Plan answers few questions

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The WILMAPCO 2020 Metropolitan Plan came to Newark on Monday night complete with visuals, overheads and lights. The general response was less than favorable and included plans for a resolution by city council to include a bypass in studies of Newark's transportation future.

Alex Taft, executive director for the Wilmington Area Planning Council, presented the plan to city council at the request of city manager Carl Luft and Mayor Ronald Gardner, who is also the chairman of WILMAPCO.

Taft outlined the controversial plan, not yet fully documented, which departs from traditional approaches by emphasizing air quality concerns, linking land use and transportation, and seeking ongoing public input.

Other strategies proposed to improve regional transportation in the next 25 years include mixed transportation modes such as cars, trains, mini-buses and jitneys, bikeways, greenways, pedestrian walks and even telecommuting.

"Some points I'd like you to note are that this plan is long-range, regional and not completed yet," said Taft.

The only capital improvements currently called for in the plan are completion of Lancaster Pike, and Routes 141, 273, 7 and 1. Also included are the Churchmans Road Extension and widening of Route 58.

Council member Gerald Grant asked about the "real possibility of rerouting trucks" around the Newark area.

According to Taft, WILMAPCO is trying to formulate a plan to reroute trucks by talking to truck companies. "We're doing an on-the-road survey as well to find out where the trucks are going and make it easier for them to go elsewhere," said Taft.

Taft added, "We're also putting a

New Catholic Bishop named in Delaware

By MARY E. PETZAK

Thanksgiving came two days early for the Roman Catholics in the Diocese of Wilmington on Nov. 21 when Bishop Michael A. Saltarelli of Newark, N.J., was named the new bishop of the diocese.

Pope John Paul II named Saltarelli as the eighth bishop of the diocese which comprises all of Delaware and 9 counties on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Saltarelli, who has served all his previous ministry in the state of New Jersey, said, "there is some sadness in the knowledge that I will be leaving my home of 62 years."

But he admits, "I am excited about the new mission entrusted to me in that somehow mysterious Divine Will that brings me to the Diocese of Wilmington."

A native of New Jersey, the 62-year old Saltarelli had served as an auxiliary bishop in the archdiocese of Newark (N.J.) since 1990. His duties included vicar of priests and rector of the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart in Newark.

Saltarelli, also served as the national episcopal moderator of the Holy Name Society and chaplain for the Knights of Columbus in New Jersey.

Monsignor Joseph F. Rebman, Wilmington's diocesan administrator, said Saltarelli "will be bringing to us

Part One: The effect busing had on the first generation of Newark students

■ Editors note: The author was one of the first Newark students to ride the buses into Wilmington. Desegregation began in 1978 when school districts in northern New Castle County were under court order to implement a pupil assignment plan that require mandatory transportation of all students. In August of this year, federal supervision of forced busing ended.

"If you don't quiet down I'm gonna pull it over!" It was the ultimate threat. When it came roaring out from the speakers, crackling with rage, every child on bus number 58 became silent—for a moment—and shivered with fear.

Louise, our driver during those early days of school busing to Wilmington, had no qualms about ordering us to put up all the windows on a hot day or pulling the bus over to the side of I-95 to get the peace she needed to get that yellow monster up and down the highway.

Pencil fights would stop, paper airplanes crashed to the floor, and boys would stop tugging the hair of the shy girl sitting in the next seat. Nobody wanted to pull over, especially since it meant that the big, bad state trooper would board the bus soon after, ready to give his stern reprimand.

After all, he had speeding tickets to hand out and couldn't be wasting time with a bunch of loud children on their way home from Bancroft Intermediate School.

But Louise (who had softened up a little by the time she returned to the scene as our high school bus driver) and paper airplanes and the sounds of WSTW were what court imposed busing was all about in the early 1980s—if you were a kid.

We fourth, fifth and sixth graders were rolling up to the big city and having a blast while our parents shouted and fretted back at home in Newark, wondering what horrors would befall their children "in town." Now, as the way stands open for school choice and the inevitability of

Police beat

Police Beat is compiled each week from the files of the Newark Police Department by staff writer Ron Porter.

Tires slashed

Newark police report that on Nov. 22 at the McDonald's on South College Ave. a suspect slashed four of the six tires on the Chevy Ronald McDonald truck parked in the parking lot. Police have no suspects at this time.

Windows broken in domestic dispute

Newark police report that a victim and her live-in boyfriend were involved in a domestic dispute that resulted in a crashed vehicle on Patrick Henry Court on Nov. 21 at 9:00 p.m. The women told police she was driving her car while the boyfriend was standing beside the driver's side door.

When she attempted to drive away, the boyfriend smashed in the windshield and the driver's side window. He then grabbed the steering wheel and the car crashed into another car that was parked nearby. The man told police he held the driver's side window when the female took off.

He said the window broke as she drove off. Neither has been charged by police.

Houses burglarized

Newark police report two burglaries during Thanksgiving week on Madison Drive. The victims of the first house, who were University of Delaware students, had items in excess of $1,000 taken from the house. The items taken were a color

T.V., a mountain bike, a coat, CD's and a waterbed mattress was damaged.

The second burglary happened during the same week, also to university students. Police report they lost $800 worth of possessions. Taken from the house was a compact stereo, a VCR and a bed comforter and pillow case. Police are still investigating the incident.

Cosmetics swiped

Newark police report that two females entered Sally's Beauty Supply in College Square Shopping Center and removed various items. Taken from the store was a nail Genie, used for manicuring, valued at $129, a bottle of spray gel and a bottle of cocoa butter lotion.

When the women were confronted by store employees they fled the scene. The suspects are said to be a white female in her 20s and a black female, also in her 20s. Police are still investigating.

Tree ripped off

A three-foot Alberta Pine tree was ripped out of the ground and stolen from in front of Park Place Apartments on Nov. 21 at 10:00 a.m., Newark police report.

There was a trail of dirt leading into apartment G at the complex but the trail stopped short of finding the suspect.

Underaged driver stopped

Newark police report that a 14-year-old male was caught driving a stolen car on New London Road on Nov. 22. Officers responded to a parking complaint on New London and Ray Street. When the officer questioned neighbors said they had no idea who the car belonged to, but told police the driver might be in the area.

Police positioned themselves and waited for the driver to leave the neighborhood. Once the driver observed the officer he turned north onto Ray Street where he struck an on-coming minivan going south on Ray Street.

Police attempted to apprehend the suspect, but he exited the passenger side window and fled north on Ray Street. Officers pursued and caught the 14-year-old. He is awaiting trial in Family Court after being turned over to his parents.

Ammunition spotted

County police arrested three occupants of a car Tuesday morning after spotting ammunition in the glove box, New Castle County police report. Officers were on patrol in the Robscott Manor area were residents have recently reported hearing frequent shots fired.

A car tried to elude the officer who followed it to College Square Shopping Center and pulled it over. When the driver reached into the glove box for his registration police noticed ammunition to a 9 mm gun.

A search of the car turned up a loaded gun next to the driver's leg and an unloaded gun in the front passenger's pocket. Police report they believe both guns had been recently fired and the passenger's gun recently unloaded.

The driver, Eugene C. Harmon, 22, of Sanford Drive and passenger Michael Kane, 21, of Anglin Road, both in Robscott Manor were charged with carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Gov. listens to traffic complaints

Governor Thomas Carper met with local politicians and members of Newark's Citizens Against Traffic (CATS) this week to discuss local transportation concerns and frustrations.

"I thought it was a good meeting," said state representative Timothy Boulden (R-Newark) who together with state senator Steven Amick (R-Newark West) arranged the meeting.

"Prior to the meeting I don't think the governor was aware of the extent of Newark's traffic problem," said Boulden. "He might not have realized the history going back 40 years."

Together with Boulden and Amick, state representative Joseph Petrilli (R-Pike Creek Valley) also accompanied the group.

CATS members Nancy Turner, Shirley Tarrant, and Robert Smith presented the governor with a list of comments from Newark area residents affected adversely by local traffic, a copy of the truck traffic count prepared by CATS in May 1995, photos of the truck traffic in the city, and a few of the many newspaper clippings the group has amassed in their efforts.

Also presented to the governor was a list of the resolutions dating back to 1960 passed by Newark city council in attempts to move the traffic situation along.

"It was a very lengthy meeting," said Amick. "The governor agreed to do what he could to resolve (Newark's) traffic problems." He added, "I was very, very pleased with the meeting."

At the request of Governor Carper, state secretary of transportation Anne Canby, was also present at the meeting. Boulden said Governor Carper was planning to meet with the governor of Maryland and the issue of Newark's traffic would be one of the items for that meeting.

Others Day promotes reading and their parents about my reading groups." Byron said. "I paid for most of it myself."

Together with about 15 people from Newark Baptist Church and the neighborhood, Byron presented crafts, games, face-painting, a stuffed-animal adoption, and a canned goods raffle near her home on Nov. 5.

According to Byron, she presently has four reading groups meeting in her home. "The ages 10 and up group meets three days a week," Byron explained. "We read aloud and discuss the book."

On Saturdays, Byron has three groups of five to nine-year olds with whom she reads and has lunch. "I have space for 54 children altogether," Byron said.

Persons interested in Byron's program can call 456-9919.

Local drug traffic increasing

While it's not yet an epidemic, drug use in Newark has definitely reached a noticeable level, according to local and campus police.

Chief William Hogan of the Newark Police told the recent Town and Gown meeting "there is significant drug activity" in the city this year.

"In the last few months, we had a heroin supplier on North Chapel Street, we've found crack cocaine in Cleveland Heights, and cocaine and marijuana on North Chapel." Lawrence Thornton, associate director of the University of Delaware safety department, said his staff has seen "an increase in the use of marijuana."

"The residence life personnel are trained to use their sniffing power," Thornton said. He added that the staff was doing a better job than in previous years of calling in the campus police when necessary.

Hogan said heroin traveling from Baltimore and Philadelphia locally is cheap and "coming on strong nationally." According to Hogan, powdered cocaine and crack use has increased in recent years but is still somewhat isolated in Newark.

Drug arrests by Newark police in 1995 increased almost 20 percent over the year 1994. To date there have been 152 arrests including 12 in the week of Nov. 11, 1995.

Busing remembered by Newarkers busing is put in question, a few veterans of that involuntary campaign look back on those days of discovery.

For many Newarkers, the experience of desegregation was an opportunity to learn about people and a place beyond their usual experience. Wilmington was the New World, and not nearly as frightening as suburban parents imagined it would be. The bus ride was long and the wake-up call early, but for some it was a price worth paying.

"I wasn't afraid," recalled Elissa Menashes, a day care instructor and education major at the University of Delaware. "Actually, it was fun because I got to go into Wilmington every day. We got to go on field trips and to places I'd never been before. The characters and environment there were all different from anything you'd find in Newark. So there were a lot of resources that we just didn't have in Newark."

Twenty-six-year-old Delmas Conquest III, who now owns his own trucking business, remembered that there was more to be learned from the trip to the city than what went on in the classroom.

"It's a totally different atmosphere in the city," he said. "You tend to learn some kind of street sense. When I was growing up, that's the way it was. You get street wise and see things on a whole different level as opposed to down here. I liked it; it was good for me."

But Conquest, whose three-year-old daughter will be entering the Christina School District in a couple of years, expressed ambivalence about seeing her bused to Wilmington.

"From a parent's point of view, I'd much rather she go to school right around the corner. You don't want to see your child 20-30 miles away when you've got schools closer. We had to get up early in the morning," he remembered with a shiver. "For a kid in third or fourth grade to have to get up at 6:50 is pretty rough."

It is concerns such as these which spark the current debate as the Christina School District looks at alternatives to its present system. The question remains: Will Newark parents bus their children to Wilmington if given a choice? According to Menashes, they would be well served to do so.

"There's a lot to be said about discovering a different environment," she said knowingly. "It's good for the city kids as well to get out of the city sometimes. You've got to see different areas of life, communities, and neighborhoods. It's more than seeing it in a book or at the movies. It's seeing it first hand that makes the impression."

Next week we will hear different impressions from desegregated veterans, as well as from some parents and administrators who sent them into a battle which occasionally did leave scars.

► WILMAPCO, from 1A

weigh station in on 896 to catch trucks avoiding the truck station in Maryland."

In response to an inquiry from councilmember Anthony Felicia, Taft said the Newark of ten years in the future will have "an integrated transit system, meaning increased numbers and more frequent service" of buses and trains.

"Remember," said Taft, "trains will go north to Philadelphia and south to Baltimore—this isn't just local."

Taft said the plan is hoping only for a 10 percent shift in transportation modes and projects that 74 percent of trips will still be made by private auto in the year 2020.

Councilmember Thomas Wampler said Newark has very "specific, concrete problems," such as too many cars and trucks in residential and university areas and plenty of flat land for bikes but unsafe conditions. "What concrete thing is going to change (in Newark) in the next few years?" he asked.

Taft admitted that the only certain change was a computerized traffic signal system already being implemented in downtown Newark. Traffic lights will be linked to allow constant adjustment in their timing so backups and gridlock are avoided.

Taft cited the truck study and making Main Street and Delaware Avenue two-way again as other ideas being considered.

Response from local residents who listened to the presentation was courteous but negative.

Nancy Turner referred to "slick reports that paint a 21st century pipe dream for a city that is 40 years behind in reality." Turner noted that reports going back to 1952 predicted the present traffic congestion and a need for a beltway in Newark.

Shirley Tarrant complained that the plan has "no specifics" for Newark and said, "I don't think bicycle paths and concerns about pedestrians are going to solve our traffic problems in Newark."

According to Tarrant, the 12-page brochure outlining the 2020 plan cost WILMAPCO $15,234 to produce and $16,220 to print 7500 copies. "WILMAPCO spent $4 each for a vision!" said Tarrant.

Tarrant urged city council to create and adopt "one more resolution" for a Major Improvement Study, which includes consideration of a beltway, to determine a longterm solution to Newark's traffic problems.

Among the other comments heard were: "what's in it for us?" "how do greenways improve travel?" (they don't said Taft), "will we have to retrofit suburban developments to make them more accessible to transit?" (possibly said Taft), "how will child care and transit work? (we recognize it has to be convenient said Taft).

Resident William Patton summed up the general frustration of the evening. "There's too many plans and not enough action—you're trying to solve 1000 problems with one plan."

Patton said computerized traffic signals and change lanes will not change the truck traffic. "Pass an ordinance and make it go away," he said.

Councilmember Hal Godwin, chairing the meeting in the absence of the mayor, said "We're with you," in response to Tarrant's resolution request.

Godwin, after concluding that it would be improper to deal with a resolution of such magnitude in the absence of the mayor, said the council will address the matter in the near future.

Following the meeting, state representative Timothy Boulden (R-Newark) commented, "People want answers and WILMAPCO doesn't have any." Boulden said he has seen the presentation of the plan several times and it appears that even areas of the plan which originally were "concrete" are now becoming "foggy."

The 2020 plan was originally released in September but not yet seen by the public because backup documents are still being reviewed and amended by WILMAPCO.

Taft told those at the meeting that it now appears that the documents may be available for public review by January and the plan will be ready for a final vote by the council in March.

fruits of years of pastoral experience from which we will certainly be able to profit."

Saltarelli, who has already begun his duties in Delaware, will be formally installed as Bishop of Wilmington on Jan. 23, 1996, at St. Elizabeth's Church in Wilmington.

The Wilmington diocese had been without a leader since March 27 when Bishop Robert E. Mulvee was appointed to the diocese of Providence, R.I.

Bishop Michael A. Saltarelli took up residence in Wilmington on Nov. 21 after being named the new bishop for the diocese.

Crystal Concepts to reopen down Main Street

The new home for Crystal Concepts will be 131 East Main Street. With the demolition of the buildings 45-49 E. Main Street in July, to make room for the new Galleria, Crystal Concepts was temporarily without a home.

Owner Cathy Rash said that the new location "has a similar layout" to the 47 E. Main Street rental space. "Overall, I think we'll be happy," with the building and the location said Rash.

Todd Ladutko purchased 131 and 133 E. Main in July. The building that Crystal Concepts will be moving into has been vacant for some time according to Ladutko.

The lower level of the building provides 960 square-feet of rental space and the upper level has an apartment.

"The building was in need of repair and was structurally unsound," said Ladutko. Depending upon the weather, Ladutko expects the renovations to the lower level to be completed by the end of November.

With Christmas being their "biggest season," Rash hopes to up and running by early December.

Once the lower level renovations are completed, Ladutko plans to concentrate on the apartment upstairs. "I am hoping to have it rented by the beginning of the second semester," said Ladutko.

OPENING THE DOOR ON PIZZA

Nick Suglia opens the door of his new oven while work continues toward completion for the reopening of his Newark pizza shop. The store will open after a two-year absence.

Longtime pizza shop reopens

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

THIS WEEK an American dream takes on new life when Nick and Joe's Pizza Shop reopens in the Pencador Plaza (formerly Castle Mall) after almost two years.

Nick Suglia, part-owner of five restaurants and pizzerias including this one in the old Castle Mall on Route 72 in Newark, has a special feeling for their only Delaware shop.

"I really wanted to reopen on our anniversary date," said Suglia, "but we just couldn't get it done." He and his partner originally opened there on Nov. 25, 1977.

Suglia was born in Italy and emigrated to Argentina with his parents when he was four, but his dreams came true in America. Arriving in New York in 1968, Suglia looked for construction work but was unsuccessful. While working in restaurants and pizzerias, he perfected his long-delayed knowledge of Italian cooking and language.

In 1970 Suglia opened his first pizzeria in Brooklyn, later moving to Pennsylvania and New Jersey with his wife and three children.

With the help of relatives, Suglia eventually established two restaurants in each of those states and one in Delaware.

When the dilapidated Castle Mall was closed in the spring of 1994, Suglia and his partner considered other possible locations but were delighted when they learned the shopping center would reopen.

"We like this place," said Suglia, sitting in his much enlarged new shop which will have almost twice as much space and 21 tables.

Longtime customers apparently saved the former telephone numbers for the shop, one of which Suglia was able to get again. "I've been getting phone calls like crazy from people who say 'when you gonna open?'" Suglia said with a happy grin.

Suglia said the store owners plan to have specials to celebrate the reopening. In addition to pizza, Nick and Joe serve many other familiar Italian foods, including spaghetti, manicotti, lasagna, ziti, calzone, stromboli, and hoagies.

"We also have steak, roast beef, turkey sandwiches and pierogies!" finished Suglia.

For information or to order, please call Nick and Joe's Pizza at 366-0721.

Youth festival in Newark

Local teenagers' unique perspective on art, poetry, music and life will be the subject of the Newark Youth Forum Festival on Dec. 6.

The festival, which starts at 6:30 p.m. in the Heritage Hall of the Newark United Methodist Church on Main Street, will include photography, artwork, music, and poetry readings by teens throughout the evening.

In addition, a panel discussion on "Teens on Main Street—Finding Their Place" will bring together teens with people from the local government, police, high school and business community.

Spokesperson David Robertson said anyone interested in local teenagers should plan to attend. Over a dozen local teens are already participating including the Newark High School Jazz Ensemble. Other teens interested in exhibiting their work or performing should call 368-5104 or 731-9113 before Dec. 6.

According to Robertson, the sponsors hope to present more of the forums in the future.

The festival is sponsored by the Friends of Newark and the Newark Arts Alliance with funds from the city of Newark. —Mary E. Petzak

New Minister named at First Presbyterian Church of Newark

Dr. Stephen A. Hundley, former head of staff at Prospect Presbyterian Church, Mooresville, N.C., has accepted a similar position at First Presbyterian Church of Newark.

His election by unanimous vote of the congregation in October followed a year-long recruitment effort by an 11-member pastor nominating committee.

Gayle Davis, committee chairperson, said the members reviewed resumes of 150 candidates and about 30 sermon tapes before interviewing those believed to best match the job description the committee had developed.

Committee members first met Dr. Hundley at a ministerial gathering in Richmond.

"Our goal was to find a minister with strong preaching and intellectual capabilities, and an ability to work compatibly with our present staff and members of all ages," Davis said. "We wanted a strong communicator and, hopefully, one with a sense of humor. As we grew to know Stephen, we truly believed that God had sent us to him, and him to us."

Dr. Hundley was ordained in 1982 and holds a Doctor of Ministry degree from Union Theological Seminary. His doctoral dissertation dealt with counseling the terminally ill, and he also has attended courses in substance abuse at Vanderbilt University. He has participated in mission work camps and youth retreats in Haiti and Mexico.

He chaired his Presbytery's committee on new church development and re-development and has served on its permanent judicial committee. A past president of the Allegheny Regional Hospital Chaplaincy Board, he also has been president of the Church/College Council at Montreat-Anderson College.

Dr. Hundley, his wife Elaine and children Bethany, 11, and Matthew, 4, moved to Newark in October. He preached his first sermon as pastor at the Nov. 5 Sunday morning service.

First Presbyterian Church has a membership of more than 700 members. Its staff includes Jeffrey W. Dandoy, associate pastor; Medora Hix, director of Christian education; and Larry W. Peterson, organist and choir director.

College opens new library

Wilmington College will celebrate the completion of its new multimillion dollar Robert C. and Dorothy M. Peoples library and classroom building on Tuesday, Nov. 21. While the building is located on the main campus in New Castle, students and faculty attending or working at the college's other sites statewide will have electronic access to virtually all services available at the library, which is housed within the 68,500 square-foot building.

In addition to the library, the building houses classrooms and nursing, chemistry, and communications laboratories as well as faculty and administrative space. Funded primarily through the generosity of thousands of private donations, the construction has doubled the available classroom space at this fast growing post secondary educational institution.

The library features state-of-the-art technology for accessing and retrieving information resources in a wide variety of formats from local, national and international sources for students and staff at Dover, Georgetown and Wilmington locations. Library Access Centers are located at each of these sites and provide materials and microcomputers linked to the library's electronic network and online catalog, WILDCAT. Dial access to the library network and online catalog via microcomputer with a modem and communications software is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The college also has a toll-free reference service to registered students and faculty for assistance with such services as WILDCAT, books-by-mail, using the main library, photocopying, using the college's site-based library access centers and interlibrary loan.

Traditional running of turkeys?

Wilson Elementary School's Turkey Trot, the traditional running over hill and dale until exhausted, went off without a hitch the day before Thanksgiving.

"Everyone participates," said principal Chuck Hughes. "The kids run, the teachers organize and parents come out to cheer."

Hughes said everyone is a winner in the quarter-mile race which takes approximately an hour to run. "We even have 'no whine hill,'" said Hughes.

Fastest boy and girl trotters this year:

First Grade-1st, Acay Miles & Tara Harrington; 2nd, Shawn Sowers & Joanna Jermyn; 3rd, Michael Pollock & Melissa Riley.

Second Grade-1st, Willie Jackson & Andie Vantrease; 2nd, Greg Mionske & Mary Evans; 3rd, Drew Chura/Aaron Meades & Sarah Campbell.

Too great expectations?

WILMAPCO is in the news again, and they aren't making people very happy. The question becomes, why is their long range plan so disappointing?

WILMAPCO faces great expectations from a region that is starved for direction, running out of land and being strangled by traffic woes. It is our opinion that we should demand certain things of WILMAPCO.

First, the council should provide firm leadership in pioneering a vision of a comprehensive and logical transportation future.

Second, we expect WILMAPCO to provide insight and expert advice on the most significant problem that confronts the region today: traffic congestion.

We should hold WILMAPCO to these expectations.

The region searches for answers and solutions to problems. WILMAPCO's delays in completing their long range plan aggravate this situation.

We demand too much of them when we ask exactly what the future will be and exactly how we will arrive at their vision. WILMAPCO should provide the technical information for residents to make informed decisions.

We want WILMAPCO to assure us that our quality of life will be better in the future. We want this branch of government to lead us into an ideal future where we can get to work without traffic and still maintain our individual residences and automobiles.

In these areas, we ask too much of WILMAPCO.

Unfortunately, whether our expectations are reasonable or unreasonable, what we have gotten from them has been a slippery watermelon seed: once we try to put our finger on an issue, they go squirting away.

If WILMAPCO bows to the wishes of Cecil County by bypassing any discussion of a Newark bypass, they duck their role as a leader on regional transportation issues. Whether or not a bypass is feasible is not the question. As a regional organization, they are charged with bringing the region together to address mutual problems, not allowing one section to play against another.

Newark City Council has moved to consider a resolution on a bypass. This forces WILMAPCO's hand in dealing with Cecil County. At the same time, it divides the region on the very issue charged to WILMAPCO: traffic.

WILMAPCO's many plans and strategies are even disputed among the council members themselves. Executive director Alex Taft wants to designate certain roads as "country roads." Cecil County wants no one to tell them how to designate their roads. With each compromise or removal of an item on the table, WILMAPCO reduces the regional

THREE CHEERS FOR the Wilmington sports lovers who recently were responsible for installing a plaque outside the home of Hall of Fame third baseman William "Judy" Johnson, one of the great black stars of the 1930s. Not only is such a tribute deserving, but it gives all who see it a sense of pride in the accomplishments of a native son and a better understanding of local history.

Several Southern towns I recently visited have recognized their heritage by erecting markers that recall noteworthy events or the names of famous persons and places. Aside from a marker at the site of the old Academy Building, Newark, a city rich in history from Colonial days to the 20th century, doesn't even have a sign to tell visitors it was chartered in 1758. One would think that the Newark Historical Society and the Chamber of Commerce would consider the promotion of such a project especially worthwhile.

Let's look at a few of the markers that might foster community awareness and understanding of our roots.

One marker surely belongs near the Deer Park Hotel, noting that its predecessor, the St. Patrick's Inn, was the headquarters of Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon during their survey of the famous boundary line that bears their names. The Deer Park Hotel itself merits mention as a famous hostelry and as the site of the Newark Female Seminary, an early school for young women conducted by Miss Hannah Chamberlain.

An identifying marker surely belongs on Main Street near Elliott Hall, the recently restored University of Delaware building, and Alumni Hall, once occupied by members of the Chamberlain family. They date to 1775 and 1809, respectively, and are among the city's oldest buildings.

Also deserving a marker is the home of General John W. "Iron Mike" O'Daniel, one of the most successful and colorful World War II military leaders, who led his troops to victory in North Africa, Italy, France and Germany.

Another marker should recall the several mills so important to the town's economy in the 18th and 19th centuries—Simonton's Mill, later known as the Tyson Mill, which was in operation when the British Army passed through in 1777; the Meter paper and saw

Do opportunities need solutions?

By JACK BARTLEY

AT THIS TIME OF Thanksgiving, I am fortunate to be able to reflect back on a visit State Representative Stephanie Ulbrich and State Senator Richard Hague paid to our school a month or so ago for an inservice day. They came to discuss the Choice and Charter bills they sponsored, respectively.

Many problems in implementing the bills that are now law surfaced during the discussion. At least, we thought they were problems. Hague and Ulbrich pointed out that these problems should be viewed as "opportunities" to be used to improve public education. I guess that if the problems are, indeed,

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, our "Out of the Attic" photograph shows the W. T. Grant building which was erected around 1953. At that time a two-way traffic pattern on Main Street. The business moved to Castle Mall in 1971 and was later purchased by Kmart Corporation. The building is now the location of C.V.S. drug store at 108 East Main Street. The photograph is from the collection of the Newark Historical Society with research provided by Bob Thomas. In an effort to provide more complete descriptions of our "Out of the Attic" photographs, volunteer historians of the society are identifying and researching the historic shots. Readers are encouraged to send old photos to the Newark Post. Special care will be taken. For more information, call 737-0724.

Motorists and others long for concrete railroad

On Saturday afternoon the county authorities resurfaced Depot Road from Delaware Avenue to Pennsylvania Station. Those returning from work or from shopping and who were compelled to cross this thoroughfare to reach their homes, were in a predicament.

Many were compelled to aid the gang by scooping sufficient stone from a nearby pile of sticking frost, without danger of permit fast. Several motorists became entangled in the sticky mass and extricated themselves with much difficulty and more profanity.

Delaware's first modern wild turkey season slated

Next spring, Delaware hunters will be able to try their luck at bagging a wild turkey. "It's the first time in modern history that a wild turkey season has been offered in the state," said Lloyd Alexander, administrator of the wildlife section of Delaware Division of Fish and Wildlife. Alexander says the season, which will be held for a limited time next April, is being offered because there are now estimated to be about 700 wild turkeys wandering the woods of the first state.

Do opportunities need solutions?

► BARTLEY, from 6A

most of our schools are, it will have the opportunity to make the choice between bumping one of the students that chose to go there from outside its residence district to make room for the behavioral problem knocking on its door (opportunity knocks), or to operate the school over the capacity for which it was designed.

Parents who choose to send their children to a school outside their residence district will have the opportunity to drive their children to the district border of the school they choose. If they cannot afford this kind of chauffeur service, the state will give them a voucher (Did I say "voucher?" I meant "direct payment") worth $200 per child to cover the additional transportation costs.

Yet another sum of money diverted from the direct costs associated with educating children.

Some parents may choose to send their child to a particular school to take advantage of a particular sports program. After the season is over, the educational wisdom of this decision may wear off, providing the parent with the opportunity to plead transportation hardship to the schools involved (the chosen school and the residence school). The school administrators will then have the opportunity to take the time to argue over which school gets the privilege of educating the student. If they decide the student must stay in the chosen school, who will have the opportunity to enforce that decision?

These are just a few of the opportunities that arose during our meeting with the legislators. Since opportunities do not require solutions, none were offered by either Hague or Ulbrich.

After all, they did the hard work of passing this legislation, leaving Frank Rishel, director of personnel in Christina School District (in attendance at the meeting) and administrators like him throughout the state to deal with all the opportunities this legislation created.

Calling the problems that will arise from Choice and Charter "opportunities" is merely political "doublespeak." Apparently, it is effective. I heard some of our math teachers discussing homework assignments for their students. Instead of assigning them "problems" from the end of the chapter, they intend to give students assignments in this form, "Do all the odd-numbered opportunities from 1 to 29 on page 54."

The real question is not whether there are opportunities or problems involved with choice and charter, but what is the intent of legislation that even the legislators admit will affect only 2 or 3 percent of our student population?

On this, Hague was vague. Some teachers view the Choice bill as a way to get the public used to the word "choice." The initial bill would be like a horror film that produces sequel after sequel such as, "Voucher: Son of Choice" or "Public Privatization: I Was A Teenage Charter School."

Vouchers, of course, would theoretically enable people to send their children to any school in the state, including private schools like the one Ulbrich's children attend.

In addition, since charter schools are not subject to many of the regulations to which traditional public schools must adhere, race, socioeconomic status, and academic or athletic abilities could play a role in student selection.

I guess our legislators were partially correct. Some people's problems are other people's opportunities.

To: Fellow educators

From: Pamela S. Maier
Chadd Road, Newark

As the Thanksgiving holiday approaches, I want to be among the first to say "thank you" for your abiding work and accomplishment in our public schools this year. On behalf of the school parents and all the residents of the Twenty-First District, let me say "job well done."

As we prepare to observe Thanksgiving 1995, I am also writing with an additional purpose in mind. I have been asked by some fellow teachers and public school parents to offer guidance regarding classroom discussions of religion during the holidays. The concern is that some students are not being properly educated about Thanksgiving and Christmas due in part to teachers' misperceptions about how to handle religious topics in public school.

I have heard from teachers and parents who believe, as I do, that students should be taught how the Pilgrims feasted, prayed and sang songs of praise to God for three days on that first Thanksgiving in 1621. They believe students should be taught that our first president, George Washington said, "It is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefit, and humbly to implore his protection and favor" and that Abraham Lincoln established Thanksgiving in 1863 as a national holiday to give thanks to God for the blessings received during the previous year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sadly, some students have never learned the real meaning of Thanksgiving because public schools are overly cautious about violating the constitutional separation of church and state. While I can understand this hesitance, let me assure you that teaching the history and meaning of Thanksgiving, Christmas, Passover, Hanukkah, St. Patrick's Day, etc., does not violate the Constitution. The court has spoken in favor of your right to explain the religious history of Thanksgiving and other national holidays. It is important to exercise this right because there are some groups in society that are actively encouraging (sometimes intimidating) public schools to substitute discussions of religious heritage with non-religious, "politically correct" celebrations. But the fact is courts have upheld the constitutionality of such school policies.

Religious discussion and the use of religious symbols such as a cross, menorah, crescent, Star of David, creche or other symbols that are a part of religious holidays are permitted as teaching aids provided they are displayed as examples of the cultural and religious heritage of the holiday and are temporary in nature. Having said this, my hope is that there is still time to adjust your lesson plans for the holidays. If not, or if you would prefer not to teach about the religious heritage of the holidays yourself, you might consider inviting an interested parent to visit the class. I would be pleased to help identify interested school parents or to personally visit your class as a guest teacher.

On behalf of the school parents I represent and the parents around the state interested in the preservation of holiday history and meaning, I want to say thank you, Happy Thanksgiving!

Seldom do we read anything good in the newspapers, so we want to say there are good compassionate members of the public and the police force in New Castle County.

Recently we had the misfortune to be involved in an auto accident at Rt. 301 and Bethel Church Road.

We were amazed at the courteous and compassionate aid we received from other motorists who instantly stopped to offer assistance and their cell phones to call for help and to reach our family.

All paramedic personnel showed the greatest concern and compassion along with their professional expertise. New Castle County police, and especially Patrolman Lenhart, are to be commended for the professional and caring manner in which the investigation was conducted.

Also we want to praise a gracious lady, Diane Baker, the driver of the other vehicle for her concern and Christian attitude toward my husband and me.

Any community newspaper receives many letters over the course of a year. The number per week fluctuates, of course, the determining factor usually the degree to which our readers are upset about the council representative, the mayor, the superintendent of schools, the guy next door.

So, blast away, if you wish. No doubt a salvo or two will be lobbed in the direction of this newspaper and that's okay, too.

mill, later purchased by the Curtis brothers and initially called the Nonantum Mill; and the Dean Woolen Mill, whose destruction by fire on Christmas Day 1886 provided the stimulus for the founding of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company in 1888. That organization, too, merits permanent notice of its 100-plus years of faithful service to the community.

Other possibilities: The Press of Kells plant, now the YWCA, where Everett C. Johnson founded the city's first newspaper, the Newark Post; the Newark Opera House, built in 1885, where local residents saw early motion pictures and other forms of entertainment; and the Continental Fiber Company plant.

My suggestions are by no means all inclusive. They do, I believe, support my view that we have much to recall with pride and that our city has done less than it could to make most of its heritage.

Looking for 'beef,' realism from WILMAPCO

The following commentary was written by Jim Neal, State Senator emeritus

At the Newark City Council meeting on Nov. 27, the council, along with those who attended the council meeting, was subjected to a presentation of the WILMAPCO "vision thing" regarding transportation planning (Connections to the 21st Century).

WILMAPCO, as guided by the Delaware State Department of Transportation, seems to be intimidated by the Federal "ISTEA" legislation as well as being intent upon planning capital expenditures that are appropriate for the types of land use developments that do not exist in this area nor are being planned for the undeveloped areas.

Five "strategies" were noted in a glossy origami brochure distributed by WILMAPCO. But the strategies really have no basis for reality in the way things work in Delaware.

One strategy suggests that transportation plans should be linked to land use plans. But currently there is a total disconnect between the bodies that accomplish both of those activities in Delaware. All land use approval is accomplished by city and county councils. Neither WILMAPCO nor the State of Delaware (Delaware General Assembly) have the authority to vote to approve or disapprove the zoning or subdivision plans, or the local zoning codes that are the basis for the plans. By the same token, all road developments in the State of Delaware are approved by WILMAPCO and the State of Delaware (Delaware General Assembly). Neither the cities nor the counties have the authority to vote to approve or disapprove any improvements to the roads that pass through their jurisdictions. So where is the specifics of how to link land use development with transportation developments?

At the city council meeting WILMAPCO presented a map suggesting where land use should be developed in the next 20 years and where the land should be left at a low density. For the growth to be limited in the areas identified in the WILMAPCO multicolored slide it would take adoption of legislation from the Maryland and Delaware General Assemblies to override the existing autonomy and current land use zoning criteria now in place in Delaware and Maryland cities and counties. Will WILMAPCO be recommending that action?

A second strategy of the "vision" suggests that protection of natural resources should be linked with transportation planning. This also sounds like a good concept, but "where's the beef?" There is no real link at the present time between the transportation planning of WILMAPCO and the Delaware Department of Transportation and the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control and other agencies that effect land preservation. The transportation planning goes on independently from the efforts to secure and preserve land for the future. If we are really serious about preserving land, we would prevent land development decisions and transportation planning to be voted on independently from the land preservation decisions.

But of course the above discussion applies to the processes for the land use decisions regarding undeveloped land. The WILMAPCO presentation really dealt with the kind of transportation "vision" that is possible only as open undeveloped or farm land is in a process for development.

What was left unsaid in the presentation were any considerations for the transportation improvements that would benefit the existing population in the WILMAPCO areas of New Castle County and Cecil Counties. There are 400,000 of us who now live in this suburban, low density, traffic-challenged area.

Many of us live in a development of single family homes on individual lots. In order to raise the density of the development to the critical mass to justify a bus service are we to build additional housing on our lots so that 3 or 4 times the number of families can then live in this same physical area? Should we buy and clear away 3 or 4 houses in many subdivisions so that convenience stores, dry cleaners, hair dressers, pizza shops etc. can be located within walking distance of where we live?

How many people need to live on each acre of existing developed land for the kinds of transportation uses (buses, trains bikes etc.) in the "vision thing" to work? What kind of "land use" zoning changes should be adopted and encouraged in the developed areas by the City of Newark and New Castle County for the WILMAPCO vision to become a reality? Is it realistic to expect us to change the current suburban development of Newark and New Castle County into a higher density, urban design?

There were three other "strategies" dealing with improving mobility, transportation management and commerce, but the first two need to be realistic before there can be any serious consideration of the other strategies.

When is WILMAPCO and the State Department of Transportation going to "get real" and propose projects that address the needs of the present population now living in Northern New Castle County? Do we need to merge the land use planning with the transportation planning under one governmental body at a fairly local level?

We really do need to preserve much of the open land that is still left in northern New Castle County, but we also need to address adequate transportation solutions, in the developed areas, for the population that lives in the developed areas.

I'll be looking for the "beef" and realism in the program that is due out this December from WILMAPCO.

The 'Singer who can't speak' visits St. Thomas's

Artist Peter Greiss sketched Mitch Dane as he entertained children and adults alike at Newark's St. Thomas's Episcopal Church.

By NANCY TURNER
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

BILLED AS "THE SINGER who can't speak," Mitch Dane brought an inspirational message to Newark on Nov. 15.

The Christian recording artist/composer played a morning concert for St. Thomas's Episcopal Church preschoolers and an evening concert for the public.

Dane has performed at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church a number of times in the past.

Dane was fourteen years old when he experienced any teenager's worst nightmare.

While riding a motorcycle in fields near his Cape Girardeau, Mo. home, he was nearly decapitated by a fence wire that was strung across a road.

After three years of silence, 33 surgeries, and the removal of one vocal chord, doctors pronounced that Dane would never speak again. Eleven years later, Dane not only speaks, he sings; and the three albums that he has recorded since 1990 have earned him a place among Nashville's hottest contemporary Christian musicians.

When not based at the Frontier Ranch in Colorado during the summer, Dane and his back-up singer, Lock Sandahl, are on the concert trail about 200 days per year playing on college campuses, military bases, hospitals and churches.

His alternative/folk/rhythm and blues music has carried messages of hope and faith to thousands of young people across the country.

"I really have a heart for high school kids," said Dane, "especially the unchurched. There are so many different subcultures out there and kids are getting some lousy influences."

"I feel that if I can present music in the way that they are accustomed to hearing it, then maybe I have a chance to influence them in the right direction."

Christian recording artist, Mitch Dane, was in Newark recently.

Lynn Zaroli and her third graders discuss plans to publish their first newspaper.

Brader students learn about newspaper business

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Third graders at Brader Elementary School in Newark are planning to publish their own newspaper this year.

According to teacher Lynn Zaroli, 200 third-graders in eight classes will take turns producing an edition each month starting in November.

"We've spent some time trying to decide what things we will write about and what each child will do," said Zaroli. "Not everyone wants to write, for instance."

Zaroli's class consulted with the Newark Post staff who advised them that there were other jobs, such as, proofreader, copy editor, page editor, photographer and artist available to those who work for newspapers.

"We took a survey of the rest of the school to see what activities they're doing," said Zaroli. "Next we started writing the stories."

The newspapers are the result of a grant obtained by the school to use in projects with a focus on writing.

Zaroli said her class planned to have the first edition ready this week.

Newarkers open studios

15 artists will present their work in five Newark studios this weekend. The Studio Tour is a wonderful opportunity for the public to see a wide assortment of art and fine crafts, including dolls.

It also allows residents to meet artists and to buy their newest work in time for the holidays. Each studio will have two or more artists featured and will serve refreshments. Admission is free. For information call 731-5801.

Among the featured artists will be: Terry Foreman, Arlene Finocchiaro, Dragonfly Leathrun, Kate Lear, Lucy Moise, Celeste Kelly, Wendy Shipman, Ruth L. McClean, Kochitl Ross, Debbie Hegedus, Clara Bramlette, Sally Donatello, Rowena Macleod, Alexandra G. Linett, Dianne Goodell, Rachel McClain and Tamara Connell.

teens start smoking, and girls now smoke at a higher rate than boys.

If this were any industry other than tobacco, people would be lining up to learn the secrets of success. The tobacco industry must deny that it even tries to court young smokers, and even spends millions in court costs to "prove" that they have no specific marketing strategy aimed at teens.

Despite this denial, the campaign to attract new smokers is well funded and well orchestrated. Let's look at how they do it.

In the U.S., smoking is linked with being "cool", taking risks and growing up. The tobacco industry sponsors campaigns like "Tobacco: Helping Youth Say No".

Closer examination of this program reveals a slick public relations effort that does not mention the health dangers of tobacco, ignores the addictive nature of tobacco products and glamorizes smoking as an adult custom that presents smoking as a way for kids to exert their independence and grow up.

One of the most successful advertising campaigns in recent history was RJR Nabisco's Joe Camel, who was modeled after James Bond and Don Johnson of Miami Vice. One study showed that one-third of three year olds could link Joe Camel with cigarettes and that by age six, children were as familiar with Joe Camel as with the Mickey Mouse logo.

As a bonus, the market share of Camel cigarettes for kids under age 18 jumped from less than 1 percent to one-third in three years. This incredibly successful campaign has inspired other cartoon ad campaigns such as "Willie the Kool" penguin.

Even though Joe Camel has been temporarily pulled due to extreme public pressure, there is no doubt that he'll return when Camel sales begin to flag. There are a few other strategies that tobacco companies use to lure young smokers. One is free giveaways of everything from tobacco products to logo bearing merchandise.

Several years ago a smokeless tobacco company had a booth in front of the 4-H building at the State Fair, where they gave away free smokeless tobacco to those over age 18. The sponsorship of sports events and rock concerts is an especially insidious way to lure young smokers. Seeing their heroes linked with tobacco products is effective. Tobacco companies became major sponsors of NASCAR Racing and Women's Tennis in 1971, the year tobacco advertising was removed from TV and radio.

The success they have had without these popular mediums of advertising has been nothing short of phenomenal.

Parents are up against a wall in trying to prevent their kids from smoking. In fact, it's probably impossible to try to attempt to prevent your child from trying cigarettes. What you can and should do is to alert your children to the long term dangers that tobacco products pose to their health.

Also, discourage them from wearing products that advertise tobacco products, no matter how cool they think they look. Does a ten year old in a Joe Camel shirt or hat really look cool to you?

Finally, if you smoke, realize that you're setting an example for your kids. One third of all smokers will become so addicted that they will never be able to stop.

Give your kids the gift of health this holiday season, you won't regret

A feature devoted to discovering the answers to curious questions about people and places in Greater Newark.

BY NANCY TURNER

Is it true that there was once a farm in Newark where mice were raised for research? I hear it was called the mouse farm.

Pied Piper Farm, once located on the present site of Williamsburg Village on Barksdale Road, was owned by Fletcher P. Williams, Jr. Only one structure, a pool utility building, remains standing from the original farm.

Prior to opening the farm in the early 1960s, Williams worked as a biologist at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Md.

Williams sold as many as 5000 white mice per week to institutions needing them for scientific research.

"My brother, Fletcher, got out of the business after a while when the profits became too small," said Harlan Williams of Harlan Williams Realty in Cecil County. "But I'll tell you, there are still a few white mice running around in the woods where the farm stood. Or at least that's what people say."

Whether you have a question about people or places in Greater Newark or are just plain curious about something, staff writer Nancy Turner might just be able to find an answer for you. Send your question to Nancy, in care of the Newark Post, 153 East Chestnut Hill Road, Newark DE 19713. Be sure to include a daytime telephone number where you can be reached.

Hard work has Hagley ready for holiday guests

THIS THE SEASON for even the greatest industrial museum and library in the region to take on a Christmas air and join in the celebration of this most glorious of holidays. When Christmas rolls around each year, you may be sure that many, many hours of hard work have gone into getting Hagley ready for the steady stream of visitors to the site of the beginnings of the du Pont empire on the banks of the Brandywine.

Some people call them "toy trains," others "model railroads." By whatever name you call them, they are very much a part of our Christmas holidays and have been for a long time. The folks at Hagley Museum and Library know that and have a grand treat in store for visitors this year, expanded even over their layout last year.

On display is an operating layout even including a trolley — you may have to explain that artifact to your children — in HO scale. Scale represents the relationship of the original train to the size of the model and HO scale is 3.5 mm to the foot, or about 1/87th of the size of the real thing.

The layout depicts the Hagley Yard, Henry Clay Village and the adjoining du Pont family residences c. 1895-1915. The model trains include the Wilmington and Northern Railroad branch which served the powder yard, the narrow horse-drawn gauge which transported the yard and the Peoples Railway trolley line which provided passenger service from Wilmington, along the Brandywine from Rising Sun Lane to Barley Mill Road and then to Buck and Montchanin Roads.

It is a truly well detailed layout and many volunteers worked on it to get it ready for us to enjoy each Christmas. One of the volunteers and a reader of "The Arts" in this newspaper, Roy Meinzer, is also very excited about an "extra" this year. The extra is a series of four "How-To Workshops" scheduled Saturdays and Sundays, Dec. 2, 3, 9 and 10 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The new workshops grew from the knowledge that even though the trains have long been an important part of our holiday tradition, the sometimes daunting task of building a layout can be a real deterrent to all but the experts. The Hagley Model Railroaders, as the group calls themselves, are coming to our rescue with these four days of very basic help for those who would like to add this very special extra touch to the holidays in their homes.

Another exhibit now at the museum, "Cuddly Plush Toys: Growth of an Industry," will take on a special Christmas look as well. Adults will enjoy the tracing of this industry from the pioneering days of the Teddy Bear to the plethora of these toys today. The children will love all the toys gathered for them and the two activity areas designed especially for them. In the reading area the youngsters may enjoy themselves with Christmas characters and stories and a quaint tea party ready for guests.

On Sundays December 10 and 17, Caroling at Hagley will be in full swing. The Hagley Carolers will perform a variety of Christmas and Railroad songs as they move through the exhibits at the museum and library. The music will be heard from 2 to 4 p.m. on both days.

An old favorite at Hagley is Christmas at Eleutherian Mills. This year, whether for trimming, tying or topping, ribbons are the holiday theme throughout the rooms of Eleutherian Mills. The du Pont family home will be laced with ribbons, some historic, some handmade and some fashioned into floral arrangements.

For those of you new to our area, Hagley is the site of the original du Pont estate, gardens and mills located on the Brandywine Creek, just off of Route 141 near Wilmington.

From now through Monday, Jan. 1, Hagley will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Regular admission is $9.75 for adults, $7.50 for seniors and students, $3.50 for children 6 to 16 and children under six are free.

Charity begins at school

The first ever "Charity World Bazaar" recently held by 24 third-graders at McClary Elementary School was a smashing success.

According to their teacher, Denise Levering, the students raised $331 in their one-day effort.

"I wanted to have the bazaar as a learning experience and also as a fun way to raise money for the poor," said Levering.

Proceeds from the bazaar will be donated to Emmaus House. "The kids were so excited," said Levering. "They wrote pages and pages in their journals about all the poor people they would help and how they would be able to buy food and even houses!"

Levering said she formerly did a similar project with sixth graders and wasn't sure whether third-graders could do it. "The hardest part was teaching them how to make change," Levering explained.

Everything was priced between five cents and one dollar. "Some of them wanted to price things higher and I had to explain 'supply and demand,'" laughed Levering.

The children also learned about working cooperatively in the five sales booths named for countries of the world and how to 'hawk their wares.'

One little boy screamed, "Come to Australia. We have the best prices in town," for over two hours. "I had a terrible headache," said Levering. "but it was all worth it."

Among the articles for sale to other children in the school were Christmas ornaments, jewelry, baked goods and other small items made by the class or donated by parents and teachers at the school.

The children also had a raffle and chances to guess the number of objects in a jar. "One of the children even designed the poster we used to advertise in the school hall," said Levering who plans to repeat the bazaar with her class next year.

Mako's offers signature menu

SINCE IT OPENED last May, Mako's has faced all the challenges of being a new business and developing a distinctive identity.

While it might seem that its surfer motif is enough to distinguish it from other eating establishments, as part of its evolution, Mako's is currently testing the local waters, so to speak, with a new menu.

"We've put our best sellers on the signature dinner menu and then expanded it," said Chef John Cecchi. "Each item on the menu has been proven in the past and now we have all of the best ones together."

"It's taking more cooking and we are training our kitchen staff in new sauces. We can really make a mark with our food. It is definitely a strength."

Customers can count on diversity as they surf the Mako's menu. The restaurant's latest offerings span from shark sauteed in cilantro and simmered in a secret sweet-spicy red sauce ($11.95) to Jamaican pork chops with fresh portabella mushrooms and chutney sauce ($11.95).

Mako's jumbo crab cakes are still making waves as the number one seller. The award-winning crab cakes are prepared with a guarded combination of spices.

What meal at Mako's what be complete without a serving of Mako's white crab bisque? It's always fresh and hot enough to warm the soul on the coldest winter day.

On Fridays, $8.95 buys prime rib, two vegetables and salad. For a few dollars more, Mako's will throw in a generous helping of steamed shrimp.

With Christmas approaching, Mako's is welcoming reservations for Christmas parties. Since the restaurant seats around 300 persons upstairs, most groups can be easily accommodated.

Call for more information and special group rates.

Mako's New Year's Eve Party promises to be a big splash. By making reservations early, by Dec. 10, you can enjoy a full dinner buffet, live entertainment by Anthony Gallicuo, open bar, a champagne toast with hats and noise makers, and a continental breakfast.

But act fast. Seating is limited to 300 persons and reservations made after Dec. 10 will be $100/couple.

Mako's is located at 203 Newark Shopping Center.

Children are welcome. Those under 12 may order from a children's lunch menu or eat free with adults at dinner.

Hours are Sun., 4-11 p.m., Mon and Tue 4-1 a.m., Wed-Sat 11-1 a.m.. Dinner is served from 4-9 p.m.

The Learning Station

The kids on your Christmas list love to learn, and you love to help them. The toys they stick with the longest are those that challenge their imagination. Where do you find the best? Try The Learning Station in the Newark Shopping Center.

About fifteen years ago, The Learning Station was created to supply teachers with the best tools for their job. But it didn't take long for parents interested in helping educate their kids (as most are) to discover the store. Although parents and teachers consider it a store for educational materials, the kids define The Learning Station as a toy store. The quality of the materials ensures that they will be interested.

Manager Pat Guetschow and her staff get excited about the great stuff they sell, and enjoy sharing their excitement with customers young and not-so-young. For the most part, they are students from the College of Education, active teachers and former teachers. They know kids, they know what kids want to know, and how to help the kids discover their world.

Bring your kids to The Learning Station, and let them show you how much they like to learn. There is a play area in view of the cash register, so the staff can help supervise their fun while you look around. Be forewarned, though; you may be a little late getting home.

National 5¢ & 10¢ Store

One of Main Street's most venerable institutions, The National 5 & 10, was once named the "Best Place to Find Everything" in a Delaware Today magazine readers' poll.

Since it was founded in 1932 by Louis Handloff, the National 5 & 10 has been well-stocked with just about everything a university student or anyone else could find handy, from clothing to posters, stationary to kitchenware.

Today, his grandson Richard runs the store, carrying on the family tradition of meeting the town's general needs, and supervising, among other, the fourth generation of Handloffs at work in the store.

The National 5 & 10 is renowned for the best election of University of Delaware apparel and souvenirs to be found anywhere.

Their stationary, office and school supplies department is comprehensive, and they have an extensive collection of greeting cards to choose from. You'll find toys for all ages, and knickknacks, notions, novelties and necessities galore.

If you're not really sure where to look for something, or just interested in browsing, try the National 5 & 10 first.

NEWARK HIGH'S BUTTER PRESSEY IS NAMED NEWARK POST ATHLETE OF THE WEEK. 2B

Patrick, Pressey and the canon

FROM THE STANDS AT Rider Stadium in Camden, De. the miniature canon that Newark High brought with them probably wasn't that loud.

Standing on the sidelines was a somewhat different story.

After every touchdown the Yellowjackets scored on Saturday in its 38-20 win over Caesar Rodney in the semi-final game of the Delaware High School Football Tournament, Newark Principal Frank Hagen strolled over to his toy canon, inserted a shell, and yanked the cord.

Bamm! Each of the six scores the Yellowjackets accumulated, including a safety late in the third quarter, was followed by a canon shot into the cold night air. It was a sign that Newark had arrived, and that they had scored.

This wasn't some punk-kid with a noise-maker; it was the principal standing beside the canon, ready and waiting for the next Newark touchdown, ready and waiting to make noise.

On the field, the Yellowjackets had two shells, or missiles, that didn't make it into the canon.

They still exploded, and to my delight made less noise.

Butter Pressey and Butch Patrick. Butter and Butch. Thunder and lightning.

No matter what you call them, these two are fast, and the noise they made was more impressive than the canon.

"That is probably the most speed you'll see on a high school football field all season," said Newark coach Butch Simpson of Patrick and Pressey and Caesar Rodney's George Pulliam.

Pulliam had his chance to make noise late in the game. He ran 95 yards, untouched, to add to his 179 yards on 10 carries.

To Hagen and the rest of the Yellowjackets enjoyment, Pressey and Patrick scored four times. That's four canon shots. That's four times my heart stopped, and I checked my pulse to make sure it began pumping blood again.

It didn't matter that the first time the canon went off, I reminded myself to be ready the next time Newark scores. I reminded myself to be ready for the...

Bamm! I dropped my pen, and as I looked around me other media took

Newark makes it final

Newark defensive end Mike Satterfield and a teammate close in on Caesar Rodney quarterback Jon Marketto in Saturday night's 38-20 Yellowjacket win. Newark plays William Penn in the Division I championship tomorrow at 1:00 p.m. at Glasgow High.

'Jackets return to title game after 10-year layoff

By RON PORTER
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

IT WAS DEFINITELY a game that got everybody's attention across the state.

When Newark High and William Penn High got together on Nov. 4 to battle for the Blue Hen Conference championship, and better, the automatic bid to the state tournament, people expected a big game.

What they got was a 20-6 win by the Colonials, who capitalized on Yellowjacket mistakes and rattled a big-play offense.

Newark's double-dose of offense consisting of two 1,000 yard rushers in Butter Pressey and Butch Patrick, encountered a Colonial defensive front line that filled holes, and cornerbacks, especially one Ira Brown that was on the corners when Patrick turned to the outside.

Those were two defensive things that Caesar Rodney lacked in last weekend's 38-20 semi-final loss to the Yellowjackets in the Delaware High School Football Tournament.

The win sends the Yellowjackets in to the final after a 10-year hiatus. The Division I final, or rematch as many are calling it, will be played at Glasgow High on Saturday at 1 p.m.

The semi-final game played at Caesar Rodney highlighted the Newark running game.

Patrick moved around the corners like he was covered in Vaseline as he rubbed off the hips of his offensive tackles enroute to a 21-yard touchdown in the second quarter.

He slipped through hand tackles and just burned by would be tacklers.

Pressey was responsible for giving the Caesar Rodney groundkeeper headaches.

He compiled 197 yards on 15

Hens win, travel south

By RON PORTER
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Tubby Raymond wore a look of confidence on his face Monday when asked how his team was adapting to tournament play.

Raymond said his Hens were mature and handled Saturday's 38-17 NCAA Tournament win over Hofstra with maturity.

"They're not burning the barn down and nobody carried me off the field," said Raymond. "They know the seasons not complete and they've been very mature so far."

Raymond conceded the win over Hofstra earned the Hens the Lambert Cup and the ECAC team of the year.

Those honors, he said, will help with recruiting and getting the Hens name out.

There is something else however that can get Delaware's name out even faster, and that's a Division I-AA championship.

To get to that point the Hens first must take on McNeese State.

The Cowboys have been atop the polls all season as the No. 1 ranked team in the nation and are currently unbeaten. Their first round game was against Idaho, who the Cowboys easily defeated 33-3 last Saturday night.

Raymond said his team knows what they have to do.

"If we play at our best then we're right there," said Raymond. "If we go down there and we don't play at our best than it's a big waste of our time."

Delaware, however, has one thing going for them. They have an offense McNeese State has never seen before.

The Wing-T.

"The Wing-T is something that we're not accustomed to playing against," said McNeese head coach Bobby Keasler. "We're going to have to practice today to figure things out. Right now I can't answer what we're going to do to defend it."

Glasgow's Matt Lantagne (white) moves up field with the ball in the Nov. 12 Delaware Blue-White All-Star game. Christiana's Bobby Trimble was named the Most Valuable Player of Game 2. Newark's Tim Conley (red cleats) plays defense.

Local soccer all-stars play

Christiana's Bobby Trimble named MVP of second game.

NEWARK AREA SOCCER players had a field day at the All-Star games.

Fifteen players from area high schools were selected to play in the two games on Nov. 19 at Frawley Stadium.

The game was restricted to seniors.

In Game 1, Glasgow's Matt Lantagne scored two goals to lead the White team over the Blue 6-5.

In Game 2, Christiana's Bobby Trimble won the Most Valuable Player award for his part in the Blue team's 5-1 victory.

Trimble, a center halfback, said the achievement was one he had dreamed of while an eighth-grader at Caravel Academy.

Back then, he had looked up to the Bucs' Jay Jenkins who went on to win the award.

"I always respected him as a player," he said. "I thought he was the greatest. ...He didn't even know me."

"My major goal really wasn't just to get selected. I wanted to be MVP. ...That's pretty special to me."

Trimble said.

For some players, the game provided them with the opportunity to network with the college coaches who attended the game.

For others, it was a fun way to end their careers as varsity players.

Glasgow goalkeeper David Owens said his future will be more about solving complex equations than making great saves.

Though he likes soccer, Owens figures to spend much of the next four years in a physics or chemistry lab.

Still, the game reunited him with Brian Derrickson, a former Glasgow assistant coach who now holds the top job at Middletown.

Derrickson played Owens at striker where he narrowly missed assisting on one of Lantagne's goals.

"It was fun," Owens said. "(But) it was kind of anti-climactic."

Owens, Lantagne and Matt Hasty all contributed in the Dragons' state championship win over Salesianum, which ended less than 24 hours before the all-star kickoff.

"It really wasn't that competitive," he said. "That was refreshing."

For Hodgson's Paul Sabrowskie, the selection provided a highlight to an otherwise bleak season.

His Silver Eagles' team won only three games.

"The way I look at it," Sabrowskie said, "everybody deserves some recognition at some point."

He appreciated the opportunity to play with some of the state's elite players one last time.

"I got out there (and) had some fun. And that's all that really mattered to me. It was the last time I was probably ever going to play," he said.

Of the area players, he singled out St. Mark's Johan Hohman. "He's a real character," Sabrowskie said. "I think he'll go somewhere. I think a lot of the guys will go somewhere."

Game 2 provided some cold comfort - both figuratively and literally - for St. Mark's Brian Clark, Johan Hohman and Chris Wolf. After dropping a controversial state tournament game to arch rival Salesianum only a few days before the match, the three took pride in seeing six players from the Spartans' roster on the field - compared to half that number from Sallies.

"People actually noticed the talent we had," said Clark, a sweeper. "It was more than half the lineup."

“ This is kind of my shining moment.”

TIM FASSETTE
CHRISTIANA HIGH SOCCER PLAYER

Hohman said. "By then we got over it (the loss). But it took a while."

Hohman scored the White team's lone goal off a throw-in from Clark, a trick the duo turned eight or nine times during the season.

"We did it one last time in the All-Star game," Hohman said.

The game helped the three Spartans take heart in what they had accomplished even though the season ended on a disappointing note.

"Even though things didn't turn out as expected in the All-State nominations and the state tournament, at least we had a good season," Wolf said. "We know who the best team is."

Christiana's Tim Fassette might disagree. Fassette's Vikings defeated Glasgow late in the regular season, which spoiled the Dragons' chance at a perfect record.

"This is kind of my shining moment," said Fassette, whose cousins Mike and Brian Lenz played for St. Mark's. "It's where I finally can hold my head high."

Newark's Tim Conley enjoyed the camaraderie of the game, and the chance to meet with college coaches.

"I played with a lot of them (other players) before on different club teams," said Conley, a fullback whose Yellowjackets' team set a state record for shutouts en route to a 14-4 record.

Conley wants to pursue college soccer, so his playing in the All-Star game could have an impact on his future.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

BUTTER PRESSEY moves with the quickness of a cat. If you approach him on the football field, and he has the ball, Pressey can stop on a dime, and be gone before you have a chance to react.

In Saturday night's 38-20 semi-final win over Caesar Rodney in the Delaware High School Football Tournament, Pressey was a one-man highlight reel.

The first half featured Pressey on defense, running down George Pullium, the Raider's speedster, and saving a touchdown.

Then after the commercial break, (halftime) Pressey decided that he would run for three touchdowns and break the game wide open.

Pressey scored on a 55 and 71 yard run and added a 83-yard kickoff return that had the Caesar Rodney faithful running about as fast to their cars.

"This is the most amount of speed I've ever had on my team," said Newark Coach Butch Simpson who also has Butch

Butter Pressey

Patrick at his disposal.

Pressey and Patrick both ran for over a 1,000 yards this season, with Pressey just accomplishing the feat against Christiana.

It was a milestone that he felt would show the critics he was a runner.

"I guess I had something to prove to myself since everyone wanted me to play flanker or split end," he said.

Not only did he prove it to himself, but defenses around the state are also catching on.

William Penn's Ira Brown mentioned Pressey as a focal point that his team used to get ready for the late season game.

"We knew that it would be a test for us to stop Butcher and Butch," said Brown. "They have speed."

Pressey has earned the respect of others in the state, and now the Newark Post has recognized Butcher Pressey as this week's Athlete of the Week.

Like all running backs Pressey gives most of the credit for his accomplishments to the Newark offensive line.

Now, as the Yellowjackets prepare for the state title game, Pressey said Newark has returned to what brought them success.

"We've gone back to our running game," said Pressey. "That's the bread and butter of our offense."

Hawks soccer win in Hockessin

The Delaware Club Hawks soccer team closed out a successful fall season by winning the under-11 division of the Hockessin Invitational Tournament on Saturday, Nov. 18.

The Hawks topped the Agra Turbos 3-0, the Hockessin Galaxy 3-2 and the Cecil Cobras 5-0 for their second consecutive Hockessin Invitational title.

In the first game, the Hawks were led by center forward Mike Zawislak, who scored all three goals.

The second game pitted the Hawks, fall champions of the Northern Delaware Soccer League's Barcelona Division, against the runner-up Hockessin Galaxy.

The Hawks jumped out to a 3-0 halftime lead on goals by Zawislak, halfback Rick Buccos and left wing Paul Rodriguez then staved off a furious Galaxy rally for victory.

Against Cecil, the Hawks took a quick 1-0 lead on goal by center halfback Tim Harrington then fought through a strong counterattack.

Goalkeeper Adam Thomas made three brilliant saves in the span of five minutes, stopping a penalty kick, diving to his left to push a hard shot wide of the post and then leaping high in the air to punch a direct free-kick over the crossbar.

Re-energized, the Hawks took control of the game in the second half on a pair of goals by stopper Alex Rawles and additional goal by Zawislak and halfback Ryan Robinson to win 5-0.

The Hawks finished the fall season 15-5-1, claiming the Nor-Del championship, winning the Hockessin tournament and reaching the semi-finals of the Delco Columbus Day Tournament.

In the Nor-Del the team went 8-1-1, scoring a league-high 43 goals and allowing just six.

Overall, the Hawks scored 77 goals. Zawislak netted 20, setting a Hawk record for most goals in one season. He was assisted on the front line by forwards Rodriguez (7 goals), Blake Willey (8), Mike Schoenbeck (5) and Zak Golladay. The Hawk attack was supported by the strong play of halfbacks Harrington (12 goals), Robinson (5), Buccos (7) and Matt Feldman.

For the season, the Hawks gave up just 26 scores.

Goalkeeper Thomas was protected by an active defense - sweeper Dante LaPenta, stopper Rawles and marking backs Ray Brown (4) and Chris Resler (1) - and had seven shutouts to his credit.

The Hawks have three roster slots for players for the season 1996 season.

GHS soccer finishes season No. 21 in nation

The Glasgow High boys soccer team finished the season ranked No. 21 in a national poll. The Dragons finished the season with a 19-1-0 record to move up in the Umbro Top 25 Boys Soccer Poll published in USA Today.

The Dragons were ranked earlier in the season at No. 25 and moved up to No. 23 a few weeks before the end of the season.

Coach Bob Bussiere said that the ranking was good recognition for the school and the team.

"This is icing on the cake," said Bussiere whose Dragons beat Salesianum 1-0 for the state championship.

carries and finished off the game with a 71-yard run up-the-middle that had turf flying into the faces of dejected defenders.

"There were a lot of highlights tonight," said Newark coach Butch Simpson. "Long runs are what we live on. That's some of the greatest speed you'll ever see on a high school football field."

The speed resulted in a Newark win. William Penn had won earlier in the day as they defeated Concord. The stage has been set.

"It's a rematch," said Pressey. "We'll be ready this time. We've gone back to our bread and butter on offense."

Isn't that Butch and Butter, Butch?

"We've gone back to what we do best and that's running the ball."

The Newark offensive line has had a lot to do with that.

Saturday they showed that they can push around people and open holes against a big defensive front.

In the game the Yellowjackets played against the Colonials, the Newark offensive line had problems opening those holes.

It will be a test that the Yellowjackets must pass.

"We're going to pray a lot and hope that they're not excited to play us," said Newark Coach Butch Simpson.

As for William Penn, they're led by their quarterback, Rahsaan Matthews who led the Colonials drive after drive in November.

Defensively Brown was the MVP and provided an offensive punch in the Colonials first-round game of the tournament.

Delaware's Rob Garner goes hard to the hoop in the Hens 100-58 season opening win over Division III Washington College at the Bob Carpenter Center on Monday.

Hens open season with win

By RON PORTER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

When Mike Brey came to the University of Delaware and filled the head coaching job of the men's basketball team, he said he wanted to win.

Well, that's what he did on Monday night in the team's opener at the Bob Carpenter Center.

Brey's team scored 100 points against Division III Washington College, and they did it with a transition game.

Five Hens scored in double figures, led by Peca Arsic's 18 points and Greg Smith's 17. Patrick Evans added 14 while Matt Strine had 12 and Rob Garner 11.

Delaware won't have it that easy tomorrow when they play host to St. Joseph's. The Hens offense whoever showed signs of new life and the team's attitude was fierce.

"We were hungry for a game," said Garner to reporters after the Monday game. "We said, 'Let's eat.'"

The Delaware team wasn't selfish either. The team recorded 34 assists, which broke a single-game record set in Glassboro in 1978.

Washington College was close on the first five minutes of the game when they trailed Delaware 22-16. Then Delaware's offense exploded and put up 30 points in ten minutes to make the score 52-16.

The game was Delaware's from that point on. Players reflected on Brey's pregame speech, as they said he said they should come to the game like they were shot out of a canon.

By the looks of this team, they were shot out of a nuclear missile silo.

Delaware plays tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Delaware travels south

► HENS, from 1B

The Cowboys are known nationally for their defense. So the high-powered offense that the Hens display will face a tough opposition.

"They hang their hat on their defense," said Raymond of the 12-0 McNeese team. But their offense boasts some premier players.

McNeese State's quarterback position is held by Kerry Joseph. Joseph is the Southlands Conference offensive player of the year and a candidate for the Walter Payton Award that is given to the top player in Division I-AA.

As for the Hens quarterback, he showed up Tuesday on crutches to take pressure off an ankle injury that he suffered in the Hofstra game.

Both Hamlett and Raymond have assured everyone that the speedy quarterback will be ready to play come Saturday.

Hen coach honored

Raymond was named NCAA I-

AA Region I Coach of the Year by the American Football Coaches Association, the ASFCA announced Tuesday.

Raymond, who has led the Hens to the Yankee Conference title, an 11-1 record, and a berth in the NCAA I-AA quarterfinals Saturday. Raymond is now one of just seven coaches to have won AFCA regional coach of the year honors seven times.

He is now eligible for national coach of the year honors which will be announced on December.

Holy Angels win Turkey Bowl

THE HOLY ANGELS C.Y.O. varsity football team traveled to Baltimore on Saturday and defeated the Hartford-Baltimore County Youth football league senior champions 28-8 in the 1995 Invitational Turkey Bowl.

The Angels, who were crowned the C.Y.O. league regular season champs, played without several of their starters in the win.

The team stepped up the intensity level and with the addition of five junior varsity players, took it to the much larger H.B. Stallions team.

In the opening quarter the hard-hitting defense caused two Stallion fumbles, recovered by Dave Maloney and Robert Barbarita.

The Angels scored first late in the first half on a 32-yard halfback pass from Steve Rodgers to receiver John Brennen for the touchdown. At the half the Angels led 6-0.

Duben Word opened the second half with a kickoff return for a touchdown and the Angels never looked back.

Steve Satterfield ran in the two-point conversion to make the score 14-0.

Then in the fourth quarter after a Stallion touchdown Robbie Hines passed to Nick Novertia for another score.

On the kickoff Mark Rash caused a fumble that he recovered to set up Holy Angels in Stallion territory.

Word drove in for the final touchdown and Maloney capped the scoring by running in the two-point conversion.

Each team was awarded an offensive and defensive MVP.

For Holy Angels, Word was selected for his offensive performance, while Satterfield was chosen on the defense.

Coaches Charlie Muzzi and Jim Shaw accepted the "Turkey Bowl" championship trophy on the teams behalf.
