WHOLE STATE MOURNS DEATH OF DEAN E. L. SMITH

SUCCUMBED TO PNEUMONIA EARLY YESTERDAY MORNING AFTER SHORT ILLNESS—DEATH COMES AS SUDDEN SHOCK TO COMMUNITY—ALL EFFORTS TO SAVE HIM FAIL—WAS ACTIVE IN UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS FOR 20 YEARS

FUNERAL TO BE FRIDAY

Edward Laurence Smith, Dean of the University of Delaware, died yesterday morning shortly after 5 o'clock, at his home on Delaware Avenue, after an illness of but three days, due to pneumonia. He was 45 years of age. In his passing the University has lost one of its greatest pillars of strength, the town of Newark a worthy citizen of noble character, and the State one of its most foremost men of affairs.

The Dean and Mrs. Smith attended a cantata at the New Century Club in Wilmington last Friday evening. On the way home he complained of a sudden chill, and the next morning was unable to rise from his bed. Drs. Hollock and Blake were hurriedly summoned and on Sunday pronounced his case to be pneumonia, affecting the lung. Throughout Sunday and Monday the Dean suffered excruciating pain, but his nerves remained unshaken and he fought off the dread disease with the greatest of fortitude.

Condition Grows Worse

When Monday night set in it was generally believed by those in attendance that the Dean was holding his own. All through the night he was given oxygen at intervals, but shortly after four o'clock his heart gave way and he sank rapidly.

Throughout his fatal illness Mrs. Smith never left his bedside. As a result she is now confined to her bed by the combined shock of the death of the Dean and the strain of the past few days.

The news of Dean Smith's death at a pall of gloom over the whole University Tuesday. Gathered upon the campus were groups of undergraduates speaking in hushed tones and their faces wearing a peculiar look of blank amazement. It could hardly be believed that their beloved Dean and helper had left them forever. The flags at both the Women's College and Frazer Field have been flying at half mast since sunrise Monday. Among the townspeople, the death also struck home. Business men, professional men, men in all walks of life knew Laurence Smith, not only as a professor, but as a plain everyday straight from the shoulder man—a man among men.

Funeral Friday Afternoon

The funeral services will be held at the Presbyterian Church at 2 o'clock. The remains may be viewed at his late home on Friday from 10 o'clock until 1 o'clock. It is expected that hundreds in educational, business, political and professional affairs from the State and nearby sections will be present at the services. Interment will be made in the family lot in the Christiana Cemetery.

The pall bearers will, it is understood, be members of the student body of Delaware College. It is most fitting that such be the arrangements, for his whole life was wrapped up in that grand little institution under the towering linden trees.

Harry Lyndall, president of the Normal Association, wired instructions for the representation of that body at the funeral. The following were designated to take part: Hugh M. Morris, chairman of the committee, Judge Richard S. Rodden, Rev. C. W. Clash, and Harris W. Mumfory, of Wilmington; Carl Harrison, George I. Lockwood and George Morxan, of Philadelphia.

It is also stated that the Board of Trustees and the Faculty will be officially represented at the services.

Messages Pouring In

Hundreds of telegrams, and notes expressing sympathy and consolation to the bereaved wife have been pouring in from all over the State. Tributes from all over the State will make up a large share of the funeral. All are united in one thought: that in losing Dean Smith, Delaware College and the University (Continued on Page Four.)

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID TO DEAN SMITH BY ASSOCIATES AND FRIENDS

STATEMENTS OF DEEP SYMPATHY AND EULOGY MARK MESSAGES TO THE POST REGARDING OUR GREAT LOSS

Immediately after the news of the death of Dean Smith had been flashed Tuesday morning many messages of sorrow and high tribute began to arrive from all parts of the State and country.

The following are a few of the many that have been received at The Post concerning the passing of a man whose memory will long be cherished by every son of Old Delaware:

From Walter Hullihen, President of the University of Delaware: "In Dean Smith's death, the University and the community have suffered a heavy loss. He was beloved by Faculty and Students for his unvarying courtesy and friendliness and admired for his ability and courage in the performance of his onerous and often difficult duties. He carried a heavy burden of work cheerfully and accomplished it with high efficiency. We mourn the loss of a warm friend, a kind neighbor, a useful citizen and an invaluable college officer."

WALTER HULLIHEN.

And from the student body he so dearly loved, comes this message, written by Earl deWitt Brandt, president of the Student Self Government Association:

"The death of Dean Edward Laurence Smith comes as a sad and overwhelming blow to the student body. Our best friend has gone; his sympathetic understanding and just ways endeared him to us long ago as our kindly confessor. We have many times appreciated his humor; we have been inspired by his faithful attendance at our athletic events; we have thanked him in the past when he has extricated us from the tangles of a student's life."

"We shall revere him as the happy combination of a fine sportsman and diligent scholar."

"Bowed in grief, we have the consolation of his memory—a man, a friend; and we can only wonder at the impartiality of death."

From Dean Winfred J. Robinson of the Women's College of Delaware:

"Dean Edward Laurence Smith has stood to me for all those qualities of chivalry that marked the knight of old. His sword cut cleanly through a matter. He looked upon both sides of any question fairly, granted the reasonableness of another's point of view generously, retracted an opinion or held firm as justice or new light might direct; yet his word once given always stood. His dignity was genuine and expressed the loyal respect he gave to his colleagues and students alike, but always yielded to that sympathy in another's need or that quiet appreciation of humor which made him sought by all who love good fellowship."

"His garden glowed with color, while field and wood and stream gave him intense delight whenever work or play took him to the open country. On festive evenings, when Old College was gaily decked and dancers gathered there, no one was more appreciative of the picture it presented nor more in sympathy with the joyousness of the hour than he."

"The friendliness of Dean Smith, his unselfish willingness to spend and be spent, and his earnest desire to promote any educational good have left us a great personal heritage and also a great responsibility to carry on."

WINIFRED J. ROBINSON.

From Dr. George A. Harter, a lifelong friend, formerly President of Delaware College:

"The University was shocked and grieved to hear of the untimely death of Dean Smith in the early hours of the morning of Tuesday, January 16. Only last Friday afternoon when I was going to meet my classes in the Women's College he hailed me as I was passing his house and invited me to let him drive me to my work. As illustrative of his thoughtfulness and kindness he insisted that I should call upon him whenever the weather was unpropitious for walking and said if at any time I should be at the Women's College when the weather was bad I should not hesitate to let him know and he would drive down and bring me home. This personal gesture illustrates his ever present desire to be helpful to his fellow workers and his unflinching interest in their welfare and comfort. On the night of the same day he was taken with a severe chill and pneumonia immediately followed."

"I have known Laurence Smith intimately since he as a lad entered Delaware College as a Freshman in 1892. He was a member of my various classes until his graduation in 1896. He was bright and cheery in disposition, chivalrous in nature. He early displayed those characteristics that made his life one round of doing good, and won him the lasting friendship of all whom he met in his busy life."

"For a number of years he was chairman of several of the most important committees of the Faculty and to his active interest and un-

NEW CENTURY CLUB HEARS VISITING NURSE

Letter Day Also Observed at Regular Meeting Yesterday

The New Century Club of Newark enjoyed an interesting meeting yesterday. After the routine business was disposed of, Letter Day, in charge of Mrs. E. C. Johnson, was in order. Mrs. Alexander Cobb read a most delightful letter from Mrs. Close, of Washington, D. C., who will be remembered by her Newark friends as Miss Margaret Blandy. Mrs. Close described the beauties of a trip taken last summer through the Canadian Rockies.

Miss Woods, Superintendent of the Visiting Nurse Association of Wilmington, was then introduced and gave a clear cut, illuminating talk on the work done by her Association. Miss Woods said the visiting nurse has come to stay. Only regularly trained nurses serve on the staff of this Association so they are equal to any emergency.

When Miss Woods finished the story of the visiting nurse and explained how she is supported in a town, the Club felt that one should be introduced into every community.

Miss Maxwell, at the next meeting of the Club, January 30th, will read a paper on Peru, her birth place.

Mrs. Walter, President of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the guest of the Club February 27th.

COMPANY "E" MAY GO TO LONG ISLAND CAMP

Change in Summer Training Site Approved by Authorities

NO DEFINITE ACTION

The Delaware National Guard units, of which Company E is a leading member, will go to Long Island, N. Y., next summer for a two weeks' intensive training in preference to the State Rifle Range at New Castle. This move was intimated in an announcement read before the local company at its last drill. The communication was signed by Colonel Stark and bore the approval of Adjutant-General Ellison, of Wilmington, and Major-General Bullard.

The motive behind the move is believed to be the fact that greater value would be received by the Delaware boys if thrown into contact with a regiment of regulars now stationed on the island. That regiment and the Delaware National Guard are the only anti-aircraft units in the country. Further developments are being awaited with interest.

EVERYBODY OUT

Announcement was made yesterday that stout ladies, thin ladies; old ladies, young ladies; tall ladies and short ladies may now revel and scamper and prance around to their heart's content without calling down the jibes of their more fortunate neighbors. This means that a Gymnasium Class for ladies is soon to be established in Newark. It is understood to be in the nature of "spring training." Miss Parkhurst of the Women's College will be asked to conduct the weekly frolics. The first meeting will be held Monday night at the home of Miss Edith Spencer.

GOES TO CALIFORNIA

Mrs. J. W. Parrish left Monday afternoon for a lengthy visit to California. She will be the guest of her brother, Dr. Mackall Bruin, of Los Angeles, the latter having been in the East since Christmas.

SEVERAL FUNCTIONS CALLED OFF BY DEATH OF DEAN

Owing to the sudden death of Dean E. L. Smith several events of the week have been postponed. Glenn Frank's two lectures, scheduled for Tuesday, were not given. Other functions, mostly of a social nature, that were called off were the Sigma Phi Epsilon dance on Friday next and the Women's College Freshmen dance to have been given Saturday evening.

ANNIVERSARY MEETING

The Junior Order U. A. M. will hold their anniversary frolic on the evening of January 22nd. The scene of the entertainment will be the lodge rooms. Last year the same meeting was held in the New Century Club rooms. A special committee has been appointed to arrange for the affair.

Y. W. C. A. MEETING TUESDAY

At 2.30 next Tuesday afternoon in the High School, there will be given a most interesting lecture on "World Y. W. C. A." by Miss Lela Jackson, of New York City, formerly connected with the Roumania Y. W. C. A. Miss Jackson will appear in the native costumes of that country during the afternoon. Her talk should certainly be worth while.

CLARENCE EASTBURN ILL

Clarence Eastburn, well known to every resident of Newark and surrounding country, is now in the Delaware Hospital, Wilmington, suffering from stomach trouble. He was taken there the latter part of last week for examination and probably an operation. At this writing Mr. Eastburn is but slightly improved. The operation has been deferred.

CHANGES IN REHAB FACULTY MADE RECENTLY

Mr. Phineas Moore, an instructor attached to the Rehabilitation Division of the University has resigned his post, taking effect the end of the month.

The position will be filled after February 2nd by Miss Ethel Brandt, of Fergus Falls, Minn. Miss Brandt, it is understood, is the fiancée of Mr. Arthur E. Tomhave, an instructor in Animal Husbandry at the University.

OFFICERS SWOOP DOWN ON HOME OF ALLEGED BOOTLEGGERS SUNDAY NIGHT

B. Bucarelli Alleged to Have Sold Liquor Under Shadow of Town Jail. Three Quarts Found in Home by Constable Ellison

RELEASED UNDER $1500 BAIL FOR COURT

A quiet and effective raid was engineered about 8 o'clock last Sunday night by Constable Ellison and Officer Lewis, when they arrested one B. Bucarelli for the alleged possession and sale of intoxicating liquor at his home on Academy Street. A novel incident in the raid was the fact that the accused lived within a few yards of the town jail at the rear of the Fire House.

At a hearing before Magistrate Thompson Monday evening, Bucarelli was released upon $1500 bail for appearance at the next term of the General Sessions court. Bail was furnished in the form of property deeds by the accused's brother-in-law. The charges preferred were the possession of more than the stipulated amount of liquor in his home as prescribed by law, and second, the illegal sale of same.

In order to procure evidence, Ellison sent a young colored man to the place early Sunday evening to buy liquor. The emissary returned with a half pint.

Accordingly the officer accompanied by Lewis entered the place with a

Prominent Visitor In Newark Saturday

Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia Stops for an Hour on Way to Washington—Praises Harbor Project

Greets Dr. Hullihen

Newark added another name to its list of distinguished visitors when on Saturday last Mayor J. Hampton Moore and Mrs. Moore, of Philadelphia, stopped here for over an hour, while enroute to Washington, D. C., there to spend the week-end. The trip was taken by Mr. and Mrs. Moore as a pure outing and no official business was connected with it. They planned to visit relatives in Washington and thence to Richmond, Va., before returning to Philadelphia. They stopped here shortly after noon and took lunch at the Deer Park Hotel.

When greeted by a representative of the Post, the Mayor smilingly stated that he never expected to be waylaid by a newspaperman outside of Philadelphia. He stated that he was quite familiar with Newark, and remembered the Deer Park distinctly. He regretted very much the fact that he had to push on to Washington in such a hurry, as he wanted to inspect the University and look around the town in general.

Visits Dr. Hullihen

After leaving the Deer Park, the Mayor and Mrs. Moore were driven over to the "Knoll," where they were cordially greeted by Dr. Walter Hullihen, President of the University of Delaware. The Mayor and Dr. Hullihen chatted pleasantly for several minutes and the former expressed his intention of paying the University an official visit some time in the future. The Mayor then stepped back into his car and drove off.

Lauds Harbor Project

Before leaving town, Mayor Moore spent a few minutes talking to the Post representative. He said that Delaware was making rapid strides in the matter of improved waterways and such action should be highly commended.

"There is no reason," declared Mr. Moore, "why little Delaware cannot be made one of the most important maritime states on the Atlantic Coast. With the completion of the new Wilmington harbor, the great possibilities of doing likewise at Lewes and the advantages of the splendid Breakwater at the mouth of the Bay, affording ample protection from storms, such a position should be attained. From the standpoint of natural advantages and attraction to the ship-

Three Quarts Found

Three quarts or more of alleged hooch were found by the raiders and turned over to J. Herbert Watson, State Chemist, for analysis. According to Dr. Watson, the stuff tested about 42 per cent alcohol, and appeared to be nothing more than the pure alcohol diluted with water.

For the past several months it has been rumored that liquor could be purchased at Bucarelli's place and several complaints had already been filed with the constable and town authorities.

Bucarelli, a young Italian, is married and of late has opened a small candy and cigar store and shoe shine parlor in the front of his building. He speaks very poor English and seemed more or less dumbfounded when placed under arrest.

NOTED NATURALIST TO TALK IN WILMINGTON

W. L. Finley Guest of Women's Club of Trinity Church, Thornton Burgess to Talk to Children

The Parkway Theatre, Delaware Avenue and Adams Street, Wilmington, will be the scene on January 23 of two lectures under the auspices of the Women's Club of the Trinity Church of that city.

In the afternoon, a treat for the kiddies and grown ups as well will be given in the form of a lecture by Thornton W. Burgess, nationally known story-teller of "Peter Rabbit" fame.

In the evening a motion picture exhibit and lecture will be given by William L. Finley, who is perhaps the best known animal and bird photographer in the country. Some of his pictures were seen in the photographic section of the New York Times last Sunday.

During the past twenty years Mr. Finley has devoted a large part of his time as a naturalist in the field studying wild folks with notebook and camera. His pictures are not only interesting, instructive and entertaining, but full of amusing incidents bringing out many laughs, as when two lumbering, good-natured cubs of the brown bear try to play with the cutest cougar kittens, and also many humorous close-ups of bird life.

Mr. Burgess is the author of "Mother West Wind" and "Bedtime Stories," and will show colored slides of his well-known Peter Rabbit, Johnnie Chuck, Reddy Fox, Danny Meadow Mouse and also show a number of new and interesting pictures. In addition, he will tell stories to the children, and everyone knows he is a born story-teller, combining a sympathetic love for the little wood-folk and accuracy as to details concerning their lives—worthy of a professional naturalist.

STATE NUTRITION PROGRAM SUPPORTED

People from everywhere are rallying to the support of the Delaware State Nutrition Program.

Mr. John Isaacs, of Prime Hook Neck School District, is donating four quarts of milk a day in order that the children in his school may have hot nourishing food at noon.

Miss Barger, the rural supervisor writes, "We are serving hot lunches in many of the schools. When this has been continued for a year a marked improvement shows not only in the weight but in the faces of the children."

"Over fifty per cent of the children of our school are underweight," writes one principal. "Tell us what to do and we'll do it."

"Send me more cards," writes a teacher. "I was afraid it would be hard to interest the people in the nutrition project but I find it is the most popular thing I've attempted."

From Texas University we hear, "We understand that Delaware agencies have united on a State Nutrition Program. We would much appreciate any information regarding your plan that you can give us."

A Michigan organization writes, "It has come to our notice that a vigorous movement is developing in Delaware to combat the under nourishment problem. This movement is a thoroughly good one. It would be a matter of considerable satisfaction to us if you would keep us posted as to developments."

Such reports show that the people are becoming aroused. There is still much to be done. The committee will not be satisfied until everyone is thinking about our mal-nutrition problem and is willing to do what they can to help.

If you are interested write the State Chairman, Miss Kathryn E. Woods, University of Delaware, Newark, Del.

Superintendent Owens, of the Newark Public Schools, on Monday last ordered the closing of the High School for a few days this week, preparatory to thorough fumigation of the building. Miss Lydia Young, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Taylor Young, of West Main Street, is confined with the disease. Her condition is much improved at this writing. It is expected that the building will be reopened either today or tomorrow. Miss Young's case is the first on record in the High School during the winter.

HEAR INAUGURAL SPEECH BY RADIO

The pupils and teachers of the Oglethorpe School heard the inaugural address of Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, yesterday afternoon, at the home of Wilmer S. Hawthorne, a resident of that village.

In addition to the speech of Pennsylvania's newest Governor, the passing of the parade, the music of the bands and even the stamping of cold feet on colder pavements could be plainly heard.

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

AS TOLD BY CORRESPONDENTS AND EXCHANGE

ELKTON

It is reported that the approaching session of the Maryland Legislature will recognize strange and awful things concerning the so-called Marriage Bill at Elkton.

The same old question has been revived, unleashed, and flung out in a broadside of publicity each year. It seems that someone is always disrupting the peace and tranquillity of the town. So far the storms have died down without serious developments, but from all reports this one is due to be a regular blizzard.

A bill will be introduced in the next Legislature providing that all couples desirous of being united in the holy bonds of matrimony must cool their heels for forty-eight hours before they can present themselves at the office of the County Clerk. As it stands now, many a couple have been married, brought the furniture and moved into the new house in less than forty-eight hours.

The bill comes to light as a direct result of a desire on the part of ministers holding charges in Elkton to cast from the town the stigma of sensational publicity.

It is up to the Legislature to decide whether a clergyman can marry one hundred and ten couples in the space of one week without bringing undue comment upon himself and the town.

Then again, Squire Grove Scotten has reassured and old law making it a punishable offense for clergymen to tip taxi drivers when couples are brought to the parsonage. Which complicates the matter considerably. Legislature vs. Gretna Green would make a splendid bout, would it not?

The news that the local Chamber of Commerce will assist the Bush Line of Wilmington in fighting the injunction which will restrain them from carrying on business in Elkton and vicinity is only more evidence of the great use such a body may become to its town. The Chamber constitutes business men representing almost every interest in Elkton, and its voice will be heard far above the clamor of individual protests and complaints. It's organization is really one of the greatest steps forward taken in recent years.

Elkton motorists and Sunday excursionists may be interested to learn that the attractive and capable young lady who welcomes you to the Tow Path Tea House just across the Conowingo bridge is about $2700 richer than she was six months ago. The proceeds came from the Tea House alone. Which goes to show that the business of feeding hungry travellers waxes fast and furious.

A near-fatality was narrowly averted Sunday night when an auto driven by Paul Cameron, of Elkton, crashed into a touring car piloted by Abe Reynolds, of Newark, along the Newark-Elkton road. Both machines were wrecked but the occupants fortunately escaped with a shaking up. It was reported that the Cameron machine was traveling on the wrong side of the highway, and pulled out too late to avoid the crash.

You can't please everybody no matter how hard you try. And this fact applies to the art of selling what is commonly known as hooch. Some prefer to call it liquid dynamite. However, that is aside from the story. It seems that one of Elkton's flourishing hooch brokers decided that he would fool one of his steady customers. Basing his decision on the fact that the American people have almost lost their grip on judging liquor, he sold the said customer some particular strenuous stuff, and gave no reduction in price.

The customer returned. And he returned loaded for bear. The proprietor suggested pinochle; nothing doing. He tried patting on the back; still nothing doing. Words led into words, and the visit reached a climax when the disgruntled customer drew a gun and completely shot up the lovely silver plated still. For the sake of the sorrowing bootlegger, we withhold his name from public print.

AMUSEMENT CO. ON THE ROCKS, IS RUMOR

Ambitious Scheme is Said to be Held Up Indefinitely. Public Sale of Property February 1

The advertisement of a Trustee's Sale of the property of the William Pierce Amusement Co., a partially completed moving picture house and business block on Main Street, Elkton, has given some credence to the rumor that the company is in financial difficulties.

The sale comes as the result of failure on the part of the company to meet an obligation held by a large mortgage-holder. No definite statement as to the exact financial position of the concern is available.

The public sale of the property is scheduled for February 1st. It is reported that it may be bought by an interested party and the work of completion rushed along.

For the past several months no work has been done on the building. The plans call for a splendid modern theatre with stores on the first floor and apartments above. The situation is one of the best in Elkton, being located in the center of the business district.

Poultry Demonstration Held at Hockessin

"The crux of profitable poultry raising is productive birds," was the introductory remark of Mr. Carl Mumford at a poultry culling demonstration held Monday on the farm of Mr. Frank Dennison near Hockessin. Thirty-five farmers braved the inclement weather and brad roads and attended the demonstration. Mr. Mumford is manager of the poultry plant maintained in behalf of the Rehabilitation Division of the University of Delaware. The demonstration was arranged by R. O. Bausman, County Agricultural Agent, Newark.

Mr. Mumford explained that August and September is the proper time to cull the poultry flock, but that the good poultryman culled every month. As the demonstration progressed the point was developed that nature has endowed the fowl with certain features by which it is possible for the tender to determine with considerable accuracy its productivity. Out of Mr. Dennison's flock of two hundred birds twenty-five were culled out which in all probability never would be profitable producers.

ORPHEUS CLUB IN SPLENDID CONCERT

Second Annual Visit to Newark Marred by Very Small Audience

MRS. BABCOCK PLEASURES

The second annual visit of the Orpheus Club of Wilmington to Wolf Hall took place last Thursday night before a painfully small house. The program, much more ambitious than the one given last year, was handled by the members in splendid style and the few faithful who turned out spent a mighty fine musical evening.

The University of Delaware Review had charge of the affair and the leaders of that organization are at a loss to account for the miserable attendance.

Mrs. Frances DeWitt Babcock, well known in Newark, was the soloist, and completely charmed the audience with her rich and well controlled soprano. Of her offerings, perhaps the best were two simple little songs, "On Wings of Song" and "Sylvain." With the Club in support, she carried off the difficult "Italian Street Song," by Victor Herbert, in an impressive manner. Mrs. Babcock is possessed of an unusually rich tone, and her enunciation is far above the average concert singer.

Other numbers, sung by the Club, which won the listener's were "Vale Carissima," by Attenhorfer, and "Pilgrim's Chorus" by Dr. Parry.

DANCE WELL ATTENDED

The weekly Friday night dance in the Armory brought out more than the usual number of enthusiasts last week. Along with the regular dancing several impromptu skits were given by the guests. Miss Rodman, of Wilmington, won a three dollar prize. Music was furnished by the Serenaders.

DEAN SMITH

"If you would read my epitaph, look about you."

These words, carved over an arch of the great cathedral, St. Paul's in London make up the epitaph and tell the story of the life-work of the great English architect, Christopher Wren.

The words ring in our ear today and we can say nothing more fitting nor more truly of the life of Dean Smith. At such a time words fail utterly. His death came so suddenly. The heart of the whole community missed a beat. So stunned, that any estimate of his worth and influence has not yet found expression. The sum total of that influence has been so wide spread that true reckoning will never be recorded.

Personally, we knew him back in College Days as an upper classman with the reputation of being the best read man in College. Then we were fortunate to be associated with him in class work under the tutelage of that Master linguist and gentleman Dr. Manning. Then and all through the years he was the "scholarly gentleman," yet as democratic in his associations and living as any "man of the crowd."

Old Delaware was his life work. In class, on the field, in faculty discussion and committee detail, he was tireless in effort, unassuming in manner, genial always in disposition. He was a leader of men without any of the display. With the Trustees, his comment and judgment was definite and clear, backed always by an array of facts. He had a genius for statistics and their value for comparisons. At the same time, he saw a student point of view. No student escapade ever had a greater friend at Court. Nor was there a more exacting man for sheer Justice. He never boasted nor prated about a Square Deal yet it was the keynote to his nature and practice. He was by temperament and ability, a scholar in language, yet Service to his Alma Mater and Men of the Hour was his passion. To these, he gave his life.

In his recreation, too, we find again true display of his character. He was a true sportsman. He loved the tenseness of a touchdown and the thrill of the angler. All in all, he was a student and gentleman, a citizen worth while and a man. He was practical and yet maintained the Ideals of Youth. And was enthusiasm itself when Duty called.

Taking advantage of that, we literally wore him out. He gave us his all—gladly. No man at the University had the various and intricate tasks that were his. Vacation was not in his vocabulary but Work and Service were writ large. Young in years, he lived intensely and completed early his work.

His genius for remembering names, dates and faces, his pleasing salutation to every one of whatever station in life shed a glow far in the distance. Town and Gown, professional and working man, alumni and undergraduate stand today awed and uncovered failing utterly to say what the heart feels.

"THE REST IS SILENCE"—

If you would read his epitaph look about you.

and studied another year at the University of Paris. On returning to the United States, Dean Smith was appointed an instructor in Modern Languages at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, from where, after a year, he came back to his Alma Mater to teach the same subjects.

Dean Smith was married shortly later on August 19, 1903, to Miss Deborah Chambers Johnston, of Thompson, Del. After a wedding trip abroad, they settled in their Delaware Avenue home.

For the past twenty years the deceased had served his college as instructor, professor, secretary to the Faculty before the office of Dean was created and, since 1915, has been Dean of the Arts and Science School and of late Dean of the Men. His office of Dean was the second of its kind created at Delaware, Harry Hayward being the Dean of Agriculture at the time.

Dean Smith is survived by his wife and one child, Edward Laurence Smith, Jr., aged four years. Two other children were born, the first child dying while an infant, and a young daughter, Helen, being killed by an automobile while playing in front of her home. This death was a severe blow to the father and mother.

Dean Smith was a member of the Board of Directors of the Farmers' Trust Company, a member of the local Presbyterian Church, a director in a Building and Loan Association, a member of the Newark Anglers' Club and of the Newark Country Club. He was a charter member of the Beta Epsilon Chapter of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity and a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Scholarship Fraternity.

While in college, Dean Smith was considered one of the best tennis players of his day, but of recent years his main hobby was fishing. Equipped with his trusty fly rod and a basket of lunch, he could be found many a clear day during spring and fall along the bank of some lake in Sussex County or a stream in Kent and New Castle, luring bass and trout. He was an expert fisherman. Of late he had taken up golf, and was a frequent visitor at the Country Club.

His life was remarkably active and while still in his prime, he was snatched away in three short days. The beloved friend of every student, rich or poor, brilliant or backward; the guiding hand in the policies of Delaware College in those "dark days" when its very existence as an institution of learning was threatened; the broad-minded citizen and man of affairs, keen in judgment, plain in speech, and thoughtful in deed—that was Dean Edward Laurence Smith.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO DEAN SMITH

swerving devotion to duty is largely owing their satisfactory functioning in upholding the dignity and fairness of the University in dealing with matters of discipline and scholarship. To him and his colleague, Professor Dutton, the University owes a debt of gratitude. Last summer they visited every section of the State and succeeded in getting the largest enrollment of Freshmen in the history of the college. In every phase of college activity his work was felt. For years he was a Faculty Member of the Athletic Council and was president of that body during that time. He labored constantly to put the athletic interests of 'Our Delaware' on a high plane and succeeded in upholding a high standard of sportsmanlike play. There was no side of college or community life that he did not touch and his wise counsels and genial smile will be sadly missed. He was beloved by the student body for his likeable qualities, but above all for his fairness and impartiality. He was never too busy to hear a student who went to him for advice or consolation in 'time of trouble' and a serious correction served in playful language usually sent the seeker away in a frame of mind much improved by his visit. He retained his youthful sympathies and his relations with the students was like that of an older brother who while sharing their feelings has gained wisdom and strength through experience. In the multiplicity of his relations with the faculty the cordiality and affection for him was most marked. He was keenly alive to every movement that looked to the betterment of the community and was the best beloved citizen of the town. He was held in the highest esteem by every one he met. In his death the students have lost a true friend and a sympathetic counsellor, his fellows of the Faculty a congenial and helpful companion, Delaware College a loyal and active son.

"We, the members of Kappa Alpha Fraternity, Beta Epsilon Chapter, feel keenly that, in the untimely death of Dean E. Laurence Smith, the University and especially our Fraternity has suffered an irreparable loss. For many years he was not only a very active member but a 'big brother' to every man initiated into our order."

From Henry Ridgely, Chairman of the Committee on Instruction of the Board of Trustees of the University comes this tribute:

"I have been Chairman of the Instruction Committee of the Board of Trustees of Delaware College, now the University of Delaware, for a number of years, and in that capacity have been thrown in touch with Dean Smith upon many occasions. I have found him to be uniform in his views, kindly, sensitive to the needs of the institution—helpful and broad-minded. He was a man who not only had scholarly and executive ability but more than that—he had personality, a great kindness that came out always in every thing that he touched in regards to the University.

HENRY RIDGELY"

In response to a wire sent early

Tuesday morning the following return telegram from E. N. Vallandigham was received at this office in less than three hours:

STATE MOURNS LOSS OF E. L. SMITH

of Delaware has lost one of its greatest forces for good.

E. N. Vallandigham, a life-long friend of the deceased and of his family, in a special telegram to the Post, received three hours after the news of the death was wired, paid a high tribute to the ability of the late Dean. Dr. Vallandigham's message will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Henry Ridgely, Esq., a member of the Board of Trustees and a great admirer of Dean Smith, also sent to the Post a phone message yesterday morning, expressing his deep sorrow at the sudden passing of his friend and co-worker.

These are but a few of the many, but they serve to show the extent of Dean Smith's popularity among all classes and creeds throughout the State. Here was a man whose kindly and helpful spirit really accomplished big things. Never a rich man, and rarely able to take long vacations, he worked steadily and unstintingly for the good of his Alma Mater, for the good of the State in which he lived and for the good of education.

Facts of His Life

Edward Laurence Smith was born on a farm near Appleton, Md., not far from Newark, on March 19, 1877. He was the son of Hosea R. and Mary Louise Sentman Smith. His father is still living, but has moved from the old home place. The boy was educated in the country school nearby and in the fall of 1892 entered Delaware College, then a struggling little institution of but 100 students. He took the regular Academic course and was graduated with honors in the justly famous class of 1896.

He returned for graduate work and received his Masters degree three years later. In 1901 he attended the graduate school of Columbia University, there specializing in the Romance languages. He remained there one year and then travelled to France

"Chestnut Hill, Mass.

"The Post," Newark, Del.

"Dean Smith, whom I knew from his boyhood, and valued as a friend, and whose father was my schoolmate, and whose grandfather and great grandfather I knew, was one of the most useful men of the many who have given themselves to the upbuilding of Delaware College and the University. It is not generally recognized, I think, that he turned aside from a promising career in the higher scholarship of the Romance languages, to teach at Delaware and to take upon his shoulders a large share of the executive work and his personal labors as the steady friend and adviser of the student body.

"His old preceptor, Prof. Adolf Cohn of Columbia University, himself an exacting scholar expressed to me his disappointment that Dean Smith had chosen the service of his Alma Mater to continue in a promising career as a scholarly specialist in the Romance languages. Such an expression coming from such a man as Prof. Cohn was a high tribute to Dean Smith's native powers and promise.

That the town of Newark and all its many interests mourn the loss of a splendid citizen, business man and neighbor is evidenced in a short eulogy from Mayor E. B. Frazer and is as follows:

"The news of the death of Dean Smith came as a distinct personal shock. I consider him as having been one if not the strongest member of the Faculty of Delaware College. As a member of the Board of Directors of the Farmers Trust Company, he was one of our ablest advisers. He used excellent judgment in the affairs of the bank at all times.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATOR ILL.

Arthur G. Wilkinson, business administrator of the University of Delaware, has been quite ill for several days with the grippe. He is being attended by Dr. Edgar Q. Bullock. His condition is such that it is exceedingly doubtful that he will be able to attend the funeral of his friend, Dean E. Laurence Smith, on Friday.

GOOD EXCUSE

Jack and Mary had just been to the grown-ups' church for the first time. A day or two afterward they were found in the nursery whispering audibly to each other.

"What are you children doing?" their nurse asked.

"We're playing church," replied Jack.

"But you shouldn't whisper in church," admonished nurse.

"Oh, we're the choir," said Mary.

pers, the development of your waterways is of the utmost importance." "Have you heard about the recent improvements along the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal?" he was asked. "I certainly have," emphatically declared the Mayor. "While in Congress I worked untiringly for a better system of inland canals, especially those of the coast regions, and I am greatly pleased at this new development."

The Mayor is a most pleasant and interesting man, entirely different from many high officials. A persistent twinkle in his eye made plain the fact that he was happy to leave, if only for three days, the care and responsibilities of his office. And he speaks straight from the shoulder and never minces words. He is thoroughly familiar with the newspaper business, having started his career as a reporter on the Philadelphia Public Ledger. His pleasing manner and friendly interest in the Post man showed that the old love of the game is far from forgotten.

BRILLIANT DANCE AT WOMEN'S COLLEGE

Class of 1923 Guests of Honor at Annual Prom. Over a Hundred Couples Present

The annual Junior Promenade, given by the Junior Class of the Women's College of Delaware, took place last Saturday evening in Residence Hall. Over one hundred couples took part in the frolic. The dance was limited to the girls of the three upper classes.

The decorations were perhaps the most original and effective yet to be seen at a Women's College dance. The color scheme was black and white, and the manner in which the designs were carried out on wall, ceiling and around the lights gave rise to many compliments from the guests.

The music was furnished by George Madden and his Orchestra. Dancing commenced at 7.30 and ended at twelve. During intermission refreshments were served in the Dining Room.

The patrons and patronesses were President and Mrs. Walter Hullahen, Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dutton, Mr. George E. Brinton, Miss Rachel W. Taylor, Miss Quocosta C. Drake, Miss Laura V. Clark, Mrs. Emma Wilson, Dr. and Mrs. F. M. K. Foster.

EDWARD LAURENCE SMITH

Dean Smith is dead. While still in the prime of life, active, earnest and faithful, this wonderful man passed from our midst during the cold gray dawn of Tuesday morning.

Dean Smith was a friend and helper to every student of Delaware College. They will remember him as a professor, as a scholar, as an orator and as an executive, but far above that, they will remember him as a true and honest friend.

Whether you came from the luxurious and carefree halls of a modern preparatory school or whether you trekked up from the cypress swamps and pines of old Sussex county with all your belongings on your back and in a little worn satchel, you were received by Dean Smith as man to man.

He was a man who not only sat at his desk and talked of the great things Delaware would do in athletics, but he was a man who would stand out there on Frazer Field in a bitter winter wind and cheer a Delaware team to victory or follow it to defeat—and he would stay there.

When you found yourself in trouble, no matter how petty, there was one man who would step out of his way to help you—and that man was Dean Smith. He loved this little University, its success was his joy; its shortcomings, his sorrow.

And so has passed from this life forever, Dean Smith—our friend.

It is the general opinion of all good people who read newspapers and other printed information that there is bound to be two sides to any issue. There are a lot of people who will tell you that, for instance the Germans, or perhaps, the bootleggers.

The minor leagues of American baseball are clamoring at the gates again. And in some ways, their clamor is convincing. Witness, then, an article by William H. McCarthy, president of the Pacific Coast League.

"Promises—lies. That's what the minor leagues have been fed. At Louisville Commissioner Landis brought the convention of minor leagues cheering to its feet with the statement that draft or no draft, the major-minor agreement would be lived up to the letter until 1927, the year when he is supposed to retire.

"Less than a month later he rendered this decision absolutely nullifying the major-minor agreement.

"Promises—but vacuum promises—and Belasco poses are all that the minor leagues are to receive.

"The man whose proudest boasts and claim to fame was that he had fined the Standard Oil Company $29,000,000 was not big enough nor courageous enough to tell his over-fed and over prosperous employers that a contract is a contract binding upon both parties and that they would have to live up to their part of it.

"When a ballplayer, anxious for an increase in salary, refuses to sign his contract, he is banned for five years from professional baseball, exiled and ostracized and held up to scorn as a contract-breaker. That is so easy. It is only the ballplayer's bread and butter that is concerned.

"But when the men who make the ballplayer a contract jumper break their contract; when their dollars, not their bread and butter, are threatened—well it's just a little bit different. They are judged by a different code."

This is the first open and frank attack upon Commissioner Landis we have seen. The personality and strength of character of the man had always appealed and still does, for that matter. However, he is not infallible, thank goodness, and he can make mistakes. May we not hope that he can stand the gaff from his critics. Too few mistakes often distort a man's vision, you know.

JUST RAMBLIN' AROUND

The most prevailing attitude taken by many people concerning a fox hunt is that the first thing you must do to be a creditable fox hunter is to trot down to Somebody's London Shop and pick out white breeches, red coat, black boots, a couple of saddles and a crop; thence to a stock farm and buy two hunters. Then you are considered ripe to have your photo snapped amidst a group of dogs. Maybe so and again maybe not.

You know they had a drop hunt out near Pleasant Hill last week. You couldn't find red coats or imported saddles out there. But you did find a whale of a lot of sport, didn't you? The fox runs just as fast and doubles just as cleverly in either case.

The Navy basketball team came up from Annapolis Saturday last and played Penn to a standstill on the latter's floor. It appears that Navy committed 21 fouls during the game, while Penn was credited with 8. It happened that a foul goal in the last minute decided the battle, giving Penn the verdict 25-24. It's entirely too deep for us.

It seems that almost 60 per cent of all the pictures in Sunday supplements derive their interest from some sort of Winter Sports Carnival. We appreciate very much the efforts of the editors. But pictures are only pictures, after all, and you can't bring winter to Delaware without some snow and ice. The youngsters who received sleds and skates from Santa Claus can't scrape up much enthusiasm either.

BASEBALL MEETING TOMORROW NIGHT

Local Sportsmen to Discuss Plans for Active Season On the Diamond

The first taste of a far-off spring comes in the announcement of a baseball meeting to be held in the Armory tomorrow evening at 7.30.

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing preliminary plans for the season, the possibility of equipping a team, ways and means for such a purpose and many other items of more than passing interest. In fact, the outcome of the meeting will no doubt answer the question of whether or not the town will be represented on the diamond next summer.

The meeting will be open to anyone interested in the question whether he be player, backer, or just plain fan. All suggestions will be heard and discussed. It is proposed to get an early start this year and to be entirely ready for the season's opening day.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS FROLIC IN ARMORY

The members of the two teams composed of High School students, who recently raised considerable money for the purchase of athletic equipment staged a party in the Armory Saturday evening. The "Mutts" were the guests of the "Jeifs" at the frolic and everyone present enjoyed the evening. A basketball game between two picked teams started off the festivities. Then followed games and dancing which continued until midnight. The Armory was procured for the party by the local Parent-Teacher Association.

CAPE MAY—LEWES FERRY SOON

$40,000,000 Project Discussed at Atlantic City Saturday

Establishment of a ferry between Cape May Point and Lewes, was urged by a delegation of prominent Cape May County residents on the State Highway Commission at a hearing held at Atlantic City, Saturday, to get views of the various counties on the expenditure of the $40,000,000 for roads authorized by the voters in a recent referendum.

The Cape May delegation urged that an appropriation of $250,000 be set aside for the purchase of a ferryboat and the construction of wharves at Cape May Point and Lewes. With such a ferry established, they declared, the South Jersey coast resorts would be linked up with the South, eliminating the Philadelphia detour. They likewise urged the building of a bridge over the Great Egg Harbor River at Beasley's Point and the paving of one and one-half miles of road on the Ocean City bridge.

AND THE "SPOOK" BEAT IT

George Erskine, a resident of Twilley's Lane, a part and parcel of Chestertown, Md., looked up from his paper one night last week and saw a white robed head at the window. Although Mr. Erskine very hospitably invited him in, the intruder vanished. Very much disappointed at the action of his supposed guests, Mr. Erskine returned to the fire and his paper. It may be said that he had a club concealed in his coat tails while on his porch.

Verily, it is the little things in Life which cause the greatest commotion after all.

Pascal, the eminent French philosopher, once said that had Cleopatra's nose been one inch longer, the fall of the Roman Empire would have been averted. Again, it has been discovered that a little shower of rain had a great deal to do with the result of the Battle of Waterloo. And goodness knows we mustn't forget that a poor old fly-tortured cow kicked over a lantern and burned up the city of Chicago.

But who would believe that a policeman's overcoat and a matter of seventy-five cents would so disturb the peace and tranquillity of our own fair city? However, such is distinctly the case.

Our mammoth disciple of law and order it seems, needed an overcoat, and the town authorities wagged their heads and decided to buy him one, by gum! Sol Wilson now steps into the picture and offers a bid for the afore-said coat. But instead of giving the work to Newark, it has come to light that a Wilmington firm received the contract, thus saving Council the vast sum of seventy-five cents. Sol immediately called upon the shades of his grandfather's ancestors to bear witness to this awful shuffle of the cards.

In other words, he "hit the ceiling."

Looking at it from another angle, however, it would seem that our Sol must certainly stand in with somebody at that, for is it not a fact that Sammy Bell and Looey Hoffman were not even consulted in the matter. No Sir, not even invited to attend their own funeral, so to speak.

But that isn't all by a long shot.

Our policeman must needs try on the sporty outfit, so he goes on a junket trip to Wilmington. Total cost $1.00; not counting meals and chewing tobacco, leaving a balance in favor of Wilmington of twenty-five cents. When the coat arrives he decides that there's something wrong with some of the shiny brass buttons. So the buttons are changed; and who changes the buttons? None other than our own Sol Wilson. Meanwhile, Looey and Sammy are still on the outside looking in. So there may be something in the rumor after all that Sol wasn't really sick last week, but he was sewing brass buttons on a coat alongside his kitchen stove on Cleveland Avenue.

Thus endeth the the story of "The Policeman's Overcoat." May the story be soon forgotten, but let's hope the coat lasts forever. At any rate, we don't want to be here when another such situation again arises.

York Aggies Fail To Arrive For Game

Delaware Plays Picked Team of Alumni and Students When Visitors Disappoint—Large Crowd Stays On

Varsity Wins 46-14

For the first time in many years a scheduled basketball game in the University gymnasium failed to materialize on Saturday evening last. The New York "Aggies" were booked to play Coach McAvoy's Delaware five when game time arrived the New Yorkers were conspicuous by their absence. Frantic telephone calls failed to bring results, and a large crowd in the balcony was getting impatient.

The day was saved, however, when a picked team was recruited by Gray Carter and the game went on. It was said that very few spectators were building thus testifying to the earnestness of the struggle. The Varsity team, through with an easy win, 46-14, training and condition proving to be the better of the individual efforts of the Cowboys.

Beside Carter, Skett Wilson, Bob Challenger, Ike Elliott and Willard Gray made up the impromptu team. Gray, Carter and Challenger were scheduled last June, all having played basketball while in college.

Gray Carter flashed some of the old form that made him one of the foremost forwards of the East previous to an injury which kept him out of athletics for the past three years. He averaged ten out of thirteen tries from the foul line and passed cleverly. Gray and Challenger played a hard game considering their long absence and aided by Boyce and Elliott kept the Varsity moving at a fast pace to defeat them.

The first half ended with the score 22-14 with the Varsity on the long end. The second session proved very hard and strenuous for the old timers, as each puffing and stalling evidenced. The lead held by the Varsity gradually mounted but they were always ready to struggle for each point. The score:
