Vaccinations against meningococcal meningitis are available to UD students— by appointment—at the Student Health Service.

What is meningococcal meningitis?

A bacterial infection that causes inflammation of the membranes surrounding the brain and spinal cord. The disease strikes about 2,600 Americans each year, leading to death in approximately 13 percent of the cases or more than 300 deaths annually. In 1996, there was one case of meningococcal pneumonia in a UD student, who was treated in a timely manner and recovered. This past September 1999, a University employee died with meningococcemia, a serious blood stream infection. In both of these cases the bacteria and its transmission is the same as that which causes meningococcal meningitis. You can find out more about meningitis at http://www.udel.edu/shs/shs_main.html.

Why do I need a vaccination?

The incidence of meningitis outbreaks has risen on college campuses in the past five years, and some investigations suggest that the risk during these outbreaks of contracting the disease is increased by lifestyle behaviors that are common for many college students, such as active and passive smoking, bar patronage and excessive alcohol consumption. The disease is transmitted through the air via sneezing or coughing and direct contact with persons infected with the disease. Because college students often live in close quarters, such as residence halls or fraternity houses, they have an increased risk of meningococcal disease. Outbreaks tend to peak in late winter and early spring but can occur any time school is in session.

How do I get a vaccination?

Vaccinations are available, by appointment, from 8 a.m.-Noon and 1-4 p.m., Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. The cost of the vaccine administration is $63. Which can be paid by Cash, Check, UD Flex or Credit Cards at the Student Health Service dispensary in Laurel Hall.

What do I do?

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call the Student Health Service at 831-2226.

ROTC rushes to help campus konor veterans

BY VICKI CAREY

Nearly 20 Air Force and Army ROTC cadets and almost 30 veterans attended the 1999 Veterans Day Ceremony Thursday in front of Memorial Hall.

The ceremony included a combination of Air Force and Army ROTC cadets posting the colors, followed by an invocation, the playing of "Taps," speeches, and a Pershing

Lt. Col. Charles Bowman of the Air Force ROTC was the first to thank all the men and women who served in the military and those who are on active

"It's the soldier, not the reporter, who gave us our freedom of the press," he said, quoting a poem by USMC Gunnery Sgt. Denis O'Brien. "It's the soldier, not the poet, who gave us our freedom of speech. It's the soldier, not the campus organizer, who gave us our freedom to demonstrate."

Lt. Col. Paul Pusecker of the Army ROTC spoke about the meaning of Today, we as a nation gather to pay tribute to those millions of men and women who served our country so bravely in uniform," he said.

Pusecker also explained what the word veteran means to him.

"They are ordinary, yet extraordinary human beings," he said. "People who have offered some of their lives' most vital years in service to our country, and who sacrificed their own ambitions so their fellow countrymen would no have to sacrifice their own.

"They are nothing more than the finest, geatest testimony on behalf of the fines, greatest nation ever known."

Arm/ veteran Lt. Col. Frank Hayes, a memoer of the Military Order of World Wars, said the ceremony was important to him because it recognized those vho served their community.

"It's a nice way of honoring veterins," he said. "[MOWW] gives awards and honors to soldiers and to cades here at the University of Delware. So this ceremony is a way of hororing all soldiers."

At 3 p.m., the annual 24-hour flag ru and candlelight vigil began.

Cadets ran with the American and OW-MIA flags, keeping them in onstant motion by passing them off every 15 minutes. During the same 24 hours, a candle was lit and guarded at the promenade in front of the Morris

Air Force ROTC Cadet Maj. Julie Fry, a senior, said the flag run and candlelight vigil are two events the laturally, the country's premiere leadership school

THE REVIEW/ Scott McAllister Two ROTC cadets participate in a 24-hour run Thursday with the American and POW flags to honor Veterans Day.

corps do in honor of veterans.

"We do the flag run to show our support to the veterans, POWs and MIAs," she said. "The candlelight vigil is in remembrance of all the veterans."

General Military Corps 100 and freshman Rose Pasqua started off the 24-hour run carrying the American flag.

"Carrying the flag was an honor," she said, "because we are representing the people who fought in war for our the POW-MIA flag.

The flame symbolizes the fact that the veterans' memories, contributions, and souls will live on forever," she said. "They are everlasting - like the candle vigil is somewhat different.

"The candle watch is something we do to keep a vigil over the thought of those who have fought for our

Cadet Sgt. First Class and junior Nicholas Vezina was the first to carry "Carrying the flag first was an honorary position," he said. "Carrying the flag around campus gave me the chance to show everyone that it's Veterans' Day. It is one day out of the year that we get to honor people who have given their lives for our country," he said.

freedoms."

Color guard member Suzanne Venteau said the candle vigil represents the sacrifices soldiers have made.

Vezina said his interpretation of the # Main Street war memorial rededicated

BY JACK FERRAO

War veterans and citizens gathered Saturday for the rededication of a war memorial on the corner of Main and Academy

People came on the 50th anniversary of the original dedication to pay homage to the Newark soldiers who died for their country in war.

On Nov. 13, 1949, plaques were erected and dedicated to the 31 Newark soldiers who lost their lives in World War II.

In 1988, to commemorate the soldiers who lost their lives in the Korean and Vietnam Wars, two more plaques were added.

A framed display featuring individual portraits for 29 of the 31 Newark soldiers who died in World War II - which was provided by the Newark Historical Society - was also presented at the ceremony.

After the Newark High School marching band performed the national anthem, Delaware Deputy Attorney General and State Prosecutor Ferris Wharton spoke of his uncle, who died fighting in World War II.

"I can only tell you a small part of one story of one person whose name is on there," he said.

Wharton said that 50 years ago, the memorial was dedicated to honor the lives lost during World War II.

"They all shared one thing in common," he said. "When their country called on them, they answered and gave their lives

when their country asked them to. "It's a fitting and important thing to do today - to rededicate this memorial." Retired U.S. Navy Commander Robert Scheaffer said his brother's name is on the plaque, along with many of his friends' names. Scheaffer said he feels fortunate to be alive and is happy people have not forgotten the memories of the wars and soldiers who fought

"I'm amazed people want to know stories that happened over 50 years ago," he said. Newark Mayor Harold F. Godwin also spoke during the ceremony, expressing his appreciation for those who died in

"They paid the supreme price," he said. "Let's not forget, ever, that they didn't have the opportunity to live out their full lives like we have.

"They gave that to us so we could continue to enjoy this nice town. Don't ever forget that."

After a trumpeter from the band played "Taps" and the firing squad fired three blank shots for the soldiers, Robert Thomas, president of the Newark Historical Society, ended the ceremony.

"Fifty years ago today, at this very moment, Nov. 13, 1949, the Newark war memorial was formally dedicated," he said.

"It was formed as a communitywide effort, to serve perpetually, in honor of those who served and died, not only from Newark, but in all the American wars in completing the freedoms under which we live today."

Thomas also said he hopes it would never be necessary again to add any more plaques to the

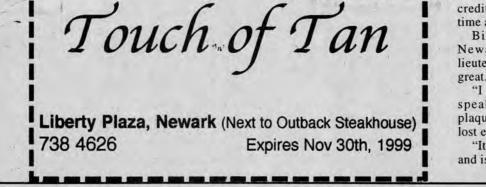

As Parish Pastor Richard Reissman of the Holy Angels Parish said a prayer for the soldiers, the audience bowed their heads in silence.

Godwin said Thomas deseves a lot of credit for making the rededication so successful. "Bob Thomas deserves a lot of credit," he said. "He put a lot oftime and effort into this." Bill Redd, former mayor of Newark and a Naval Reserve lieutenant, said the ceremony was "I thought it was nice that the speakers had relatives on the plaques," he said. "Lord knows I lost enough friends. "It's a great time to celebrate it and is very appropriate," he said.

6 Weeks of Tanning!!!

$49 w/ this Ad

Unlimited

Summer Plans

- * Experience Southwest cuisine, Native American dances and feasts,
  - * Hike the National Parks of New Mexico & Arizona,
    - * View Kivas & ancient dwellings of Pueblo Indians,
      - * Explore the West while earning 5-credits in:

NTDT-467 Southwest Culture and Cuisine Come to one of the Interest Meetings:

at Alison Hall Room 236 . Wednesday Nov. 17, from 5 - 6 p.m. Thursday Nov. 18, from 12:30 - 1 p.m.

LaRouche enters Del. primary Investments a key concern

BY JEN LEMOS

The first candidate of Delaware's 2000 presidential primary, a figure whose controversial political views have been the subject of public scrutiny, announced Friday his intention to run as a Democratic Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr., 77, has already registered his campaign in five states and plans to be on primary ballots across the country.

He has been a presidential primary candidate seven times since 1976 on both the Democratic and U.S. Labor Party tickets.

Campaign Press Coordinator Angela Vullo said LaRouche is often ignored by the Democratic Party and the media, which focus more on candidates like Vice President Al Gore and former New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley.

"The thing that's significant here is that LaRouche is the third Democratic candidate," Vullo said, "and the Democratic National Committee is trying to kick him out of the Democratic Party."

Vullo said poor media attention has forced LaRouche to use the Internet as a means of promoting his campaign.

"This way, he's not only reaching a lot of people, but his ideas are put forward in a truthful way," she said.

In his report titled "The Road to Recovery," LaRouche said a good candidate has superior competence in

HIGH ENERGY the GYM

737-3002 162 S. CHAPEL ST. • NEWARK, DELAWARE

15 tons of Free Weights Nautilus • Body Masters • Hammer • Icarian

Life Steps • Stair Masters • Treadmills • Lifecycles

Versa Climber • Air Dyne bikes • Step Mill • Cross trainer

Spin Bikes • EFX Trainers

One Month Unlimited Tanning

One Month of Unlimited Gym Use

FREE FIRST TIME WORKOUT

TRY THE GYM OUT AND SEE IF YOU LIKE IT.

Mon.-Fri. 7 a.m.-10 p.m. Sat. & Sun. 10:30 a.m.-4:00 p.m. FREE PARKING political matters and is governed by truth, justice and reason.

"On those and other counts, I would be the best choice of president by a wide margin," he said.

Controversial views on the economy and politics have kept LaRouche in the public eye for years, but he has never obtained a presidential nomination from any LaRouche emphasizes the growing dangers of both economic collapse and global warfare in the world.

"His primary concern is of international financial meltdown," Vullo said, "which only he as a presidential candidate is addressing."

However, LaRouche's extreme ideas have been the cause of some legal and financial troubles.

He was convicted of mail and tax fraud in 1988 and served five years in federal prison, though he contends the conviction was a government plot to discredit his campaign.

In the past, he has also contended that the British monarchy was responsible for the bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City.

Despite his unorthodox views, LaRouche has revealed in many campaign writings that his belief of electing a good candidate would greatly benefit the country.

"The result must be that the Democratic Party which is brought to the Summer 2000 convention must be

continued from A1

conference said they learned valuable information.

Senior Brenda Mayrack said she thought the investment portion of the seminars were

": came because I wanted to know how to invest," she said. "I think college students would invest if they knew how."

A Widener University student said she also wanted tips on how to manage her finances better.

Junior Shiree Sibley said the seminar taught her how to manage her checkbook and credit cards more efficiently. "I want to make my money work for me, so I can retire early," she said.

University of Delaware junior Katy Lewis, who worked on the campaign this summer, said college students should begin to be money conscious

"We need to start thinking about how to handle money in our twenties, instead of when we get older," she said. "[Older people will tell you that] money problems stem from not saving soon enough."

Evans said if she had to knowledge about finances whe she was in college she would be retired now.

Retirement is an easily attainable goal," she said. "If [students] take advantage of the information given today, they can retire around age 35 or 45. instead of 65."

ATTENTION STUDENTS

FLU VACCINE IT'S NOT TOO LATE

THE STUDENT HEALTH SERVICE HAS FLU VACCINE A'AILABLE FOR STUDENTS IN ANTICIPATION OF THE UPCOMING FLU SEASON. THE VACCINE WILL BE ADMINISTED AT THE SHS BY APPOINTAENT.

STUDENTS WITH CHIONIC LUNG DISEASE (I.E., ASTHMA, CYSTIC FIBROSIS), HEART DISE SE, KIDNEY DISEASE, METABOLICDISEASE. (I.E., DIABETES, ETC.) A: WELL AS STUDENTS ON LONG TEM ASPIRIN THERAPY ARE ALSO AT IICREASED RISK FOR INFLUENZA-R'LATED COMPLICATIONS.

CALL 831-22.6

a resurrection of the Democratic Party of President Franklin Roosevelt," he representatives of the party's core, not

Roosevelt as a superior model of a U.S. leader with the outlook and commitments of a Franklin Delano committed to policies and outlooks like those of President Roosevelt are of little use to the United States, or the the LaRouche campaign, the candidate's home state is New Hampshire, but his headquarters are in election will be held in February 2000.

Delaware's presidential primary

According to press officials from

"[It must be] a rallying of the LaRouche continuously cited

'The world's needs cry out for a "U.S. candidates who are not said in his report.

Gore, constituencies.'

presidential contender.

Roosevelt," he said.

world as a whole today."

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 17 DJ DANCE PARTY

9 PM TIL CLOSING

MICRO BREW NIGHT

All micro brew pints $1.75

ALL U CAN EAT WINGS $7.95

8 Polly Drummond SC Newark, DE 19711 (302) 738-7814

108 Peoples Plaza Newark, DE 19702 (302) 834-6661

Help is on the way.

[ 1-3 days guaranteed* ]

You have four finals in a week. And there are two papers to write ... on books you haven't read. And let's not forget the job you go to when you're not in classes.

It's enough to drive you crazy.

That's where VarsityBooks.com can help.

With a huge selection of Schaumm's

Outline Series study guides and Cliff's Notes, we can get you through your finals with flying colors.

Ordering on line with VarsityBooks.com can save you up to 40%. It's secure and reliable. And within 1-3 days you will have the help you need to pass that test. Or write that paper.

Academic team shows their smarts

BY STEPHANIE DENIS

The three members of Low Grade Narcolepsy concentrated on the question at hand - what was the name of the clerk's wife in Chaucer's "The Canterbury Tales?"

The answer eluded them, and they slapped their foreheads in realization when the moderator told them the answer was "Griselda."

The event is the Academic Competition Club's Intramural Collegiate Bowl, a question-andanswer competition similar in format to the game show Jeopardy. Four teams arrived at Smith Hall Saturday to try for a chance to represent the university at the regional ACC tournament.

Dave Balseiro, president of the ACC, said this tournament will be

Fight the 3 Vs

Violence, Vandalism

& Vomit!

RWJ NEEDS YOU!!!

The Building Responsibility Campus/

Community Coalition, supported by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, is looking for students, faculty and professional/salaried staff who are concerned about high-risk drinking and the resulting violence, vandalism and vomit!

If you are interested in late-night alcohol-free working with high school

please contact Kelly Strain, at 831-6108 or <kstrai@udel.edu>,

for more information.

activities or policy initiatives,

students,

held on Feb. 19 at an unannounced

Some team members were members of ACC, while others like Casey Ewart, the Slower Lower Warriors' team captain had never competed before. Ewart said she heard about the competition from her resident assistant.

Teams arrived at 9 a.m. and paid a $25 registration fee. Two teams, The Freaks and The Lactose Intolerant Cows, were one-man teams after other members dropped Balseiro said the registration fee was used to buy prizes. The four individuals with the highest number of correct answers as well as the top two teams were given mugs, keychains and wallets.

The teams faced off at 9:30 in a competition. one-on-one Contestants placed their thumbs on their buzzers and the moderator began to fire off questions.

Alumnus Roger Craig, one of the moderators, explained that the teams are first asked a toss-up question which anyone can answer.

If someone interrupts the question and gives the wrong answer, the team loses five points. The team gains 10 points for every correct answer and then gets to answer a 20 or 30 point team bonus question.

Each team played the other three in matches consisting of two eightminute halves. Teams were ranked after the first rounds before double elimination rounds began.

This means each team had to lose twice to be disqualified, Craig said. A team can lose once in the playoffs and still win.

The semifinals pitted The Freaks against the Slower Lower Warriors. The Warriors looked at each other in disbelief as the lone member of The Freaks, sophomore Peter LaVenia, continually rang in first and answered the tossup correctly. LaVenia then proceeded to get the bonus questions right as well.

Finally, Warrior Brian Keufik rang in with the answer to the question, "It began at the World Training Center in Sherman Oaks, CA, became available on video through ubiquitous infomercials, and then achieved a global audience through its website.

What's this mix of martial arts and aerobics created by Billy Blanks?

"Tae-Bo," Keufik answered confidently.

However, The Warriors were eventually overcome, leaving The Freaks and Low Grade Narcolepsy to battle it out in the finals. After two tense rounds, The Freaks won the championship.

Craig said the questions covered

THE REVIEW/ Scott McAllister Academic Competition Club members tested their mental skills Saturday during a contest.

general knowledge, including history, science, literature, sports, geography and world events. Bill Tessler, another moderator, said many colleges write their own tournament questions.

"This way, the teams create their own playing fields," he said.

Tessler said the College Bowl Inc. provided the questions used on Saturday. He said it costs $630 for all the questions used in the competition.

Tessler said a new company, called the National Academic Quiz

Tournament, is now in competition with CBI to provide colleges with quiz questions.

Craig said, "CBI's are more expensive than NAQT's, but the quality is a lot lower.'

Craig also said there are 15 teams in the region, and that one wild card team is picked at random to compete. Whoever wins regionals will go on to the national competition during the weekend of April 29, at Bentley College in Massachusetts.

NOVEMBER 16, 1999 4:00 P.M. 218 SMITH HALL

NOVEMBER 17, 1999 4:00 P.M. 218 SMITH HALL OR FOR MORE INFORMATION, CONTACT:

> ROBERT ROTHMAN: RAR@UDEL.EDU JOSEPH PIKA: JPIKA@UDEL.EDU

GALLOP! BIKE! SPRINT!

OK —Walk, if you have to — just get to the:

BLOOD DRIVE

Today and Wednesday 12-5 p.m.

Trabant Center, Multipurpose Rooms

Walk in today or sign up for Wednesday with Nicole Sechrist at 454-0270 or ndolphin@udel.edu

Sponsored by: Gamma Sigma Sigma and Mu Iota Sigma

SIENNA AT THE

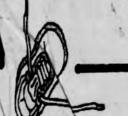

STONE BALLOON

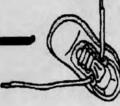

Sat., November 20th

$1.75 Bud/Bud Light bottles till 11 o'clock

All Night Balloon pitchers $4.00

Teen Beat says, "They're the tallest cover band in Delaware."

Drug arrests at Newark plant

continued from A1

$5,000.

The investigation began when officials from the plant contacted Newark Police, Conway said.

"They came to us," he said. "They told us their security officers had reason to believe there was a problem.'

Archie Williams, a human resources director at the plant, said several workers approached security officers to address concerns about fellow employees who were using and selling drugs. "This started when our people noticed a problem," he said. Williams said the company's policy on drug policy is to test individuals at the time of hiring. "After that, we don't have a policy of performing random drug tests," he said.

Williams also said he was unaware if the company had any plans to change the policy following the arrests.

Conway said many of the details of the investigation are classified, but that an undercover operative worked in the plant to gather the information necessary to make the arrests.

"We had someone working on the assembly line," he said. He would not comment on whether the undercover operative was still working in the plant.

The investigation is still continuing, to the extent that police plan to prosecute those who were arrested, Conway said.

Gary L. Henson, executive vice president of DaimlerChrysler, said most plant employees were not in any way involved with

'We do not believe the behavior of the people arrested is indicative of our workforce," he said. "It is not fair to allow a small number of individuals to tarnish our collective reputation."

Henson said the employees were fired after their arrests for conduct "not in accordance to DaimlerChrysler ethics and policies."

Williams said the eight people who were fired were not part of a collective drug ring.

"They worked in different parts of the plant," he said. "They were not colluding together."

Williams said he did not know whether the labor union at the plant would challenge the firings.

The DaimlerChrysler plant employees more than 3,100 people. The plant is used to assemble the Dodge Durango sport-utility vehicle.

SET YOUR OWN HOURS!

AnyList is a free web service that lets you quickly create and customize Interactive Web Lists that allow you to collect and share information with your friends, family, and co-workers.

Sign up today as an AnyList Associate and you'll get paid cash if you help us grow our member base. You can work from home and earn up to $10,000 by referring others to the service. We'll even pay you for users that they recruit. In no time you could be making money from hundreds of AnyList users!

Check out the full details at: www.anylist.com/join

AnyList

www.AnyList.com/join

DJ DANCE PARTY

Sponsored by: www.UConnections.com in your Stone Balloon Mug till 11pm, $1 after & $3 pitchers till 11pm

WWW.STONEBALLOON.CON

11/18 MUG NIGHT

DRAFTS

w/THE ZONE

& NO COVER w/STUDENT ID

LIMITED EDITION Stone Balloon '2000' Mugs ON SALE NOW

15 East Main Street • Newark, DE • (302) 368-2000

APPLICATION ENGINEERS

SMX, a global leader in industrial measurement products, seeks entry-level Engineers to join its Technical Services Group. Positions require U.S. and worldwide travel to Aerospace, Automotive and related industries. Excellent salary, benefits nd bonus.

Forward resume and salary requirements to: Greg Robinson SMX Corporation 222 Gale Lane Kennett Square, PA 19348 Fax (610) 444-2321 Email: robinsgl@smxcorp.com EOE, Direct Applicants Only

Only 8 colleges in the country offer you a doctorate in P.T.

So you'll only have to endure another 7 ads like this.

Actually, you might not have to bother.

Because Beaver College offers some advantages you won't find elsewhere. Like one of the most highly-trained and highlyexperienced Physical Therapy faculties in the nation.

A state-of-the-art Health Sciences Center. A hands-on approach to learning. And a range of internships - in 430 settings throughout the world. All geared to set you up in an exciting and lucrative career in Physical Therapy.

A career, which, by the way, will be one of the highest in demand in the coming years. (And naturally those with the highest degrees will get the best jobs.) So why not stand out from the crowd? Apply on-line today at www.beaver.edu

*Source: The New York Times and National Bureau of Labor & Statistics

Everyone promises the world. We teach it."

www.beaver.edu

1-888-BEAVER-3 admiss@beaver.edu

Suburban Philadelphia, PA

FAJITA 'RITA MONDAYS

"We do Mondays like no place else." Enjoy a double order of fajitas (enough for two) for only $10.99. A single order of fajitas for $6.99 and a 10oz. mug of Top-Shelf Margarita for just $2.* Offer valid every Monday. 11 AM-Close.

BURGER 'N BREW WEDNESDAYS

"Spend Wednesdays with the ones you love." Enjoy $1.00 OFF Big Mouth Burgers! And a 10-oz. mug of any Domestic Draft beer is just $1.00!*

Newark

425 Stanton-Christiana Road (Next to Christiana Mall) 302.738.6355

* Must be at least 21 years of age to consume alcohol.

Review Online www.review.udel.edu

ATTORNEYS

CRIMINAL DEFENSE Traffic, Alcohol, DUI, Noise

Mark D. Sisk Newark City Prosecutor 1980-1994

Criminal defense-Alderman's court, Other Courts Expungement of Records

Auto Accidents

Brain p. Glancy, Univ. of Del. Class of '83 Personal Injury-Auto Accidents

368-1200

Hughes, Sisk & Glancy P.A.

522 Greenville Ave., Wilmington, DE 19805 Listing of areas of practice does not represent certifications a specialist in those areas.

Trio of sisters interpret classics

The Ahns bring their evocative music to the university

BY LURLEEN BLACK

The Ahn Sisters, a trio of international recording artists, blended their instruments together to entertain their audience when they visited the university last week.

The three sisters, Angella and twins Maria and Lucia Ahn, played for a music class in the Amy E. duPont Music Building Friday and performed in Mitchell Hall on Saturday.

The Ahn Trio was brought to the university as part of the Performing Arts Series, said Christy Pennington, coordinator of the series.

As they played classical tunes from famous musical composers Bernstein Leonard Shostakovich, the trio used body language to convey the tone of

With every stroke of her bow, Maria would sway as the note was delivered from her cello.

With her hair at the nape of her neck, Lucia shook her head as she forcefully pounded the keys on the piano. Her body twisted and jerked to accompany the tone of the music.

If the music was soft she gently moved with it. But the music evoked aggression and her body tensed to echo the piece.

Angella, the youngest of the trio, interpreted the music on her violin. When she played Shostakovich's piece she used short, angry strokes. She said the tune was designed to make the audience feel uncomfortable and uneasy. Now 28 and 30, the Ahn sisters have been playing as a group for over 20 years. They said they travel worldwide. performing more than 100 concerts each year.

To honor their dedication to music, they received Germany's Echo Award. This recognition is equivalent to the United States' Grammy Awards, Pennington

THE REVIEW/ Scott McAllister

The Ahn Trio, international recording artists, performed at the Amy E. duPont Music Building Friday.

The sisters also said they have a passion for the classical music

"We only play what we absolutely love," Angella said. However, the trio, said they sometimes disagree on how the music should be delivered. "We don't always agree on the interpretation of our music," Maria said. "It would be boring if we didn't disagree sometimes.'

Pennington said she wanted the group to come because she thought it would be exciting for the student body to see a new dimension of classical music.

'You don't need a musical background to understand their music," she said. "They are young and innovative, and I think that they are inspirations to our students.

HELPWA IMMEDIATE OPPORTUNITIES TO HELP KIDS

For some of the most important jobs in America, all you need is the determination to make the world a better place for kids. And some time and talent. With this winning combination, you can fill an important job in a working mom's life by driving a sick child to the doctor. Or use your parenting skills to check on latchkey kids for a worried parent. Or put your letter-writing talents to work by sharing your perspective with a public official. You can help a child learn to read or mentor a math whiz. Organize a teen center or support a foster father with a gift of sports equipment.

We all know families everywhere are doing the best they can but need our help. Because it's tougher than ever to raise a child right. We're the Coalition for America's Children—more than 350 organizations united to help families be stronger than the problems they face. We know hundreds of ways you can take their side in your community. Call us at 1-888-544-KIDS about volunteering for these jobs and more. Or find us online at www.kidscampaigns.org.

Whatever you have to give-time, talent, leadership, emotional or financial support—there's a family that could use your help. We're fighting for the children-whose side are you on?

WEB SURFERS midnight - browsing Become the infor mation hub for you block, car pool, or lunch group. Log on to KidsCampaigns (www.kidscampaigns org) each week Download and share the news that you community needs to work smarter for VOLUNTEER ONLINE through Youth Service America (www.servenet.org).

Ad

EMPLOYERS create tamily Take the test (www. kidscampaigns.org/ Start/101work place53.html) online and see how your business mea-

1-888-544-KIDS

BIG BENEFITS Read to a sick child help a children's hospital set up and main and videos recrui arts and crafts helpers OUTSPOKEN

PARENTS NEEDED

Seeking concerned, willing to talk to other parents and public officials about problems in their commu nities affecting kids and ways to solve these problems. Will train, Contact your local PTA at www.pta.org or call

1-800-328-1897.

tain a library of books to entertain chronical ly ill and recoverno children. For more information, call your local children's hospi

KID IQ with KIDSCOUNT data. Find out how children are faring in your city and state KIDSCOUNT group

RAISE YOUR

(www.aect.org) CHIEF COOKS & BOTTLE WASHERS eded to prepare hundreds of local children's service the millions of children and advocacy and their families who groups. Find out who re hundry Contact needs your talents your local foodbank by calling toll-free or soup kitchen. KIDS or reach us NEED A online at www.kids campaigns.org/ JOB OVER

SEMESTER OR SUMMER BREAK? GUIDES TO Put public service or THE FUTURE our resume while WANTED helping a children's service or advocacy organization. Find a teach arts and craft group near you or drama to children. by calling toll-free Contact your loca -888-544-KIDS or Boys and Girls Club. browse online at Kids Campaigns (www MOMS kidscampaigns. WITH MOXY pro/connect.html) or at Youth Service America (www. get access to the servenet.org). need to advocate for their children's COMMITTED health, education safety and financia INDIVIDUALS security. Build bridge between you Center of the United own child's future Way/Crusade of and other families. Mercy at 1-800-Join Moms Online 916-3111. Callers are voice-mail routed com). Also find to the volunteer centhem on America ter nearest to the Online (keyword geographic area in which they want to POLITICIANS who care for kids

day and offer

Coalition for America's Children

LEADERS Get ideas of how www.kidscampaigns.org

your local child advousakids.org/html/ cacy organization platbrochure.html# and offer to hold a candidates. town forum, to write an article on meeting children's needs or

STOP WASTING get ideas online of TIME MAILING 10 things you can TOO MANY do to show you're accountable to kids RESUMES at www.usakids. Make new contacts get practical, on-the-

org/html/plat brochure.html# inb experience with candidates. COURT ADVOCATES to work on behalf of abused and neglected children, visiting them, writing reports to court, advocating > training for those with aspirations. Learn more about becoming a Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) volunteer at www. nationalcasa.org/ voluntee.htm or call -800-628-3233 to find the CASA program nearest to you.

services, etc. Great

FATHER ROLE MODELS SOUGHT .earn everything you need to know on the nternet to help voung men be better athers (www.kids campaigns.org/ /fathers.html).

> STUDENTS: MINOR IN COMMUNITY SERVICE Check out the work-study, volunteer and public service center at your college or high school and ask about opportunities

GLANCE

SUNDAY

MONDAY - FRIDAY

SATURDAY

Even Steven's

Boptime

6am-10am

The Morning Fog

6am-8am Sunday Morning Sleepy Heads

8am-9 am The Morning After 9am-noon

> Blue Hen Sports Cage 12 n-1pm

Feedback 1pm-2pm Radio Alchemy

2-2:30pm Breaking the Silence' 2:30pm-3pm

A Room of One's Own 3pm-4pm

All the World's a Stage

4pm-5pm Raga 5pm-6pm

Crazy College 6pm-7pm Scratchy Grooves

7pm-8pm In a Mist 8pm-11pm

Crash & Burn 11pm-1am Overnight 1am-6am

Java Time

WVUD'S Morning Overture (Variety) (6am-9am)

Roots

Folk Music (9am-noon)

Fire on the Mountain 10am-12n

Fine Tuning Rural Free

Classical Music (noon-3pm)

Delivery 12n-2pm

A Gift of Song

Gospel Jubilee

2pm-4pm

Radio Uno

4pm-6pm

Hip City Part 2

Urban: rap, hip-hop, club, rab

(3pm-5pm)

Cutting

Alternative Rock (5pm-8pm)

Avenue

Overnight

Variety (1am-6am)

Jazz (10pm-1am)

6pm-9pm

Ruffage 9pm-12am

Overnight 12am-6am

Monday

Map of the World

Tuesday

All Tomorrow's

Parties

Wednesday

Thursday

Reggae Sound

Splash

Friday Red Hot & Blues

WVUD - University of Delaware - Perkins Student Center - Newark, DE 19716 Phone: 302.831.2701 - Fax: 302.831.1399

The Greenwillow

Email: WVUD@mvs.udel.edu - Web: www.udel.edu.wvud

Schizophrenic Uses eCircle to Keep in Touch With Selves pg.5

eCircles Cimes

Family Posts Reunion Photos, Stigmata Spotted pg. 7

*****

Who's Doing What—and Why—at www.eCircles.com: Your Own Meeting Place in Cyberspace

Price: Halfway Between $-1 and $1

CIA Hurts Saddam's Feelings

This map illustrates how government agents used eCircles.com to put Operation Reject into motion, unleashing a devasting wave of melancholy upon the Iraqi leader.

Spook eCirclers invite in, then kick out Iraqi leader.

Unable to dispose of Saddam Hussein by military or political means, the CIA has allegedly opted to attack the dictator's selfworth. According to sources requesting anonymity, government spooks recently started an eCircle at www.eCircles.com, invited Hussein in, then booted out the leader just hours later.

"We got him good!" said one of the sources that requested anonymity. "We made him feel really bad by getting his hopes up that he could be part of our crazy fun. As if."

Sources inside Iraq confirm that Hussein's spirits are at an all-time low, describing him as "blue," "down-in-the-mouth," "having a heavy heart," and feeling like "the sun has gone down on him." A palace servant claims to have heard the leader muttering "Daniel is leaving tonight on a train."

No one knows exactly who within the agency hatched the ingenious "Operation Reject", as it is now being called, but it is clear that the mastermind was familiar with www.eCircles.com's unique invitation-only architecture, which allows a member of an eCircle to invite in whoever he or she wants, and gives them the option of booting them out did all kinds of nutty stuff in it," said a second source requesting anonymity. "We used the music sharing feature to share MP3s of great banjo pieces. We posted photos of chimpanzees dressed up in human outfits. We chatted about great couscous recipes. We even let him know about the free digital camera giveaway." With the bait in place, the operatives then invited Hussein into the CIA eCircle. Tempted to join the wacky hijinx, Saddam allegedly summoned his advisors and asked their opinion of his plans to accept the eCircle invitation. When all recommended against it, he had them killed. Within minutes, he had joined the eCircle from his computer in a chinchilla-walled underground bunker. Shortly thereafter, the CIA sprung its trap.

"We created our eCircle and

"We let him have his fun for awhile, then we tossed his ass out!" said vet another source requesting anonymity. "Ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha! Ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha ha!"

In Washington, the hope is that the CIA ploy will cause Hussein to realize that no one likes him, and that he will in turn step down from his post and seek therapy.

"We'll have that country embracing democracy in no time," said a source who asked to be named, but won't be. "And by golly, it'll be the best thing that ever happened to those people. Just like Russia."

eBillionaire Makes Fortune Off Toenail Clippings

In an eCircle called "How Did this All Happen?", newly-made Internet billionaires meet each week on www.eCircles.com to share their amazing stories of fortune come fast and furious. This week, it was Clarence McClement's turn to share his incredible tale, while the other members watched their screens empathetically. Clarence narrated the story to his scribe from his Mediterranean island-country, Clarencia, located about 120 miles off the southern coast of Malta:

"Started collecting my toenail clippings when I was about five or so. I've gathered them ever since, till one day my daughter comes into my trailer, all ornery 'cause she's expecting for the millionth time, and catches me clipping over my clipping bag, and starts screaming, Clarence, you sick (I won't tell what word she used), no wonder no woman'll have you, with your disgusting ways, you get rid of those or I will. Now I don't want to waste 65 years of healthy nail-growth, so I talked to my grandson who knows this whole Internet deal, and I said Wade, help me. Well, he drew up a little screen poster, with a line about how there was no end to the nails' uses.

"Before I knew it, my phone started ringing. But not from people wanting to buy my product, but from these New York types calling me at every hour, shouting things at me like how many hits am I getting, and when the IPO was gonna be. I said I don't like getting hit and I didn't want none of their IPO-whatever that may be. Angry, I yanked the phone out of the wall.

"The next evening, a moving truck parks in my field, and this bald fellow wearing a suit and sun glasses gets out, opens the back of the truck, and the thing is packed with hundreds. The man says it's mine if I sell my Internet company he calls it, and he says just sign here, so I sign here, and he pulls out this credit card, and talks to it. A helicopter shows up soon after, and off he goes, nearly blowing my home away at the same time.

"So, that's the meat of it, at least."

Next week, Luella Winkerson tells his strange, but true tale of a fortune made on the web from his used twine company and his "Piece of Twine and You'll Be Fine" jingle.

Student Maxes Out 23 Credit Cards-New Record

On an eCircle she shares with her sprawling family back in Ohio, Michelle Sayson, a first-year student at Tecumseh State in South Carolina, broke the news of her most recent financial debacle.

"Then I found out the tulips were supposed to be 5.5 inches in the ground instead of six," Michelle's father was writing.

"Gotta be six for those," Michelle's uncle replied.

"Mom, Dad I maxed out 23 credit cards," Michelle broke in.

"That's not funny, dear" Michelle's mother replied. "Especially considering your past behavior."

"Maybe not," Michelle responded. "But, it's true."

"Folks, I think I have some errands to run," her uncle said before signing off.

"How ON EARTH did you manage that?" Mr. Sayson yelled through his computer.

"I don't know. The card companies kept sending them, and they kept working," Michelle said. "I figured after a while they would just recharge themselves or something if I didn't use them for a while. Then this guy from a collection place called saying I owe $38,233."

"Oh my gosh," Mrs. Sayson typed. "Oh my gosh ohmygoshohmygoshohmygoshoukjvnbfeuthbjuijdelprdghghb-"

"Honey, WILL YOU CALM DOWN? Our little spendthrift just has some returning to do."

"Do restaurants give refunds?" Michelle asked.

"HOW COULD YOU SPEND THAT MUCH EATING?" Mr. Sayson screamed after switching over to voicechat to get his point across, "YOU MUST WEIGH TEN TONS!"

"Everyone complains about the food here," Michelle replied. "So I took the dorm to Le Lapin Rouge for dinner. Every night, actually. I was just trying to make a good impression. I wanted people to like me. Since you don't.'

"My baby darling's going to be breaking rocks in some jail in Texas. My little angel who used to tug at my dress and say-'

"KATHY, WILL YOU LEAVE US THE HELL ALONE?" Mr. Sayson yelled. "Michelle, we're not giving you a cent. You want to study your stupid literature? Write a book about this to pay off your debt, like How I Maxed Out 23 Credit Cards or Diary of a Moron.'

"Maybe I'll write about how my father-my tyrannical, esteemdestroying, wearer-of-his-wife'slingerie-when-he-thinks-he's-alone father-drove me to it," Michelle said. "That'd be a bestseller."

"My poor, penniless, doomed pumpkin-" wept Mrs. Sayson. "KATHY, DON'T MAKE ME UNPLUG YOU," Mr Sayson bellowed. "AS FOR YOU, MICHELLE, CONSIDER YOUR-SELF DISOWNED."

"I'm going to start my book right now," Michelle said, before signing off.

Mr. Sayson left their eCircle a few moments later, while Mrs. Sayson continued to weep.

Mathematical Equation for Sex Found

"We're Living Like Porn Stars!" Pocket-Protected eCirclers Exclaim

Late last Friday night, while working out a cryptarithm for an upcoming differential calculus exam, Pamela Shmiegelson of Excelsior Tech stumbled upon the equation for sexual intercourse. The next morning Pamela related her discovery to her fellow Applied Mathematics majors on the study eCircle they all share.

"I ran a number-11-just for the heck of it," Pamela typed to her friends at 7:00 a.m., "and 20 minutes later Peter Jacobs, the lacrosse captain whose take-home exams to Intro Algebra I completed-and who disregarded my invitations to join me for a milkshake in return-suddenly appeared in the door to the computer lab. He was sleepy, reeked of cheap beer, and had a pepperoni stuck in his hair, but he was all mine. Needless to say, I didn't study any more that night."

"Shut up!" exclaimed Patricia Tinkler.

"What's the equation?" asked Ahmed Kazool.

"I'll share it with you guys for $200," Pamela typed in return. The five members pitched in and paid her the money, and after running the equation, they experienced similar luck.

"I have them taking numbers outside my door," Ahmed typed at the next meeting. "I think I've made up for 21 years of celibacy in "It's distracting," wrote Suzanne McNidgen. "Whenever I have a free moment I do the equation. And that works out to an average of 16.32 times a day. I think I'm going to single-handedly empty all the 'Personal Centers' on campus." The entire eCircle quickly formed a cartel, and made a pact not to reveal the equation. When it comes time to sell, they agreed to give 50% of the profits to Pamela, since she discovered it. 'Oh, we'll make some money eventually by inviting others into our eCircle," Pamela speculated. "But, let's enjoy our little monopoly while it lasts.'

Corset Makes Return on College Campus

During a long discussion held in their eCircle, a group of sophomore women at Dullord College recently decided to reintroduce the Victorian custom of wearing corsets.

"I'm just so sick of doing that silly treadmill to stay thin," wrote Margaret Thompkins.

"It makes me feel like a gerbil," replied Anne Perez.

"I'm taking a course in Victorian culture," wrote Phyllis Lecter, "and can't help thinking maybe they weren't so wrong, spending their time socializing, drinking tea, and eating cakes, instead of getting all sweaty and worn-out. They just wore corsets.'

"They seem so constricting though," wrote Linda.

"Well, if I'm going to be constricted, I'd rather it be in a single article of clothing, instead of in the cafeteria three times a day and in that B.O.-filled weight-room with guys looking you over."

"I'm sure there are online places where we can find some corsets," said Maria

So, the group went ahead and ordered some corsets from StiffUpperLip.com., which they were able to link to from their eCircle. When they met on their eCircle a few weeks later, they found they weren't unhappy with their recent change of lifestyle.

"My French coutil feels kind of kinky and comforting," Margaret typed.

"I find myself being more elegant and graceful," noted Phyllis. "Also, I've been getting secretly irked when guys don't kiss my hand upon meeting me."

There was a pause, and then the group shared a collective loll.

ADVERTISEMENT!!!

eCircles.com

YOUROWN MEETING PLACE IN CYBERSPACE!

Start Your Own eCircle Today!

 Visit eCircles Nov.1 through Dec.26 and you can win one of hundreds of digital cameras!!! eCircles—The fun goes round and round!!

· You invite in whomever you want!

You can share photos and music! Plan events!

· Have online discussions!

· It's totally free!

Totally private!

· Create your own eCircle at www.eCircles.com!

· Hey! Don't type in the exclamation point!

As a Beaver College Physician Assistant grad, a certain part of you will gain weight.

Your wallet.

Get a load of this.

In 1998, our Physician Assistant graduates received an average starting salary of $63,300. That's a whopping $5,318 above the national average of $57,982. And proves how valuable a graduate degree from Beaver College is.

As is our Doctor of Physical Therapy program - one of only eight such top-level courses in the entire United States.

Not to mention our Master of Science in Genetic Counseling program, which will prepare you for one of the most exciting and fastest growing fields in medicine today.

And all these programs are taught by one of the most experienced faculties in the country. So take a weight off your mind. Apply on-line today at www.beaver.edu

*Source: 1999 American Academy of Physician Assistants Census Report

Everyone promises the world. We teach it."

1-888-BEAVER-3 admiss@beaver.edu Suburban Philadelphia, PA

SLAC speaker works to clean up sweatshops

BY WENDY MCKEEVER

A former sweatshop laborer came to the university Thursday to talk about her experiences and efforts to create a safer environment for garment workers.

Chie Abad said she worked in a sweatshop for the Gap in Saipan, an island near Guam. She said she worked there for six years, earning $3.05 an hour, which does not cover the cost of living.

Abad said when she heard about the opportunity to work in Saipan, she looked at the globe to see where it was, and the map read

"U.S. territory." Once on the island, Abad said, the conditions were not what she expected. She said she thought she had the right to change her situation because she was working and living in a place that was part of America.

"I believed I was going to America, a place where I could exercise my rights," she said.

Abad, formerly from the Philippines, said the ventilation in the factory was extremely poor, creating a very hot work area. Plus, the living quarters were unsanitary.

workers could not drink it," she said. "We had to drink rain water."

Abad said she stayed there so long to collect the evidence she felt she needed to bring the corporation

"I noticed the first day of work that there were problems with the sweatshop," she said.

After a few years of working, Abad said, she tried to form a union with the garment workers.

"I felt I had the power to fight the sweatshop," she said.

However, she said, her efforts to start a union were unsuccessful.

Abad said the next step was to show the United States the poor working conditions in the Gap sweatshop.

"I secretly filmed the factory with a miniature video recorder." Abad said.

The film was shown in the United States in March 1998 in an effort to introduce Americans to the hazardous environment in which employees had to work, she

"I wanted to shed some light on Americans about the labor abuses in the sweatshop," she said.

Abad said in 1998 she was fired for trying to make retailers clean up their sweatshops.

"The corporation said I was a troublemaker," she said.

Abad said she is currently involved in lawsuits against such retailers as JC Penney, The Limited, Levi-Strauss and Nordstrom.

"I want Americans to pressure retailers to create safer sweatshops, increase wages and respect workers' rights," Abad said.

Junior Emily Pope, president of the Student Labor Action Committee, said she wanted Abad to tell students the truth about sweatshops.

"I think people will get more involved now that they have seen and listened to someone who has lived through the experience," she Senior Ian Hercus said he thought the information was shocking. "I didn't realize what the workers had to put up with," he said. "It's a form of slavery."

Sophomore Pam Borkowski said she agrees with Abad and thinks people should pressure retailers to change how they operate their garment factories.

Junior Amanda Sheldon said, "I'm not leaving with the impression that people who buy Gap are evil. I just think they need to be educated on the issue of sweatshops to make better decisions.

SLAC and Amnesty International sponsored the presentation, Pope said.

My Computer Floppy (A:) Hard Drive (C:) CD-Rom(D:) Zip Drive (E) X:Drive (X

Recycle Bin

☐Resume ☐Photos

☐Music: MP3s ☐History Study Group

A Taste of London: The London Stage and Study Abroad

All interested students are invited to meet with actors from the London stage.

Thursday November 18, 1999 3:30 p.m.

Bacchus Theatre, Perkins Student Center

(YOU CAN DO BOTH.)

re you a political animal? A Doesn't matter. You gotta get this. X:Drive, the world's first free Internet hard drive on the desktop. You'll get the kind of power you can always use.

Anywhere, anytime access from any Web ready computer.

Let's say you've got a private enterprise (like a term paper, essay, or resume) and you don't want anybody ripping off your intellectual property. Relax. X:Drive files are password-protected. Even if you're mooching off your roommate's computer. Or, let's say you're doing a group project and feel like sharing. Think how much easier it'll be if everyone on the team has access to the same files, notes, and timetables. No matter where they are on campus (or the planet).

More good news. X:Drive gives you 25 megs of space free (that's about the same as the 17 virus-infected floppies you won't have to schlep around anymore). Which brings up another nifty feature. X:Drive has this cool Skip the Download™ technology. It lets you grab MP3s, video, and groovy pics from the Web in seconds while you keep surfing.

So join the Party at www.xdrive.com. X:Drive. It's the best freebie on the Web.

www.xdrive.com

Editorial

Not a place for drugs

Review This:

The fact that drugs

were so prevalent

that Chrysler had to ask police to investigate shows a failure in our culture.

A day that passed too easily

Review This:

The people

Veteran's Day

deserve respect

and remembrance.

It wouldn't hurt

any of us to take time to think about what the day represents.

Veteran's Day.

the day represents.

dom, thank a veteran.

honored on

When driving a nice new car, the reassurance that it is a safe vehicle is important.

Trust in the workmanship of the car should be imperative, and the knowledge that the people responsible for making the cars were off drugs should be a given.

Or is it? In a recent undercover operation

(at the request of Chrysler), Newark police charged nine Chrysler plant workers with drug trafficking, and other drugrelated offenses inside of the corporation. Between these nine people, there were 30 counts of drug violations.

So, there just went the faith in your Chrysler.

Apparently, the plant did not have a policy of mandatory and random drug testing.

Employees have been only required to take a drug test when they are hired.

What Chrysler should have been doing all along is enforcing testing. Since Chrysler was aware of a drug trafficking problem within the plant, this is all the more reason that it should have been curbed

On Thursday, ROTC members

jogged through campus holding flags and honoring the men and women who fought and died for

It was Veteran's Day - but not

this country.

everyone gave

even a few minutes to commemorate people to whom the day

Even the university seemed to ignore the day by not leaving its-flags at half-mast.

It seemed that

just another day

had passed with little mention of it in class, if any

is not grade school. We are not expected to make Veteran's Day cards for veterans, nor should we get a slide show depicting the events of war.

appreciated and acknowledged.

means. But we should.

But it is a day that needed to go

We, for the most part, cannot

fully comprehend what the day

It wouldn't hurt for more teach-

Of course, this belonged.

If people are tested, they will be less likely to use drugs. If workers stop using, there is no reason for the drugs to be sold there.

If employees don't agree with drug testing, then they don't have to work at the company.

Drugs in the workplace compromise not only the character of the company, but also the integrity and the maturity of its

The fact that drugs were so prevalent that the company had to ask police to investigate shows a failure in our culture.

The plant is a place that people earn their living - it should not be the home of drug distribution.

If drug use affects people's jobs, everyone suffers, especially consumerS. Most Americans wouldn't be be pleased to know that the person who checked their brakes was on crack at testing time.

It is sad that this had to happen. A respected and well-known company has been reduced to sting operations within their own walls.

Hopefully, this will make the certain employees grow up a little and take their jobs more seriously.

ers to mention the reasons behind

was passing us

by would have done everyone

diverse university, yes, and not

gung-ho Ameri-

This is a is some good.

everyone

The people honored deserve

respect and remembrance. It wouldn't hurt any of us to take some time out to think about what

Remember, if you love free-

the day's importance.

Letters to the Editor

It wouldn't hurt for a little "Star Spangled Banner" to accompany the university's bells. University police Little subtle reminders that an important day do not need guns

to perform their jobs I felt a strong sense of concern after reading two articles in The Review (Nov. 9 issue) on the topic of arming university police officers. This was not just because of the seriousness of the issue, but because these articles lacked a significant counter argument.

ca, but there is one thing we The editorial stated that Presihave in common. dent David P. Roselle was not We are all in thinking very far down the road. I America disagree. President Roselle is Whether people looking very far down the road were born here and he can see the dead end that or just visiting, arming the university police will we are here, and lead to. It is because of insight everyone should like this that he continues to have know that it's

> The articles also stated that the university police go through as much training as regular officers. While this may be true, mistakes

> How many times have we heard of police killing someone — in Delaware alone — because they "thought" the person was armed?

Imagine how hard it would be for Dean of Students Timothy F. Brooks to call a parent and say that his beloved son or daughter is dead because of a mistake or a trigger-happy officer. It will only be a matter of time before a tragic event like this will occur.

They do not need guns. And what about us minorities? One stereotype is that we all look alike. The university police has already proven this fact to me. At the end of my freshman year, university police officers followed me to my room while investigating a stolen campus key because they thought I looked

"suspicious." On another occasion, I was stopped by an officer on my way into a Black Student Union sponsored event and asked if I was allowed in because I looked like someone who was banned from the event. I didn't even receive so much as an apology for these two extremely humiliating ordeals.

The editorial also stated that the officers will get a sense of authority from carrying guns. The officers need to go a different route in order to achieve this respect.

Respect won through fear will only lead to anger and hostility by those forced to give their respect.

Slavery sound familiar?

Being a police officer is dangerous job - I'm sure no one disputes that. However, all the officers knew when they accepted the job that they would have no guns. Furthermore, if the situation ever arose that I needed university police officers to come with guns, it would most likely be too late for them to be of any help to me. The Norman Johnston example given in the article is a very extreme case. Guns probably wouldn't have made the Eagle Diner situation any different. Johnston could have taken the gun from the officer and shot him. Look at what an expert criminal he was. Johnston escaped from a maximum security prison and got away from park rangers who did have guns.

The only tool I would not have a problem with the university police using is a stun gun.

I believe the university police would need to come up with some more convincing arguments before even thinking about starting a new petition.

Lionell Flamer Freshman lflamer@udel.edu

University police need to be armed for their safety and the safety of the public

This is in response to "Controversy brews over arming UDPD" on Nov. 9

University President David P. Roselle states that the university police are not armed because they 'have not routinely been involved in incidents in which possession of weapons was necessary." I've not seen a fire in new Gore Hall in the three years since it's been open, yet we have fire sprinklers and alarms to deal with these nonroutine possibilities.

Over the past year, we had an escaped murderer on campus! If that's not a situation in which possession of weapons was necessary, I don't know what is. A university police officer still attempted to capture this escaped convict. Would most people attempt to apprehend, unarmed, a man convicted of multiple murders without a gun? Should anyone be expected to do so?

These are the university police. These are the people who are, most likely, going to be there first if someone breaks into your dorm room. They will be there first when someone attacks you on your way home from a late-night class. If someone broke into your Towers apartment and you didn't know if he was still there when you returned, wouldn't you want the people who responded to protect your safety to be armed? Put yourself in their place. If you had to respond to situations where your very life would be on the line, wouldn't you want to have a gun? I, for one, want the people that are responsible for my safety to be armed.

If I have the need to call the University Police for a dangerous situation. I want them to have guns. I want that for my protection. I want that for their protec-

It's police work. It's dangerous. It's a lot less dangerous in Newark than downtown New York, but it's still dangerous. I don't see how we can continue to expect these fine men and women to serve and protect us without a

It's not right. It's not fair or safe for them. It's not fair or safe

Jeff Six Senior six@ee.udel.edu

Misconceptions by The Review and TKE do not correctly show their positions

In response to the Tau Kappa Epsilon editorial in last Friday's edition of The Review, I feel it necessary to respond to help clear up a few things.

To the brothers of TKE who feel like they were set up as the "poster boys for the downfall of the Greek system," I agree with you. Neither TKE nor any other fraternity is solely responsible for university or national trends, which are driving the Greek system in a different direction from where it has been in the past. A paternal "shame on you" does not come from the IFC, but solely from one writer from The Review.

To the editorial board and writers of The Review, I apologize for getting blasted by TKE with accusations that you and your paper are merely "the tool of the university's power structure." Trust me, that is not the opinion of myself or the consensus of the Greek community or the student body in

I, in fact, applaud the positive approach The Review has taken towards alcohol issues. Greek life and student organizations such as DUSC. As a student newspaper, run by students and self-supported, anyone who knows what they are talking about and has read The Review in the past year knows that The Review has been anything but anti-Greek.

What The Review did fail to mention was that the violation that TKE was suspended for was a situation that happened in the Fall Semester of 1998 and not this

I know personally that TKE has been working extremely hard this past year to improve its chapter, and the misinformation that was presented did not aid the situation. What The Review also failed to realize was that the violation was the first of this year and was not alcohol-related.

TKE did hurt itself substantially, but the injury to the IFC and the Greek system is in fact minimal. The Greek system is going in a positive direction in the eyes of many, and TKE should not feel responsible for the changes that are happening here and on every campus nationwide.

Here are the facts ... TKE is not the downfall of the Greek system and The Review is not the puppet of the university administration. If you can at least take away from my words that much, this letter was not written in vain.

Dan Mott IFC President 05210@udel.edu

CORRECTION

The first sentence in the Nov. 12 story "Apology offered from Godwin" was inaccurate. It should have read, "A quote taken out of context led to an apology and a clarification by Newark Mayor Harold F. Godwin at Monday's City Council meeting, Godwin said." The Review regrets

Advertising Policy for Classified and Display Ads:

The Review reserves the right to refuse any ads that are of an improper or inappropriate time, place and manner. The ideas and opinions of advertisements appearing in this publication are not necessarily those of the Review staff or the university. Questions, comments or input may be directed to the advertising department at The Review.

WHERE TO WRITE:

The Review 250 Perkins Student Center Newark, DE 19716 Fax: 302-831-1396 E-mail: kespo@udel.edu

The Opinion/Editorial pages are an open forum for public debate and discussion. The Review welcomes responses from its readers. For verification purposes, please include a daytime telephone number with all letters. The editorial staff reserves the right to edit all submissions. Letters and columns represent the ideas and beliefs of the authors and should not be taken as representative of The Review.

Managing News Editors
Maria Dal Pan
Susan Stock Eric J.S. Townsend Managing Mosaic Editors: Mike Bederka Dawn E. Mensch

Managing Sports Editors:
Michelle Handleman Matthew Steinmetz

Editorial Editor:

Carlos Walkup Jessica Zacholl Features Editors:

Administrative News Editors:

City News Editors: Steve Rubenstein Drew Volturo

National/State News Editors: Robert Coyner Jen Lemos

Student Affairs Editors: Shaun Gallahger Domenico Montanaro

Art/Graphics Editors: Selena Kang Deji Olagunju

Editor in Chief: Liz Johnson

Executive Editor: Brian Callaway

Kyle Belz Melissa Scott Sinclair

Editorial

Not a place for drugs

Review This:

The fact that drugs

were so prevalent

that Chrysler had to ask police to investigate shows a failure in our culture.

A day that passed too easily

Review This:

The people

honored on

Veteran's Day

deserve respect

and remembrance.

It wouldn't hurt

any of us to take time to think about what the

day represents.

Veteran's Day

the day represents.

dom, thank a veteran.

When driving a nice new car. the reassurance that it is a safe vehicle is important.

Trust in the workmanship of the car should be imperative, and the knowledge that the people responsible for making the cars were off drugs should be a given.

Or is it? In a recent undercover operation

(at the request of Chrysler), Newark police charged nine Chrysler plant workers with drug trafficking, and other drugrelated offenses inside of the corporation. Between these nine people. there were 30 counts of drug violations.

So, there just went the faith in your Chrysler.

Apparently, the plant did not have a policy of mandatory and random drug testing.

Employees have been only required to take a drug test when plant, this is all the more reason that it should have been curbed

On Thursday, ROTC members

jogged through campus holding

flags and honoring the men and women who fought and died for

It was Veteran's Day - but not

this country

belonged.

everyone gave

even a few minutes to commemorate people to whom the day

Even the university seemed to gnore the day by not leaving its-flags at half-mast.

just another day

had passed with little mention of it in class, if any

Of course, this is not grade school. We are not expected to make Veteran's Day cards for veterans, nor should we get a slide

But it is a day that needed to go

We, for the most part, cannot

fully comprehend what the day

It wouldn't hurt for more teaching department at The Review.

Editor in Chief: Liz Johnson

Executive Editor: Brian Callaway

show depicting the events of war.

appreciated and acknowledged.

means. But we should.

at all.

It seemed that they are hired. What Chrysler should have been doing all along is enforcing testing. Since Chrysler was aware of a drug trafficking problem within the

If people are tested, they will be less likely to use drugs. If workers stop using, there is no reason for the drugs to be sold there.

If employees don't agree with drug testing, then they don't have to work at the company

Drugs in the workplace compromise not only the character of the company, but also the integrity and the maturity of its

> The fact that drugs were so prevalent that the company had to ask police to investigate shows a failure in our culture.

The plant is a place that people earn their living - it should not be the home of drug distribution.

If drug use affects people's jobs, everyone suffers, especially consumerS. Most Americans wouldn't be be pleased to know that the person who checked their brakes was on crack at testing time.

It is sad that this had to happen. A respected and well-known company has been reduced to sting operations within their own walls.

Hopefully, this will make the certain employees grow up a little and take their jobs more seriously.

ers to mention the reasons behind

It wouldn't hurt for a little "Star

by would have done everyone

diverse university, yes, and not

gung-ho America, but there is one thing we have in common.

America.

Whether people were born here or just visiting.

we are here, and everyone should know that it's

The people honored deserve

respect and remembrance. It

wouldn't hurt any of us to take some time out to think about what

Remember, if you love free-

We are all in

This is a

some good.

everyone

the day's importance.

the university's bells.

Letters to the Editor

Spangled Banner" to accompany University police Little subtle reminders that an important day do not need guns was passing us

to perform their jobs I felt a strong sense of concern after reading two articles in The Review (Nov. 9 issue) on the topic of arming university police officers. This was not just because of the seriousness of the issue, but because these articles lacked a significant counter argument.

The editorial stated that President David P. Roselle was not thinking very far down the road. I disagree. President Roselle is looking very far down the road and he can see the dead end that arming the university police will lead to. It is because of insight like this that he continues to have my support.

The articles also stated that the university police go through as much training as regular officers. While this may be true, mistakes happen.

How many times have we heard of police killing someone - in Delaware alone - because they "thought" the person was armed?

Imagine how hard it would be for Dean of Students Timothy F. Brooks to call a parent and say that his beloved son or daughter is dead because of a mistake or a trigger-happy officer. It will only be a matter of time before a tragic event like this will occur.

They do not need guns. And what about us minorities? One stereotype is that we all look alike. The university police has already proven this fact to me.

At the end of my freshman year, university police officers followed me to my room while investigating a stolen campus key because they thought I looked "suspicious."

On another occasion, I was stopped by an officer on my way into a Black Student Union sponsored event and asked if I was allowed in because I looked like someone who was banned from the event

I didn't even receive so much as an apology for these two extremely humiliating ordeals.

The editorial also stated that the officers will get a sense of authority from carrying guns. The officers need to go a different route in order to achieve this Respect won through fear will only lead to anger and hostility by those forced to give their respect.

Slavery sound familiar?

Being a police officer is dangerous job - I'm sure no one disputes that. However, all the officers knew when they accepted the job that they would have no guns. Furthermore, if the situation ever arose that I needed university police officers to come with guns, it would most likely be too late for them to be of any help to me.

The Norman Johnston example given in the article is a very extreme case. Guns probably wouldn't have made the Eagle Diner situation any different. Johnston could have taken the gun from the officer and shot him. Look at what an expert criminal he was. Johnston escaped from a maximum security prison and got away from park rangers who did have guns.

The only tool I would not have a problem with the university police using is a stun gun.

I believe the university police would need to come up with some more convincing arguments before even thinking about starting a new petition.

Lionell Flamer Freshman Iflamer@udel.edu

University police need to be armed for their safety and the safety of the public

This is in response to "Controversy brews over arming UDPD" on Nov. 9.

University President David P. Roselle states that the university police are not armed because they "have not routinely been involved in incidents in which possession of weapons was necessary." I've not seen a fire in new Gore Hall in the three years since it's been open, yet we have fire sprinklers and alarms to deal with these nonroutine possibilities.

Over the past year, we had an escaped murderer on campus! If that's not a situation in which possession of weapons was necessary, I don't know what is. A university police officer still attempted to capture this escaped convict. Would most people attempt to apprehend, unarmed, a man convicted of multiple murders without a gun? Should anyone be expected to do so?

These are the university police. These are the people who are.

most likely, going to be there first if someone breaks into your dorm room. They will be there first when someone attacks you on your way home from a late-night class. If someone broke into your Towers apartment and you didn't know if he was still there when you returned, wouldn't you want the people who responded to protect your safety to be armed? Put yourself in their place. If you had to respond to situations where your very life would be on the line, wouldn't you want to have a gun? I, for one, want the people that are responsible for my safety to be armed

If I have the need to call the University Police for a dangerous situation. I want them to have guns. I want that for my protection. I want that for their protec-

It's police work. It's dangerous. It's a lot less dangerous in Newark than downtown New York, but it's still dangerous. I don't see how we can continue to expect these fine men and women to serve and protect us without a vital weapon.

It's not right. It's not fair or safe for them. It's not fair or safe

Jeff Six Senior six@ee.udel.edu

Misconceptions by The Review and TKE do not correctly show their positions

In response to the Tau Kappa Epsilon editorial in last Friday's edition of The Review, I feel it necessary to respond to help clear up a few things.

To the brothers of TKE who feel like they were set up as the "poster boys for the downfall of the Greek system," I agree with you. Neither TKE nor any other fraternity is solely responsible for university or national trends. which are driving the Greek system in a different direction from where it has been in the past. A paternal "shame on you" does not come from the IFC, but solely from one writer from The Review.

To the editorial board and writers of The Review. I apologize for getting blasted by TKE with accusations that you and your paper are merely "the tool of the university's power structure." Trust me. that is not the opinion of myself or the consensus of the Greek community or the student body in general.

I, in fact, applaud the positive approach The Review has taken towards alcohol issues. Greek life and student organizations such as DUSC. As a student newspaper, run by students and self-supported, anyone who knows what they are talking about and has read The Review in the past year knows that The Review has been anything but anti-Greek.

What The Review did fail to mention was that the violation that TKE was suspended for was a situation that happened in the Fall Semester of 1998 and not this

I know personally that TKE has been working extremely hard this past year to improve its chapter, and the misinformation that was presented did not aid the situation. What The Review also failed to realize was that the violation was the first of this year and was not alcohol-related.

TKE did hurt itself substantially, but the injury to the IFC and the Greek system is in fact minimal. The Greek system is going in a positive direction in the eyes of many, and TKE should not feel responsible for the changes that are happening here and on every campus nationwide.

Here are the facts ... TKE is not the downfall of the Greek system and The Review is not the puppet of the university administration. If you can at least take away from my words that much, this letter was not written in vain

Dan Mott IFC President 05210@udel.edu

CORRECTION

The first sentence in the Nov. 12 story "Apology offered from Godwin" was inaccurate. It should have read, "A quote taken out of context led to an apology and a clarification by Newark Mayor Harold F. Godwin at Monday's City Council meeting, Godwin said." The Review regrets the error.

Advertising Policy for Classified and

Display Ads:

The Review reserves the right to refuse any ads that are of an improper or inappropriate time, place and manner. The ideas and opinions of advertisements appearing in this publication are not necessarily those of the Review staff or the university.

Questions, comments or input may be directed to the advertis-

WHERE TO WRITE: The Review 250 Perkins Student Center Newark, DE 19716 Fax: 302-831-1396 E-mail: kespo@udel.edu

The Opinion/Editorial pages are an open forum for public debate and discussion. The Review welcomes responses from its readers. For verification purposes, please include a daytime telephone number with all letters. The editorial staff reserves the right to edit all submissions. Letters and columns represent the ideas and beliefs of the authors and should not be taken as representative of The Review.

> Managing News Editors Maria Dal Pan Susan Stock Eric J.S. Townsend

Managing Mosaic Editors:

Managing Sports Editors: Michelle Handleman Matthew Steinmetz

Mike Bederka Dawn E. Mensch

Copy Desk Chief: Lina Hashem

Editorial Editor: Kristen Esposito

Layout Editor:

Photography Editor: Scott McAllister

Art/Graphics Editors: Selena Kang Deii Olaguniu

Entertainment Editors: Carlos Walkup Jessica Zacholl Features Editors:

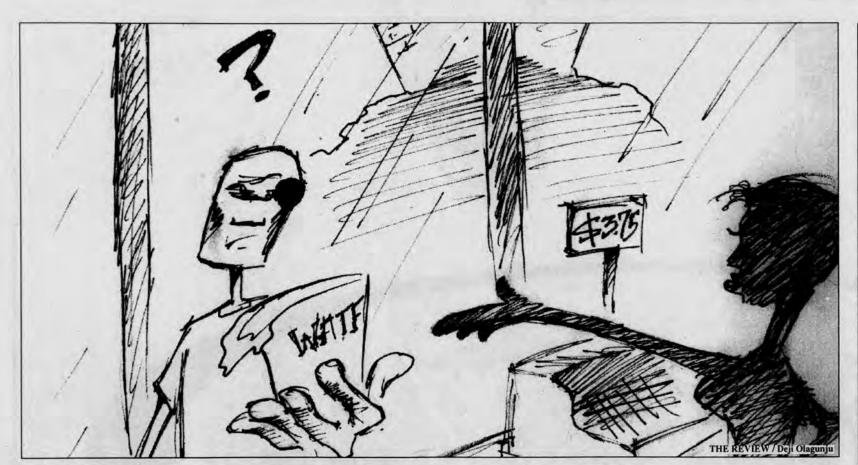

Kyle Belz Melissa Scott Sinclair Administrative News Editors: Deneatra Harmon Jonathan Rifkin

City News Editors: Steve Rubenstein Drew Volturo

National/State News Editors: Robert Covner Jen Lemos

Student Affairs Editors: Shaun Gallahger Domenico Montanaro

Opinion

At this university, there's more than education on the agenda

Steve Rubenstein What's Wrong With This Picture?

After sitting through another less-than-riveting lecture it's finally time for lunch. I'm really not too hungry, but a drink would hit the spot - well, not that kind of drink.

Making my way to the Scrounge I grab a cup and fill it with ice and water from the soda fountain.

Everything's fine until I'm set to leave and the cashier wants to charge me 15 cents for the water.

What's wrong with this picture? I'll tell you what's wrong with it.

This school makes enough money without having to nickel-and-dime students for water. What's next? I suppose I'll have to put a quarter in a slot next to a broom stall just to get the door

Do I mind paying the lousy 15 cents for the privilege of drinking the university's crappy water?

No. But, the principle of the situation is what really troubles me. The fact that Dining Services profits from selling water to students blows my mind.

Are these people out of their

Students living in traditional residence halls are forced to purchase a dining plan. This semester, it cost somewhere around $1,170.

That in itself is a complete ripoff. Students are forced to pay for a combination of meals in the dining hall and points for use at on-campus food outlets.

We all know the food can be revolting, but that's another subject.

While I can't speak for everyone, I personally can attest to the fact that I have never used all of my allotted meals at the dining hall in a single week. No matter how few meals I register for at the beginning of the semester, I always fall short of using my weekly quota.

So right there I am losing money every week. And what do I get in exchange for turning my money over to the university? get charged for a stupid cup of

Sadly, this behavior is now typical of an institution whose purpose was initially to provide students with an education.

Now, the business formerly known as education has a new face.

It's either how much can the university make by charging for parking, how much extra can the bookstore mark-up textbooks, or how much can tuition be raised while still giving the public the impression the raises are justified.

The trend of raising tuition at a rate greater than the rate of inflation has been established for some time

But the university officials' attempt to swindle me and steal my last dollar continues.

The pathetic thing is that they've reduced themselves to tap water. Worse yet — there's not even any method to their madness.

Since the beginning of the semester, I have been charged anywhere from 5 cents to 25 cents for a cup of water. They can't even stick to a price.

Once, they didn't even charge me. I'm sure someone got fired for

My response to the university's attempt to gauge students for everything they have is to do whatever floats your boat.

Just make damn sure I never get any letters asking for alumni contributions to your endowment, which is probably some astronomically could count on all my fingers and

It's a solemn day for every member of the university community when it appears the priority of providing a quality education has been overshadowed by the priority of turning over a profit.

This is nothing new. I doubt it will end here.

President David P. Roselle and the Board of Trustees have the responsibility of finding the necessary funds to keep the university

I can only pray their future fund raising efforts don't cost me any

Here's a tip - start an online liquor store delivery service/porn site. I'm sure the pornography and alcohol companies with which the university chooses to invest its money could offer a few tips.

Steve Rubenstein is a city news editor for the keview. He agesh i mina shelling out a few cents for a drink of water, but would rather save his change and invest it in companies that manufacture alcohol and pornography - just like the university. E-mail him with comments at srubenst@udel.edu.

Can't sit and enjoy the show

It's like marketers

suddenly figured out that when people are home, they use

commercial breaks to run to the kitchen for snacks or to go to the bathroom. So now they are advertising in a place where you're totally defenseless.

Penn

Penn's Landing

Although most of them aren't as ritzy as they used to be and don't have uniformed ushers to escort viewers to their seats, movie theaters are still a place where people can escape into a world of uninterrupted make-believe for a few

Maybe theaters aren't at Disney World caliber as far as magical experiences go, but I usually come out with a sense of satisfaction until my most recent outing to the movies.

The bad wasn't because my shoes stuck to the theater floors because the small bathroom smelled like something had crawled into one of the stalls and died.

It wasn't even the outrageous price I had to pay to get into the theater that upset

The part of the movie experience that really got my panties in a bunch is what happened after the lights went down. It's not enough that I emptied out my wallet for a ticket and gave my right arm for a soggy bag of popcorn smaller than the accompanying $5 drink, but now the movie industry is trying to take my soul for

All right, maybe not my soul, but it sucks how they got me when I least expected it.

The lights dim and anticipation builds as I am determined to get my money's worth by tuning in closely and absorbing every detail of each preview, when I see a car drive across the screen.

What the hell was that?

It wasn't a preview. It didn't even remotely resemble a dancing sack of peanuts telling you that "snacks are yummy." It was the beginning of an advertisement.

I guess so many commercials are being made these days that they no longer fit into the allotted slots throughout our favorite television programs. It's like marketers suddenly figured out that when people are home, they use commercial breaks to run to the kitchen for snacks or to go to the bathroom. So now they are advertising in a place where you're totally defenseless. The viewer wouldn't dare get up and leave before the movie started because then they run the chance of missing the beginning. And only a few sips have been taken from the over-priced soda, so it's not time to go to the bathroom. The innocent moviegoing public just sits there annoyed, confused and totally helpless.

Where do these people marketing their products get off making us pay for their propa-ganda? While the concept isn't garments with company names plastered across them are commonplace - it's totally offensive to sit waiting for the latest blockbuster to begin and instead have commercials shoved down your throat.

I pay the price of admission pecting entertainment in hange. I find nothing entertainbout being told what product to buy after I just shelled out decent money to watch a movie.

Movie theaters are a place for parents to bring their kids for a cou-ple of hours of peace. They are a place for couples to go and make out. They are a place for friends to go and unwind after a hard day'

Movie theaters are not a place for commercials.

Cory Penn is the assistant editorial editor at The Review. Send advertisements to freek@udel.edu.

Britney and pals need to tone it down

Matthew Steinmetz He Shoots.

He Scores

There's a lot wrong with our world today. And Britney Spears isn't making it any better. Don't get me wrong — the girl's got more talent in that curvaceous body of hers than the entire quartet of 98 Degrees. But you've got to wonder whether it's her lyrical ability or her provocative dance steps that have propelled her to teen stardom.

I mean, who are we kidding? Those halter tops and blond pigtails are what momentarily jammed your remote as you were flipping channels and viewed her first music video on MTV. And then you found out that she was only 17 years old.

Still think the girl's hot? Because that's just what she is. A girl. She's just like the highschooler you'll probably be raising in 25 years. And wouldn't it bother you a little bit to see your teen daughter skipping her PSATs to record a music video where her bare midriffs and white cotton panties are more pervasive than her voice? My ire is not directed solely in her direction - rather, it is our society as a whole that's incited my animosity

Child pornography has become an epidemic. The increased popularity of the Internet is undoubtedly a contributor to its sudden growth spurt. But so are the Britney Spears of this world.

Now I'm not making excuses for the sickos who get off on looking at children, but there has to be some sort of regulation that keeps media darlings like Spears and co-teen singing sensation Christina Aguilera from promoting this twisted fix-

These girls are being dressed, made-up, and marketed as women. These teens are being promoted as sex kittens to people twice their age. And the epidemic extends even to their lyrics.

early teens, and lyrics like "Hit me baby one more time" are just a wee bit inappropriate for your average middle school kids to be singing along with on the bus.

Spears began recording in her

It's easy to ask where these girls' parents are when they're practicing their provocative dance

They don't seem to mind that their little girls are the cause of men's drooling. Instead of teaching them to drive, they are watching their underage sex-symbols strut on stage - or through a Catholic school.

But I suppose the millions of dollars their families have reeled from record sales must somehow compensate for the premature shedding of their innocence.

Call me old-fashioned, over-protective or even paranoid, but middle-aged men will never catch a daughter of mine strutting up and down the streets in a schoolgirl's skirt roughly three sizes too small.

Isn't it ironic that both Spears and Aguilera got their careers started with spots on "The Mickey Mouse Club?"

Today, their behavior epitomizes the antithesis of a Walt Disney production (except for the artist who was responsible for the priest in "The Little Mermaid.").

And we as consumers are really at the root of all this evil. We created Britney. We advocated her boob-job, and we love it when she flashes that little, tanned stomach

We've got Web sites devoted to her. A quick Web engine search will turn up more than 7,000 web page matches. Among the eyecatchers were "Abs of Steel: Britney Spears" and "Britney Spears Naked." For a nominal fee, her fans can really get to know her now.

I remember growing up with images of Cindy Crawford and Madonna eliciting accumulations of drool on the lips of the average college male.

Unfortunately, it is teenagers who are plastered all over the walls of college dorm rooms these days.

We're wrong. Maybe we don't all sit around and download explicit photos of 13-year-olds having sex with older men, but the line is becoming blurred. There is just something immoral about 17-yearold sex objects.

To make matters worse, we're setting a poor example for other blossoming teen-age girls as to how they should act and dress.

We've got to send a message that the idea of a teen sex idol is just plain wrong. There's a difference between cute and sensual, and too many young performers and their fans are stepping over the line.

So when Spears' next album is released and the CD cover is staring you in the eye, make certain you're buying into her ability, not her abs - or you're really not much better than the dirty old man.

Matthew Steinmetz is a managing sports editor at The Review. He thinks Britney should spend more time studying for finals and less time perverting the minds of her teachers. Send comments to mstein@udel.edu.

Sports Editors: Rob Niedzwiecki uren Pelletreau

Cory Penn

sistant Features Editor: Carla Correa

Assistant Entertainment Editor: Heather Garlich

Senior Staff Reporter:

Copy Editors:
Andrea Boyle Bob Keary
Hilary O'Sullivan Jenna Portnoy John Yocca

Online Editor: Ryan Gillespie

Imaging Editor: Bob Ruddy

Computer Consultant: John Chabalko

Advertising Director:

Advertising Graphics Designers: Chris Gorzynski Natalie Dunst

Advertising Assistant Director: Melissa Hersh

Classified Advertisements: Margaret Haugh Katie Hines Office and Mailing Address: 250 Student Center, Newark, DE 19716 Business (302) 831-1397 Advertising (302) 831-1398 News/Editorial (302) 831-2771 Fax (302) 831-1396

Opinion

At this university, there's more than education on the agenda

Steve Rubenstein What's Wrong With This Picture?

After sitting through another less-than-riveting lecture it's finally time for lunch. I'm really not too hungry, but a drink would hit the spot — well, not that kind of drink.

Making my way to the Scrounge I grab a cup and fill it with ice and water from the soda fountain.

Everything's fine until I'm set to leave and the cashier wants to charge me 15 cents for the water.

What's wrong with this picture?
I'll tell you what's wrong with it.

This school makes enough money without having to nickeland-dime students for water.

What's next? I suppose I'll have to put a quarter in a slot next to a bathroom stall just to get the door open.

Do I mind paying the lousy 15 cents for the privilege of drinking the university's crappy water?

No. But, the principle of the situation is what really troubles me. The fact that Dining Services profits from selling water to students blows my mind.

Are these people out of their

Students living in traditional residence halls are forced to purchase a dining plan. This semester, it cost somewhere around $1,170.

That in itself is a complete ripoff. Students are forced to pay for a combination of meals in the dining hall and points for use at on-campus food outlets.

We all know the food can be revolting, but that's another subject. While I can't speak for everyone,

I personally can attest to the fact that I have never used all of my allotted meals at the dining hall in a single week. No matter how few meals I register for at the beginning of the semester, I always fall short of using my weekly quota.

So right there I am losing money every week. And what do I get in exchange for turning my money over to the university?

over to the university?

I get charged for a stupid cup of

Sadly, this behavior is now typical of an institution whose purpose was initially to provide students with an education.

Now, the business formerly known as education has a new face.

Profit, It's all about money.

It's either how much can the university make by charging for parking, how much extra can the bookstore mark-up textbooks, or how much can tuition be raised while still giving the public the impression the raises are justified.

The trend of raising tuition at a rate greater than the rate of inflation has been established for some time now.

But the university officials' attempt to swindle me and steal my last dollar continues.

The pathetic thing is that they've reduced themselves to tap water. Worse yet — there's not even any method to their madness.

Since the beginning of the semester, I have been charged anywhere from 5 cents to 25 cents for a cup of water. They can't even stick to a price.

Once, they didn't even charge me. I'm sure someone got fired for it too.

My response to the university's attempt to gauge students for everything they have is to do whatever floats your boat.

Just make damn sure I never get any letters asking for alumni contributions to your endowment, which is probably some astronomically huge number with more zeros than I could count on all my fingers and toes.

It's a solemn day for every member of the university community when it appears the priority of providing a quality education has been overshadowed by the priority of turning over a profit.

This is nothing new. I doubt it will end here.

President David P. Roselle and the Board of Trustees have the responsibility of finding the necessary funds to keep the university running.

I can only pray their future fund raising efforts don't cost me any more cash.

Here's a tip — start an online liquor store delivery service/porn site. I'm sure the pornography and alcohol companies with which the university chooses to invest its money could offer a few tips.

Steve Rubenstein is a city news editor for The Review. He doesn't mind shelling out a few cents for a drink of water, but would rather save his change and invest it in companies that manufacture alcohol and pornography — just like the university. E-mail him with comments at srubenst@udel.edu.

Can't sit and enjoy the show

It's like marketers

suddenly figured out that when people are

home, they use

commercial breaks to run to the kitchen for snacks or to go to the bathroom. So now they are advertising in a place where you're totally defenseless.

Cory Penn

Penn's Landing

Although most of them aren't as ritzy as they used to be and don't have uniformed ushers to escort viewers to their seats, movie theaters are still a place where people can escape into a world of uninterrupted make-believe for a few hours.

Maybe theaters aren't at Disney World caliber as far as magical experiences go, but I usually come out with a sense of satisfaction — until my most recent outing to the movies.

The trip wasn't bad because my shoes stuck to the theater floors or because the small bathroom smelled like something had crawled into one of the stalls and died.

It wasn't even the outrageous price I had to pay to get into the theater that upset me.

The part of the movie experience that really got my panties in a bunch is what happened after the lights went down.

It's not enough that I emptied out my wallet for a ticket and gave my right arm for a soggy bag of popcorn smaller than the accompanying $5 drink, but now the movie industry is trying to take my soul for

All right, maybe not my soul, but it sucks how they got me when I least expected it.

The lights dim and anticipation builds as I am determined to get my money's worth by tuning in closely and absorbing every detail of each preview, when I see a car drive across the screen.

What the hell was that? It wasn't a preview. It didn't even remotely resemble a dancing sack of peanuts telling you that "snacks are yommy." It was the beginning of an advertisement.

I guess so many commercials are being made these days that they no longer fit into the allotted slots throughout our favorite television programs.

It's like marketers suddenly figured out that when people are home, they use commercial breaks to run to the kitchen for snacks or to go to the bathroom. So now they are advertising in a place where you're totally defenseless.

The viewer wouldn't dare get up and leave before the movie started because then they run the chance of missing the beginning. And only a few sips have been taken from the over-priced soda, so it's not time to go to the bathroom. The innocent moviegoing public just sits there annoyed, confused and totally helpless.

Where do these people marketing their products get off making us pay for their propaganda? While the concept isn't new garments with company names plastered across them are commonplace it's totally offensive to sit waiting for the latest blockbuster to begin and instead have commercials shoved down your throat.

I pay the price of admission apecting entertainment in thange. I find nothing entertainmout being told what product to buy after I just shelled out decent money to watch a movie.

Movie theaters are a place for parents to bring their kids for a couple of hours of peace. They are a place for couples to go and make out. They are a place for friends to go and unwind after a hard day's work.

Movie theaters are not a place for commercials.

Cory Penn is the assistant editorial editor at The Review. Send advertisements to freek@udel.edu.

Britney and pals need to tone it down

Matthew Steinmetz He Shoots, He Scores

There's a lot wrong with our world today.

And Britney Spears isn't making it any better.

Don't get me wrong — the girl's

Don't get me wrong — the girl's got more talent in that curvaceous body of hers than the entire quartet of 98 Degrees. But you've got to wonder whether it's her lyrical ability or her provocative dance steps that have propelled her to teen stardom.

I mean, who are we kidding? Those halter tops and blond pigtails are what momentarily jammed your remote as you were flipping channels and viewed her first music video on MTV. And then you found out that she was only 17 years old.

t that she was only 17 years of Still think the girl's hot?

Because that's just what she is. A girl. She's just like the high-schooler you'll probably be raising in 25 years. And wouldn't it bother you a little bit to see your teen daughter skipping her PSATs to record a music video where her bare midriffs and white cotton panties are more pervasive than her voice?

My ire is not directed solely in her direction — rather, it is our society as a whole that's incited my animosity.

Child pornography has become an epidemic. The increased popularity of the Internet is undoubtedly a contributor to its sudden growth spurt. But so are the Britney Spears of this world.

Now I'm not making excuses for the sickos who get off on looking at children, but there has to be some sort of regulation that keeps media darlings like Spears and co-teen singing sensation Christina Aguilera from promoting this twisted fixThese girls are being dressed, made-up, and marketed as women. These teens are being promoted as sex kittens to people twice their age. And the epidemic extends even to their lyrics.

Spears began recording in her

early teens, and lyrics like "Hit me baby one more time" are just a wee bit inappropriate for your average middle school kids to be singing along with on the bus. It's easy to ask where these

It's easy to ask where these girls' parents are when they're practicing their provocative dance

They don't seem to mind that their little girls are the cause of men's drooling. Instead of teaching them to drive, they are watching their underage sex-symbols strut on stage — or through a Catholic

But I suppose the millions of dollars their families have reeled from record sales must somehow compensate for the premature shedding of their innocence.

Call me old-fashioned, over-protective or even paranoid, but middle-aged men will never catch a daughter of mine strutting up and down the streets in a schoolgirl's skirt roughly three sizes too small.

Isn't it ironic that both Spears and Aguilera got their careers started with spots on "The Mickey Mouse Club?"

Today, their behavior epitomizes the antithesis of a Walt Disney production (except for the artist who was responsible for the priest in "The Little Mermaid.").

"The Little Mermaid.").

And we as consumers are really at the root of all this evil. We created Britney. We advocated her boob-job, and we love it when she flashes that little, tanned stomach of hers.

We've got Web sites devoted to her. A quick Web engine search will turn up more than 7,000 web page matches. Among the eyecatchers were "Abs of Steel: Britney Spears" and "Britney Spears Naked." For a nominal fee, her fans can really get to know her now. I remember growing up with images of Cindy Crawford and Madonna eliciting accumulations of drool on the lips of the average college male.

Unfortunately, it is teenagers who are plastered all over the walls of college dorm rooms these days.

We're wrong. Maybe we don't all sit around and download explicit photos of 13-year-olds having sex with older men, but the line is becoming blurred. There is just something immoral about 17-year-old sex objects.

To make matters worse, we're setting a poor example for other blossoming teen-age girls as to how they should act and dress.

We've got to send a message that the idea of a teen sex idol is just plain wrong. There's a difference between cute and sensual, and too many young performers and their fans are stepping over the line.

So when Spears' next album is released and the CD cover is staring you in the eye, make certain you're buying into her ability, not her abs — or you're really not much better than the dirty old man.

Matthew Steinmetz is a managing sports editor at The Review. He thinks Britney should spend more time studying for finals and less time perverting the minds of her teachers. Send comments to mstein@udel.edu.

Sports Editors: Rob Niedzwiecki Lauren Pelletreau

Assistant Editorial Editor: Cory Penn

Assistant Features Editor: Carla Correa Assistant Entertainment Editor: Heather Garlich

Senior Staff Reporter: April Capochino

Copy Editors: Andrea Boyle Bob Keary Hilary O'Sullivan Jenna Portnoy John Yocca Online Editor: Ryan Gillespie

Imaging Editor: Bob Ruddy

Computer Consultant: John Chabalko Advertising Director:

Advertising Graphics Designers: Chris Gorzynski Natalie Dunst

Advertising Assistant Director: Melissa Hersh

Classified Advertisements: Margaret Haugh Katie Hines Office and Mailing Address: 250 Student Center. Newark, DE 19716 Business (302) 831-1397 Advertising (302) 831-1398 News/Editorial (302) 831-2771 Fax (302) 831-1396

UConnections.com

As much FUN as you can have alone without worrying about your roommate walking in...

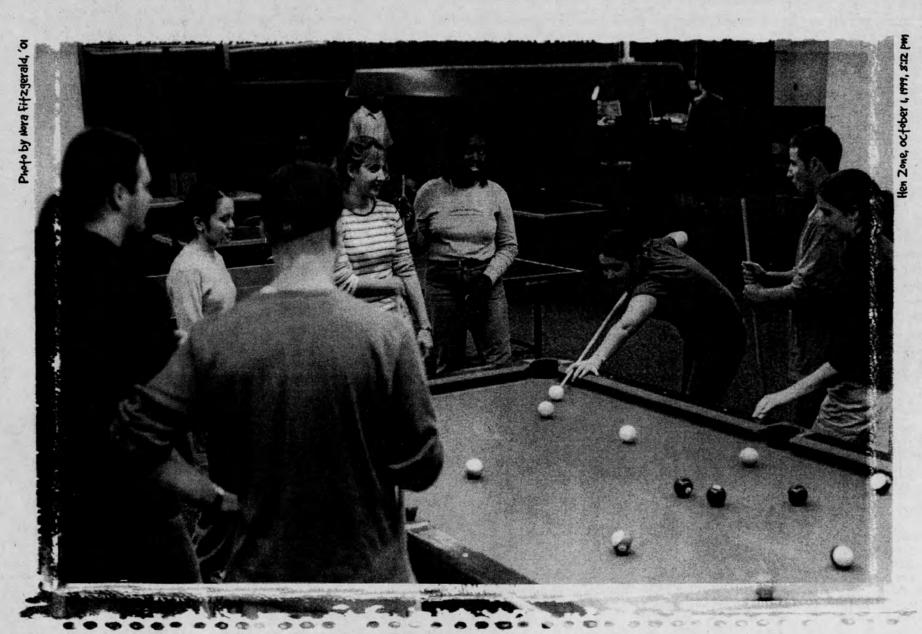

- · ONLINE FOOD ORDERING
- The BEST DISCOUNTS in Newark
- FREE REWARDS

So go ahead University of Delaware!

Join @ www.UConnections.com

It's FREE! It's FUN! It's EASY!

"Don't blame it on the stick. That was a perfectly horrible shot. Did you ever notice how guys always blame their mistakes on bad luck and their successes on their amazing skill? Winner of this round gets free ice cream. Did I mention that my favorite flavor is cookie dough? Nine ball in the side pocket."

Live on campus Next Year.

It's Your Neighborhood.

Sign up in February on the Web.

www.udel.edu/hcs • UDI-DORM (831-3676)

EPISODE 4: Billiards

Lurking Within

Yep, she's gay. But now she is not alone on prime time TV, see B3.

Tuesday, November 16, 1999

The football team demolishes URI 35-0, keeping its playoff hopes alive, see C1.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

One editor's quest for the long-lost tunnels that lurk underneath campus

BY JONATHAN RIFKIN

Every person must have a quest. Mine began with the mocking laughter of a universi-

"Tunnels?" she said with incredulity in her voice. "Underground? Let me check."

The sound of her muffled laughter still echoes in my head six weeks later. Her disbelief at my inquiry into the existence of tunnels connecting some of the university's dormitories only stiffened my resolve to find them.

I became obsessed with them.

Construction sites became my playgrounds, and manhole covers became gateways for success rather than portals for human excrement. It appeared they could be anywhere, and one thing became clear - if I was to find them, I would have to find them on my own. I wasted no time in my search. I used all my resources, and I called in all my favors. I asked friends if they had ever heard of tunnels about three-by-three feet underneath any of the dormitories.

They offered me little in terms of tangible results, but their enthusiasm for my search only reinforced the conviction that my quest was a noble one.

Slow progress and speculation ran rampant in those first weeks.

Those who knew of my search imagined white-haired gnomes greeting me in the tunnel's belly. Some with exceptional imaginations envisioned forgotten university treasures at the end of my journey.

But I knew better than to let such exuberance cloud my thoughts. I knew very well that the search was far from over.

Walks to and from class weighed on me as days turned into weeks. Every loose brick on my path became a bitter reminder of what might lay beneath.

The strain of the seemingly hopeless query took its toll on me. I began to lose faith in the elusive tunnels until a co-worker came to me with knowledge of someone who had actually been in them.

"Rob Kalesse," she said to me. My dwindling confidence rejuvenated itself. Weeks of endless inquiries to dozens of people, all yielding a common response of ignorance, now seemed worthwhile. Until this point the quest had been alone. However, photographer/reporter Mike Louie also exhibited an irresistible enthusiasm about the tunnels. I gladly welcomed his interest, and together we made plans to document the tunnels once and for all.

I dialed Rob's number on the first Monday of November at 6:30 p.m., not knowing what to expect. The annoying sound of his machine only exaggerated my anticipation. After six weeks, I knew patience was essential to my success. So, after leaving two messages, I decided it was time to wait.

The phone rang at 10 p.m.

"Yeah, of course the tunnels exist," he said, validating my search.

"I lived in Dickinson my freshmen year, and we became chummy with one of the janitors.

"He took us down there two or three times. It was small and pitchblack, and when we came out the other end, there were two other janitors there. I think he got in trouble because soon after he was moved somewhere else, and we never heard from him again.'

The mystery of the tunnels tightened its grip upon my mind. Before they had a benign nature, similar to the allure of a snow fort in my younger days. I now realized the underground chambers would be a forbidden plea-

I concluded my conversation with Rob by asking him the most important question of all. "Where are the tunnels?" I inquired.

"At the bottom of the staircase in the Dickinson's," he said. "But they might be

A new challenge presented itself, but I had come too far to let something as trivial as a lock stop me

The next day I prepared for the final stage of my journey. My roommates got caught up in my enthusiasm and asked to join me as I uncovered the secrets of the university. I welcomed their moral support and made arrangements to include them.

However, in the back of my head I knew a large crowd would only lessen my chances of infiltrating the tunnels without incident.

My car door slammed shut and only Mike Louie and myself walked toward the Dickinson complex.

With my notepad and two extra pens and Mike equipped with a bag full of camera equipment, we entered, worthy explorers.

After mooching entrance from two unsuspecting Dickinson F residents, we headed car. down the nearest stairwell.

Because it was there: Administrative news editor Jonathan Rifkin journeyed through the unknown in search of the truth. saw nothing. Mike and I exchanged worried glances, but our nerves were soon soothed when we discovered a small trap door against

Mike banged on it firmly.

"Sounds hollow," I said. "This must be it." Rob's words suddenly came to me with a vengeance. "The doors might be locked."

His words were nothing less than prophetic. In a "MacGuyver"-esque act of desperation, Mike and I ran up to the residence halls searching for a bobby pin to pick the lock.

Since neither of us had much experience in the underhanded and clandestine arts, our efforts proved to be in vain. However, we were not yet beaten.

A credit card that I had a great disdain for, as it was the vehicle in by which I assumed an ungodly balance of debt, proved useful to me.

We tried to shimmy the lock open. I worked tirelessly, breaking a sweat, as Mike stood lookout. Fear of breaking the lock eventually overcame our urge to break the story of the tunnels, and we walked dejectedly back to my

As we moped, we decided to try one last We approached the bottom of the stairs and attempt in a different residence hall.

feeling a gambler must have as he clutches his final betting chip.

A similar circumstance presented itself once again: a hollow opening at the bottom of the

I bent down to begin my futile attempt at unlocking the door with my trusty bobby pin. Taking stock of the situation, I noticed the door to be slightly ajar. The intoxicating realization of success took hold of me. The tunnels would be mine.

Before I could say a word to my companion, he had his camera cocked and ready to shoot.

The compact door swung open, leaving a cavernous darkness in its place. We quickly secured some flashlights and took our first steps into the abyss.

Adrenaline and excitement controlled my every movement. My mind went reeling as I took my first hunched over and ducklike steps

Broken light bulbs, tattered blankets and residence hall issue desk chairs blocked my thought to myself. I momentarily considered the idea that the bulbs and a shattered dream.

We entered Dickinson C/D hall with the area had been used for some carnal pleasure, but the hostile environment and lack of space led me to conclude otherwise.

> As we came to the end of the first 90-foot stretch of crawl space, I pondered where the tunnel would exit.

> My flashlight began to illuminate the sad truth that my tunnels were not too impressive.

I fought the impulse, though deep down I began to feel some disappointment. I had entered the tunnel in Dickinson C, and I would exit in Dickinson D.

The find seemed worthwhile to anyone playing an animated game of hide-and-seek. However, beyond that, it lacked the hard-hitting news edge I had hoped for.

The next day I spoke to facilities manager Ralph Johnson. He told me the "tunnels" were actually crawl spaces used by facility maintenance crews to make adjustments to certain aspects of the Dickinson building.

I graciously accepted the knowledge, but deep down I yearned for something more.

I began my quest with hopes of finding a litpath. People have obviously been here, I the recognition as an in-depth investigative reporter. Instead, I found a few broken light

THE REVIEW / Scott McAllister

While others just donate a few bucks or a can of soup, senior Gretchen Bellamy takes it to another level.

Wilmington's helping hand

BY MELISSA SCOTT SINCLAIR

he beige walls of Martha House are clear of sticky handprints for the first time in months. A family of seven - including children aged six, four, three, two and one - just moved out, and senior Gretchen Bellamy has been mopping and scrubbing for days.

"The floor," she says, shaking her head. "Now it looks tan - it was black before." She leans back into the sagging sofa and sighs, surveying her work and her roughened

One year ago, Bellamy took the job as part-time manager at Martha House, a transitional shelter in Wilmington for women and families seeking a place to live. She never dreamed that a simple afterschool job would involve housecleaning, let alone the other tasks she's had to tackle. Bellamy also found herself fighting for funding, interviewing potential clients, chasing out abusive boyfriends and searching the house for drugs.

However, Bellamy says she never dreamed of abandoning Martha House, even when her boss quit last spring and told her, "OK, Gretchen, it's all on you!" The frustrations are many, but Bellamy says what she's learned has been worth

"This job has changed my life," she says. "A lot of women have been helped here."

No sign announces that the nondescript brick townhouse has been a refuge for the homeless and abused since 1993. Martha House accepts only a few clients at a time through rigorous interview process. Bellamy offers assistance finding jobs and a permanent home, but the clients are responsible for their own

"This is their house, but they have to realize they're guests here,"

At the moment, the house is quiet and clean, the sparse furniture in order. The empty rooms await another family to fill them with ers it's time to go. voices and laughter.

But first, Bellamy must visit the new apartment of the family that just left and demand that they return the things they took from Martha

'They ripped the blinds down," she says with incredulity. "They stole the pots and pans!"

She knows the family is desperate for dishes and furniture. The donation bags are filled with things the family does't need - threadbare clothes, old reading glasses and children's trinkets. If they had asked for kitchen supplies at the exit interview, she says, she would have found some for them. But theft is unacceptable.

Gretchen Bellamy is no pushover. Tall and muscular, with silver rings in her ears, a stud in her tongue and close-cropped bleached hair, it's obvious she's no one to mess with.

This air of command comes in handy when she's faced with the most difficult part of her position as house manager - telling rulebreak-

see OPENING page B4

The silent killer

BY KYLE BELZ

I sat on a vinyl couch in the examination room one afternoon in August 1996. I was waiting for the last phase of my sports physical, a requirement for all university student-athletes, which would clear me to swim for the school. After the basic checkup, Dr. Kevin Waninger, the former university doctor for sports medicine, instructed me to drop my drawers.

I took off my pants and waited for what I thought would be the standard "turn your head and cough" procedure, making sure I didn't have a hernia.

But as he put on latex gloves, I became confused, as he stood there waiting.

"I'll do the examination, son," he said, "but I won't take off your underwear."

After we briefly laughed at the misunderstanding, he explained that it was no joking matter. He would have to administer a routine testicular cancer exam, checking for signs of the most common cancer among young men - something I had never heard

Fortunately, he found no reason to be concerned. But many others aren't as lucky.

Simon Roeney, a representative of the American Cancer Society, says more than 7,000 new cases of testicular cancer will be discovered in the next year. This year alone, 300 men will die because of it.

College students should take notice, he says. Unlike other cancers, this one favors the young. "It can strike at any age," he says. "But it usually develops in males in between 20 and 40." Despite this cancer's association with youth, only a few students know about it.

Junior Mike Gallaher says he learned about the disease through his mother, who works as a nurse in Massachusetts. He was first checked out for it two years ago, as a freshman swimmer for the universi-

"At our age, it is one of the scariest concerns," he says. "I'm not saying it should be announced on billboards, but you should know it's a threat."

Besides the risk associated with age, young men have even more motive to take notice of this cancer's threat. The testicular cancer rate is rising, according to a Medical Industry Today article published in August.

Dr. Harry Fisch of Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center and other researchers from Columbia University report that in 1973 the rate of testicular cancer was 3.61 cases out of 100,000 people. By 1995, it had escalated to 5.44. Although the researchers could not explain the climb, some believe it's caused by the increased use "For some reason, people who work closely with chemicals — miners and gas workers for instance

How to do a self exam

•The best time is after the shower when the skin of the scrotum is relaxed.

•Stand in front of a mirror and hold the penis out of the way.

 Examine each testicle separately. •Hold the testicle between the thumbs and fingers with both hands and roll it gently between the fingers.

•Look and feel for any hard bumps or nodules (smooth rounded masses) or any change in shape, size or consistency of the testes.

•Contact your doctor if you detect any bumps or changes.

are at a higher risk," Roeney says. "But no one has figured out which specific chemicals cause it."

Other factors that increase susceptibility include a family history of testicular cancer, race and medical

"White men are four times more likely to get it than other races," Roeney says. "Also, if you've had it before in one testicle, you have a much higher chance of cancer developing in the other."

Some popular misconceptions surrounding testicular cancer include the belief that injury and vasectomy increase the risk, but Roeney says there is no scientific basis to support these claims. But he singles out one condition as a strong indicator of high risk of developing a tumor in the testes - cryptorchidism, or a testicle that doesn't descend into the scrotum, a condition affecting three percent

"[The descent] is supposed to happen before birth," he says, "But sometimes they either remain in the abdomen or get stuck on the way down."

see KNOWING page B4

The Artist struggles to find himself

"RAVE UN2 THE JOY FANTASTIC" THE ARTIST NPG RECORDS RATING: ***

BY HEATHER GARLICH Assistant Entertainment Edito

The man who sports as many names as he does musical moods has made his return, taking his band back to the bliss of

The Artist's new album, "Rave Un2 the Joy Fantastic," has a fanciful sound flaunting the same erotic overtones with which Prince is associated but adding a bizarre new twist.

The release of this album is perfect timing for those who are partying like it's 1999 on the eve of the millennium.

The Gist of It

ಭಭಭಭಭ ತಾತಾತಾತಾತಾ क्रेक्रिके के किर्दर्श 医医医 公公公 33 66

$ 8

BIG BAD VOODOO DADDY INTERSCOPE RECORDS RATING: Trata

The album's first track, "Big and as we can be," singer Scotty Morrison instances it's not a bad thing. "Who's That Creepin'," "Sleep Tight" and "Still in Love With You" show BBVD's softer side, with the latter being the band's best make-out song by far.

However, the majority of songs on the a sprightly nymph. CD are romantic ballads - with cream on the album's title track, as it is an exact copy of his familiar style. His high-pitched squeals and hypnotizing beats will bring fans to musical ecstasy.

The album puts listeners in a time warp not only with The Artist's vocals, but with the guest appearances on the album as well. "Undisputed" features Chuck D and his free-stylin' interludes. He drops a funky beat for The Artist and adds an appeal passé to the CD. However, the attraction is lost with "The Greatest Romance Ever Sold," as it turns an R&B attempt into an ear-wrenching "easy listening" experience.

Prince redeems himself with "Hot Wit U," a pulsating and catchy dance song, which incorporates the familial, rapturous groans of Prince's previous works.

"Hot Wit U" also features Rough Riders' First Lady (a.k.a. Eve), as she hits The Artist with an enticing rap.

Track six is not a Led Zeppelin rendition of "Tangerine," even though they share the same name - especially since Prince mentions taking off a tangerine negligée.

"So Far, So Pleased," adds the energetic vocals of Gwen Stefani to The Artist's mix of talent on his album. The punkish style of Stefani makes the listener imagine Prince jumping around stage like

The energy is lost on a few tracks, however, as The Artist is far less original on Prince fans might get excited with this new album. Rehashing the Sheryl Crow hit, "Every Day is a Winding Road," he adds a clubby dance beat as well as a more sultry approach to the lyrics.

"Wherever U Go, Whatever U Do" may strike fear into the hearts of anyone who remembers Brian Adams. However, those listeners who can get past the memories of Robin Hood may find the ballad pleasing.

Prince is a lover, not a fighter, as he expresses in track 11, "Man o' War." This song has a true appeal to the romantic within every listener and he or she might plead for a second chance when Prince says, "Lovin' you is a waste of time."

The Artist jumps back and forth from poppy and dancelike rhythms to sappy ballads on the album.

On the humorous and bouncy song, "Baby Knows," Prince shows his noholds-barred style with lyrics like, "She got the long dark legs / She got the butt that go 'round."

Ani DiFranco also makes a cameo on the album, as she plays acoustic guitar for "I Love U, but I Don't Trust U Anymore." The soft ballad allows DiFranco's input to coalesce with Prince's soft cooing.

Track 15 is just like its title, "Strange but True." Prince freestyles while mysterious chords surround a repetitive chant and static becomes an instrument in itself.

The two lost tracks on the album even include an inlaid merchandise advertisement, sounded by a frightening voice - probably Prince in the morning.

"Pretty Man" is the other hidden track, which shouldn't have been misplaced. Prince attempts to impersonate James Brown and uses a horn section in the background to make his character more believable.

The album encompasses much of the old Prince as well as the middle and new, and his sexual appeal has never been renamed. Prince's eroticism permeates the album and the senses, as he says in "Undisputed," "My dear, I am the the

"THIS BEAUTIFUL LIFE"

It's still got horns blaring, beats pumping and a smooth cat on the microphone. But with "This Beautiful Life," Big Bad Voodoo Daddy lacks the clever lyrics and balls-on energy the band displayed in the past.

Bad," is more like medium-sized trouble with the band in need of just a little more oomph.

"Lordy, lordy, lordy / big and bad utters before Karl Hunter rips into one hell of a sax solo. But the tune falls slightly below bad-ass when the drums and bass fail to drive the band.

The 12 songs that follow are also generally lazy, though in some

And anyone not lucky enough to own the "Swingers" soundtrack will be happy to know that "This Beautiful Life" also features "I Wanna Be Like You," the band's swingin' rendition of "The Jungle Book" classic.

Glen "The Kid" Marhevka does an awesome job tearing up the trumpet, though as with "Big and Bad," the song could've been kicked up a notch or

With the swing trend on the downlope, BBVD probably won't be gracing the stage at the Super Bowl this year, but it doesn't really matter. They still know how to turn a regular joint into a swingin' place.

— Maria Dal Pan

"SHAPESHIFTER" MARCY PLAYGROUND CAPITOL RECORDS RATING TATA 1/2

Adding to the sweet aftertaste of "Sex and Candy," Marcy Playground makes its return with "Shapeshifter."

The sophomore attempt starts off strong with "It's Saturday," a song that incorporates heavy-hitting drums and guitar with a chorus resembling the happy singing of the Smurfs.

But be wary of track four, "All the Lights Went Out." It is most recognizably the trippy consciousness or lack thereof, of lead singer John Wozniak trying to hypnotize his audience with sleepy, haunting vocals.

Complementing the dizzy nature of the previous track, "Secret Squirrel" follows the plight of a bushy-tailed creature as it tries to save the world from Dr. Doom.

The villain even makes a vocal appearance cackling and singing, "So I see you came secret squirrel it's a shame you will have to die." - but the listener has to "tune in next week" to see

The rest of the album follows the same melodic monotony, as some songs, like "Pigeon Farm," highlight the absurd, while others simply put the listener to sleep.

Only die-hard fans will be enthused about "Shapeshifter," as it almost exactly mirrors the echoing chords and bizarre lyrics of Marcy's '97 self-titled

The band continues to prove its radio-friendly nature — but some words of wisdom should accompany this disc: Do not play while operating heavy machinery

- Heather Garlich

"То тне Теетн" ANI DIFRANCO RIGHTEOUS BABE MUSIC/BMI RATING: 17 12

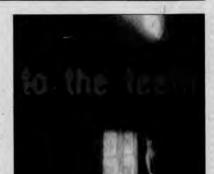

Serving a bizarre aural salad of outright political activism, intense introspection and sporadic melodic and lyrical ramblings, prolific grassroots singer Ani DiFranco is back with her second album of 1999, "To the Teeth."

A scant 10 months after the release of "Up Up Up Up Up," DiFranco comes out swinging with what seems like a lifetime's worth of frustration and anxiety.

The spastic songstress targets broad social issues such as gun control and voter apathy on the title track as well as "Hello Birmingham." Meanwhile, her own motivations and inclinations manifest themselves in songs like "Wish I May" and "Providence."

And just as her subject matter runs rampant, DiFranco traverses the musical spectrum. She careens wildly through different genres such as folk, rock, jazz, hip-hop and even electronica.

Often times she forces her music to follow her lyrics, not vice versa.

Habitually, the instrumentals are struggling to speed up or slow down to parallel DiFranco's frenetic singing.

These wildly diverging forces don't add up to a cohesive album. Instead, "To the Teeth," like much of DiFranco's previous work, seems like the diary ramblings of a schizophrenic

But give her credit for something: DiFranco will never be accused of being bland - she's the anti-Celine Dion. And for that, it's easy to ignore her sometimes-annoying idiosyncrasies and sink your teeth into DiFranco's crazy musical collage

- Brian Callaway

Mosaic presents: Dear Danni's advice column

All my life, people have been coming to me for advice. So when the idea of an advice column came to me in the middle of the night, I thought, why not? And The Review seemed to agree with me. So here it is, down and dirty. Some of you may love what I have to say and some of you may hate it. But hey, as long as people come to me for advice, I might as well put it out on the table.

Dear Danni,

A few months ago I met this girl who I feel very strongly about. We get along great, and I love spending time with her. The only problem is that she lives in Florida, and I have to admit it is hard not seeing her as often as I want. What do you think I should

- So close but so far away

Dear Close,

I believe that anything is possible. But I also know that relationships are hard enough without the added miles. And from what you wrote, it sounds like you have doubts already. As much as you love this girl, you may want to hold off on the relationship until you can be closer to each other. What it really comes down to is how much you are willing to give to a girl who you rarely see. Now go meditate.

Dear Danni.

happened before. Usually, I either have one room to yourself unexpectedly, you could work out a boyfriend or none at all. I am confused and don't know if I should pick one of them, or if I should just date all of them. Please help!

- Boy crazy

Dear Boy Crazy,

So what if you haven't dated three boys at the same time before? Consider yourself lucky now. Dating is supposed to be fun — a time to figure out what kind of person you want to date exclusively. So my advice is to stop worrying. As long as each guy knows that you are not dating him exclusively, then just relax - let your feelings sort themselves out nat-

Dear Danni,

My roommate never leaves the room! Sometimes I want to bring people over or just have the room to myself. How can I tell him to leave without being mean about it?

- Lone Ranger

Dear Ranger,

Everyone needs his own space and sharing a tiny space with a stranger is hard. I would suggest working out a schedule with your roommate so that each of you can have some alone time at some point during the day. Maybe you could also hang a sign on the I am currently dating three guys. This has never door when you have company. Or if you need the code to let each other know

I would also encourage him to join activities that force him to leave the room. If that doesn't work, then you can always blackmail him with those nude pictures he hid under his socks. No, I do not really condone that. If all else fails, I suggest going to your RA.

Dear Danni,

I met this girl at the beginning of the year, and we started hanging out a lot. Then, the other night I had sex with another girl, and the first girl found out! I feel terrible, but I don't think I can handle an exclusive relationship right now. What should I do? — Pathetic in Pencader

Dear Pathetic

If you have doubts about a relationship with the first girl, then don't get into one with her. You have already hurt her enough by sleeping with someone else. You need to apologize to her and then tell her you are not ready to be in a monogamous relationship right now. Finally, you need to evaluate what you want. If you want to be a player, fine. If you don't want an exclusive relationship, fine. But you can't have your cake and eat it too.

For anyone craving advice from the girl-nextdoor who's seen and heard it all, e-mail Danielle Comarow at dannic@udel.edu.

(November 22 — December 21) Don't worry, Sagittarius, all your stress will be gone soon. There are only nine days until Thanksgiving, and you'll get plenty of rest then.

Capricorn

(December 22 - January 19)

Due to your lack of planning skills, you have two obligations in one evening. Stop by the store and get a planner then you might actually know what is Aquarius (January 20 - February 18) A recent event in your life has left you sad and lost. Remember that it is OK to cry. Things will get better soon going on for once.

Pisces

- we promise.

You need to straighten your priorities. Some things are really not as important as they seem, and other commitments are not receiving enough attention

Duote of the Week "It has always been general knowledge that The Review is little more than a tool of the university power structure."

— The Brotherhood of Tau Kappa Epsilon

Nov. 9, 1999

-Singer Shirley Manson of Garbage, regarding a bra that was thrown on stage at the Bob Carpenter Center

After 76 days in court, Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson ruled on the anti-trust case against Microsoft. He said the corporation had plotted to control the browser market, bullied rivals into altering their products and loaded Microsoft Internet Explorer onto its Windows software primarily to freeze Netscape out of the market. With Explorer and Windows, Microsoft owns the market for browsers (64 percent) and personal computers (85 percent).

Nov. 15, 1999

Three out of four people surveyed in a National Consumers League poll said they believe they will be using herbal remedies instead of prescription drugs in 20 years.

> November 1999 Vegetarian Times

Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band have broken records for selling more tickets than anyone ever. Now they are trying to set a new record. After playing Philadelphia's First Union Spectrum, Bruce moved the party just 758 feet and nine and a half inches next door, to the First Union Center. Comcast-Spectacor. which owns both venues, submitted the measurement to the Guinness Book of World Records as the shortest distance traveled between arena rock shows.

The Review 'You can have it back, I don't wear The smartest man in America by some accounts is Christopher Michael Langan of Long Island. With an IQ that has been measured at 195, the score puts him at par with the likes of Leonardo da Vinci and Rene Descartes. IQs like Langan's exist at a rate of roughly one in 100 million.

> November 1999 Esquire

Thrill-seeking athletes have recently started using see-in-the-dark eyewear for their fly-by-night mountain bike riding and river rafting. By amplifying existing light from the moon and stars up to 25,000 times, people can see objects as clear as day.

> November 1999 Details

ABC's live episode of "The Drew Carey Show" brought the network its highest ratings in the timeslot in 11 and a half years. "Drew" increased its lead on "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire," topping its season-todate average by 35 percent in total viewers and by 29 percent among

> Nov. 12, 1999 TV Guide Online

"I haven't really talked to him about young adults.

- Hillary Rodham Clinton on whether her hus band will live in their new Chappaqua, NY. residence Nov. 15, 1999 Newsweek

Aries (March 21 — April 19)

A streak of luck has left you with a big ego. Try to look at other people and remember they are the same as you or maybe even better.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20) If you're thinking once again about changing your major, wait! Your indecisiveness will only lead to disaster. Make an appointment with your adviser to get straightened out.

Gemini

(May 21 - June 20) Take it easy this week. Enjoy a night out on the town before it's time to cram for exams. The deals at the bars are endless - you just need to find them.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22) You have been having difficulty talking with a loved one. Instead of keeping silent, express your feelings out loud.

Communication is the key to a solid relationship.

(July 23 - August 22)

You missed your chance at a date last week when you ignored some obvious sexy signals. Spend this week thinking about how you can avoid this blunder next time.

(August 23 — September 22) You are always ready to follow the latest trend. This week, why not start your own? Everyone around campus will be looking like you soon, it's just a matter of time.

Virgo

Libra (September 23 — October 22) Keep smiling. You've been having a great month so far, and your luck will last into December. However, remember while having fun, there is work to be done.

Scorpio (October 23 — November 21) It's about time you go out and enjoy yourself. Take up the invitation to go out on a Friday night, and do something you usually wouldn't dream of doing

(February 19 - March 20)

Out of the TV networks' closet

BY PAIGE WOLF

She locks the office door behind her and pulls the other woman into her embrace. She kisses her tenderly, pausing once to gaze into her eyes, and then moves in toward her

No, this is not the beginning of a lesbian encounter on the Spice Channel.

On the Nov. 1 episode of "Ally McBeal," Ling and Ally lived out their fantasies of kissing another

Thirty years ago this homosexual scenario would have been considered taboo.

However, with television shows like "Ellen," "Will and Grace," "Dawson's Creek" and "Spin City" introducing the public to more openly gay characters in recent years, some think America is in the process of becoming more accepting of alternative sexual lifestyles.

There are currently 27 lesbian, gay or transgender characters portrayed on broadcast and cable networks for the 1999-2000 season. states the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation Web site.

Mark Williams, president of the Lesbian Gay Bisexual Student Union, says although he appreciates the representation of gays on television, he believes that they are not always portrayed in the most accu-

"On 'Will and Grace,' Jack is portrayed stereotypically," he says. "He is overly flamboyant, and he swishes when he walks.

"While this is a characteristic of some gay men, it is not representative of the entire gay community." Jack also expresses joyous excitement over a Cher CD and frequently bursts into song. Many people say they think the more subdued character, Will, is more representative of an average homosexual male.

LGBSU treasurer Kim Siegel says she feels that Will encompasses a more true-to-life persona of homosexual males.

"Will is far more [representative] of the homosexual community than Jack," she says. "And I believe most people are able to see that.

But some students believe that the gay characters are portrayed fairly accurately and in a positive light. "There is just no way that you can stereotype all the gay people in the world," senior Keith Strohler says. "Just like there is no way you can stereotype all the straight people, black people or women.' Some have problems with the way a network changes a character after disclosing his sexuality.

Sophomore Jason Lebrun, vice president of the LGBSU, says he sees an inconsistency with the "Dawson's Creek" character, Jack.

"When Jack came out, he became a completely different person overnight," he says. "It was too quick. It misses a lot of the point of coming out."

Although Lebrun says he feels that most of these shows are trying to have a "token gay character," he does not believe this is necessarily a bad thing.

"At least they are trying to be more tolerant of homosexuality in general," he says. "It's a step in the right direction.'

While this may be encouraging for homosexual men, some people feel that there is not enough focus on gay women.

The Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation Web site states that of the eight gay lead or supporting roles, all are male.

Siegel says she wishes lesbians received as much exposure in the media as gay men.

"Ellen DeGeneres' heavy emphasis on her lesbianism turned a lot of people off, I think," she says.

Siegel says she was pleased to see "Friends" celebrate the lesbian commitment ceremony of Susan and Carol in the show's second sea-

"Acknowledgement of our forms of family life and relationships is important for tolerance," she says. "If nothing else, seeing them portrayed on TV will at least get people thinking."

Lebrun agrees that lesbians are an underrepresented community on

"I think people might feel that a stereotypically lesbian character might not be as interesting or funny," he says.

Using gay male characters as comic relief has been a common theme, from "Men on Film" on "In Color" to Ambiguously Gay Duo" on "Saturday Night Live."

Some viewers enjoy seeing gay people being stereotyped in a humorous way Senior Will Hunter says he finds comedy sketches depicting these stereotypical characters very enter-

"I used to like to watch 'Men on Film' when they talked about watching men play football," he says. "It was hysterical when they talked about watching the men in tights.' But the idea of using homosexuality as a means to evoke humor from an audience is quickly being dissolved. In turn, they are being shown as genuine people with everyday prob-

Lebrun says the situation is similar to when black people first began to be accepted on network televi-He says networks began to have the "token black character" and slowly worked their way up to having a variety of shows that focussed around their lives. They began to be seen as individuals, no different from anyone else. Strohler says he believes that the current exposure of homosexuality on television will lead to a growing acceptance of alternative lifestyles. He says, "I think the more gay characters are portrayed, the more desensitized society will become to thinking being gay is any different from being straight."

THE REVIEW / File Photo

Ellen DeGeneres, who some said led the crusade toward the acceptance of gays on television, is now joined by countless others.

First rule of Hatebreed: scream and jump around a lot. Second rule of Hatebreed: scream and jump around some more.

Philadelphia's hateful breed

BY ROBERT COYNER

PHILADELPHIA Hatebreed, the warzone of the moshpit is the bliss, and there is beauty in aggression.

With Friday's show Hatebreed's fourth Philadelphia appearance in 1999 - the band hardly needed to cue its guitars before the pits were torn open on the Electric Factory's dancefloor.

Samhain and Danzig headlined, but the crowd seemed to be at Hatebreed's mercy as frontman Jamie Shanahan stepped on stage, yelling to the audience, "Let me see your horns."

The pulsating crowd responded by reaching their arms up and pointing out their index and pinky fingers, as Shanahan spat through the opener, "Empty Promises."

The band pounded through the song with neither crescendo nor progression - just a lashing and feverish onslaught that compelled the crowd to mosh as they felt the encompassing aggression Hatebreed.

One concertgoer got cracked in the head, sending him back with a child's game, the entire crowd ran violent catharsis, discounting every bloody nose. But his friends pulled for the middle, heaving through a sea bit of sadness in Shanahan's previdodged back to the pit.

The band never pretends to be pretty - Hatebreed is in-your-face, all-out rage. Shanahan has said the band does not worry about melody, just in making quick, hard-hitting Hatebreed's set remained solid, and while the rhythms may be simple, the sound is never boring, never tired and always strong:

own mix of breaking and slam dancing, which distinguishes them from the weaker N.Y.C., and Washington, D.C., scenes.

Performing handplants, splits and windmills, a sick choreography emerged that pitted dancers against one another. Their simultaneous kicks and chops kept the arena thin and strong, as only the craziest and toughest stepped up to the cresting circles. Shanahan culled the mass and the opposite side of the room from you.' their original positions.

him to his feet as he smiled and of bodies to the other end of the room, with Shanahan in control of the chaos. "Betrayed by Life" served to increase the adrenaline amidst the confusion. With some blood and soaking sweat, hands were held high, showing horns.

Between songs, Shanahan caught his breath, urging the crowd to look out for each other in the pit.

"I saw a lot of people go down," The Philly crowd showed-off its he said. "You gotta make sure your friends come back up."

Guitarists Lou Richards and Sean Martin led the band into "Not One Truth," and members of the crowd uniformly pushed into one another as Shanahan yelled for everyone to run in the circle.

The show's lone subdued point came before "Last Breath," when Shanahan remembered a close friend who died in 1997.

"You always need to remember those people," he said. "There are yelled for everyone to break out to some people who are always with

But as his words subsided, "Last Like some fierce and psychotic Breath" engaged the audience into a ous words.

The masses did not let up any energy, and in retaliation, the band weighed heavier on the crowd.

Hatebreed pushed through with tracks from the forthcoming "Scorched Earth Policy," and if Shanahan had told those on the balcony to jump, the energy of the show would have carried them down.

But never careless or self-destructive, the songs rang with empowerment as Hatebreed cut into "Before Dishonor." "I'll choose my own," the audience echoed back at the band. Shanahan: "I've got to fight."

Audience: "Fight.

Shanahan: "For myself. I'll choose my own in - what I hold so And with a crash, it ended.

Shanahan thanked the crowd, and the audience gave its loudest props of

Through hostile explorations, Hatebreed has built a reputation with the Philly audience. The band has yet to fail in its delivery of music and raw emotion, and on Friday, Hatebreed held the crowd's respect.

BLAIR

BY LURLEEN BLACK

He lurked behind the scenes and watched the creation of a documentary that only led to death. Now a witness to murder stands behind the podium - confessing what he saw into the microphone. "The Blair Witch Project" co-producer Mike rounding the cryptic movie Sunday night. The five members of Haxan Films production company got the "Blair Witch" idea from the television show "In Search Of" that portrayed fictional documentaries of people looking for false anom-

Monello responded to students' questions sur-

The group wanted to pursue this model, Monello said, but they were unsure of how to put it togeth-"We only knew that we wanted the movie to be about a witch and filmed in Maryland because of the witch myths there," he said at the Student Center Programming Advisory Board-sponsored So Haxan Films constructed the myth of the

"Blair Witch," and hoped to raise enough money to The group asked doctors and lawyers to fund the shooting of the project, but their requests were denied each time. Finally, their quest led them to John Pearson an investor in one of filmmaker Spike Lee's earlier projects as well as in the movie "Clerks."

Monello said Pearson gave the company $10,000 and helped them raise an additional

During the fundraising process, they were also searching for actors. They placed ads in magazines and narrowed their search from 250 applicants to three actors - Mike, Heather and Josh.

Monello said Josh was cast first, then Heather. At Heather's final audition, Josh was instructed to get in her face and try to break her down by belit-

Heather was the only female that stood up to he said. "That's when she saw the teeth and blood in the sack.

Mike Monello, the co-producer of "The Blair Witch Project" didn't lose his map to campus.

Josh, so she got the part, Monello said. Now with a cast and $28,000, it was time to film the movie. Monello and his crew took the actors to Burkittsville, Md., and began taping. The only scene actually shot in Burkittsville was the cemetery scene," he said. "The other scenes were shot in Seneca and Patapsco State Parks." During the eight days of shooting, Monello said many unexpected things happened.

one who was not originally intended to be in the Monello said the crew had strategically placed other actors around town but without the trio's

At one point, the three actors interviewed some-knowledge. He said the woman with the baby at the beginning of the mock documentary was not cast by the

"She just went along with the story," he said.

"Then we had to track her down to get her consent to be put in the movie.' Monello said the trio also threw the crew for a loop when the infamous bundle of sticks appeared outside of the tent. They expected Heather and Mike to open it, he said. But instead, Heather threw it to the side of the

"So we had to tell her to go back and open it up."

He said the producers wanted to allow the actors to fully delve into the roles so they tried to limit their contact with them. The actors were given details about their characters before the movie began production. He said once taping began, they received daily private notes, not to be shared with each other.

"When we took Josh out of the movie, the other two didn't know he was leaving," Monello said. "We just wrote for him to come outside of the tent when Mike and Heather went to sleep.

In addition to personalized notes, he said the actors also received portioned food. "They only brought enough food for two days,"

Monello said. "After that, they had to eat what we gave them." The actors were just given $20 for food shopping. But their diet of Skippy peanut butter and marshmallows did not last them long. "If you look at Mike and Heather closely, you can see that they were losing weight," he said.

'We gradually decreased their portions so that by the last day they were going off of an energy bar. "So when they said they were hungry, they real-

Though the actors had to go without a few meals, they are eating well now - the film has grossed more than $172 million to date.

Media Darling

Fashion police of the stars

If I were to wear a huge fur-lined overcoat and walk around with a cane, I would probably receive a good deal of deserved ridicule

If any of my friends were to attend a social function wearing a one-shouldered dress with only a small, sequined cup of fabric hiding one breast, she would be laughed out of town.

Excessive makeup, ridiculously cumbersome hair styles and ludicrous, unwieldy garments are all taunted if displayed by a mere commoner. Yet when a member of the elusive "celebrity" party touts their latest nightmarish fashion statement, no one gives it a second thought.

What gives famous actors, actresses and musicians the right to break every fashion rule worth following? Why does Pamela Lee get the privilege of wearing a big; fuzzy pink hat that would get most people pantsed?

Just imagine every luminary at the MTV Music Video Awards ceremony walking down Main Street on a Friday

"Hey, lady, nice hat! Are you saving some of that cotton candy for me?"

"Yo, buddy, just how many 'Hail Marys' are you gonna say with those gold crosses around your neck?"

'Can I make out with you?"

BY HEATHER GARLICH

case of Craig Lucas' "Reckless,"

some things are better than others.

the two-act play, performed by E-52

Student Theatre, kept the audience guessing — and trying to keep a straight face throughout the black

"Do you ever really know anybody?" seemed to be the question with which the audience grappled as well as the false perceptions and double (or even quadruple) identi-

Freshman Meredith Holzman portrays the innocent yet mentally anguished Rachel, who encompasses the quest for self-identity as she wanders through a past and present is the humor embedded within the intricate character development.

Rachel's perky naiveté and gift-forgab only evokes the true desperation of her persona — "The bubbles in champagne look like snowflakes

The guise of this tragic plot line ties of the characters.

of loss and deception.

at The Scrounge

comedy

Things just happen. And in the

The bizarre twists and turns of "Whoop whoop!" You get the idea. Granted, similar cretinous comments can be aimed at perfectly unassuming passers-by as well, but dressing by Hollywood's standards is just asking for all the wrong kind of attention. Even worse are the "clothing as art" monstrosities high society who seem to have nothing better to do than mine. spend tens of thousands of dollars on making asses of

I mean, who can put on a Victorian-meets-cubist corset and gown ensemble modeled after a bastardized British flag and not expect people to snicker behind their backs?

Why does Pamela Lee get the privilege of wearing a big, fuzzy pink hat that would get most people pantsed?

These stylistic felonies may be nothing more than an expression of power. Celine Dion may feasibly wake up one morning thinking to herself, "Hmm, big press junket today. I think I'll wear a dead rat around my neck -People magazine will rave about it tomorrow."

But sadly, many celebrities may actually think they are influencing the masses and adding to America's cultural

Perhaps they dream at night of adoring fans screaming in frustration, "Heaven grant that I might have an iota of the fashion sense possessed by Fred Durst!"

Well, folks, the jig is up. You haven't convinced me for flaunted in upper-crust fashion magazines by members of a second that your taste in clothing is a bit superior to

If your hair protrudes more than five inches up or to the side of your head, someone is laughing at you.

The same goes for hats — especially if they're pink, purple or green and resemble a rabbit's tail.

If you take every step in fear of stumbling over your Vegas-prostitute heels, someone is laughing at you. That goes double if you do trip and fall on your face.

Piercings are cool if you're an angsty teen-age goth, raver or gutter-punk. Otherwise, people are laughing at

And that quarter-inch line of fuzz tracing your jawbone? People are rolling in the streets when you're on TV. If you had to be sewn into your dress, you shouldn't be

If your shoes pinch your feet so badly that it's impossible to walk more than 100 feet at a time, you shouldn't be wearing them.

And as for dresses depicting the pixilated anatomy of their wearers - well, to each her own, I suppose.

There are exceptions to every rule, of course. If the fanciful get-up is essential to a piece of performance art, it's entirely excusable. Busta Rhymes looks good in anything, and The Artist can do whatever he wants and get away with it. Lil' Kim, however, is not exempt from the dictates of good taste, and Pamela Lee - well, I'm afraid the hat incident has killed any hope of reform.

Pretentious little fart, ain't he? Send comments, criticisms and death threats to carlosk@udel.edu.

Opening the doors to a better life

continued from page B1

The rules sound simple. No alcohol or drugs, no visitors, curfew is 10 p.m. and keep the house clean. But time and time again Bellamy has asked disorderly clients to

It has been a tough task because she has nothing but compassion for those' who lose their way. She knows that life's dealt them some rough blows.

"Some people are very easily knocked down," Bellamy says.

She recalls the most wrenching episode, when she realized that one woman was an alcoholic and unable to take care of her threeyear-old daughter and six-monthold infant.

One night the woman met Bellamy at the door in a frantic state, demanding a ride. "My car was stolen last night," she said. "You have to take me. I think I found it."

The woman assured Bellamy that a friend was watching her children, and the two set off on a long, fruitless search for the woman's car. When they returned to Martha House, Bellamy found the two children in an upstairs bedroom,

The mother then picked up her six-month-old. Bellamy recounts what happened next with disbelief.

THE REVIEW / Scott McAllister

would be at hand - and this is true formance is the multifaceted, or schizophrenic, sophomore Sarah

McCarron — she juggles the part of six psychiatrists with merely a costume change. The doctors range from a Freudian judge of dreams to a "self-help" Stuart Smalley-esque character. Ironically, McCarron

Rachel's dreams wielding a gun?

ly exist in the United States?

Who is the masked man haunting

Does Santa really stand for

How many Springfield's current-

Can you survive on champagne

Yes, all these questions and more are answered in a play full of derelicts, liars, shrinks, disjointed family values and a battle against fate.

The madness continues next weekend: Friday, Nov. 19 and Saturday, Nov. 20 adds sanity to the play.

alone?

Possibly the most comedic per-for all the "Reckless" folks.

"I hear thump. Drops the baby on the ground. I said, 'You need to go to bed right now.'

Bellamy discovered alcohol in the woman's bag and, although she was torn, she knew she had to call Child Protective Services to take custody of the children.

She still remembers hugging the three-year-old girl and telling her she would be OK

"And I'm trying to convince myself," Bellamy says. "Here's another child going into a foster home.'

Bellamy recalls another difficult day when she found out that one client hadn't managed to kick her drug habit even in the refuge of Martha House.

"She came down the steps, and she was naked. I said, 'Evelyn, what are you doing?' She was talking a mile a minute.'

Evelyn left and didn't come home that night. Bellamy later found she had stolen and sold one of the house's air conditioners to buy drugs.

"The next morning she was obviously going through withdrawal," Bellamy says with sadness. "We asked her to leave.'

Many others have followed Evelyn's path, she says, staying only briefly in Martha House before evaporating back into the streets of Wilmington.

A sprawling stack of unopened mail on the table shows how many have moved on, leaving no sign of where they've gone. Bellamy painstakingly writes "No forwarding address - return to sender" on every envelope, even the credit card offers.

But despite the piles of letters that tell the stories of women still wandering; Bellamy has stories of success as well.

She remembers one woman who fled an abusive husband in coming to Martha House, trying to be independent once again. One of her goals was to get her driver's license. The day she got it, her husband appeared outside of Martha House and put his hand on her car.

"You're not leaving," he said. But Bellamy's client disagreed. "I prayed to God, Gretchen, and stepped on the gas," she later told Bellamy.

Another woman with a success story to tell lives in Martha House II, a rowhouse a few minutes away.

The house is warm and cozy on this November day, blue-carpeted and smelling of a delicious justcooked dinner.

While the original Martha House has only spartan furnishings because it is leased from the Wilmington Housing Authority, its sister shelter is owned by the Short-Emergency Ministry, the foundation that runs both shelters.

Currently living in Martha House II is 29-year-old Tracy, a young-looking woman with smooth coiled hair, glasses and a broad white smile. Like many others, she came to Martha House to get herself and her children away from an abusive husband.

However, unlike many, she has had a steady job for 10 years, keying in ticket numbers at the Amtrak station. Even better, Bellamy says, her co-workers are working to renovate a house for Tracy and her twin two-year-olds to live in. This evening Tracy is relaxing in front of the television after a long day's work. When Bellamy arrives, Tracy's daughter Lexi comes toddling down the stairs, braids askew, clutching Tinky Winky in one tiny fist and Pooh Bear in the other. She runs into Bellamy's arms while Tracy looks on with an indulgent

"All day, she was like, 'Mommy, I want Gretchen!' "Tracy says. Bellamy laughs. "I missed you all day," she tells Lexi. "I missed you too.

"You knew I was coming

"Uh-huh!" Lexi says, waving her Teletubby in her excitement. They play a few games of ring-aroundthe-rosie in the living room, Bellamy, Tracy, Lexi and Tinky Winky all joining hands.

"Ashes, ashes, we all fall down!" Lexi chants, laughing uncontrollably as she tumbles on the floor. Her head comes perilously close to the sharp edge of the table, but Bellamy swiftly lifts her up for a hug and another game.

The Martha Houses won't have her strong and gentle hands helping out for too much longer. Bellamy graduates in January and plans to enter the Peace Corps soon after.

But even when she's on the other side of the world from Wilmington, Bellamy's presence will always be felt in Martha House.

Names of Martha House clients have been changed to protect them from former abusers.

Knowing is half the battle

continued from page B1

Cryptorchidism accounts for 14 percent of all instances of testicular cancer, he says. About 75 percent of these cases develop in the testicle that doesn't complete the drop.

Roeney says currently no prevention exists for the cancer, which usually invades just one of the testicles and can sprout from several areas.

If detected early enough, testicular cancer is not life threatening, but examinations must be routine to be effective, says Adam Siegal of the National Coalition of Cancer Survivorship.

"Almost always you notice a lump, but it may not be painful," he says, adding that self-examinations should be monthly. "But sometimes you can't detect it until an advanced stage."

The symptoms become more apparent as the cancer grows. Lower back pain is among the first signs that the cancer has invaded other parts of the body. "If it spreads to the lungs, you'll start to notice things like shortness of breath and a persistent cough, maybe even a bloody cough," Siegal says. "But you can never know. Only a doctor can make a diagnosis. "The key is going to him as soon as you feel concerned. If it turns out to be nothing, your mind can be put to ease. If not, hopefully it's still early.

If the cancer is caught before it spreads, he says, treatment typically includes removal of the testicle and minimal chemotherapy.

"In the early stages, recovery is around 95 percent," he says. "The longer it's allowed to develop, the smaller the hopes of recovery.' Unlike other cancers, the testicular variety is sensitive to cisplatin — a "novel, potent and very toxic drug," stated Harvard professor of medicine Jerome

Groopman in a New York Times column in July Side effects of cisplatin are harsh, he explained, including prolonged nausea and damage to the nerves and kidneys.

But it gets the job done.

First developed in the late '70s by Dr. Lawrence Einhorn of Indiana University, he says, cisplatin treatment led to the miraculous recovery of Lance Armstrong, this year's winner of the Tour de France, after being diagnosed with the cancer three years

No one knows the reason this treatment is effective for only testicular malignancies, Siegal says.

"It works for some reason," he says. "That seems to satisfy the people I work with and their families and friends.

The disease has also gained recent exposure in the film industry. In "Fight Club," Meat Loaf plays a testicular cancer survivor who develops breasts after he has the diseased testicle removed. But Siegal says recovering victims of the cancer usually retain their sexual capabilities, even with only one testicle. "People with the cancer usually have problems with fertility to begin with," he says. "Radiation does a good job at killing cancer, but it also kills healthy

"The deciding factor is timeliness - the sooner you catch it, the better." Gallaher says he fears foolish pride could cause some college-aged men to push thoughts of testicular cancer aside, viewing it as a threat to their masculin-"It's nothing to be ashamed of," Gallaher says.

"Everyone should be aware of it. If you choose to ignore it, ignore it "But it could get you later."

at 8 p.m. in the Pearson if you turn your head upside-down," obnoxiously well, and is even she giggles. accompanied by "Vanna," played Auditorium. Admission is Rachel's marriage to Tom, by freshman Bess Matassa. $4 for students and $5 for played by sophomore Jason Wolf, With all the murder and confuturns to absurdity when he admits the general public. sion bombarding the fragile characthe unthinkable to his wife on ters, one would think a therapist

Rachel (Meredith Holzman), Lloyd (Michael Bogucki) and Pooty (Tiolina Pistilli) perform in

E-52 ways to act 'Reckless'

Wolf is believable as the troubled husband with bad timing. And his tragic thoughts of murder are masked by the pure absurdity of his from their pasts, but probably the most tragically nonsensical is

Lloyd, played by freshman Michael out on his wife and a brain-damaged child, who he ran over with a snow

Lloyd is a deadbeat dad, walking

To further the lie, Lloyd marries

"The past is a nightmare you

The story progresses into a mis-matching and intertwining of lives,

as the characters sort out their situations by going on a game show and a talk show - but apparently the

the game show host, Tim Timko,

Sophomore Seth Stocking plays

stakes are too high for some.

a paraplegic woman named Pooty

(freshman Tiolina Pistilli), who is presumably deaf, in order for him to make up for his previous actions.

wake up to every day," he says.

All the characters are running reasoning and frenzied gestures.

the theater groups' latest production, which continues through next weekend.

Christmas Eve.

Bogucki.

blower while drunk.

For $1,000,000: Mosaic, the features and entertainment section of The Review, a) publish every Wednesday and Thursday b) regularly runs reviews of Open Mic Night cl knows a lot about RATM and 311 d) has too much time on their hands

Classifieds

Call Us! 831-2771

Classified Ad Rates

University Rates (students, faculty, staff): $2 first 10 words $0.30 each add'l word

Local Rates: $5 first 10 words $ 0.30 each add'l word

-University rates are for personal use only

-All rates are per insertion

-Sorry, cash and checks only, we do not accept credit cards

Specials

Bold: one time $2 Charge

Boxing: one time $5 charge

Discounts

A 10% discount is given to those ads which meet both of the following criteria:

1. min. 20 words

2. min. 10 insertions

Deadlines

For Tuesday's issue: Friday at 3 p.m. For Friday's issue: Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Place Your Ad

1. Mail your ad with a check payable to The Review to: The Review 250 Academy St. Newark, DE 19716

2. Stop by our office in the Perkins Student Center during business hours

Business Hours

Monday....10am-5pm Tuesday... 10am-3pm Wednesday. 10am-5pm Thursday...10am-5pm Friday.....10am-5pm

Call Us!

(302) 831-2771

Interested in Display Advertising?

Call (302) 831-1398 for more information!

Remember! Check out your classified ad on our website!

www.review.udel.edu

Your classified ad will be placed on our website at no extra cost!

Not only will your ad be seen by the Newark community, UD students, staff, faculty, and other subscribers, but also by anyone who has access to the web!

Advertising Policy

The Review reserves the tight to refuse any ads that are of an improper or inappropriate time, place and manner, The ideas and opinions of advertisements appearing in this publication are not necessarily those of the Review staff or the University. Questions, comments, or input may be directed to the advertising department at The Review.

For Sale

1987 Honda Elite Scooter. Excellent Condition. $2,500 FIRM-Call 453-1915 Afternoon, lv. Message.

FURNITURE: Love seats, one a sleeper, apt-size refrigerator, end tables, lamps 731-5859.

Roommates

Looking for roommate Ivy Hall Apt. For winter or spring. Call Thomas 731-1115.

Ph.d. student needs pet friendly sublet winter term. 831-8416, 850-576-2068.

for Rent

Tow very nice 3 brm townhouses avail. 1/1/00. Please do not call unless you are available 1/1/00. 740-3391. Starting at $950.00.

1 completely NEW Furnished 2 B.R. Apt. and I New Un-Furnished on MAIN STREET- For details- Please Call 368-4749

One & Two Bedroom Apartments, Private Entrance, Close to UD. Pets Welcome. 368-2357

Foxcroft 1 BR 2 Floor Walk. Distance to UD. Gail 456-9267.

Rooms in renovated Madison Drive Townhouse- W/D, DW, AC., full use of house- $250-270 & utilities- Available Immediately- NO lease John Bauscher 454-8698

Three Bedroom/ One Bath, Half Duplex. All appliances including washer/dryer. Three person permit. Off Main St. $825 month + utilities. Available 1/1/2000, 731-5734.

lelp Wanted

Cashiers- part-time nights and weekends. apply in person State Line Liquors

School Age Childcare Staff needed for before/ after school programs. Immediate opening P.T. M-F, 7-9 and/or 2:30-6:00. Fun, rewarding hands on work. Bear/ Glasgow YMCA, 832-7980.

The Friends of Newark Free Library are holding their "once a year" NEW BOOK SALE at the Library in Newark on Sat., Nov. 20, from 10am - 5pm and Sun, Nov. 21 from 1pm - 5pm. Everything is 30% to 70% off list prices. Profits will benefit the library.

Delaware Academy of Science Annual Fall Meeting Wed., Nov, 17th, 7:30-9:30pm in 214 Brown Laboratory. Topic: "An Overview of Desalination for Municipal Applications"; Speaker: Richard O. Myers, Jr., Account Manager DuPont Permasep Division

Hey Basketball Fans!

Don't miss the Blue Hen's

first game of the season

Airing LIVE on

Help Wanted

$ Quick Cash $ Figure Modeling! $30 an hour and up! Must be 18! Call 302-283-1367

Spring Break Reps Needed! Free materials provided. Earn easy $$, travel for free! 1-800-367-1252 or www.springbreakdirect.com

MANAGE A BUSINESS ON YOUR CAMPUS

Versity.com an Internet notetaking company is looking for an entrepreneurial student to run our business on your campus. Manage students, make tons of money, excellent opportunity! Apply online at www.versity.com, contact Jobs@versity.com, or call (734) 483-1600 ext.888.

WWW.DAFFYDELI.COM

Wanted - waiters and waitresses, fast cash. 11am - 3pm M-F. No experience necessary must have own wheels. Call Bottlecaps 427-9119 (Tim). Cocktail shifts also

FREE TRIPS AND CASH!!! SPRING BREAK 2000 StudentCity.com is looking for Highly Motivated Students to promote Spring Break 2000! Organize a small group and travel FREE!! Top campus reps can earn Free Trips & over $10,000! Choose Cancun, Jamaica or Nassau! Book trips On-Line Log In and win FREE STUFF. Sign Up Now On Line! www.StudentCity.com or 800/293-1443

Childcare Needed in our Newark home for 5 & 3 yr. Olds. Some days, some evenings as needed. Exc. Pay, Own Trans. & Ref. Required. 369-8454.

PAID INTERNSHIPS! AVERAGE SUMMER EARNINGS OVER $6000 "Don't Get A Summer Job ..... Run A Summer Business' WWW.TUITIONPAINTERS.COM

Email...tuipaint@bellsouth.net

1(800) 393-4521

Orienteering at White Clay Creek Park

Sunday, November 21, rain or shine. Registration and start times from 10am to 1pm. Instruction available for beginners, all ages and abilities welcome! Call Tom Overbaugh at 368-8168 for more information.

There is an e-mail message advertising a money-making scheme from AOL and Microsoft. This is a scam. Users who forward this will be charged with violating the University's Responsible Computing Policy and will face serious

Help Wanted

Security Officers Full & Part time sec. Offs needed for Newark area. Excellent weekly pay. Apply in person: Tower Office Park, 242 N. James St. Ste 205, Newport, or call 302-636-0780.

Be Your Own Boss. Make Your Own Hours. Join AVON 454-1436.

A pharmaceutical research laboratory. Located in New Castle Corporate Commons, is looking for part-time student interns for their future full-time associate scientist positions. Must be mature, dependable, motivated, and organized, with strong academic performance. Senior in Chemistry/ Medical Technology/ Science major preferred. MS Office and networking skills a plus. Salary: $8 to $9.5 per hour. Call Avantix Laboratories at 302-322-9900 or email to shuml@dpnet.com/lmanning@udel.edu Certified Financial Planner whose broker dealer is a Fortune 500 Company, seeking Intern fir 10-20 hrs/week, $6/hr, Finance, Business, Computer majors preferred.

SALES/FRONT DESK PERSON WANTED. FLEXIBLE HOURS- MUST HAVE SALES EXPERIENCE + CUSTOMER SERVICE EXPERIENCE. IF YOU ARE AGGRESSIVE, CHEERFUL + EFFICIENT, CALL WOMEN IN MOTION 737-3652.

AEROBIC INSTRUCTOR WANTED-AM + PM CLASS. MUST BE EXPERIENCED + CERTIFIED. CALL WOMEN IN MOTION 737-3652.

Staff needed. FT + PT, for beautiful bright horizons childcare center in Newark. Experience and related classes preferred. Call Mary Neal, 738-4500.

Announcements

Desktop Services - Word Processing, Editing, Papers, Resumes, Reports, Theses, Graphics, Advertising, Flyers & Brochures, Presentations. Via E-mail, FAX, pr pickup/delivery. Quick-Experienced-Reliable. Rush service available. Stargazer, Inc. P: 302-454-9468 F: 320-454-7461 E: kbtrd@erols.com

Cathedral of St. Peter Holiday Bazaar Nov. 20th, 9-7 & Nov 21, 9-2 6th & Tatnall Streets Raffles, Hand Made Crafts, Silent Auction, Country Kitchen, General Store, Sports Raffles, Santa, and more! Call 654-5920 for more info.

Wed., Dec. 1, is the date for the Annual Cookie Pack of Church Women United and Prison Fellowship Ministies. Home baked cookies are to be delivered to Peniel United Methodist Chirch, 115 Market St., Newport, by 10am and packing will begin immediately. For additional information, please contact Sunny Gauger 994-3190 or Fay Whittle 731-1884.

The Sports and Athletics Section of the New Castle County Department of Community Services is now accepting registrations for the Teen Indoor Box Lacrosse League. The season will run from Dec 4 - Feb 27. For more info,

The Sports and Athletics Section of the New Castle County Department of Community Services is now accepting registration for the Adult Indoor Soccer League. The season will run from Nov 29 - early March. For more information call 573-2043.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICES TELEPHONE COMMENT LINE Call the "comment line" with questions, comments, and/or suggestions about our services, 831-4898.

EDITING Teacher will fix errors in your papers, theses, web pages. Also custom resumes, letters, business cards, Easy! Send work through e-mail. Fast! Rush service available Cheap! $2/page for proofreading. 302-234-9258

Free CD of cool indie music when you register at mybytes.com, the ultimate website for your college needs.

FREE Sleeper Sofa. Good Condition, You Must Pick Up. Call 302-454-0264.

Affordable Typing Service. FAST. ACCURATE. Call: Rosemary 738-9020

"Champagne, limos, VIP rooms, and AK 47's," The life of a philly2nite.com college ren. If interested, fax resume/ cover letter to (215) 557-9049. Free tickets to concerts and events in Philadelphia and great Internet start-up experience. Application deadline December 1.

Browse icpt.com for ALL Springbreak "2000" hotspots. Need Student Orgs. and Sales Reps. Fabulous parties, hotels, prices. Call Inter-Campus 800-327-6013.

CHESS Tuesdays 8-10p.m. Trabant Food Court. Email: debido@udel.edu

Spring Break Specials! Bahamas Party Cruise 5 Days $279! Includes Meals! Awesome Beaches, Nightlife! Cancun & Jamaica 7 Nights From $399! Florida $129! springbreaktravel.com 1-800-678-6386

SPRING BREAK 2000' Largest Selection of Spring Break Destinations, including Cruises! Foam Parties, Free Drinks and Club Admissions. Rep Positions and Free Trips available. Epicurean Tours 1-800-231-4-FUN

PREGNANT? LATE AND WORRIED? Pregnancy testing, options counseling and contraception available through the Student Health Service GYN Clinic. For information or an appointment, call 831-8035. Monday through Friday 8:30-12 and 1:00-4:00. CONFIDENTIAL SERVICES.

Thanksgiving International Folk & Square Dance, Wed., Nov 24th, at Arden Gild Hall, Arden, DE. Bring a dessert to share, 7:30-10:30 pm, $5, Alligator Au Go Go Dance Party, Sun, Nov 21st at Arden Gild Hall, Arden, DE. Zydeco, Cajun, Swing, 2-Step, and Cajun Waltz Dancing. Zydeco Lessons from 3-4 pm, dance from 4-7 pm, $10, 478-7257.

Christmas Bazaar Fri. Nov. 19, through Sun. Nov. 21 at Saint Gertrude's Monastery, Rt 312, Ridgely, MD 21660 Call 410-634-2497 for info.

Caution!

Many spring break companies are created to bilk students out of their vacation money. These companies exist only long enough to receive advance payments and then dissolve before delivering "the goods". Other inscrupulous travel companies promise lavish accommodations and deliver far less. The Review does not have the means to differentiate between honest, reputable companies and "fly-by-night" advertisers. Please research all Spring Break offers carefully, and contact liniversity Towns of the contact liniversity Indiana li University Travel at 831-4321 (Trabant Univ. Center) for a flyer which lists safe and legitimate tours. The Review wishes our readers a fun and safe Spring Break.

nnouncements

Ann's Typing Service. Papers, Reports, Presentations, Spreadsheets. 434-0685.

ACT NOW! CALL FOR THE BEST SPRING BREAK PRICES! SOUTH PADRE, CANCUN, JAMAICA, BAHAMAS, ACAPULCO, FLORIDA & MARDI GRAS. REPS NEEDED. . TRAVEL FREE EARN $$$. DISCOUNTS FOR 6+. 800-838 8203 WWW.LEISURETOURS.COM

Wanted: 29 People to lose 30 lbs. In 30 days 100% Natural & Guaranteed 1-888-764-5573

1 SPRINGBREAK operator! Check our website for the best deals! www.vagabondtours.com Cancun, Jamaica & Florida. Group Organizers EARN FREE TRIPS & CASH... Call today! 800-700-0790.

Need $$$$$ for your Team, Club, Fraternity or Sorority? Earn $1000-2000+ with easy CIS Fund-Raiser event. Groups love it because there's no sales involved. Dates are filling up, so call today! 1-888-522-4350

EARN FREE TRIPS AND CASH!!!! CANCUN* *JAMAICA* For 10 years Class Travel International (CTI) has distinguished itself as the most reliable student event and marketing organization in North America Motivated Reps can go on Spring Break FREE & earn OVER SS 10,000 SS Contact Us today for details! 800/328/1509

FREE BABY BOOM BOX + EARN $1200! Fundraiser for student groups & organizations. Earn up to $4 per MasterCard app. Call for info or visit our website. Qualified callers receive a FREE Baby Boom Box 1-800-932-0528 ext. 119 or ext. 125 www.ocmconcepts.com

www.classtravelintl.com

SPRING BREAK SPECIAL!! Cancun, Jamaica, Nassau

14 FREE MEALS

32 Hours of free drinks 150% Price Guarantee

Reserve Early, Don't be Left Out! www.studentcity.com

1-800-293-1443

Volunteers Needed! Euraupair is an au pair cultural exchange program, seeking volunteers to help us promote and administer our well-respected program in your community. If you are energetic, positive, and love interacting with people of all ages and nationalities, please call Coordinator Leslie Shaw at 1-800-901-2002. Look for us on the web at www.Euraupair.com

The best new movies.

Plus some of your old favorites. Picked each month by YOU.

Only on SLTV

Channel 49

Turn Us On

Announcements

"OUCH! Problems with roommates or landlords hurting you? Want to resolve disputes so you can focus on more important things? Alternative dispute resolution is available, and it works! Call Bruce at 368-9374, or Lauren at 837-3021.

WANTED SPRING BREAK 2000 Campus Reps. Cancun, Mazatlan, Acapulco, Jamaica & S. Padre. Earn FREE trips + cash. Call 1-800-SURFS UP ext. 104 or 122

#1 Spring Break Vacations! Cancun, Jamaica, Bahamas, Florida. Best Prices Guaranteed! Free Parties & Cover charges! Book Early & Receive Free Meal Plan! Now Hiring Campus Reps! 1-800-234-7007 www.endlesssummertours.com

SPRING BREAK! Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Florida & South Padre. Call USA Spring Break for a free brochure and rates and ask how you can EAT, DRINK & TRAVEL FOR FREE! 1-888-777-4642 www.usaspringbreak.com

GO DIRECT! #1 Internet-based company offering WHOLESALE Spring Break packages! Guaranteed Lowest Price! 1-800-367-1252 www.springbreakdirect.com

SPRING BREAK 2000 ree Trips, Free Drinks, Free Meal Jamaica, Cancun, Florida, Barbados, Bahams Book now for Free Meals & 2 Free Trips Book by December 17th for Lowest Rates Book by December 17th for Lowest Raies 1-809-426-7710 www.sunsplashtours.com

SPRING BREAK "2000"

Organize Spring Break Vacation Packages to Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Barbados, South Padre Island, and a Spring Break Cruise

HIGHEST COMMISSION-LOWEST PRICES Travel FREE!!!

Check out our amazing PARTY PROGRAM & MEAL DEALS MTV's Choice (Cancun 1999 Spring Break Party Program)

Celebrating our 14th year in business. 1-800-964-TRIP (8747)

Call Balloon Travel

www.balloontravel.com

TRIKKIWIKKIT & FRIENDS at Arden Gild Hall, Arden, DE. French & Breton Music & Dance, Fri., Nov 19th 8-10pm, no dancing experience necessary, $700, (302) 478-7257.

Rent a Brand New '2000 Vehicle for LESS! No hassle- FREE shuttle and University of Delaware Free mileage with NO travel restrictions service throughout Newark

- Min. age to rent is 21! Wide selection of cars, trucks, SUV's & passenger
- Bring this ad in for Additional Savings

368-5950

Turn Us On! SLTV Channel 49

silicom valley

amd

hollywood

Buimped uglies

meet their love child

digital entertainment at www.den.net

inside

- The women's rowing team enjoys a successful weekend
- · Cross country winds down
- Atlantic 10 football stats

....see pages C2 and C3

Sportstuesday

On November 16, 1957, a new NBA rebound record

This date in sports history was set by Bill Russell of Boston who grabbed 49 boards in a Celtics win.

November 16, 1999 • C1

Commentary

LAUREN PELLETREAU

The positive effects of an injury

t happens at the end of every sports season. We, as sports fans, see athletes that have been sitting on the bench or the sidelines all season in a new light.

Bench-warmers and statisticians no longer — they shed their warm-up jackets and become part of the action.

This is often the case when key players are forced out of action due to injuries and the lesser-knowns are called upon to step up.

They're suddenly part of the game. Concerned coaches and fans alike have no choice but to consider these new faces as they look ahead to the next season.

And what will it be like? Who will fill-in the voids left by irreplaceable seniors who graduate and move on?

Which returning players will we count on to lead our favorite teams through their heavy schedules in the fall of 2000?

In taking a look at that question, several instances from the Hens' fall sports season come to mind.

In recent weeks the football team has given the Delaware faithful a glimpse of who to look for in the com-

The Pinckney brothers, Mike and Mondeario, have been playing side-byside in the past few games because of the injuries suffered by a number of the Hens' leading defenseman.

Along with the rest of the Delaware defense, the two held the many-faced New Hampshire offense to only 10 points, all of which were in the first

In Saturday's Atlantic 10 contest against Rhode Island, junior halfback Derrick Downs gave everyone a little

"head's up." Downs, last season's leading rusher for the Hens, who averaged 6.8 yards per carry and 49.9 yards per game, came out to play and to run the ball. Downs has taken on a lesser role this season due to sophomore halfback Butter Pressey's commanding performance on the ground.

However, Pressey was suffering from bursitis in his left knee this weekend and the coaching staff decided to rest their leading rusher, using him sparingly against the Rams, and saving him for the upcoming contest against Villanova.

Saturday, Downs carried for 169 yards on 11 carries — returning to the familiar role of leading the Delaware's ground attack.

Neither will graduate after this season, so no one has to worry about who will carry the ball for the Hens except the rest of the A-10.

With the Pressey and Downs combination, Delaware should be able to run the ball up and down the gridiron without too many hassles. The forecast certainly looks good for next season's ground attack.

Barely into their schedule, similar situations have come up for the Hens on the hardwood.

The men's basketball team released a statement on Nov. 9 saying that senior guard John Gordon, who earned allconference honors last season, will be out for the next four to six weeks due to a partial fracture in his left foot.

Now, junior transfer Billy Wells will be forced to magnify his role on the court, attempting to make up for Gordon's absence.

After the Delaware native went down early in the exhibition game, Wells stepped up with 27 points in the winning effort.

Wells had already established his role as a Delaware starter, but will now take on an even larger responsibility without Gordon in the mix. These examples just prove that a changing of the guard will happen - as it does every season, in every sport. Somebody younger, or someone with a lesser-recognized face will appear on the grass or on the hardwood, announcing their arrival to all the fans sitting in the stands waiting for the next hero.

Lauren Pelletreau is a sports editor for The Review. Send your comments to Iray@udel.edu.

Delaware dominant in shutout

Hens put forth strongest showing of season against Rhode Island

BY ROBERT NIEDZWIECKI

Juniors Derrick Downs and James O'Neal combined for 310 vards rushing and three touchdowns to key the Delaware football team's 35-0 victory over the University of Rhode Island Saturday at Delaware Stadium.

In the Hens most dominating effort of the season, they out-gained the Rams 552-215 in total yards to establish a season-high. Delaware racked up 391 yards on the ground in its top rushing game of the Hens

The game drew 17,227 fans to assure a new attendance record for the Hens. The team averaged 20,073 fans a game this season, breaking the mark of 19,719 set in 1981.

Before the game was even 35 minutes old, Delaware had scored all of the contest's 35 points. As a result, the reserves were able to receive a significant amount of playing time, which Hens head coach Tubby Raymond said was overdue.

"There have been two or three games we've played where the starters have been sloppy and don't get the job done," he said, "and our depth doesn't get to

"Consequently, when you get to this stage of the season, [the back-ups] are not nearly as good as they could be. We've always been hoping for a chance where we could play everybody. It's great for morale, it's great for your depth, it's great for your growth.

Though Rhode Island started the game off in promising fashion, it did not take long for the Hens to kill the Rams' momen-

Rhode Island took the ball to the Delaware 22-yard line after advancing 44 yards in eight plays, but freshman kicker Ryan Szczesniak booted a 39-yard field goal wide right at the 10:29 mark of the first quarter.

The Hens took over at the 22yard line. On second-and-10, senior quarterback Brian Ginn pass toward the right

FOOTBALL

Rams

sideline just over the hands of a Rams defender to junior halfback Craig Cummings, who ran to the Rhode out of bounds on the right side to make it third-and-11 two plays later, Delaware tried the option again on the next play, this time with success. Downs took a pitch to the left and found enough daylight to gain 13 yards and a first into the end zone from three yards out by fighting his way through defenders on the left side of the line. Senior kicker Garon Sizemore tacked on the extrapoint for a 7-0 lead. Following the first of redshirt freshman of the second quarter.

Island 18-yard line for 35 a 60-yard gain. Though Ginn fumbled an option pitch down. Two plays later, Downs ran linebacker Dan Mulhern's three interceptions, the Hens added to their lead at 14:22

Ginn completed a 12-yard pass to sophomore split end Brett Veach in the seam of the end zone to complete the nine-play, 34-

THE REVIEW/Mike Louie

Sophomore split end Brett Veach slips the grasp of Rams cornerback Brandon Bradshaw in the Hens' 35-0 shutout of Rhode Island.

yard drive. Sizemore's point-after attempt pushed the lead to 14-0. Of Mulhern's three interceptions, none required acrobatics.

"They threw the ball right to him," Raymond said. "It looked like he had the wrong shirt on."

With 9:24 remaining in the half, Delaware found itself pushed back to its own 6-yard line following a

O'Neal immediately got the Hens some breathing room when he took a handoff from Ginn, broke a tackle at the line, and rumbled 69 yards down to the Rhode Island 25-yard line.

Four plays later, Veach scored his second touchdown of the game on an end-around from nine yards out, squeezing past defenders into the left corner of the end zone. The

see HENS page C3

Commentary Matthew Steinmetz

Going into Saturday's game against the University of Rhode Island, things looked bleak for the Delaware football

After their solid 60 minute performance, however, the Hens' prospects are suddenly looking up.

Backed into a corner by three losses in four games earlier in the season, Delaware has been hanging onto its playoff life in recent weeks. Three consecutive wins against the Atlantic 10 Conference's inferior teams have the Hens right back in the hunt.

The squad stormed through the Northeast earlier this month, defeating Northeastern and New Hampshire before returning home to face the Rams on Saturday.

head coach Tubby Raymond called "the best we've played this year," the Hens playoff hopes are alive.

Saturday's 35-0 win was Delaware's first shutout since a 14-0 victory over William and Mary in 1997.

But more than that, it strengthened the No. 22-ranked Hens' case for a playoff berth. The team suddenly finds itself one impressive win away from the postseason. It won't come easy though, with rival Villanova standing in Delaware's

The Wildcats will also be putting it all on the line Saturday, following a loss to Youngstown State that significantly reduced their chances of playing in

see DELAWARE page C3

Weekend win has Hens headed to postseason play

BY ADRIAN BACOLO

Staff Reporter The culmination of a 32-game season reaped a true reward as the Delaware women's vollevball team overpowered Drexel University to clinch the No. 4 seed in the America East semifinals on Saturday. The Hens were never seriously threatened as they defeated the Dragons 3-0 (15-5, 15-10, 15-

"We just overpowered them," Delaware head coach Barbara Viera said. "We beat Drexel fairly easily - we dominated them.' Junior middle back Jennifer Wanner echoed Viera's feelings on the Hen's win over the 'We came out really strong," she said. Between attacking and passing, everyone contributed and we beat them soundly in three "It's great because it means we played on our terms.

Wanner said she was excited by the triumph, especially considering the squad suffered a teamrecord seven-game losing streak earlier in the

"It's a great thing to know you've made it to the championships," Wanner said. "It's a clean slate now - it doesn't matter who won [more

"We can play fresh, like it's a brand-new sea-

On Sunday, Delaware went up to Hempstead, N.Y., to confront Hofstra University, who, the Hens would ultimately lose to 3-1 (15-9, 15-12, 11-15, 15-7). Delaware will have a rematch against the top-seeded Flying Dutchmen Wednesday in the America East semifinals.

The America East Tournament takes place on the Hofstra campus. The Hens compete against the Flying Dutchmen at 5:30 p.m., with the No. 2 seed University of New Hampshire confronting No. 3 Northeastern University that same day. Winners of Wednesday's semifinal game will duke it out Saturday for representation in the NCAA Tournament.

After Hoftra's convincing victory, Wanner said she is sure the Flying Dutchmen will take a formidable stance, but is confident in Delaware's chances for success.

A strong component of Hofstra's win Sunday was the performance by their middle hitter Enkeledja Katiraj, who led the Dragons with 18

THE REVIEW/Scott McAllister

Junior defensive specialist Heather Ness digs a ball off the hardwood for Delaware in a match held last week against Towson University.

"Hofstra is a strong team and their middle hitter hurt us bad," Wanner said. "We know we didn't play our best, but it's comforting knowing that when we do, [we can beat the Flying Dutchmen]."

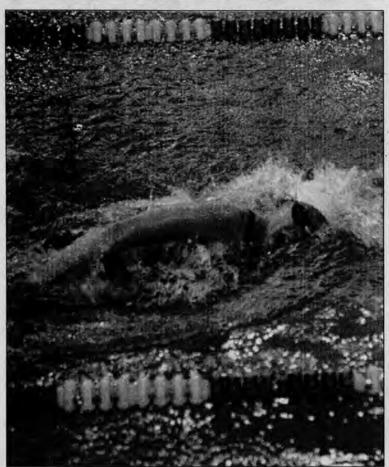

Though Katiraj played solidly, Viera said she posed little threat to the Hens."

They're beatable and we just need to block better than we did," she said. "We shut her down." Aside from blocking, Wanner said even Delaware struggled in particular with moving the

"Our passing wasn't as good," she said. "And when your passing isn't working, you can't execute vour offense.'

Wanner said that the team will achieve its ultimate success by maximizing its potential.

"We struggled, but now we're unified more as a team, and it is that team attitude that will make us," she said. "When we step it up, Hofstra is going to get a little surprise. They'll see what we can do."

THE REVIEW/Scott McAllister

Delaware's men's and women's swimming and diving teams succumbed to a talented West Chester group on Saturday.

swimming gets swept BY NICK ALLEN meets so far this season.

Staff Reporte

Kyle Almony captured three events and Megan Straehle earned two firstplace finishes to lead the West Chester University men's and women's swimming and diving teams to victories over Delaware Saturday at West Chester.

The Rams' men defeated the Hens 162-81, while the West Chester women were victorious by a score of 132-111. Almony won the 1,000-yard freestyle, 200 yard-butterfly and the 500-yard SWIMMING freestlye. Straehle captured the 200-yard freestyle and the 200-yard fly events. Men's and women's Hens swimming head coach John Hayman said both Delaware teams (1-1) lost to quality

Hens opponents. The teams we faced Rams were West Chester's best in the past 30 years, if not in their history,"

Hayman, a West Chester graduate, knew what to expect from the swimmers from his Alma mater. But he said he was pleasantly surprised with how the Hens performed, considering the team has only competed in three regular season

"I have no major disappointments with the team," Hayman said. "Even though we didn't stay close with West Chester throughout the meet like I had hoped, everyone swam faster than I thought was possible this early in the sea-

Despite the team's progress, Hayman admitted some additional advances need to be made in the teams' development throughout the season, Hayman said. "Our [200-yard butterfly] needs some work on the men's side," he said, "and the women need to extend their endurance for the long 162 distance races. "Overall, our relays aren't where they could be, but that will change as we go 132 through the season and find out who is the strongest."

Junior Luke Schenck, who finished second in the 1,000-yard freestyle, said he was happy with the performance of the team as well as his own, though he said he still has room for improvement.

"This is the best everyone has done all season," he said. "I still need to work a bit on my turns and some fundamentals."

For the women, senior Tanya Mainville won the one and three-meter diving events with 220.85 and 239.40 points respectively.

Despite the victories, Mainville said she wasn't satisfied with her execution. "I didn't do my best," she said. "I have been playing it safe too much, and will need to get my confidence back for the next meet against Drexel [University]." There is one dive in particular Mainville said she must improve on.

"My hardest dive is the reverse twoand-a-half tuck," she said. "I need to practice that harder.' Hayman said the team takes dual meets seriously, but keeps its true attention on the America East Conference championships. "Swimming isn't like other sports." he said. "We focus on the conference championship at the end of the regular "It's not that we don't care about the dual meets, because we do. It is like boxing where you only fight once or twice a year for the belt.' The men's and women's swimming and diving teams take to the water against Drexel Saturday for a 1 p.m.

finish at Regionals

BY VICKI CAREY

Staff Report Competing at the NCAA Regionals at Lehigh University Saturday, the Delaware women's cross country team placed 10th and the men's team placed

None of the Hens qualified for the NCAA Championships.

"For us, it was a very good performance," said Susan McGrath-Powell, the Delaware women's head coach. "It is the second highest finish we have ever had at the university.'

Senior captain Caron Marra, who placed 41st at regionals, has led the Hens in every race this season. She said the women's team performed well.

"Everybody who ran, ran a best time," she said. "We were really pleased ending in the top 10."

Marra said one of the keys to the squad's success was the experience provided by its seasoned runners.

"The key was experience," she said. "There were almost 200 runners, so having a strategy helped you have a better race.'

McGrath-Powell said this meet was a positive step that will lead to greater accomplishments in the future.

"This team wants to get better," she said. 'I'm happy with what they have done, but satisfied - never." Marra did not compete at this nieet last year due to injuries, but that did not stop her this year. had an undiagnosed hip injury which kept me out for two seasons," she said. "But I ran the hardest race I could have. I ran my fastest race ever. I'm happy that I made it this far and I ended on a high note.' Delaware men's head coach Jim Fischer said the team put forth a strong effort, but a lack of seasoning caused it to fall short of its goals.

"I think it was a learning experience," he said. "I really think we were about the 13th or 14th best team in the Senior captain Mike DiGennaro, who placed 41st, said competing against a large field of runners will benefit the team.

"This was the biggest meet any of us have been in," he said. "The experience will help us learn how to run strategy

Fischer said the experience gained this year will make the seasons to come

They have to step it up another notch to be competitive," he said. "We had a really solid year." Senior Robb Munro finished 129th out of 178. He missed five practices due to tendonitis before the regional meet. "It was an awful lot of down time," Munro said. "But if I didn't take it, I would not have been able to finish my race." While he was looking for a better finish for the squad, Munro said he was proud of the underclassmen who competed.

"We were hoping to do a little better than we did at the meet," Munro said. "But we had some younger guys who really stepped up."

XC teams Delaware crushes its foes

BY ROBERT NIEDZWIECKI Sports Editor

Outscoring its opponents 20-2, the Delaware ice hockey team swept through the city of Buffalo over the weekend, defeating SUNY-Buffalo twice and Erie College once.

The Hens (8-4), ranked No. 5 in the ACHA poll, defeated Buffalo 7-1 Friday and 6-0 Saturday, and completed the weekend Sunday with a 7-1 win over

Though Delaware won all three games handily, Hens head coach Josh Brandwene said it was the weekend's final game that he was most impressed

"We played well in spurts on Friday and Saturday," he said, "but Sunday was our most consistent performance of the

"We were smart in getting the puck out of our own end, we were patient on offense, and we gave up almost no oddman rushes."

Seven different players scored for Delaware against the Cats, and eight people tallied at least two points in the Junior goalkeeper Bjorn Christiano stopped 15 shots in the contest, shutting out the opposition for over 48 minutes before finally letting a puck slip through three points in the game, scoring one goal and assisting on two others.

Junior wing Garrett Kane tallied

"Every aspect of the game, we pretty much dominated," Kane said. "We cleared the puck out of our own zone well, we kept the puck in their zone, we forechecked well, and we received balanced scoring."

The defenseman's offensive contributions against Erie were the best Brandwene said he has seen all year.

ICE

HOCKEY

"Their point shots were much smarter, and a lot of them got through to the net," he

After playing two games in two days, Kane said he did not know how the team would respond against the Cats on Sunday. "We didn't know what to expect from each other Sunday," he said, "but for us to dominate the way we did in militaristic fashion is a positive for the

Kane said this weekend's impressive performance was a combination of quality play and the squad's confident attitude, but added the team must execute better to be successful against top teams.

"We expect to win every game," he said. "When we put together 60 minutes of hockey, we can beat any team.

"A lot of times we have breakdowns or small glitches in our play, and teams like Penn State [University] take advan-

The Hens are 0-4 against Penn State and the University of Michigan-Dearborn, a record which Kane said he hopes Delaware can improve when they play those teams again later in the sea-

"We know what we have to do to beat them," he said. "It's just a matter of executing for 60 minutes.

Starring for the Hens against Buffalo were freshman wing Joe Bartlett, who recorded a hat trick Saturday, and senior center Brett Huston, who scored two goals in Friday's game and added one more in Saturday's contest.

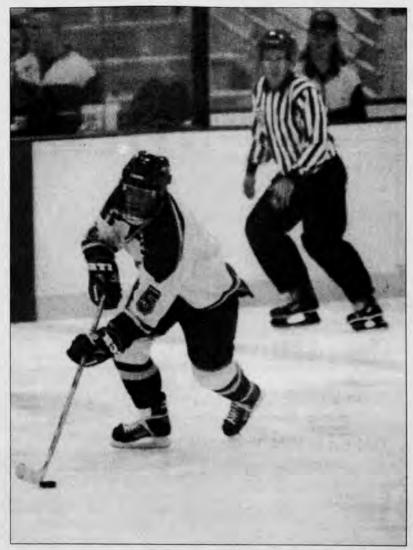

Kane totaled two assists in each game against the Bulls. Freshman defender Paul Tilch also contributed four points in the two-game set.

Senior center Ryan Sklar said he expected the Hens would win all three games this weekend, but he was surprised at the ease with which they dispatched Buffalo.

"A lot of our new guys hadn't played these teams before, so they didn't know what to expect," he said.

"Against Buffalo, it was a surprise for the older guys because they have given us much tougher games in the past, including when they beat us my sophomore year."

Things will heat up for Delaware when it takes to the road to face No.6 University of Arizona for two games. The puck will be dropped at 7:30 p.m. for the Friday and Saturday games.

THE REVIEW/Scott McAllister

Senior center Brett Huston controls the puck in last weekend's home game against Penn State. The Hens will play at Arizona this weekend.

The Delaware varsity four boat rows toward the finish line in a regatta last spring. The crew placed

All gold and glory for rowers

BY ALICIA MILINIS Staff Reporter

Bringing home four gold medals, the Delaware's women's rowing team finished the season on a high note at the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia this weekend.

The Hens raced Saturday in the Frostbite Regatta and Sunday in the Braxton Regatta, competing powerfully throughout the weekend.

Overall, the races had over 15 teams competing, including Delaware rivals Temple University and the University of Pennsylvania.

Saturday, all three novice-eight boats finshed in first place and the varsity lightweight boat finished third. The novice heavyweight eight A and B boats, the varsity four, the varsity lightweight eight, and the placed first on Sunday.

Senior captain Jenn O'Keefe said the team faced tough opposition this weekend and responded well

"Sunday, the lightweight eight was up against strong competiton in their races," she said. "It was a tough race, but they were able to

"The girls had more time, more experience and seemed more into it this weekend.'

Hens head coach Amanda Kukla said she thought the team did well.

"I was pretty impressed that they received gold medals on both days,' she said

Senior Laurie Patria, who raced in the lightweight eight, said her boat improved as the weekend went on.

'Both races went really well," she said. "Our boat pulled it together the second day, finishing first.

"Since it was our last race I think it drove people to race a little hard-

The past five Regattas have given the girls experience that will help them have a fast spring season, Kukla Senior Lisa Trivisone said this the competiton it will face in the "Each different event helped the season helped the team prepare for team come together," she said. "Each race you row, you learn more." The impressive completion to the season also gave the team a boost of confidence for the upcoming season, "It was a great finish," she said. "It gives us a positive feeling. But also the feeling of things to work on in winter training for the spring.' Patria said the girls would start winter training on Tuesday and will focus on their fitness level for the spring races. 'We all need to get in better shape for spring, when things really count," O'Keefe said. Trivison said she was pleased with the results of the fall, but she knows the team must be prepared to do even better in the spring. "Overall it was a good season," Trivison said. "but we will see our real competition in March."

Club team scores invitation to national competition

Women's squad finds success in just its second year at Delaware

BY MELISSA UHNIAT

Despite being formed just last spring, the Delaware women's club soccer team, coached and organized by juniors Tara Madigon and Arianna Pruett, has qualified for the Women's Club Soccer National Tournament and will compete Thursday through CLUB Saturday.

Twelve teams qualified for the tournament, which is being held at Georgia Southern State University in Statesboro, Ga.. Two teams from six regions are selected to play in the annual competition.

The Hens (7-0-1) are seeded second in Region One behind first-seeded Pennsylvania State University (14-

Pruett, a midfielder and the club's vice president, said even though the team has not faced any of the other 11 teams in the tournament, she thinks Delaware will be competitive.

"I don't expect a loss over 2-0," she said. "The talent on this team is beyond what we expected.'

team's lack of seasoning compared to the others is a little intimidating.

However, Pruett said she thinks the "Everyone has experience and age tagged on us," she said. "These teams have had a program for years. Penn State even got Nike to sponsor them." Pruett said the team is working on its one-touch game in preparation for the tournament. "The whole idea is to get the ball, see the field and give it away," she Madigon, a forward and president of the club, said the team was close to not going to the tournament because of financial reasons.

"Since we are a student-run organization, we do not have a lot of funding," she said.

Madigon said Delaware Athletic Director Edgar Johnson paid the majority of the $6,000 amount for the SOCCER Madigon and Pruett said they started the team because they wanted to play competitively without the com> mitment of the varsity level team. Both women said they didn't know what to expect when they contacted Delaware assistant athletic director Sue Groff. Once Groff approved of their proposal, Madigon and Pruett set out to recruit women for the new

"We held interest meetings and then tryouts," Madigon said. "We had 50 girls try out.'

Pruett said they selected 22 girls who all had the intention of continuing to play soccer and have fun.

The girls on the team either quit the varsity team or did not try out because they didn't want the commitment, Madigon said.

Sophomore forward Kerrie

Richmond said she joined the team because she wanted to meet people and continue playing soccer without a demanding schedule.

"I couldn't imagine life without playing," she said.

Freshman defender Jill Guider said she has been playing soccer since she was five and wanted to continue playing competitively.

'One of the first questions I asked Blue Hen Ambassador when I came to visit Delaware was whether or not they had a girl's club soccer team," she said.

Madigon and Pruett both said they are comfortable with the roles they play as coaches and players on the "The girls respect us," Pruett said. They never overrule us or complain.

Everyone is here for one reason — to play and have fun." Sophomore midfielder Dorie Masnik said she thinks Madigon and Pruett handle the dual role of coaching and playing well. "It's tough for them because they are the authoritative figures, players and our friends," Masnik said. Richmond said the team has no problem working together. 'We all had chemistry right away when we first started playing," she Guider said she agrees that the squad meshed instantly.

"We all knew different techniques from playing with other teams," she said. "We worked them all in together. Everyone has a part."

Though the girls may all play different parts on the field, the team works as one cohesive unit, Pruett

In just its second season as a club sport, the Delaware women's club soccer team has qualified to compete as one of 12 teams in the Women's Club Soccer National Tournament Thursday.

SCOREBOARD

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

W1 10	- 7			-			-		-	tano		,
Week 10
November 13, 199	99
			Atla	ntic 1	0					. 3	Overa	11
Team	W	L	Pct.	Hom	e Away	PF	PA	W	L	Pct.	Home	Away	PF	PA
*# James Madison	7	1	.875	4-0	3-1	237	149	8	2	.800	5-0	3-2	250	199
Massachusetts	6	1	.857	3-0	3-1	252	106	7	3	.700	3-1	4-2	302	163
Delaware	5	2	.714	3-1	2-1	187	151	7	3	.700	4-2	3-1	277	222
Villanova	5	2	.714	2-1	3-1	215	208	6	4	.600	2-2	4-2	283	279
William & Mary	4	3	.571	2-2	2-1	211	148	5	5	.500	2-3	3-2	261	252
Connecticut	3	4	.429	2-3	1-1	181	220	4	6	.400	3-3	1-3	235	321
Richmond	3	4	.429	2-1	1-3	186	204	5	5	.500	3-2	2-3	264	264
Maine	3	4	.429	2-2	1-2	231	180	4	6	.400	3-3	1-3	206	242
New Hampshire	2	5	.286	0-3	2-2	182	173	4	6	.400	1-3	3-3	294	274
Rhode Island	1	6	.143	1-2	0-4	99	202	1	9	.100	1-4	0-5	158	274
Northeastern	0	7	.000	0-3	0-4	139	279	1	9	.100	1-4	0-5	236	352
Northeastern  * Clinched at leas	-				200		-51	npion		.100	1-4	0-5	256	352

Offensive Players of the Week

Marcel Shipp, Massachusetts — Tailback, Junior 6-0, 208, Mlford Academy/Paterson, NJ Rushed 35 times for 210 yards and three touchdowns, while catching four passes for 41 yards in a 25-16 win over William & Mary...became the all-time leading rusher in UMass history, with his 4,728 yards surpassing the previous record of 4,624 held by Rene Ingoglia (1992-1995)...also movd into second place on the all-time Atlantic 10 rushing chart, as he now trails only New Hampshire's Jerry Azumah(1995-1998)...Walter Payton Award finalist ranks second in the league in rushing yards (1,430), touchdowns (18), rushing touchdowns (17), and points (108)...second Player of the Week honor for Shipp this season Defensive Player of the Week Derrick Pack, James Madison - Linebacker,

Posted a game-high 13 tackles, seven unassisted, an intercepetion, and a pass breakup ina 31-13 victory over Richmond...his interception came in the fourth quarter, setting up a JMU touchdown drive...the seventht time tthis season Pack has recored 13 tackles or more...Buck Buchanan finalist unofficially ranks second in the Atlantic 10in tackles (118)...first Player of the Week Award of Pack's career. Rookie of the Week

Sophomore, 6-1, 205, Princeton HS/Princeton,

Dan Mulhern, Delaware- Linebacker, Freshman, 6-2, 210, Strath-Haven HS/

Wallingford, PA Recorded three interceptions for 23 yards, along with two tackles in a 35-0 shutout of Rhode Island...his three interceptions tied a school record, becoming just the second linebcaker in school history to record three picks in a game...his three INTs are the most in an Atlantic 10 game this season...two of his picks led to Delaware touchdowns...keyed A UD defense that allowed just 82 yards and two first downs in the second half...the six interceptions lead Delaware and are tied for second in th Atlantic 10.

Last Week's Games
Delaware 35, Rhode Island 0
James Madison 31, Richmond	13
Maine 20, Northeastern 14
New Hampshire 43, Connectic	ut 18
Massachusetts 25, William & M	Mary 16
Youngstown State 28, Villanov	a 21
Saturday's Games (all times p	o.m.)
Delaware at Villanova	1:00
Maine at New Hampshire	12:00
Northeastern at Rhode Island	12:00
James Madison at Hofstra	12:00
	12:30
Connecticut at Massachusetts	12.30

Delaware
Rushing	No	Net	TD
Downs	11	169	2
O'Neal	12	140	1
Cummings	9	44	0
Conway	7	26	0
Watkins	3	20	0	.5-
Veach	1	9	1
Irvin	2	8	0
Nagy	1	4	0
Ricco	3	3	0
Tilman	1	2	0
Zeblin	1	1	0
Pressey	2	0	0
Kowalski	2	-3	0
Medley	2	-9	0
Ginn	6	-23	0
Totals	63	391	4
Passing	Att	-Cmp	-Int	Yds	TD
Ginn	15	-9-0		161	1
Nagy	4	-0-0		0	0
Medley	1-	-0-0		0	0
Kowalski	1-	-0-0		0	0
Totals	21	-9-0		161	1
Receiving	No		Yds	TD
Veach	5		49	1
J. VanKerkho	ven 2		37	0
Cummings	1		60	0

15 0

161

Penecale

Totals

lov. 13, 1999 attendance: 17,22	7
	1	2	3	4	— F
hode Island	0	0	0	0	_0
elaware	7	14	14	0	-35
coring Summar	y:
irst Quarter
07:31 UD - Do	wns 3	run	(Siz	em	ore kick) 0-7

Second Ouarter • 14:18 UD — Veach 12 pass from Ginn (Sizemore kick) 0-14 • 07:12 UD - Veach 9 run (Sizemore kick) 0-21

Third Ouarter • 13:52 UD - Downs 26 run (Sizemore kick) 0-10:44 UD — O'Neal 8 run (Sizemore kick) 0-35

	Rhode Island	UD
First Downs	8	20
Rushing Attempts	23	63
Yards Rushing	84	391
Yards Passing	131	161
Passes Attempted	39	21
Passes Completed	18	9
Had Intercepted	4	0
Fumbles: NoLost	1-0	5-1
Penalties:NoYards	4-60	7-62
No. of Punts	10	4
Average Per Punt	43.9	37.0
Possession Time	. 24:50	35:10
3rd Down Conversions	2-16	5-16

Rhode Island		100
Rushing	No Net	TD
Jamison	11 59	0
Williams	2 23	0
Nedimyer	6 17	0
Mastrole	4 -18	0
Totals	23 84	0

Mastrole	27	-14-2		76	0
Nedimyer	12	-4-2		55	0
Totals	39	-18-4		131	0
Receiving	No	.Yds	TD
Birkett	4	45	0
Jamison	4	1	0
Tajong	3	33	0
Williams	2	22	0
Gibson	2	9	0
Henry	1	9	0
Fanapolous	1	7	0
Sal. Wellington	1	5	0
Totals	18	131	0

Friday
Nov. 12, 1999
	1	2	3 -	F
Delaware (6-4)	1	2	4 -	7
SUNY-Buffalo	0	1	0 -	1
Shots: UD — 47, S Saturday	UNY -	- 15		_
Saturday	UNY -	- 15
Saturday	UNY -		3 —	F
Saturday Nov. 13, 1999	1	2	3 - 2 -	_
	1	2		6

Shots: UD - 28, Erie - 16.

Delaware (8-4)

Erie

Earn Competitive Pay + Incentives and Bonuses!!

 $2 \ 2 \ 3 - 7$

ICR

International Communications Research

Located in the Newark Shopping Center

Comfortable office setting along Dart line 6 Evening and Weekend hours No selling or soliciting Conduct interesting national surveys

Call 1-800-310-3843 for interview

Ask for Mrs. Michaels, Mon-Fri 9-5

Plus some of your old favorites. Picked each month by YOU. Only on SITV

Turn Us On!

DELAWARE SPORTS CALENDAR Wed. Thur. Tues. Fri. Sat. Sun. Mon. 11/18 11/16 11/17 11/19 11/20 11/22 11/21 Football Home games at Delaware Stadium *Villanova p.m. Volleyball Home matches at Carpenter Sports Building *Hofstra Final America Ea Tournament) tba tba 5:30 p.m. Men's Basketball Canisius Duquesne Binghamton) 8 p.m. 8 p.m. Ice Hockey Home games at Gold Arena and Rust Arena Arizona Arizona 7:30 p.m. 7:30 p.m. Women's Basketball Home games at Bob Carpenter Center Monmouth 7 p.m. KEY DENOTES HOME GAME DENOTES ROAD GAME DENOTES CONFERENCE GAME

Read The Review on Friday when we preview the Delaware men's and women's basketball teams

THE REVIEW/Scott McAllister

But the Minutemen also have three overall losses, and a competitive

Connecticut squad will look to upset the defending national champions on third place going into the final week of the season, so the teams' clash at Main accompanied by an offseason filled sions, as Delaware will find itself at the mercy of the NCAA Division I-AA

Football Committee — an eight-person board composed of Athletic Directors and responsible for choosing eight mean little to the Hens once they take the field, as an entire season will hinge his players Saturday, first things first.

Let the committee vote. All the Hens

But this confusing formula will

As Tubby Raymond will be telling with disappointment and regret.

teams as at-large bids.

on four quarters of action.

can do now is play.

Line this weekend will prove pivotal.

Delaware and Villanova are tied for

And for the Hens, a loss will be

A victory will simply increase ten-

Hens linebacker Dan Mulhern returns an interception. The freshman's three picks on the day tied the school mark.

Delaware a step closer to playoffs

Saturday.

Continued from page C1

The Hens know Villanova will be competitive having beaten Delaware three years in a row. The Hens also realize they will have to build on their best performance of the season to defeat the Wildcats.

It is ironic that the conference regarded by many as the strongest in Division I-AA football coming into the year may only have two representatives in the NCAA postseason.

But that's the way things are shaping up as this bizarre season comes to a close.

With its 31-13 win over Richmond on Saturday, James Madison clinched at least a tie for the Atlantic 10 championship, meaning an automatic playoff berth.

However, after JMU, the picture gets Massachusetts, second in the A-10 and ranked 13th nationally, would seem to have the upper hand with its 6-1 record in conference play.

Division I-AA NCAA Rankings — The Sports Network

1. Tennessee State

2. Georgia Southern

3. Appalachian State

4. Hofstra

5. Illinois State

6. Troy State

7. Montana

8. Furman

9. Youngstown State

10. Southern University

11. James Madison

12. Jackson State

14. Lehigh

15. Florida A&M

16. North Carolina A&T

17. Northern Arizona 18. Northern Iowa

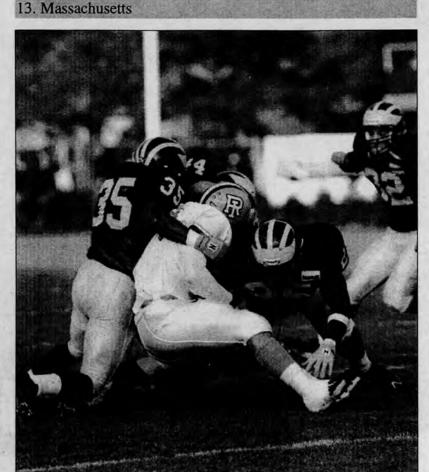

19. Colgate

20. Elon 21. Portland State

22. DELAWARE

23. Stephen F. Austin 24. Eastern Kentucky

25. South Florida

THE REVIEW/Scott McAllister

Hens linebackers Darrell Edmonds and Deji Ashiru team up to take down a Rhode Island player during Saturday's 35-0 Delaware win.

THE REVIEW/Scott McAllister

Delaware head football coach Tubby Raymond, shown exhibiting his school spirit, pauses to speak with a reporter Saturday.

Hens come together

Continued from page C1

extra point from Sizemore gave the Hens a 21-0 lead.

The second half began with Delaware moving the ball even easier than the first.

After the Rams kickoff went for a "The best thing took just four plays to about our team is move eighty yards. Downs capped the that we're getting drive by scoring on a much better now. speed sweep from 26 yards out by running around the left side of the offensive line. The extra-point from Sizemore gave Delaware a 28-0

On the Hen's next possesion,

O'Neal ran in from eight yards out to complete a 73-yard, six play drive, and Sizemore converted his fifth extra point of the game to make the score 35-0.

Ginn said the lopsided victory was a welcome change from Delaware's previous contests.

"We've been in a lot of ballgames that have come down to the last minute," he said. "It was nice to have this one put away in the third quarter. "I really forgot what it was like to just have fun on the sidelines during the fourth quarter."

- Delaware head coach Raymond said Tubby Raymond

Though he is not sure if the Hens will make the playoffs, the fact the team finally played a domining game will help the team as they prepare for Saturday's 1 p.m. matchup away against Villanova University. "The best thing about our team is that we're getting better now, he said. "We're much better than we were two weeks ago."

SCOREBOARD

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

			9 At				000	.,				, ,
Week 10
November 13, 199	19
			Atla	ntic 10							Overa	11
Team	11	L	Pet.	Home	Away	PF	PA	11	L	Pet.	Home	Away	PF	PA
Lames Madison	7	1	875	4.0	3-1	237	149	8	2	.800	5.0	3.2	250	199
Massachusetts	6	1	857	3.0	3-1	252	106	7	3	700	3.1	4-2	302	163
Delaware	5	2	.714	3-1	2-1	187	151	7	3	.700	4-2	3-1	277	222
Villanova	5	2	714	2.1	34	215	208	6	4	600	2-2	4-2	283	279
William & Mary	4	3	571	2-2	2-1	211	148	5	5	.500	2.3	3.7	261	252
Connecticut	3	4	429	2-3	1-1	181	220	4	6	400	3-3	1-3	235	321
Richmond	3	4	429	2-1	1-3	186	204	5	5	500	3-2	2-3	264	264
Maine	3	4	429	2-2	1-2	231	180	4	6	_400	3-3	1-3	206	242
New Hampshire	2	5	286	()-3	2.2	182	1.73	4	6	400	1-3	3-3	294	274
Rhode Island	1	161	143	1-2	0.4	99	202	1	9	100	1-4	0-5	158	274
Northeastern	0	7	000	0.3	0.4	139	279	1	9	100	1-4	0-5	236	352

Offensive Players of the Week

Marcel Shipp, Massachusetts — Tailback, Junior 6-0, 208, Mlford Academy/Paterson, NJ Rushed 35 times for 210 yards and three touchdowns, while catching four passes for 41 vards in a 25-16 win over William & Mary became the all-time leading rusher in UMass history, with his 4,728 yards surpassing the previous record of 4.624 held by Rene Ingoglia (1992-1995)...also movd into second place on the all-time Atlantic 10 rushing chart, as he now trails only New Hampshire's Jerry Azumah (1995-1998) ... Walter Payton Award finalist ranks second in the league in rushing yards (1,430), touchdowns (18), rushing touchdowns (17), and points (108)...second Player of the Week honor for Shipp this season. Defensive Player of the Week Derrick Pack, James Madison - Linebacker, Sophomore, 6-1, 205, Princeton HS/Princeton, Posted a game-high 13 tackles, seven unassisted, an intercepetion, and a pass breakup ina 31-13 victory over Richmond. his interception came in the fourth quarter, setting up a JMU touchdown drive the seventht time this season Pack has recored 13 tackles or more...Buck Buchanan finalist unofficially ranks second in the Atlantic 10in tackles (118)...first Player of the Week Award of Pack's career.

Rookie of the Week Dan Mulhern, Delaware- Linebacker. Freshman, 6-2, 210, Strath-Haven HS/

Wallingford, PA Recorded three interceptions for 23 yards. along with two tackles in a 35-0 shutout of Rhode Island, his three interceptions tied a school record, becoming just the second linebcaker in school history to record three picks in a game his three INTs are the most in an Atlantic 10 game this season, two of his picks led to Delaware touchdowns...keyed A UD defense that allowed just 82 yards and two first downs in the second half...the six interceptions lead Delaware and are tied for second in th Atlantic 10.

Last Week's Games
Delaware 35. Rhode Island 0
James Madison 31, Richmond 13
Maine 20. Northeastern 14
New Hampshire 43. Connecticut 18
Massachusetts 25. William & Mary	16
Youngstown State 28. Villanova 21
Saturday's Games (all times p.m.)
Delaware at Villanova	1:00
Maine at New Hampshire	12:00
Northeastern at Rhode Island	12:00
James Madison at Hofstra	12:00
Connecticut at Massachusetts	12:30
William & Mary at Richmond	1:00

Delaware
Rushing	No	Net	TD
Downs	11	169	2
O'Neal	12	140	1
Cummings	9	44	0
Conway	7	26	0
Watkins	3	20	0
Veach	1	9	1
Irvin	2	8	0
Nagy	1	4	0
Ricco	3.	3	0
Tilman	1	2	0
Zeblin	1	1	0
Pressey	2	0	0
Kowalski	2	-3	0
Medley	2	-9	0
Ginn	6	-23	0
Totals	63	391	4

icco	3	3	0
lman	1	2	0
eblin	1	1	0
ressey	2	0	0
owalski	2	-3	0
ledley	2	-9	()
inn	6	-23	0
otals	63	391	4
assing	Att	-Cm	p-Int	Yds	TD
inn	15	-9-0		161	1
agy	4	0-0		0	0
ledley	1-	-()-()		0	0
owalski	1	0-0		0	0
otals	21	-9-0		161	1
eceiving	No		Yds	TD
rach	5		49	1
VanKerkhover	12		37	0
ummings	1		60	0
enecale	1		15	0

9 161 1

Bike-related crashes kill 900 people every year and send about 567,000

Wearing a bike helmet can reduce the risk of head injury by 85%.

Nov. 13, 1999 Attendance: 17,227

2 3 4 - F 0 0 0 = 0 14 14 0 - 35	Friday Nov 12 1999
		1	2	3 - F
	Delaware (6-4)	1	2	4 - 7
	SUNY-Buttalo	.0	1	0 - 1
un (Sizemore kick) 0-7
	Shots: UD - 47, S	UNY -	- 15

Second Quarter * 14:18 UD - Veach 12 pass from Ginn (Sizemore kick) 0-14 • 07-12 UD - Veach 9 run (Sizemore kick) 0-21

Rhode Island Delaware

Scoring Summary:

First Quarter 07 31 UD — Downs 3 rt

Third Quarter . 13:52 UD - Downs 26 run (Sizemore kick) 0-

• 10:44 UD - O'Neal 8 run (Sizemore kick) 0-35

Team Statistics	Rhode Island	UD
First Downs	8	20
Rushing Attempts	23	63
Yards Rushing	84	391
Yards Passing	131	161
Passes Attempted	39	21
Passes Completed	18	9
Had Intercepted	4	0
Fumbles: No -Lost	1-0	5-1
Penalties:NoYards	4-60	7-62
No. of Punts	10	4
Average Per Punt	43.9	37.0
Possession Time	24:50	35:10
3rd Down Conversions	2-16	5-16

No	Net	TD
	1464	11)
11	59	0
2	23	0
6	17	0
4	-18	0
23	84	0
	6 4	2 23 6 17 4 -18 23 84

Mastrole	27	-14-2		76	0
Nedimyer	12	4-2		55	0
Totals	39	-18-4		131	0
Receiving	No	.Yds	TD
Birkett	4	45	0
Jamison	4	1	0
Tajong	3	33	0
Williams	2	22	0
Gibson	2	9	0
Henry	1	9	0
Fanapolous	1	7	0
Sal Wellington	1	5	0
Totals	18	131	0

ICE HOCKEY

riday Nov 12, 1999
	1	2	3 - F
Delaware (6-4)	1	2	4 - 7
SUNY-Buttalo	.0	1	0 - 1

Nov. 13, 1999 Delaware (7-4)

Sunday Nov. 14, 1999 Delaware (8-4)

Shots: UD - 28, Ene - 16.

Earn Competitive Pay + Incentives and Bonuses!!

ICR

International Communications Research

Located in the Newark Shopping Comfortable office setting along Dart line 6 Evening and Weekend hours No selling or soliciting Conduct interesting national

Call 1-800-310-3843 for interview

Ask for Mrs. Michaels, Mon-Fri 9-5

The best new movies. Plus some of your old favorites. Picked each month by YOU. Only on SLTV

channel 49

Turn Us On!

Wed. Thur. Tues. Fri. Sat. Sun. Mon. 11/21 11/17 | 11/18 | 11/19 | 11/20 11/22 11/16 Home games at Delaware Stadium Football p.m. Volleyball Home matches at Carpenter Sports Building America East America East *Hofstra Final America Eas Tournament) tha tha 5:30 p.m. Men's Basketball Duquesne Canisius Binghamton 8 p.m. 8 p.m. Ice Hockey Home games at Gold Arena and Rust Arena Arizona Arizona 7:30 p.m. 7:30 p.m. Women's Basketball Home games at Bob Carpenter Center Monmouth 7 p.m. KEY DENOTES HOME GAME DENOTES ROAD GAME * DENOTES CONFERENCE GAME

DELAWARE SPORTS CALENDAR

Read The Review on Friday when we preview the Delaware men's and women's basketball teams

Delaware head football coach Tubby Raymond, shown exhibiting his school spirit, pauses to speak with a reporter Saturday.

to hospital emergency rooms with injuries.

Hens linebacker Dan Mulhern returns an interception. The freshman's three picks on the day tied the school mark.

Delaware a step closer to playoffs

Continued from page C1

The Hens know Villanova will be competitive having beaten Delaware three years in a row. The Hens also realize they will have to build on their best performance of the season to defeat the Wildcats

It is ironic that the conference regarded by many as the strongest in Division I-AA football coming into the year may only have two representatives in the NCAA postseason.

But that's the way things are shaping up as this bizarre season comes to a

With its 31-13 win over Richmond on Saturday, James Madison clinched at least a tie for the Atlantic 10 championship, meaning an automatic playoff

However, after JMU, the picture gets muddy. Massachusetts, second in the A-10 and ranked 13th nationally, would seem to have the upper hand with its 6-1 record in conference play.

But the Minutemen also have three overall losses, and a competitive Connecticut squad will look to upset the defending national champions on Delaware and Villanova are tied for third place going into the final week of the season, so the teams' clash at Main Line this weekend will prove pivotal.

And for the Hens, a loss will be accompanied by an offseason filled with disappointment and regret. A victory will simply increase tensions, as Delaware will find itself at the mercy of the NCAA Division I-AA Football Committee — an eight-person board composed of Athletic Directors and responsible for choosing eight teams as at-large bids.

But this confusing formula will mean little to the Hens once they take the field, as an entire season will hinge on four quarters of action

As Tubby Raymond will be telling his players Saturday, first things first. Let the committee vote. All the Hens can do now is play.

Division I-AA NCAA Rankings — The Sports Network

1. Tennessee State

2. Georgia Southern

3. Appalachian State 4. Hofstra

5. Illinois State

6. Troy State

7. Montana

8. Furman

9. Youngstown State

10. Southern University

11. James Madison

12. Jackson State 13. Massachusetts 14. Lehigh

15. Florida A&M

16. North Carolina A&T

17. Northern Arizona

18. Northern Iowa 19. Colgate

20. Elon

21. Portland State

22. DELAWARE

23. Stephen F. Austin 24. Eastern Kentucky

25. South Florida

Hens linebackers Darrell Edmonds and Deji Ashiru team up to take down a Rhode Island player during Saturday's 35-0 Delaware win.

Hens come together

Continued from page C1

After the Rams'

extra point from Sizemore gave the Hens a 21-0 lead.

The second half began with Delaware moving the ball even easier than the first.

kickoff went for a ccr The best thing touchback, the Hens took just four plays to about our team is move eighty yards. Downs capped the that we're getting drive by scoring on a much better now. speed sweep from 26 yards out by running around the left side of Tubby Raymond the offensive line.

The extra-point from Sizemore gave Delaware a 28-0

On the Hen's next possession. O'Neal ran in from eight yards out to complete a 73-yard, six play drive, and Sizemore converted his fifth extra point of the game to make the score 35-0.

Ginn said the lopsided victory

was a welcome change from Delaware's previous contests.

'We've been in a lot of ballgames that have come down to the last minute." he said. "It was nice to have this one put away in the third quarter.

"I really forgot what it was like to just have fun on the side lines during the

Though - Delaware head coach Raymond sand he is not sure if the Hens will offs, the fact the team finally played a don game will help the team as they prepare for Saturday's I p.m. matchup away against Villanova University.

"The best thing about our team is that we're getting better now, he said. We're much better than we were two weeks ago."

C4 ■ THE REVIEW ■ November 16, 1999

your we got ome firee

a la c

SPANK YOUR MIND

digital entertainment at www.den.net