FISHING DAM IS COMPLETED

Financial Report Made Public This Week by Mr. Widdoes

POND IS STOCKED

1 1/2 Pound Bass Will Be Placed in Water This Fall, Is Announcement

With the dam completed, between 1900 and 1200 white and yellow perch, moccasin and catfish already swimming around, and the probability that scores of 1 1/2 lb. bass will be placed there this Fall, the fishing pond of the Newark Anglers' Association has become an accomplished fact. Within a year or two it will be one of the finest inland fishing and boating ponds on the entire peninsula.

Extends To Glasgow

"Sunset Lake," as it is called, was inspected by Mr. Widdoes and J. H. Day in the latter's canoe recently. The upper reaches of the lake are beautiful, with many small islands dotting its surface—ideal picnic sites. The party was stopped by a fallen tree in the feed stream and progress up the stream was stopped. When the tree is removed it will be possible to canoe clear to the bridge at Glasgow. The water varies from three to five feet deep all the way, and is perfectly clear and clean. It is indeed a beautiful spot.

A meeting of the Association will be held early in November when it will be decided whether to increase the membership to meet the cost of the project. Letters and bills will be sent to all members who have subscribed.

To Mr. Widdoes goes a great deal of credit for the completion of a fishing paradise near Newark. He has worked tirelessly for its success and through his energy has interested the whole community. As he puts it, "It's a real investment, 25 years of recreation within 15 minutes of your home."

M. E. LADIES' AID GIVES SUPPER

Over 100 Guests Enjoy Repast Last Friday; May Be Annual Event

Over 100 guests enjoyed to the fullest extent the supper given last Friday evening by the Ladies' Aid of the local Methodist Church in the Sunday School room of the church. Tasty home cooking prevailed at the meal and every good thing of the season was there.

After the diners had finished, a social hour was enjoyed. Mr. A. D. Cobb led the entire assemblage in group singing and plenty of good harmony was the result.

Following the singing, Dr. R. W. Cooper, Director of Education with the Service Citizens of Delaware, gave a delightful informal talk on "Personality." His subject was well chosen and well prepared and was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Dr. Cooper is well known in Newark, and is considered an old friend of the church.

At the close of the successful evening, it was practically decided to make the supper an annual event in church affairs. To Mrs. Howard P. Williams and her efficient aides goes the main credit for the preparation of the supper and the arrangement of the following program.

SOME CORN

J. Serman Dayett, living near Strickersville, is husking corn whose stalks are measuring 12 1/2 feet high. It is the white variety, which makes the finest table meal. The Dayett corn is unusually well developed and he is receiving a number of congratulations these days.

Some of the ears have measured 18 inches long and 12 inches in diameter at the base before husking.

CAR TURNS OVER; OCCUPANTS ESCAPE

New York Tourists Slip Off Road Just Outside Town Limits

During the blinding gale early yesterday evening, a big Chandler sedan, bearing a New York license, skidded off the highway near Mackenzie and Strickland's garage and turned over on its side in the ditch.

Samuel Slack and Fred Strickland rushed to the scene of the accident, and were forced to climb up on the side of the car and open a door to rescue the occupants, a young man and woman. Neither were injured. The car escaped damage, save for two badly bent fenders.

Mr. Strickland and Clyde Robinson, who happened by at the time, managed to get the car out of the ditch, and the fortunate New Yorkers went on their way. They said they had driven from Washington through the heavy storm.

OLD WELSH TRACT HAS MANY VISITORS

Yearly Meeting Last Saturday and Sunday Was Well Attended

Services marking the 220th anniversary of the founding of Welsh Tract Baptist Church near Newark were held last Saturday and Sunday. The occasion was the regular yearly meeting of the members and friends of the old church. Visitors were present from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and many other distant points. A series of services were held at the church both days. A meeting was also held at the home of John B. Miller on Delaware Avenue on Saturday evening.

The speakers included Elders J. W. McClanahan and George McClanahan, brothers, of Poca, West Virginia; Elder George Ruston of Kelley Corners, Delaware County, New York; Elder J. A. Shaw of Elizabeth City, N. C.; Elder C. V. Hill of Trenton, N. J., and Elder John G. Eubanks, minister in charge of the church.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Delaware, through its offices in Wilmington this week, has issued its first Program Leaflet. "The School Library" is the title, and in picture and story is told the benefits of this feature of school life. The complete review of the leaflet will be published in The Post next week.

FLYING SQUADRON VISITS NEWARK

Small Attendance Noted at Meetings in Wolf Hall

The Flying Squadron, a group of able speakers from the Foundation bearing that name, gave a series of lectures on Law Enforcement in Wolf Hall last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Meetings were held both morning and evening.

Somewhat of a stir was created Thursday evening, when the speaker, Hon. Frank S. Regan, became irritated at an alleged disturbance, caused by several young men in the audience. It is understood that he was corrected in his statement that they were college men by a professor in the audience.

The incident passed over, however, without consequence.

Attendances were smaller than hoped for at the lectures. Dr. T. F. Manns, as local chairman, and M. O. Pence, publicity manager, were disappointed in the turnout.

OLD HOME WEEK STARTS TOMORROW

Prizes for Parade Entrants Procured; Industrial Display and Entertainment Tomorrow Night.

THREE BIG DAYS OF WELCOME FOR ALL

With the merchants firing the opening gun with the Merchants' Day offerings, Old Home Week starts tomorrow in Newark, to continue through next Sunday—the first affair of its kind ever to be held here, and already assured of great success.

Townpeople have co-operated fully with the committees, and old residents by the scores will be on hand. Nearly every home will have a visitor for the week-end, at least.

The parade committee, headed by C. W. Strahorn, promises one of the best processions ever. Three bands, a number of floats, Fire Company and Lodges, and scores of individual marchers will be in line. Miss Newark, to be chosen tonight by a committee, will lead the parade.

Tomorrow evening in Wolf Hall, Community Night will be observed. Able speakers will address the gathering, plenty of music will feature the occasion.

There will be a display of Newark's industrial products, in charge of Warren Singles.

On Friday cars will be furnished to visitors for the purpose of visiting old haunts and historic spots in the community. It is requested that all visitors register at the Town Hall, and there place their request for a car. It will be furnished gladly.

Then comes the big Old Home Week Dance in the Armory Friday evening. Mrs. Steel and her committee have everything ready for a gala time. Young and old alike can enjoy the party. Everyone should be there.

The parade and two football games Saturday leave little to be desired in the way of entertainment. This will be the biggest day of the celebration.

On Sunday special services will be held in all local churches, wherein will center many reunions of old friends.

MECHANICS HAVE TEAM

The local lodge of Jr. O. U. A. M. expects to put out a winning quoit team after a little practice. Last meeting night the boards were brought out and four games were pitched, after the meeting was over. One game was won by Henry Mote and Clifford Moore who played against Edwin Shakespeare and Arthur Robinson. The score was 21-17. The other three games were taken by the losers of the first game Clifford Moore and John Morrison by the scores of 21-20, 21-19 and 21-18. During the four games eight ringers were pitched. Two were pitched by Henry Mote, one by Clifford Mote, one by Edwin Shakespeare, three by Arthur Robinson and one by John Morrison.

MIDDLETOWN GIRL ANNOUNCES ENGAGEMENT

Mrs. Robert Thomas Cochran of East Orange has announced the engagement of her daughter, Margaret Hardecastle Cochran, to Robert Henry Cook of Miami, Florida. The wedding will take place the latter part of November at Mrs. Cochran's home in East Orange. The bride-elect is well known in Middletown, having visited there many times. She is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cochran, a great granddaughter of the late Robert T. Cochran and a niece of Mrs. James L. Warren, of Middletown.

LOCAL AUTO RAMS ABOUTMENT SUNDAY

Charles Clark Fortunately Escapes With a Slight Bruise

Falling asleep at the wheel of a car borrowed for the occasion, Charles Clark of Newark, was jolted into consciousness late Sunday evening and found himself all tangled up in the wreckage of the machine.

The car rammed a concrete abutment along the highway about a mile this side of North East and was badly damaged.

"Chick," as he is better known here, reached Newark and accompanied by C. E. Rittenhouse, left Monday to salvage the wreck. The car was being held by the Maryland State Police, but was turned over to the local men upon explaining the accident.

Except for a bruise on the temple, Clark miraculously escaped serious injury. The remains of the car was towed to a local garage.

KLAN HOLDS PUBLIC MEETING HERE MONDAY

Field East of Town Scene of Big Demonstration; Fiery Cross Burns

Dr. J. H. Hawkins, of Atlanta, Ga., addressed a public meeting in a field about a half mile east of Newark, along the Lincoln Highway, Monday evening last. It was estimated that about 1000 people were in attendance. Cars lined the highway on both sides for several hundred yards, and many more were parked inside the enclosure.

The speaker outlined the policies and ideals of the organization at some length. His speech was punctuated at intervals by the explosion of heavy charges of dynamite close to the edge of the field.

During his address, a fiery cross was lighted by members of the Klan and burned for several minutes on the hillside. White robed Klansmen directed traffic at the opening into the field and mingled on the outskirts of the crowd.

The meeting place was changed the latter part of last week, being formerly announced to be held in the Armory here.

FOOTBALL SATURDAY

Newark A. C. engages the strong Eleventh Ward team of Wilmington next Saturday, on the local grounds, according to an announcement made at noon today by Manager Jester. Wilmington team has not lost a game this season, but Newark is determined to spoil the record.

TO BUY BUSES

Stiltz Line Soon To Have Larger Vehicles In Use

The Stiltz Bus Line will purchase in the next two or three days two or three big new busses for use on the Wilmington-Newark route. These busses, according to William Stiltz, will carry 25 passengers each and are of the most modern design.

The passengers to and from the city are becoming more numerous each day, said Mr. Stiltz, and it has become necessary to augment the service and to do away with excessive crowding.

STORM HITS NEWARK

Roaring "Southeaster" Plays Havoc With Decorations

Newark remained in the throes of a raging southeast storm yesterday and last night. The wind freshened Monday evening, and continued with heavy rain squalls all day and far into last night.

As far as could be learned this morning, when the wind died down, no serious damage was done in this locality. Telephone and telegraph service went on uninterrupted.

Old Home Week decorations on Main Street, however, suffered severely from the storm. Many of the flags were ripped and torn to pieces. Small branches fell from trees in many parts of the town.

BIG SHIPMENT FROM UNITED CANNERIES

Campbell Soup Company Buys 10,000 Cases Of Tomato Pulp

START ON PUMPKINS

A record single sale in local canning circles was consummated last week, when 10,000 cases of tomato pulp, packed in the United Canning in Newark were sold and delivered to the Campbell Soup Company, at their plant in Camden, N. J. Figuring six gallon cans to a case, the total of 60,000 gallons were shipped out.

While almost a record shipment, a member of the staff at the local plant stated Monday evening that it represented but a portion of the stock piled up from the season's pack. Regular car load lot shipments are going out from the siding here every day to big wholesalers all over the country. Most of these latter shipments are of canned corn and tomatoes. Twelve carloads were shipped out last week.

Canning Pumpkins

The United Canning will not, it is understood, engage in the manufacture of catsup during the coming winter other than in small experimental quantities. Most of the catsup making machinery was removed by the Ritter Company, former tenants, and a ready sale is being realized on the raw pulp, thus making the bottling an unnecessary procedure.

Beginning this week, pumpkins will be received at the plant for packing, and it is expected that quite a large run will be enjoyed. The force has cut down considerably during the past few weeks, only those necessary to the operation of the plant being retained.

A Labelling Record

What is believed to be another record, was made by workmen at the plant Monday morning, under the direction of Messrs. Ewing and Dougherty. During four hours continual work 1000 cases, or 24,000 cans of tomatoes were labelled on the machine there, and cartons made in which to store them. Two men were stationed at the labelling machine during the record run. The machine was labelling and the men were packing at the rate of 100 cans per minute.

It was reported that the warehouse is still well filled with products of the cannery, and some months will elapse before the entire season's stock is disposed of.

ATTENDS D. A. R. MEETING

Miss Eleanor E. Todd, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, spent several days in Washington last week. On Monday evening she attended a conference of State Regents in Memorial Continental Hall; on Tuesday, an all-day meeting of the National Board of Management, and on Tuesday evening was one of the receiving line at a reception in the Washington Club given by the "Daughters" of the District of Columbia in honor of the President General, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook.

SEWAGE PROBLEM AROUSES CITIZENS

Newark's Disposal Plant Fumes Sweeping Over East End

COUNCIL WILL ACT

Dry Weather Halted Plowing of Affected Soil in Bernard Field

Residents living along East Main Street from Newark Center to Leak's Garage, have been up in arms for several days over the obnoxious stench coming from the vicinity of Newark's Sewage Disposal Plant.

From their complaints, it appears that "night soil" from the tanks there has been spread upon the top of the soil on a field owned by William Bernard, nearby, and has not been plowed under.

As a result, according to residents in that vicinity, the odors, carried by a favorable wind for the past few days, have rendered the homes almost uninhabitable. Sunday dinners, with visitors on hand, were in some cases served and left untouched. A visit to the plant and the vicinity thereof sustained the majority of the objections raised. Tourists were seen to cover their faces with handkerchiefs on one or two occasions, so bad was the stench.

Council Is Acting

Town Council, through the Sewer Committee, headed by A. L. Beales, has been giving this problem deep consideration during the past few weeks. Mayor Frazer, when interviewed in regard to the matter, stated that it was the intention to have the "night soil" spread over the Bernard field, and immediately plowed under. However, dry weather made plowing almost impossible, and the unfortunate consequences could not be halted.

The Mayor said he had received several complaints, and went into conference with Mr. Beales a few days ago. It was decided then to act at once.

C. R. E. Lewis, a town workman, was ordered to procure quick lime Monday and to immediately cover the affected places. With the rain of the past two days, it is believed that the ground will be plowed this week, thus ending the odors. The Mayor was sincere in his appreciation of the complaints and has done everything possible to remedy the evil.

Complaints also came in from other parts of town that several loads of the soil had been hauled uncovered through the streets to the farm of George Moore, west of town. This practice, also, will be at once stopped, according to the Mayor.

Among the residents of East Newark who were up in arms over the situation and who were most affected by the odors are:

George Ferguson, William D. Dean, George Leak, William V. Gallery, Benjamin Wert, H. H. Dougherty, Howard McCulley, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Ladine, Orlando Strahorn, Robert Potts, and Joseph Casey.

ROBERT WATKINS AND FAMILY IN ACCIDENT

While returning home from Dover, early Sunday morning, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watkins and young child figured in a nasty accident at Mt. Pleasant Station, between Newark and Middletown. Fortunately, no one was seriously injured, although the Watkins baby suffered a badly bruised shoulder and a deep cut in the head.

Mr. Watkins and family were struck by a car owned and driven by a Mr. Schrader, of Buck Bridge, at the road intersection at Mt. Pleasant. The latter had some people in the car who were rushing to catch a train standing at the station. The two cars crashed headlong, and the Watkins car was bowled over on its side. "Watty" broke through the windshield and rescued the baby, which had been pinned under the car. Mrs. Watkins escaped unharmed, but was badly shocked. Her husband suffered cuts and bruises.

The car was towed to Newark in a badly damaged condition. A local physician dressed the wounds of the victims. According to a version of the accident, the Schrader car was in the wrong. No arrests, however, were made.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Atwell recently entertained the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis and daughter Gladys, of Fairview, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bonsall and son Arthur, of Hockessin, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jeffers, of Oak Grove, Mr. Philip Davis, of Kennett Square.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Eastburn, of Hockessin were visitors at the home of John E. Buckingham on Sunday.

Mrs. J. Leslie Eastburn and Miss Emaline Derickson spent Tuesday and Wednesday of last week in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Atwell were entertained on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Little near Fairview.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Buckingham and Mr. Perry Towson and daughter, Alma, all of Newark, were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Buckingham.

OLD FLAG RAISING AT YORKLYN SCHOOL

Josiah Marvel Addresses Gathering In Nearby Town

Josiah Marvel, president of the Delaware State Bar Association, addressed a flag raising celebration which was held on the Yorklyn public school grounds Saturday last.

By popular subscription the Parent-Teacher Association of Yorklyn raised a fund with which a fine big flagpole and a beautiful flag were bought and presented to the public school of the town.

Mr. Marvel, who is noted from one end of Delaware to the other as a speaker, rode to the celebration on horseback, an act which brought to the minds of every Delawarean present the memory of Caesar Rodney. A large audience of townspeople and the children of the school were on hand to witness the exercises.

The Willing M. E. Church met Hendrickson, Thursday. was the date set for their annual poultry and oyster supper to be held at Mechanics Hall, Strickersville.

Mrs. Ethel Singles was a recent visitor among relatives in this vicinity.

150 GUESTS PRESENT

One of the largest weddings of the current season occurred in Elkton this afternoon at five o'clock, when Miss Sara J. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, was wedded to Mr. George B. McKeown, of near Elkton.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents in Elkton by the Rev. John McElmoyle, pastor of the Elkton Presbyterian Church. Immediately after the ceremony and reception the bride and groom left on their wedding trip. They are going by motor through New York State, stopping at several points including Niagara Falls, and Montreal, Canada.

Following their return to Elkton they will live on Mr. McKeown's farm along the Elk River.

One hundred and fifty guests were present at the pretty wedding. The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was beautifully played by Miss Bessie Evans.

The bride wore a stunning gown of white satin canton, with veil, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Elizabeth Evans was maid of honor. She wore an attractive gown of pink organdie and carried a big bunch of pink chrysanthemums. Little Virginia Allison Ott, niece of the bride, made a dainty picture as flower girl, being dressed all in white and carry yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the wedding, a brilliant reception was held in honor of the newlyweds. The guests also viewed the great number of splendid gifts received by the happy pair.

Elkton's Hallowe'en
Parade

About $150.00 in cash prizes in addition to a host of useful articles will be awarded winners in the various classes in Elkton's big Hallowe'en parade next Wednesday night. The prize list is complete and ranks as perhaps the largest of any parade to be held in the town.

Four bands will also be in line according to reports of the music committee. Elkton, North East, Cecilton and the Red Men's Band of Newark will enliven the occasion.

The parade will start at one end of town and proceed through all the principal streets. The Judges' Stand will be placed on North Street at the Fire House.

Several novel stunts are being planned by contestants and a "laugh a minute" is promised for the spectators.

The crowd this year may not exceed former years, according to W. C. Feehly, general chairman of the celebration, due to the fact that Wilmington is putting on a big event, but as Elkton's affair is one of many years standing, it is not felt that they will suffer thereby.

Everyone invited to participate.

Come Back Home

After while—we have in view
A far scene to journey to,
Where the old home is, and where

The old mother waits us there,
Peering, as the time grows late,
Down the old path to the gate,
How we'll greet the latch that locks

In the pinks and hollyhocks,
And leap up the path once more,
Where she waits us at the door,
How we'll greet the dear old smile,
And the warm tear,—after while!

—Riley.

Lloyd George

Lloyd George should be invited to Newark. Here is Old Welsh Tract settled by some of his Ancestry. Here are buried no doubt some of his kin. Here are descendants of his neighbors back home.

Last winter a nephew of Lloyd George lectured at the University and was surprised to learn of the old Tract and its Welsh Settlement. He was interested in the old Welsh records and Minutes of the Meeting House and recognized names that he felt sure were of his family. He promised to come back and renew his association with those old pioneers.

There is no spot in America that is nearer the History and Heart of the old Welshman than right here among these foothills. So Delaware—Newark especially—would give a little touch of Back Home, to our distinguished visitor. He could read his Bible in its Welsh original and read records of Great Men and Good. He would delight in seeing the work of their thought and hand. Surely Lloyd George should be invited to Newark.

America—Soldiers' View

Interesting always to read a comment, interpretation or definition of what constitutes America, it is especially so when Soldiers speak. Those who left home and all that man holds personally dear, and went out and offered their very all for their Country, speak with convincing voice. Standing erect under an open sky, raising their hand to Heaven as witness, with blurred eye and trembling voice, they swore allegiance to the Flag of their country. Then gave themselves to the face of the enemy. Their experience with its sadness and slaughter, its blood and sacrifice, gives us a peculiar sense of reverence
when they speak.

Read what those fortunate to return say in National Convention when the American Legion passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, The fundamental law of our country guarantees to all peoples equal rights and equal opportunities and right to worship their God as they see fit; and

"Whereas, It is provided that our laws shall be made and enforced by representatives of our people, chosen under the law to do so; therefore be it

"Resolved, by the American Legion . . . That we consider any individual, group of individuals or organizations which creates or fosters racial, religious or class strife among our people, or which takes into their own hands the enforcement of law, determination of guilt or infliction of punishment to be un-American, a menace to our liberties and destructive of our fundamental law; and be it further "Resolved, That we consider such action by any individual, groups or organization to be inconsistent with the ideals and purposes of the American Legion."

Thus America speaks.

from many states swelled the big

RADIO CONCERT AT OGLETOWN SCHOOL

First P-T Meeting of the Season Featured by Novel Program

The first meeting of the Ogletown Parent-Teacher Association was held last Thursday evening in the school house. A large turnout of members and friends was noted.

President Wilmer Hawthorne of the Association provided a most novel treat for the group when he hooked up his radio equipment. Bed time stories and many musical numbers were enjoyed throughout the evening.

A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Sherman Dayett, in honor of his daughter, Rhea C. Dayett's 16th birthday.—Dancing, games and music were enjoyed by all. A unique feature was a well, from which lemon and orangeade was drawn by Miss Rebecca Peirson for the thirsty participants.

"Good Roads, Flowers, Parks, Better Schools, Trees, Pure Water, Fresh Air, Sunshine and Work for Everybody."

Roosevelt

He was found faithful over a few things and he was made ruler over many; he cut his own trail clean and straight and millions followed him toward the light.

He was frail; he made himself a tower of strength. He was timid; he made himself a lion of courage. He was a dreamer; he became one of the great doers of all time.

Men put their trust in him; women found a champion in him;
kings stood in awe of him, but children made him their playmate.

He broke a nation's slumber with his cry, and it rose up.

He touched the eyes of blind men with a flame that gave them vision. Souls became swords through him; swords became servants of God.

He was loyal to his country and he exacted loyalty; he loved many lands, but he loved his own land best.

He was terrible in battle but tender to the weak; joyous and tireless, being free from self-pity; clean with a cleanness that cleansed the air like a gale.

His courtesy knew no wealth, no class; his friendship, no creed or color or race. His courage stood every onslaught of savage beast and ruthless man, of loneliness, of victory, of defeat.
His mind was eager, his heart was true, his body and spirit, defiant of obstacles, ready to meet what might come.

He fought injustice and tyranny; bore sorrow gallantly; loved all nature, bleak spaces and hardy companions, hazardous adventure and the zest of battle. Wherever he went he carried his own pack; and in the uttermost parts of the earth he kept his conscience for his guide.

HERMANN HAGENDORN.

War—As Seen By Carlyle

Dumdrudge, at her own expense, ha suckled and nursed them; she, not without difficulty and sorrow, fed them up to manhood, and even trained them to crafts, so that one can weave, another build, another hammer, and the weakest can stand under thirty-stone avoirdupois. Nevertheless, amid much weeping and swearing, they are selected, all dressed in red, and shipped away at the public charge, some two thousand miles. . . .

And now to that same spot . . . are thirty similar French artisans, from a French Dumdrudge, in like manner wending: till at length, after infinite effort, the two parties come into actual juxtaposition; and Thirty stands fronting Thirty, each with a gun in his hand. Straightway the word "Fire!"
is given; and they blow the souls out of one another; and in place of sixty brisk useful craftsmen, the world has sixty dead carcasses, which it must bury, and anon shed tears for.

Had these men any quarrel? Busy as the Devil is, not the smallest! They lived far enough apart; were the entirest strangers; nay, in so wide a Universe, there was even, unconsciously, by Commerce, some mutual helpfulness between them. How then? Simpton! their Governors had fallen out, and instead of shooting one another, had the cunning to make these poor blockheads shoot.

METHODIST MEN'S CLUB IS FORMED

At a recent meeting of several members of the Newark Methodist Episcopal Church, a decision was made to have a club for the men.
Later on they expect to have a division for the Juniors. A movement similar to this was started last year.
Although it was not altogether a failure, neither was it a success. This new organization, however, promises to be one in which every man of the Methodist Church should feel it his duty to aid as much as he possibly can.

The following officers were elected to serve until the first regular election, which is to be held in January:
President, I. Newton Shaeffer; vice-president, E. B. Crooks; secretary and treasurer, Henry F. Mote; executive committee, Francis Lindell and John Moore.

The next meeting will be held in the Sunday School room on Thursday evening November 1st.

New Choir Leader

Mr. Harry J. Gaerthe, formerly of Philadelphia but now of Newark, has taken over the choir of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Gaerthe was formerly leader of several choirs and glee clubs in Philadelphia, having under his care as high as 110 singers at one time.

Mr. Gaerthe predicts a bright prospect for the Newark choir. On Sunday morning and evening his choir made a good showing. There were eleven members of the choir present.

Local Pythians Attend Grand Lodge
Osceola Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Newark, was represented by a goodly number at the Grand Lodge on Thursday last, October 18th. The results of the meeting were as follows.

Lannes W. Marvel, of Seaford, was elected grand chancellor of the Grand Lodge. He is a member of Lodge No. 18.

Perhaps you wouldn't buy a

W. C. Durant says it's "worth

SHOP TALK

Prices of Printing at Kells

Some Folks, who admire our Printing, say that our Prices are high. They do this without inquiry or investigation. They reach this conclusion by seeing our Shop or perhaps just the grounds. Surely, they think, work there must cost more than in cramped quarters. But it doesn't. And here are a few facts relative to our costs.

Our location, outside of corporate limits of town, gives us low taxes—the same as any old farm land.

Our location, too, away from other buildings makes Insurance low.

Again, our building, constructed of stone, tile and stucco, and slate asbestos roof gives another reduction of fire risks.

All these items enter very seriously into printing costs. All the land, the building, light, air, ample room for effective work has a less rental, tax and insurance expense than a little basement job plant in the city.

Our machinery, brains and skill of our Craftsmen, are equal to the big plants of the County—but our overhead is reduced to a minimum.

Kells is an Ideal—yes. But it is a business proposition too, operated as a means of livelihood on a profit and loss basis plus the fun in doing something worth while.

There is an increasing demand for Good Printing worthy of the Art—and the world has increasing desire for Things worthily done.

Kells is fortunate by location, equipment and Craftsmen to do this at a price that surprises those who know.

The Old Home Town Is Still The Best"

Welcome Back!

- ¶ Newark is in gala attire this week to welcome back home again its former residents, whose work has called them to other scenes or other places. There are no friends like old friends and the week will be a very happy one for those who return and for those whose privilege it is to welcome them back.
- ¶ We are proud of the record that our former residents have made. We want them to be proud of their old home town. They will note many evidences of progress. It may not be the same old town, for there is much that is new, but the old-fashioned hospitality for which the city is known will still be in evidence.
- ¶ Those who return will not be given a golden key to the city like Canadian cities tendered to Premier Lloyd George on the occasion of his visit, but we can offer a wealth of old associations and the greatest gifts of hospitality and sincere friendship.
- ¶ You are cordially invited to pay us a call during Old Home Week. If we can be of service we shall be glad to do so. Anyway we shall be pleased to have you drop in for a chat.

Our message of greeting is summed up in one word—

WELCOME

LITTLE INTEREST IN CECIL POLITICS SHOWN

Two Meetings This Week,
However, May Renew
Interest

Although both Governor Ritchie, Democrat, and Hon. Alexander Armstrong are touring the State in a vigorous campaign for the gubernatorial honors, and smaller office seekers are scouring their counties for the precious votes, there appears to be little interest shown by the people at large in Cecil County over the coming elections.

Old residents of Elkton can remember the huge mass meetings held there in the past; of the feverish excitement which reached its height the week before the votes were cast. In comparison with those days, the campaign in 1923 appears, of course, very mild.

However, the candidates are working quietly and effectively to their own particular ends, and some authorities state, there will be a big vote polled in the county on election day.

Two Mass Meetings

The spectacle of two candidates for governor speaking in Elkton on two consecutive nights has awakened much of the interest, however.

Governor Ritchie and members of the Democratic State Ticket will be in Elkton tomorrow evening, and the former will address the citizens in Mechanics Hall.

Elkton Democratic leaders are hard at work preparing a suitable reception for the distinguished men, and Mr. Voter will be there in multiple form.

On Friday night the scene will shift and the Republicans will take over the town. Alexander Armstrong and his coterie will have the floor and will also be the principal figures in a big mass meeting in the same hall.

According to one prominent resident of near Elkton, however, mass meetings may come and mass meetings may go, but they will never change the Independent Vote—that great unknown force which causes leaders of both parties to shiver at times.

Incidentally, the Elkton Band, with Sterling Dunbar, Vic Davis, Dan Garrett and the supporting Knights of the Horn and Drum, will be there to add their pristine glory. Hearing both sides of the campaign, they will therefore be ready to vote the Social ticket, so said one bandsman.

START MOVEMENT TO DREDGE ELK RIVER

The Chamber of Commerce of Elkton at its meeting in Council Hall last Monday evening, started a movement for the deepening of Elk River from Back River to the town wharves. Considerable time was spent in discussing the subject and it is understood that an effort will be made to perfect a plan before the next session of Congress. A Government appropriation will be sought by means of a bill introduced to that body.

Dredging of the river will prove of great benefit to not only the Elkton industries located thereon, but to the town in general, stated one member of the Chamber. The Radnor Pulp Mill, the largest Elkton firm using the river, will thereby be greatly benefited.

If the dredging program goes through, Elkton will become a port

MRS. CARROW DIES
IN ST. GEORGES, DEL.

Well Known Resident of That Community Succumbed
Sunday Night

Mrs. Theodore Carrow, aged 73 years, died at her home in St. Georges Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, following a paralytic stroke on Saturday morning from which she never regained consciousness. The final stroke was the sixth she had suffered during the past two years.

The deceased was the widow of the late Theodore Carrow and had resided in St. Georges for many years, coming originally from Smyrna. She continued to make her home in St. Georges after the death of her husband and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frank Carrow, lived with her.

She is survived by three daughters and two sons: Mrs. William Phillips of Easton, Md., Mrs. John Clark of Philadelphia, Miss Mary Carrow, a trained nurse, Frank Carrow of Wilmington, Fletcher Carrow, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Carrow was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Smyrna and always active in church work. Definite arrangements have not been completed for the funeral, but interment will be made in Smyrna cemetery.

HARMONY GRANGE IN REGULAR SESSION

Other Mermaid News of the Past Week

Harmony Grange, No. 12, P. of H., held its regular weekly meeting Monday evening. Grange opened in usual form, and as State Master R. P. Robinson and wife were present the general order of business was waived that Sister Robinson might explain the workings of a Juvenile Grange.

After some questions, a recess was declared for a few minutes to serve a treat, as Brother and Sister Robinson had another engagement. The Master then called Grange to order. It was stated there are seventeen families in the Grange with children of eligible age. Upon motion it was decided to organize a Juvenile Grange and Sisters Woodward and Pennington were appointed to further ascertain the number of children who would join.

Lecture hour was opened with a favorite old song of Bro. L. H. Pennington, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny." Question, "Are people in the country more careless of their health than in city?" Answer by Sisters Annie J. Dennison, Sara Pennington and Brother Law Pennington. Decided they did according to statistics, and with fewer modern equipments, live cleaner and longer. Humorous reading, Brother Steele Atwell.

"Cover crops, and why use them, and kinds best for this locality," was very ably answered by William P. Naudain.

Dialogue, "Traveling Photographer," by Sisters Annie Murray, Sara

of call for bay line boats, and a new outlet for the farmers and industries of the locality.

This question occupied the majority of the attention of the meeting. After several minor items of business had been disposed of, the meeting adjourned.

Pennington, Brothers Joseph and Paul Mitchell and Egert Klair.

The meeting closed by singing "Way Down on the Swanny River," selected by George Ball.

The next meeting will be a Hallowe'en meeting. All are requested to mask.

Misses Helen and Sara Pennington attended a formal luncheon on Saturday afternoon given by Mrs. Charles Russell, announcing the engagement of her daughter, Catherine, to Mr. William Allmond, of Wilmington.

Mrs. Anna Guest is visiting relatives in Kennett.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Eastburn spent Sunday evening at the Pennington home. Other guests were Miss May Fouke, Mrs. Oyce, Robert Fouke, and Mrs. Elizabeth Lewes and son of Wilmington.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brackin and children, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles MacNamee, of Elsmere, visited Mr. and Mrs. James Keolig, of Elkton, Sunday.

Mrs. A. B. Dennison and daughters spent the week-end with her sisters, Mrs. Owen Miller and Mrs. Charles Baker, Avondale.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Pennington, Walker, Helen and Sara Martin Pennington attended church at Chestnut Level, Lancaster County, Pa., on Sunday, it being Mr. Pennington's former home church.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Garrison and daughter, have returned home after spending two weeks with Mrs. Garrison's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Peach.

Mr. Harry Kelley is suffering from a broken bone in the foot, injured by a piece of falling lumber, at Avondale where he was employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Leopold of Philadelphia, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Granville Eastburn.

SOPHS ARE VICTORS IN ANNUAL BATTLE

Freshmen Taken To Woods By Scores Prior to Engage Friday Afternoon

With most of the able fighters of the Freshman class communing with nature in various highways and byways of the surrounding country, or trudging over muddy roads earnestly hoping that they would bring the travelers back to Newark, the Sophomores entertained the balance of the yearlings right royally on Frazer Field last Friday afternoon.

The occasion of the annual rush found the second year men in complete control of the situation. They won the rush in six minutes with twenty-five men still on the field ready for more. The rush involved as in former years, the dragging of opponents behind two opposite boundaries. When pulled or carried across this line, the victim is "dead" and cannot re-enter the fray. It was a most hollow victory, and not productive of much excitement.

Contrary to a report on the front page of a Wilmington daily Saturday there were no black eyes, cuts and bruises to amount to anything; one Freshman was rendered unconscious by a bump on the head in the scuffle, but quickly revived in the gymnasium.

Prior to the rush most of Friday was consumed by the efforts of Sophomores to rid themselves of the presence of many able-bodied Freshmen. Raiding dorms, classrooms, and street corners, they gathered them up by twos and threes, and carted them off to the woods.

Paul Garvine, president of the first year men, was waylaid and abducted Thursday to be sure of him. At least thirty Freshmen were absent when the curtain went up on the struggle. Spectators were there in numbers but the rain kept many more away.

The report also circulated that doors and furniture were smashed in Harter Hall were, upon investigation Friday, found to be exaggerated.

Several doors were removed by taking bolts from hinges, in order to get to the Freshmen, but a close inspection revealed, but one in any way damaged, and with five minutes work it could easily be restored.

The Freshmen in a post engagement statement, inform the public at large that they want another crack at their tormentors.

ROOSEVELT AS I KNEW HIM

Intimate Personal Reminiscences Told by Fellow Ranchman in Far West and the Cementing of a Friendship that Continues into the Second Generation—Then and Now

Written Especially for The Newark Post

The Great American

A splendid photograph of the late Theodore Roosevelt, taken a few years ago in the study of his home on Sagamore Hill, Long Island.

Roosevelt's love of books throughout his strenuous life was always evident. He was considered one of the best read Presidents ever to occupy the White House.

When the latter had a 44-caliber revolver pressed against Roosevelt's stomach; the organization of the Little Missouri Stock Association for mutual protection and of which he was president; his feud with the titled Frenchman, the Marquis De Mores; his boxing battle in the Three Seven ranch house with the present Lord North, premier of the English House of Lords; his first July Fourth speech at the little frontier town of Dickinson that today is a classic. A thousand such tales of his activities are woven into the history of the early Northwest, along with such adventurous souls as Howard Eaton, the Marquis; Big Jim and Hell Roaring Bill; of dauntless men whose heads were in the clouds and who were not afraid.

In Later Years

Then, the call from his people and his party became too strong to resist and he left us to take up his political career; for during all the time he was on the ranch, he wrote much and his fearless, forceful style, as well as his grasp of home and international affairs, had commanded wide attention. "Who is this young fellow Roosevelt?" Back to New York and Oyster Bay, Police Commissioner, Civil Service Commissioner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Governor of New York, Vice-President, President,—his upward career was steady and without a break.

"Roosevelt luck"? Well, hardly—at least you would not say so if you saw him in action. If I should venture to suggest one feature or trait that stood out more boldly than others, it was his instant and quick decision. A problem presenting was settled right there. There was no halting, no evasion, no "passing the buck." It was "yes" or "no" and that settled it. Frequently is made mention that the President of the United States is overworked. Sometimes I think this is wholly a matter of who happens to be President. At least, in later years in the White House, I never saw him so busy in his private executive office at the White House, but that he had time to cheerily laugh and chat over old ranch days; and his desk was always as clean as a billiard table. Yes—there is a lot in who happens to be in the White House.

For instance, I watched him dispose of a group of callers gathered in the reception room, all by appointment. All had evidently important business as told by their eager manner. There was no whispering or "gum shoeing" Roosevelt inclined his ear and listened closely to each tale. Immediately he said yes or no, or whatever his judgment inspired. Came a hawk nosed, fishy eyed man who laboriously sought to whisper in the President's ear.

"I told you No!" he shouted in a voice that reached the Washington monument. "I have investigated the record of your man and find him utterly unworthy of the place. Good day sir." A President, so disposed, can get away with a lot of import-dents and not then be overworked.

The day before he was inaugurated to his elective term as President, he gave us a party, and it was some party. It was given in the afternoon of March 3rd, in his executive offices at the White House. The guests were confined to his ranch and cowboy friends: rough riders, hunting guides and companions of the camp fire and trail. Outside, Senators, diplomats, and distinguished departmental chiefs cooled their heels in ante rooms, but it was none of theirs; this was his own party of chosen ones who had faced danger and exposure with him and with him had lain out at night in the open and heard the stars sing. No one else could understand.

This is just to illustrate the loyalty and true blue devotion of the man Roosevelt to his friends—who shared with him the freemasonry of the open and the far places.

The long drawn-out controversy as to what should be done with the now dead noted tree was finally settled last week when the mayor approved of the Cambridge Park Commission's suggestion that it be cut into fifty blocks, one to be sent to the executive of each state, to Alaska and the District of Columbia. The remainder must be cremated, the ashes to be cast into the Charles River.

Guarding His Ashes

It needs but a visit to the quaint, shaded cemetery, now in its golden October foliage, on the half moon shores of Oyster Bay to witness the pilgrims who daily visit the grave with its modest marker. They come from everywhere, and it was found necessary to widen the road to make room for their autos. They come from Maine to California, stand a little while with uncovered heads, lay their flowers down and go away, cleansed in soul, better men and women. The shrine is never without its fresh flowers. A mile away, crowning Sagamore Hill, lives Mrs. Roosevelt, the same gentle wife and mother who endeared herself to millions of American women and who not only guards the ashes of her dead, but his priceless treasures that enrich the trophy room of the Roosevelt home—mute evidences of a life of strenuous action without compare and of which he not only taught, but lived, and that gave to him the title, far above kings, that of "The Greatest American."

We survivors of the open range are now very, very few; the last to be called West being Howard Eaton, whose magnificent ranch in the Wyoming foothills is not unknown to Delawareans. To me has come a great peace, the peace that comes of work that is near finished and that bears no stain; the peace that comes of knowledge of standing shoulder to shoulder with intrepid men in the uttermost places and who will extend welcoming hands when I, too, shall go West.

variety of interesting objects. In the replica of the birthplace the student of American periods will find much of the original furnishings, pieces of historic interest, as well as other authentic details which give an accurate reproduction of the American home of ante-bellum days. These rooms in themselves constitute a lesson in American history.

ATTEND ALUMNI MEETING

Several Newark residents who are graduates from Delaware College, attended the dinner and meeting of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Alumni Association last Friday evening. Dean George E. Dutton of the University was among the speakers at the occasion.

"STORY OF THE CROSS" GIVEN AT CECILTON

Wilmington Choir Entertains Big Assemblage In Maryland Town

Residents of Cecilton, Md., and the surrounding community were treated last Saturday evening by one of the best entertainments ever given there. The Epworth Choir, of Wilmington, Prof. George E. King, conductor, presented "The Story of The Cross." The entertainment was a pleasing mixture of songs and pantomimes.

There were several soloists including Mr. Charles Harrison, baritone; Miss Carolyn Conly, contralto, and Mr. Harper Spry, tenor. A quartette was sung, "When God Forgives, He Then Forgets," the words written by Mrs. M. V. Black, of Cecilton, music by Prof. Charles T. Edwards, of Wilmington. Anthems and Gospel choruses were also rendered.

HISTORIC MEMENTO FOR GOVERNOR DENNEY

Governor William D. Denney, of Delaware, will receive a sealed block of the historic Washington Elm in Cambridge, Mass., under which George Washington took command of the Continental troops. The block, with the seal of the city of Cambridge on one side and that of the mayor on the other will rest in the governor's executive office at Dover, if the request of Mayor Quinn is carried out.

The long drawn-out controversy as to what should be done with the now dead noted tree was finally settled last week when the mayor approved of the Cambridge Park Commission's suggestion that it be cut into fifty blocks, one to be sent to the executive of each state, to Alaska and the District of Columbia. The remainder must be cremated, the ashes to be cast into the Charles River.

Next month the city fathers will inaugurate a country-wide movement among the school children to raise a fund with which to erect a monument to replace the tree. A stone from each state bearing the state seal in gold will be sought.—Sunday Star.

MIDDLETOWN CANNERS REPORT SHORT PACK

Drought Given As Cause of Poor Season, In Recent Report

Comes this report of the canning season in and around Middletown, from the Transcript of that place:

"The canners of this section have closed another season and it can scarcely be called successful. In fact, this season's pack of both corn and tomatoes was far below the average. The local corn cannery, owned by Mr. G. H. Baker, canned but half its usual amount of corn this year. There were but 28,000 cases packed as compared to 55,000 for last year.

On the other hand, the tomato pack was but little better, 16,500 cases being canned whereas last year there were about 25,000. Peas was a new crop and more or less of an experiment during the past season. Nevertheless, there were 4500 cases in Mr. Baker's pack.

The failure of all the crops to reach the average yields of other years is largely, if not solely, due to the protracted drought during the growing season. Rain that should have come in July and August arrived in September after the crops had been harvested. Al in all, it has been a very discouraging year to those raising corn and tomatoes for the canneries. It has been equally discouraging to the canners and laborers. However, both the canners and farmers are looking for a much more successful yield next year, and it is to be hoped that they will not be disappointed."

IRA KILMON IN TOWN

Ira Kilmon, the genial former owner of Kilmon's Restaurant here, dropped into town last Friday and greeted many of his friends.

Since leaving Newark over a month ago, Ira has been sojourning on the West Coast. He reports California climate and country mighty good but said it was nothing like good old Delaware.

It is understood that Mr. Kilmon will shortly re-enter the restaurant business in Newark.

WORLD RADIO AFFAIRS

(BY JAMES G. HARBORD, PRESIDENT RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA)

Just returned from a trip to Europe, where he attended a meeting of the consortium of international radio companies, General James G. Harbord, President of the Radio Corporation of America, has authorized the following interview dealing with various world radio projects.

The countries represented at this conference which convened in London recently were the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany, and the chief object of the sessions was to complete plans for a projected radio communication service connecting the United States and Europe directly with South America.

"These plans," said General Harbord, "previously conceived to link the United States and European countries directly with Brazil and the Argentine were enlarged upon at the recent conference. Circuits will extend from the high power station at St. Aisse, France; Nauen, Germany; and Carnarvon, Wales—direct to Buenos Aires while the other will bridge the gap between New York City and Buenos Aires through the intermediary of Radio Central, the Radio Corporation of America station on Long Island. The definite intentions manifested by the American, English, French and German radio interests (better known as the AEEG group) at the recent meetings to go forward with the plans which was agreed upon are sufficient proof that the huge program will be brought to a speedy conclusion.

"Reception in Argentina, from France and the United States has already been established and the receiving apparatus has been in test operation at Buenos Aires for a number of months. A notable test of this 6,000 mile circuit occurred when the returns of the recent Firpo-Willard boxing contest were transmitted from the giant station to Rocky Point, Long Island, direct to the receiving station at Buenos Aires from which they were subsequently broadcast by radio telephone on a short wave-length. Having thus accomplished reception in the Argentine," continued General Harbord, "we are now finishing the erection of a high power transmitting station at that point, which when completed, will enable us to carry on two-way communications. It is expected that the new service will be ready for commercial use some time this fall.

"It should be of interest to American business to know that a keen sense of appreciation is being evidenced in these developments by business men in South America whose trade intercourse with the United States and foreign countries will be materially enhanced by the establishment of this direct and swift communication service.

When asked about the status of radio broadcasting across the seas, General Harbord has this to say:

"I feel that Americans generally do not appreciate the great strides we have made in radio broadcasting in this country. Certainly the initiative and enterprise which American manufacturers have shown so far have placed this country far in advance of others in this new art. And the great privilege of free broadcasting exists nowhere as we know it in the United States.

"During my visit in France I had the opportunity to manipulate a French broadcast receiver and listen in to a program broadcast from the Eiffel Tower. The complicated apparatus used for this reception was a striking contrast to efficient receivers of simplified control that we have in this country at present.

"France has relatively few broadcasting stations, in fact, I believe there are but four that are broadcasting on a regular program, the Eiffel Tower, and the Radiola station at Paris, the Post Office school and the Nice station.

"It will be of interest to note, however, that France is using her high power radio station at Bordeaux to broadcast daily telegraphic press reports which are received by telegraphers at many distant points. So effective is this transmission that press of the day is frequently picked up by a station at Saigon, in Indo-China some 6,000 miles distant as well as at Buenos Aires, over 8,000 miles from Bordeaux."

When asked if he wished to interpret the recent radio developments between his company and the Chinese Government in the light of their meaning to America, General Harbord said, "Perhaps we had better begin at the start of these negotiations back in 1921, when the Chinese Government granted the Federal Telegraph Company an independent contract to erect five radio stations in various provinces of China for communications with America. Since that time, the Federal Telegraph Company of Delaware has been formed which incorporates the Chinese radio interests of the Federal Telegraph Company and the Radio Corporation of America, and in which the two American companies will participate jointly under the assignment of the 1921 contract recently approved by China.

"This undertaking calls for the erection of five powerful stations in China, the principal one to be located at Shanghai. This station will engage in direct communication with the RCA stations at Hawaii and even San Francisco, over five thousand miles distant. Shanghai will also operate a station of lesser power for communication with similar smaller stations to be located at Peking, Canton and Harbin, each of which cities are separated by approximately 800 miles. In this way the central station of Shanghai will have "feeder" stations in the principal provinces, through which traffic from these several territories will be routed to the giant station at Shanghai, for transmission to the western hemisphere. Conversely, Shanghai will be the gateway through which communications from points East will pass to the Chinese interior. These stations will be operated jointly by the Federal Telegraph Company of Delaware and the Chinese Government, thus placing the project under Chinese-American administration."

"The confidence of the Chinese Government, in entering into active participation in this program was enhanced largely as a result of the limitation of armament conference held at Washington, D. C., in the fall of 1921."

"There are no exclusive or monopolistic features in this contract," continued the General, "and from the very inception of negotiations the project has had the whole-hearted support of the State Department, at Washington, who view the recent completion of plans as a signal accomplishment in international diplomacy."

"American Business men will be quick to appreciate the commercial significance of this comprehensive plan; inasmuch as there is today only one cable crossing the Pacific to China. And this new, strong link of friendship cannot help but play its own important part in the cause of better understanding between these two countries, and indirectly the peoples of the world."

General Harbord was recently President of the China Society, an institution for the promotion of Chinese interests in this country. For this reason, he has a special interest in the contract, from the standpoint of the far reaching business and social influence of the Society.

Work on the stations will begin this fall, and the inauguration of service is expected during the latter part of 1925, although the plans may reach maturity before the time. Test signals will span the Pacific from China well in advance of the official opening, however. A moment spent in glancing at a map of the world reveals that today, although commercial radio is scarcely three years old, we are enveloping the entire globe with radio waves. A further calculation shows that the actual daily transmission range of the high power radio circuits which terminate in the United States totals over 41,000 miles.

"DICK" HOLTON TO COACH LOCAL TEAM

Former Delaware Star Took Charge Last Night at Practice Session

Newark A. C. football team took a boost this week, when it was announced that Dick Holton, a former star footballer at the University and a Newark boy, had been engaged as coach for the balance of the season.

Dick took charge of the big squad last evening at the regular practice in the Armory. With a wealth of good material at hand, there is every reason to believe that he will place a mighty creditable team on the field for the balance of the games this fall.

It is understood that lights will be placed on the High School field, in order that practices may be held at night. This could not be confirmed, however.

Holton played tackle on the Delaware team for four years, being captain of the team three years ago. He received his early football training at Newark High, and has always taken a keen interest in local athletics.

ALMOST REPEATED

Of two friends staying at a hotel where most keys fit most doors, one went off to bed, undressed, and turned in, mistaking his friend's room for his own. Half an hour later the friend followed, saw his bed occupied, and returned to the coffee room.

"Did you see me go to my room just now?" he said to the night porter.

"Yes, sir," was the reply. "Well, then, why didn't you tell me I'd gone to bed already?" he grunted, and continued to finish the night on a chair in front of the fire.—Yorkshire Post.

LIFE ACCIDENT HEALTH

It is odd to relate, but every man after a serious accident or term of sickness is a firm believer in Accident and Health Insurance. It is also strange to say, but most serious accidents happen when the man is not covered by insurance, and after the accident it is too late to get this form of coverage. Why not let me show you how you can get this coverage—thus insuring a steady income for life, if necessary, and at a surprisingly low cost to you.

The Best is None too Good

This old adage is especially true with reference to bathing and toilet equipment.

No dwelling is safe that is lacking in sanitation.

The church, theater, school or office building that does not provide sanitary toilet and wash room facilities menaces health.

The old-fashioned water closet—or the out door privy—wherever found, should be replaced with a modern sanitary fixture. Comfort requires and demands modern sanitary water closets.

MICHIGAN DEAN DE-PLORES FRAT PARTIES

Says Scholarship is Suffering As Result of Boozie Wave

Blaming liquor, automobiles and co-eds for low scholarship among fraternity men at the University of Michigan, Dean Joseph A. Bursley is waging war against "flunking" fraternities.

Charging that the campus is infested with bold bootleggers, that students drive automobiles with disastrous effect on scholarship, and that social activities of men and women students cause neglect of study, Dean Bursley is leading a fight which will probably lead to restrictions against certain fraternities taking in new members.

Members of 21 of the 46 Greek letter organizations of the university—the list includes the name of Michigan's oldest and most prominent organizations—were below the passing average in the last college year, university statistics show. The previous year 15 such organizations failed to meet the requisite grade.

President M. L. Burton of the university appealed recently to parents

LINCOLN EASY ON CLIENTS

His Fees Absurdly Small Considered in Light of Present Day Charges

Lincoln's lawyer's fees were curtailed seriously by his life-long concern that he should not receive any more for a thing than the service was worth. He seems to have started out with this hampering principle. His theory about fees and their collection was clearly defined:

An exorbitant fee should never be claimed (he wrote once). As a general rule, never take your whole fee in advance, nor any more than a small retainer. When fully paid beforehand you are more than a common mortal if you can feel the same interest in the case as if something was still in prospect for you as well as for your client. And when you lack interest in the case the job will very likely lack skill and diligence in the performance. Split the amount of fee and take a note in advance. Then you will feel that you are working for something and you are sure to do your work faithfully and well. Never sell a fee note—at least not before the consideration service is performed. It leads to negligence and dishonesty—negligence by losing interest in the case, and dishonesty in refusing to refund when you have allowed the consideration to fail.

"His fees seem absurdly small when we consider them today," writes Ida M. Tarbell in "The American Magazine." "For instance, there is a letter in which he says to a client, who evidently has asked him to set a price: 'If the case is as stated within I will attend to the case in the Supreme Court for $10.' If he thought he had of all students to aid him in eliminating the "automobile evil" from the campus.

Police say, however, automobiles have increased 25 per cent. over last year.

been paid more than he had earned he would return the money—quixotically, it seems, when we consider how little he really was getting. Once a client sent him $25 for his services. Lincoln wrote back that he had received the check. 'You must think I am a highpriced man,' he said. 'You are too liberal with your money. Fifteen dollars is enough for the job. I send a receipt for $15 and return you a $10 bill.'

"Go show that to the lawyers of today, and what would they say? It was a real and honest concern that he did not get more than he was worth.

"And this punctiliousness went into everything that he did. There was the lecturing which he tried, but never carried to a professional point, being overwhelmed, as I think most amateur speakers and even some of those that have arrived at a professional point are, by a doubt of the value of his services. He had received $10 for a lecture, and said moodily when the money was paid him that he didn't believe it was worth it!

"This desire not to overcharge, to get too much, often made him uneasy after he had rendered a bill. In one case, after winning a suit and charging his client $200, his conscience troubled him and he took a banker friend in Springfield into his confidence. 'I am afraid I charged too much,' he told him. As this conversation was going on they happened to meet the lawyer of the opposition, who had lost the case, and as they were all friends the banker said, 'Let's ask him what he charged.' 'As I lost the case,' the man replied, 'I didn't overcharge, and he paid me $300.' As Lincoln had won and charged $200 his conscience seems to have been satisfied.—From Morning News.

These Men are Building Newark!

A Home Builders' Page, devoted to the Interests of the Trade which is making Newark a bigger and better town

NEW BUILDINGS MAKE A NEW TOWN

When the old residents drift back to Newark this week, they will see a great change. Especially will it be noticeable to those who have been away many years.

Wonder what they will say when they see Depot Road lined with new and attractive homes on both sides, when they see the building strides on Orchard Ridge, where as boys they used to play football.

Yes, it's a new town, growing, progressing, and improving.

Over one hundred thousand dollars has been spent during the past year in building homes in Newark.

For strangers, Newark will present an appearance not bettered by any town in the State. It is the ideal suburban site, and as the months go by and more and more people start homes and business houses, the Newark of old days is slowly dropping out of the picture. The same spirit and hospitality remains, and it is hoped, always will.

The men on this page are doing their share nobly and well. They are building Newark into the biggest little town in Delaware.

BUILDING NOTES

J. C. Willis has started a large force of men on the erection of a three story store and apartment building on Main Street, Elkton, upon the site of Cohen's Shoe Store. The building was gutted last Spring by the disastrous fire. It will be modern in every respect.

Mr. Willis is also busy putting the finishing touches on the splendid new home of J. H. Fulton on Depot Road, Newark. Heating fixtures and fittings are being installed now.

New curbing along Delaware Avenue, East Main Street, and along the Pilling Wright property on Gillespie Avenue has kept Contractor Hutchison busy these days. He is always on the job, watching the progress of the work.

H. Warner McNeal declares that the small and convenient semi-bungalow has come to stay in the East. The old idea of a big house with high ceilings and plenty of room, has not only proven too expensive, but not at all convenient. Latest plans, according to Mr. McNeal, use up every available inch of space in the house to some advantage.

That's What a Witness Told James D. Major, Who Made a Game Fight in His Own Defense in the General Sessions Court in Wilmington

THE STORY OF A MOST UNUSUAL CRIMINAL CASE

Tall and slender, pale and drawn from weeks spent in jail, looking more like a bewildered boy speaking a new piece, than a notorious criminal wanted in several cities, according to the State of Delaware—James Dudley Major, alias Earl White, stood erect at the counsel table before the Superior Court of this State recently and for five days made a legal battle for freedom in what will go down in the history of the Court as one of the most unusual cases ever tried in Wilmington.

Whatever may happen to him in the future,—whatever the stain of being a criminal may mean to him, one thing is sure,—he made as game a fight for freedom as was ever waged in that court.

Charged With Robbery

Major was on trial as Earl White, charged with the hold-up of Willard Singley, a well known young Wilmington man on the night of Monday, August 27th, along the Brandywine Drive at the foot of Jefferson Street.

He was taken to jail two days later and held for the September term of Court.

When the case was brought to trial, Major appeared with a sheaf of papers under his arm, and announced himself as ready to defend his own case.

From that time on until the end, this slender chap has fought every moment and fought bravely.

Arrayed against him in the legal battle was Aaron Finger, deputy Attorney General, and one of the best criminal lawyers in the State, and the whole Police Department. Finger had his case prepared, his witnesses ready and with years of experience ready to stand him in good stead if the going got rough, radiated confidence and determination.

From the moment the news had spread that the unusual case was on in Court No. 1, the crowds came pouring in. Seats were at a premium all day every day. Standing room in the aisle was the best late comers could get.

To a man, the lawyers of the city were present. In the bar they sat, as tense as the gaping crowd. Here was a real thrill in their precise and undemonstrative profession. Here was a new thing, a case with just the faintest tinge of sentiment. And we all love sentiment.

In the Crowd

There was no doubting the sympathies of the spectators during this trial. The universal admiration of the so-called "under dog," so prevalent in this country of ours, was certainly in that courtroom. As one man, they were supporters of Major. True—they knew little or no law, some had never been in a courtroom before,—but that didn't matter. They just knew this fellow was going to win out. Sitting on the sidelines during a tense football game, or watching the last dash of a race horse down the stretch could not have held their attention closer.

"They ain't givin' him a square deal, so they ain't," declared an old woman on one of the back rows of the room.

The man beside her shuffled his feet nervously and as he half-turned to a more comfortable position, he murmured, "Damn, he's making some fight!"

It groaned, smiled and sighed with monotonous regularity — did this crowd.

They watched Finger like a hawk. When he arose, they visibly were ill at ease. When Major won a technical point, the Court banged his gavel, the attendants jumped up like Jack-in-the-Box, and quiet again prevailed.

The Last Day

The last day of the trial, when Major, visibly worn out by the strain, rested his case, and Mr. Finger did likewise, it was generally conceded that the jury would be charged and a verdict returned shortly.

However, rebuttal witnesses were produced during the afternoon by the State which greatly strengthened its case, and Major went wearily to the task of fighting again.

Against all rules of court procedure, he was allowed to take the stand on his own defense after having rested his case. Judge Richards at all times gave him a fair chance, even though the crowd audibly groaned at the monotonous "objection sustained" when Finger jumped to his feet.

He told his story, plainly and frankly. He declared, as he had many times before, that he had been in bed the hour of the alleged crime. Before that, he had his boarding mistress on the stand and she corroborated every detail of his contention.

The courtroom probably had never heard a more eloquent plainness of speech from a lawyer, certainly not from a prisoner.

He branded the whole charge as a "frame-up," pure and simple. He ripped the State's evidence up one side and down the other and then as a climax, refused to be tied in knots by the gruelling cross-examination by Finger. Truly, this man is a remarkable character.

How did he know enough? Well, the State said he studied law while in jail in Kansas—Major says he worked in the evening in a law office for two years. You can take your choice.

When he got down from the stand, he sank into a chair, head in his hands. He had done his "durndest," as the fellow says. He fought the best he knew how. He was through. Nothing else mattered.

As the crowd filed out one door, free men, Major filed out a side door and back to his cell,—a prisoner.

Thus ended the actual trial. The verdict and sentence are other matters. Somehow we sort of admired that man and whether he was innocent or damnably guilty, he had the backbone to make a fight. And that's something, you know.

STEER PREFERS SWIMMING IN CANAL TO PROCEEDING WEEKLY TO MARKET

Delaware City Cattle Dealer and Three Boats Necessary to Bring Animal Ashore

Delaware City residents were all agog one day last week, when a steer, ostensible intended for market and ready to be loaded on a car at the station there for his last ride, broke away from the herd and plunged into the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, nearby.

Before the astonished dealer, Jacob Rudnick, could gather his wits, the steer was out of sight. Rudnick then believing it was drowned, went back to his work.

A few minutes later wild excitement on a wharf along the canal called his attention, and when he arrived, he saw the crews of two small boats belonging to Fort du Pont, struggling with something in the water. It was the wayward steer.

After a great deal of trouble, they towed the animal to Sauer's wharf and hoisted it ashore with block and fall. Completely exhausted by the ordeal, the animal was put out of its misery by Rudnick.

It is believed that the steer swam at least three miles in the canal. It was one of a herd which has been roaming the marshes below Delaware City for several months past.

Residents across the canal later reported seeing the animal coming ashore. When they made a move towards it, however, it turned and broke for deep water again.

TIN LIZZIE ROUTS RATS ON LINKS ENDS SWEARING AND CUTS BALL BILLS

A rusty, discarded tin Lizzie has won the reputation in Washington, D. C., of being the champion rat killer. Golf had a lot to do with the discovery.

Rats were working havoc with the West Potomac golf course, at Washington. Many were the vain words perspiring golfers hurled down the holes of Potomac Park rats as they saw a perfectly good four-bit ball go rolling into one of the thousand or more front doors. Hundreds of dollars worth of balls disappeared yearly.

Al Kemp, keeper of the greens, one day had an inspiration. He had read a short time before of some unfortunate motorist being asphyxiated by carbon monoxide gas from a machine. So he appropriated a rusty, long discarded flivver and loaded her up with the dirtiest spark plugs he could find.

That was to induce the creation of monoxide gas. Then he ran her down the field, attached a rubber hose to the exhaust pipe and dropped the other end in one of the rat holes. The Lizzie breathed its deadly gas into the holes nobly.

Kemp kept doggedly at his experiment for several weeks and carefully watched results. To his joy he noticed that at the end of that time there was not a rat to be seen around those greens. Since then he has run his death dealing Lizzie over the entire course, and as a result it is absolutely free of rats.—Sunday Star.

TURKEY, FARMER AND THANKSGIVING

As Thanksgiving time approaches the farmer begins to give considerable attention to his turkeys and to wonder by what amount these turkeys will increase the net proceeds of the farm. We have no statistics available as to the number or value of the turkeys shipped last year, however, the raising of turkeys is becoming more important each year. Ordinarily they range over the farm and are raised at a comparatively low cost and usually at Thanksgiving and Christmas time they bring good prices. However, in order to obtain the best prices the farmer should give careful thought to their marketing and should know particularly how to fatten them and when, where and how to market them.

As in the case with all farm products, turkeys well fattened and of good quality present a much better appearance than thin, scrawny turkeys, and find a much greater demand at a higher price. Also inasmuch as turkeys are sold by weight the heavier the turkey the larger the amount received, consequently the breeding stock should be carefully selected. In fattening turkeys it has been found that range fattening is much more satisfactory than penning the turkeys up for that purpose. When placed in a pen they will probably eat well for a few days but after that time they are likely to eat little and lose weight. Ordinarily the fattening process begins about a month before the turkeys are to be marketed. This is accomplished by proceeding gradually to feed the turkeys on corn in the morning, and again in the evening a short time before they go to roost. The amount of corn should be gradually increased until the turkeys are getting all they can eat. It is not advisable to feed new corn too heavy until after the turkeys have become accustomed to it. On farms where acorns or small nuts are available the turkeys will often fatten with very little corn feeding.

When the turkeys are in suitable condition and of good size it is usually best to market them for the Thanksgiving period. However, if they are small and not in good condition at that time they should be held until Christmas. Except under unusual conditions where the turkeys are very late, all turkeys should be marketed not later than Christmas as ordinarily turkeys sold later than Christmas will not bring as much as those sold for the Thanksgiving or Christmas market. The best place to market turkeys is, of course, where the best returns can be obtained and preferably at a nearby market. For this reason the raisers of turkeys should take advantage of the information supplied by the Bureau of Markets at Dover, and inform themselves of the prevailing prices at the different cities. This will enable them to decide which market is the best. Also the raisers should keep in touch directly with buyers in both local and distant markets so that they may know just what prices they will pay.

Turkeys may be marketed either alive or dressed. If they are shipped alive, the crate should be high enough to allow the turkeys to stand up. A coop about 3 feet long and 2 feet wide, and 20 inches high will accommodate five or six turkeys, but they should not be over-crowded in the crate. When turkeys are shipped dressed they should be thoroughly chilled before putting into the package, usually a barrel is used for shipping dressed turkeys and it is also safer to ship them under ice. This is done by placing a layer of cracked ice and so on. A piece of burlap is a layer of turkeys, and another of ice and so on. A piece of burlap is usually used for putting over the top of the barrel to hold the ice in place.

Other information in regard to the killing, dressing, and packing of turkeys may be obtained by making application to the Bureau of Markets, Dover. All turkeys should arrive in market at least four or five days before the holiday, and in most cases earlier than that. Turkeys shipped late often reach an over-stocked market and are sold at declining prices.

In Memoriam

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear daughter, Jessie E. Conner, who passed away one year ago, October 21, 1922.

Dear Jessie, none but a mother's heart can tell,
The time will come, I care not when,
That I may with you dwell.

Surrounded by friends, I am lonely;
In the midst of pleasure, I am blue;
A smile on my face and a heartache,
Always thinking of you.

We strove so hard to keep you,
But God wanted you above,
But I will never forget you,
In the depth of a mother's love.
Of grief and sorrow, I've had my share,
But the loss of you, dear, Jessie,
Was the hardest to bear.

Sadly missed by Mother and Daddy.

"Gone from earth, yes gone forever,
Tear-dimmed eyes shall gaze in vain.

We shall see our darling never,
Never more on earth again.
Heaven now retains our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps.

Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Where our darling Jessie sleeps.
The midnight stars are beaming
Upon her silent grave,
She sleepeth without dreaming,
The one we could not save.
Only a patient face at rest
With folded hands on a peaceful breast.

PLAYHOUSE

Schumann-Heink

Anyone who has heard Mme. Schumann-Heink laugh at a joke would not wonder at the ease with which she can be moved to tears. It is not that she has been a model of mothers, nor the fact that she has ten grandchildren that has made her sympathetic. Her own explanation is that she has seen so much of pain and sorrow that her own perceptions have been sharpened. Asked recently whether emotion had ever forced to stop during a song, she made the following reply:

"The nearest I ever came to that, was in Kansas City. I had been singing for the boys at Camp Funston, and my escort was Captain Arthur Werner. Not long afterward, he died suddenly. One of his comrades asked me to attend the funeral and perhaps sing. Of course, I did. I chose to sing that wonderful aria, 'For the Lord in Mindful of His Own' from Mendelssohn's 'Saint Paul.' I don't know how I ever got through it. I know I didn't dare risk waiting too long or I never would have been able to sing 'Taps,' which I knew the boys were waiting for. We hurried right into it, my accompanist evidently realizing how deeply I was moved."

Mme. Schumann-Heink includes 'Taps' in most of her programs. Her concert schedule brings her to the Playhouse, Wilmington, tonight.

"That Casey Girl"

Eddie Foy, who has been described as the "funniest man in the world," will be seen in an entirely new musical play under the direction of George Nickolai and Jack Welch at the Playhouse, Wilmington, next Friday and Saturday.

It is called "That Casey Girl," and is the joint effort of the quartette of stage writers—Willard Mack, George V. Hobart, William Jerome, and Jean Schwartz. Having been closely associated with Foy for many years they had, through this means, been able to adequately gauge his capabilities. In his latest offering Mr. Foy will have an opportunity to give his admirers a view of his capacity, as a comedian and an actor, of "heart stuff."

To Foy's admirers it is almost unnecessary to say that he is accompan-

OVERLAND CHAMPION SOMETHING NEW

Willys-Overland Bring Out
New Closed Model With Radical Innovations

In producing the new Overland Champion model, a closed car of unique design, Willys-Overland has succeeded in actually introducing to the public something radically novel and fresh; a type of motor car that many people have often longed for and hoped for. It is probably the most divergently useful car ever brought out and an unusually large demand for it is expected from all classes of people.

This truly remarkable creation, like the famous Killys-Knight coupe-sedan has doors both front and rear. The front and rear seats can be easily and quickly adjusted to three distinctly different positions, permitting a tall driver to manipulate the foot pedals without any uncomfortable cramping of his legs. By the same token, a short driver can adjust the driver's seat so that he can easily reach the pedals without stretching. At the same time the rear seat can be moved back so that the passengers on that seat will not be crowded in the least when the front seat is moved backward.

Another uncommon characteristic of the Champion is that both front and rear seat sand upholstery can be entirely removed and made up into a luxurious bed right in the car, occupying the whole length and width of the car. This in itself will be a great boon to motor campers.

Again, still another clever feature of this versatile car is the odd arrangement whereby the rear seat and upholstery can be taken out, providing fifty cubic feet of clear space for the salesman's sample case, trunks, and luggage; the farmer's tools, produce, and supplies, while the camper will rejoice in this available room for camping duffel and other equipment that is necessary to transport, all of which can be loaded through the rear door of generous dimensions.

NEWARK HIGH FOOTBALLERS PROVE GOOD "MUDDERS" AND TRIM ELKTON, 18-0

Wilson's Machine Shows Best Form of Season in Game Here Last Friday—Elkton Shows Determined Defensive in First Half

HOPKINS, GRANT AND TOWNSEND STAR

For the second time in two weeks, Newark High School triumphed over their closest rivals, Elkton High, and in so doing displayed the best brand of football shown this season. The final score, 18-0, was just one touchdown better than the score in Elkton a week previous.

The game was played in a continual rain, making the High School field soft and slippery, and the ball hard to handle. In spite of the inclement weather both teams played good, hard football, and fumbles were very scarce. Elkton showed a great improvement last Friday. Especially in the first half of the game did they make a determined drive for a touchdown.

Early on the second quarter they unleashed an attack which had Newark rooters on pins and needles. Successive plunges by Pierson, Minster and Pierce carried the ball to Newark's five-yard line. There Wilson's team braced and held for downs. Hopkins immediately booted out of danger. Elkton never again came within scoring distance.

First Half

Newark kicked off to start the game, and Elkton after two or three plays was forced to punt. With the ball at midfield, Patchell, Newark's quarterback, cut loose with his best plays and with Hopkins, Townsend and Steel alternating plunged and drove his team straight down the field for the first score. Hopkins took the ball over from the three yard line. He later failed at goal.

This completed the scoring for the first half. In the second quarter, Elkton's offensive kept Captain Hopkins and his mates busy. Turned back within five yards of the coveted touchdown, Captain Terrell and his Maryland aggregation again went to the attack and this time advanced the ball to the twenty yard line. Unable to gain further ground by plunging, the little skipper of the Elkton team dropped back for a field goal. The wet ball and a rush by Newark forwards combined to fluster him, however, and the ball went astray. Shortly after this play the period ended and the two teams went to their respective "corners" to listen to the wise words of their coaches.

Second Half Fruitful

The second half was featured by a determined Newark attack in which they were down the opposition. Hopkins and Townsend carried the brunt of the work for the local boys. Time and again they plunged through the line or skirted the ends for good gains.

A long forward pass, Hopkins to Chalmers, placed the Newark team within scoring distance. The pass itself was a thing of beauty. "Shorty"

RIVALS' STANDINGS

Following is the standing of the High School teams in the lower half of the State, one of which may meet Newark for the Championship of secondary High Schools this Fall:

reversed his field and cut across to the opposite side. Taking the ball over his shoulder he continued on the dead run. Minster finally brought him to earth on Elkton's 25 yard line. From there, Newark took it over in four plays, Hopkins again making the score.

In the last quarter, a short dash along the sidelines by the Newark captain, after an exchange of punts had brought the ball well down into Elkton territory, brought the final score. Shortly later the game ended with Newark in possession of the ball at midfield.

Minster, Elkton's big halfback, played the most part of the second half with a badly wrenched ankle. He was a real star for his team and did most of the ground gaining. Captain Terrell and Pierson also played good football. Beers, the hefty guard, stopped several plays.

For Newark, the all round work of Hopkins again stood out prominently. "Shorty" Chalmers played a whale of a game at end, and Manns and Grant distinguished themselves in the center of the line. "Bus" Townsend and Patchell were valuable on both attack and defense. Steel and Rupp, the latter entering the game late in the first half, also performed well.

CASE DISMISSED

A few weeks ago Frank Atkinson, the celebrated film editor, had his machine stolen, and although it was of somewhat ancient vintage, he was tickled to death when it was recovered through the theft bureau of the auto club.

When the case came up in court, the judge said to the thief: "As I understand it, you not only stole this car, but you drove it over a hundred miles, fully intending to get it across the Mexican border."

At this juncture Atkinson almost brought himself into contempt of court by crying out:

"Mr. Judge, if that fellow drove that car a hundred miles, I would like to withdraw prosecution. He's a genius."—Los Angeles Times.

PHILADELPHIA STADIUM

PROCURED FOR BIG GAME

Arrangements to play the Delaware-Dickinson football game on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Pa., on November 24th, were completed at a meeting of Delaware and University of Pennsylvania athletic officials Monday night of this week.

The meeting was attended by Dr. W. O. Sypherd and Coach W. J. McAvoy of the University of Delaware, the former president of the Athletic Council, and by Ernest Cozens, graduate manager of the University of Pennsylvania football team, and one or two other Penn officials.

The game was originally intended for Harlan Field, Wilmington, but when an application was made this Fall, it was found that Salesianum had leased the field for the entire season and had sub-let it to another Wilmington team for the 24th.

Due to the lack of facilities for handling a big crowd, Frazer Field was eliminated as a possible scene of the annual struggle. Therefore it was necessary for the University to look out of the State to find a field.

Penn officials will handle every detail of the game, and will provide ushers, attendants and other necessary things. The two teams will play on a percentage basis.

Already the University boys are planning to go en masse to the game. The struggle will likely draw a big crowd to Franklin Field, as Philadelphia holds hundreds of alumni from both colleges.

CARLON PLAYS FIRST GAME AT QUARTER

While most of New York City sportsmen were over watching Notre Dame wallop Princeton, or were following the ponies at the nearby tracks, several hundred stayed in town and watched little Delaware walk roughshod over City College last Saturday afternoon. The score, 18-0, falls to show the all-round superiority of the Newark team. They were in possession of the ball most of the time and seemed able to gain on every play. Seldom forced to punt but several times halted within the shadow of another score, the local collegians made a very impressive showing on the first jaunt away from home this season.

"Ducky" Carlon entered the fray shortly after the start, replacing Garvine, whose injured foot gave way on him. Sook Jackson who played the last half of the Ursinus game with a fractured forearm, is out for the season, and it looks like Carlon has landed the job at quarter. He played brilliantly in his first game for Delaware.

C. C. N. Y. received the ball at the initial kick-off, failed to gain and punted. Delaware received the ball and started a steady march down the field towards the goal line. A forward pass attack by Delaware failed to gain the necessary ground on the 20-yard line and they were forced to allow C. C. N. Y. to take the ball. C. C. N. Y. in turn was forced to punt. After an exchange of kicks, Delaware started a line plunging attack that ended by Jack Williams taking the ball over the line for the first touchdown shortly before the whistle blew for the end of the first quarter. Jack then failed to kick the goal. The rest of the first half was scoreless.

In the second half Delaware received and carried the ball down the field until "Ducky" Carlon took the ball over for the second touchdown.

The third score of the game came in the last quarter after a series of line plays, Williams making tremendous gains through the line. Elliott put up the most brilliant game at

PARKSIDE HUSKIES HUMBLE LOCAL HOPES IN FOOTBALL SATURDAY, 12-6

Wilmington Team Shows Impressive Attack on Frazer Field—Newark Saved from Shutout By Steel's Long Run

JIM KEELEY, SANBORN AND CORNOG PLAY WELL

Before a rather small crowd last Saturday afternoon, Newark's big town team failed by one touchdown to break into the win column, being defeated by Parkside of Wilmington, 12-6. Both foreign scores were made as a result of sustained drives down the field on straight football, while Newark's score was made on a brilliant run back of a punt by "Doc" Steel. Catching the ball on his own forty-five yard line, the fleet quarterback cut along the sidelines and cleanly outdistanced the pack. It was the longest run of the game.

Newark's line held up well under the continual battering of McConnell, Barney and Comadore, but showed the lack of training on defensive play. The Wilmington team gained almost at will except when close to the goal line. Newark always braced when in danger and the visitors were forced to drive their utmost to score.

The first score came within five minutes after the initial kick-off. Parkside received the ball, and immediately started on a march to the goal. Line plunges by McConnell and Barney and an occasional cross-back by Hayes, which completely fooled the local defense several times, brought the ball within five yards of the goal. From then on Newark braced and held for the better half of the first half. When in possession of the ball, they could not gain consistently, however.

Barney again scored for Parkside shortly before the half closed, again after a march from midfield.

Second Half

After the intermission, Newark seemed to come to life. Several changes were made in the lineup which seemed to put freshness into the entire team. For the rest of the game they fought tooth and nail with their better-trained rivals for every yard.

For the locals, Jim Keeley again starred by his great all round work. The husky captain made a majority of the tackles during the first half and was in every play.

Sanborn also comes in for a big share of the glory. He was particularly good on the defense. He played only a part of the game but impressed everyone.

In the Newark line, P. Cornog, Crow, Robinson and Shaeffer were in the limelight. Most of the Newark squad saw action during the fracas.

Barney, Hayes and Kerrigan were the bright stars for the winners. The team, coached by "Sank" McCaughan, former star Delaware athlete, proved a heavy, well trained team, with an assortment of ground-gaining plays. In view of the fact that Newark is handicapped by lack of practice, their showing Saturday was mighty good. The lineup:

Both City College and Delaware frequently tried the open game, but with comparatively little success. They had both been discharged from the service for many months and had been in civilian clothes long enough to become used to the floppy sensation about the calves, so Vet A became alarmed over his companion's sanity when he observed him snap into it and hand a passing-by civilian an old-style highball.

"Whatcher salutin' that bimbo for?" he demanded.

"He saved my life once," answered Vet B.

"Well, that's all right, then, but how come?"

"He was a medico in our outfit. I was gonna kick off, an' they sent for him. Well, he didn't show up."

NOTRE DAME'S STRENGTH

We were talking the other day with a Newark man who witnessed the recent Army-Notre Dame game in Brooklyn. According to him, there was never a more brilliant, consummate attack thrown out in his long experience of watching college football, than at that game.

"It seemed," said he, "that those westerners had an unlimited number of plays. They crossed bucked, passed, skirted end and plunged from the most bewildering formations I ever saw. In spite of their hard drilling, the big Army team was never able to consistently stop that attack. They had a peculiar side-stepping shift, which had the West Point line elbowing each other like a crowd in line for theatre tickets. And usually the play went just the opposite direction from which they were nudging. This Western team should clean up everything."

That's what a loyal Army followers said about the game. And it is being said by experts all over the land. That wizard of football, Knute Rockne, has built up another great team. He had one before. Then came a crash of scholastic juggernauts, and his team was wrecked. That was two years ago. We cannot sit in the aura of the self-satisfied East and appreciate what the West is doing.

It's just about as senseless as mixing the West up in this Prohibition enforcement mess. Don't worry about the West. Advancement of Prohibition and expert football, (May they never become synonymous) might well be started here in the East.

By way of getting back to South Bend, Ind., a nationally known football scout recently stated that the Hoosier team can run off thirty-two plays from one single formation. That's more plays than the average Eastern football team learns in two years.

We hold no brief for the Western teams. Neither do we want to see them come East each year and wallop our prides with disgusting regularity. However, we opine it's the only way to beat it into the heads of the Eastern colleges, that The Big Three and the Little Three and the rest of the cliques are merely the products of a self-satisfied athletic policy. Should the big Three journey through the West some football season—We shrink from the agonizing thought.

Now, that both the Army and Princeton have felt the sting of the Hoosier host, the other big eastern schools must be saying—"I'm glad we didn't schedule that bunch of wild men!"

TO SELL TWENTY ABANDONED SCHOOLS

Twenty abandoned schools in New Castle County, some of which are nearly 100 years old, will be offered at public sale on Wednesday, October 31, and Tuesday, November 6, by the State Board of Education. The school buildings are located at Magnolia Grove No. 3, Franklin No. 51, Eight Square No. 58, Kirkwood No. 115, Summit Bridge No. 116, Mt. Pleasant No. 119, Delaware City No. 118, Jamison's Corner No. 59, White Clay Creek District No. 106, Fieldsboro No. 65, Odessa No. 121, Taylor's Bridge No. 127, Van Dyke No. 80, McDonough No. 62, Lee's Chapel No. 124, Ebenezer No. 126, and Greenspring No. 128.

They have not been used for many years, and because they have become the rendezvous for disorderly characters, some of them said to be bootleggers, and because there is continuous danger of the State Board of Education being liable for what takes place in these unused buildings, it was decided best to get rid of them.

EXPERIENCE POINTS THE WAY

Rules calculated to help residential communities in the burning of soft coal—to make more economical and satisfactory the use of bituminous in ordinary furnaces as a substitute for anthracite—were announced today by Samuel S. Wyer, associate in mineral technology at the United States Smithsonian Institution.

The small-sized coal, like nut, will be easier to handle and more economical than the large lump coal. Uniformity of size is desirable, because it permits easier control of fire.

The rules in burning soft coal follow:

1. Bituminous coal requires more draft and attention than anthracite or coke.

2. Ordinarily, shaking down the ashes will be required only once a day. Then shake only until the glow of the fire is seen in the ash pit, not until burning coals appear.

3. Pull clinkers out, do not try to work them through the grates.

4. A deep fuel bed is desirable.

5. Stir up the fire and get it hot before adding new fuel.

6. Use some coking method of firing, that is, work the partly burned coal, from which the gas has been driven, to one part of the fire and throw the fresh coal on the remaining portion.

7. Leave visible a bright spot of live coal to ignite the combustible gases coming off the freshly fired coal.

8. After the fuel is partly burned more heat can be obtained by breaking up the fire bed with a poker if the fuel bed is caked.

9. In banking the fire, the drafts should be open for about half an hour so that the volatile matter on the coal can be driven off before the air supply is greatly reduced.

10. Keep flue surfaces free from soot and cleaning doors tightly closed.

The practice of wetting coal decreases the fuel economy, as heat from the fuel must be used for evaporating the moisture. But with very fine coal, and particularly when the grates are not designed for fine fuel, it may be necessary to moisten the coal in order to reduce the loss of fuel through the grate.

If the entire surface of the fuel bed is covered with a heavy charge, the volatile matter from the coal fired does not ignite for a considerable length of time after firing and passes away as tarry, greenish yellow smoke. Smoke comes primarily from improper burning of bituminous coal. In most residential communities, the trouble is largely from house chimneys. Smoke prevention appliances, easily adapted to industrial plants, are not generally feasible in the home.—Baltimore Sun.

Come Back Home

"When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the fodder's in the shock,"

When Harvest moon shines, when October's air crisps and colors the wood; when in the dusk we gather around the hearth and evening lamp—Then Home comes back to us. It matters not where we are—Youth, friends, thoughts of Home come back. Old scenes, old chums, old stories link us with Days ago. And we are better men, better women for the thought.

Newark is a Home town. It is the scene of many happy, happy days, many gay loving hours. No town in Delaware has the interests and memories of so many people. Aside from our own kin and blood, many boys there are that call Newark—Home. They came to us and became our boys. They went out in the world, succeeded and failed as boys do. But they are still our boys wherever they are and are welcome always.

So for our sons, our friends, our relatives and those who have lived and loved here, Newark has planned a Little Home Coming. Newark remembers them all and wants them to come back to renew friendships and review those days of yesterday. Newark wants to see them and hear again of their life and living. So Sons of Newark and Daughters too, and those who love Newark for its association and friends—you are invited to come back Home. The Carnival spirit is abroad. The town is yours. Dance, parade, swap yarns or sit by our fires, you are welcome.—Come back home again. 'Twill do us good, do you good and make for better friends, a better town, a better State—a better country. For America is a land of Homes.

Come on back. Cheer and hot cakes, Love and welcome await you.
