America's oldest paper mill has reputation for quality

by Anthony Arcaro

The Curtis Paper Mill which stands on the banks of White Clay Creek is the oldest paper mill in continuous operation in the United States, according to Alfred L. Saindon, vice president and resident manager of the Newark plant.

The mill has been in production ever since the Curtis family bought it in 1848, said Saindon.

But according to an article by Francis A. Cooch which appeared in The Newark Post of Feb. 9, 1933, the mill stood along the creek in 1804 and was probably built earlier. However, records were not available to determine exactly when it opened.

"We are a producer of the finest text and cover grades of paper made anywhere," Saindon said. "We are at the top of the line in the printing paper field."

The peace treaty that ended the war with Japan was signed on Curtis paper, he said. "We have made personal stationery for the king of Saudi Arabia, and paper for a reproduction of the Gutenberg Bible."

"A lot of our paper goes into reproductions like Williamsburg prints and to first and limited edition books," he said. "First editions of books by Presidents Truman and Eisenhower were printed on our paper."

Most of the paper made here is used in annual reports, advertising portfolios, and Christmas cards, said Saindon.

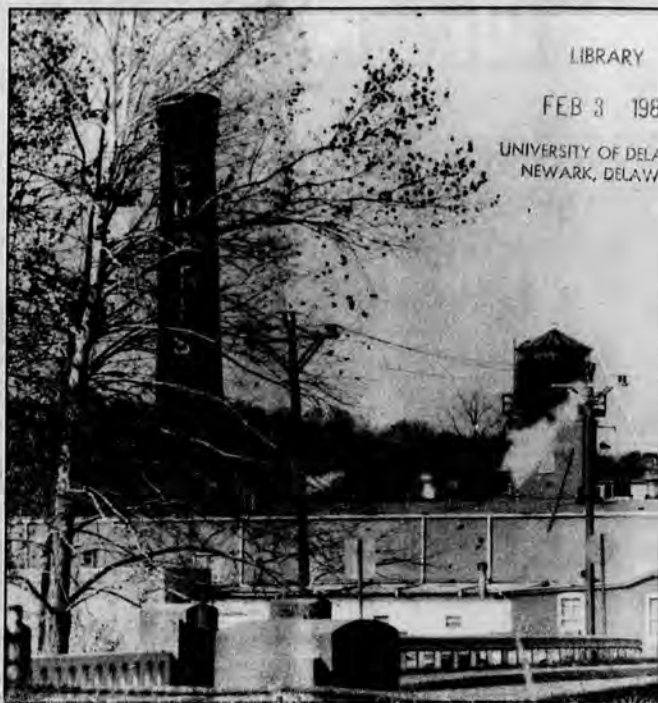

The mill, which employs 69 people, produces 20 tons of paper a day, operating round-the-clock, he said. Some of the machinery is 100 years old and still running, although it has been upgraded, he added.

"As far as paper mills go, this is a small one," Saindon said. "No one would build a mill this size today because the cost would be too great compared to what it would produce."

"There are mills in the South that are running 6,000 feet per minute (over 60 miles per hour). We only run 150 feet per minute."

"People have to go to small mills like Curtis to get specialty paper that most mills don't make or can't afford to," said Saindon. "We do not make that much paper, but we make specialty grades in small runs of high quality and in special textures and color."

Since 1977, the mill has been owned by the James River Corp. In 1936 the Curtis family sold the mill and it changed hands before until it was bought by its present owner.

Curtis Mill

Is't White Clay creek white paper makes?

Or white hands of young Anna,
That take the pulp in snowy flakes,
As though she gathered manna?
Down flows its mild as to her breast,
The fountain's foam returning,
Or comes the dairy milk to rest
Where Anna sits a'churning.

Oft in my boyhood truanting,
Beneath the long bridge idling,
I saw her like a pigeon wing,
Her white flock guiding, bridling.
Unto her hand the pulp canal
Moved on from vats of vapor—
A cascade frothing from a dall
To calmest lakes of paper.

Sheet after sheet beneath her eyes
They come to rest as I do
When in the humming mill my sighs
Are hushed as by Queen Dido;
Her arm a sceptre waves her hands
Across the sheets as free as
That Queen dismissed on Carthage sands
The sails of fleet Aeneas.

We college lads our writing tasks
Compose on Anna's moulding,
And all our Latin barely masks
The poesy she's folding;
We come to watch her with heart still
Where she's the day adorning,
Folding within the paper mill
The white light of the morning.

Curtis Mill, the namesake of Paper Mill Road which stands along scenic White Clay Creek, was the inspiration for this poem by George Alfred Townsend (1841-1914). It was found in his book, "Poems of the Delaware Peninsula," during a 1976 Bicentennial survey of locally-produced work by the firm of Reese, Tomases & Ellick Inc. It was provided to The Newark Post by Bob Thomas, president of the Newark Historical Society and author of the weekly column Newark: Past and Present.

Council, alderman at odds

Newark Alderman Vance Funk and City Council are at odds over a proposed change in the operation of the city court.

Funk, the city's alderman since 1975, wrote council to ask members to consider changing an ordinance which limits the number of times an alternate can serve in place of the formally designated alderman.

He cited a growing law practice which makes it difficult for him to handle alderman's duties on the same scale as in past years.

Currently, a city ordinance states that an alternate can appear no more than 30 days in one calendar year and no more than 15 days consecutively.

Funk asked council in a letter written about two weeks ago to allow him to sit 60 percent of the time, with current alternate Richard Franta presiding the remaining 40 percent of the time.

Council considered Funk's request in executive session during its regular meeting Monday night. After 45 minutes behind closed doors, council emerged and voted to reject Funk's request.

Mayor William Redd and Councilman Orville Clark were in favor of altering the ordinance to comply with Funk's request, while Councilmen Olan Thomas, Louise Brothers and John Suchanec voted against the proposal.

Funk said Tuesday morning that he was "totally shocked to find that they had discussed this without talking to me."

"The truth is," he said, "I'm not very happy right now."

Funk said he has three options. They are:

- To resign.
- To continue with the situation as it now stands.

- To change court hours to better fit his schedule, possibly moving one night session to Saturday morning.

Funk is not sure which direction to take. "I haven't had time to think about it," he said.

"I like the job," Funk added, "and I hope I'm doing a good job. I hope that's not the reason they acted the way they did."

"I hope we can work it out so I can do the job."

MADD founder to be honored in Newark

Candy Lightner, founder of Mothers Against Drunk Driving, has been selected to receive the Common Wealth Award of Distinguished Service for her contributions and dedication to drunk-driving reforms and highways safety.

She will receive a $16,000 cash award and a commemorative sculpture in ceremonies on Sunday, Feb. 2, at the University of Delaware.

The Common Wealth Awards, administered by Bank of Delaware, were established under the will of Ralph Hayes, a Coca-Cola Co. executive and director of Bank of Delaware and the New York Community Trust. Hayes died in 1977 at the age of 82.

The awards can be made annually to reward and encourage outstanding achievement in the fields of dramatic arts, government, invention, literature, mass communications, public service, science and sociology.

A panel of faculty from the University of Delaware constituted the nominating body for the first Common Wealth public service award.

In May 1980, Candy Lightner founded MADD and since that time has dedicated herself to maintaining a strong public and legislative voice on behalf of the victims of drunk drivers.

Starting at the statewide level in California, she urged government action to form a task force to find solutions to impaired driving. In 1980 and 1981, in Washington, D.C., Lightner asked President Ronald Reagan to establish a Blue Ribbon Commission on Drunk and Drugged Driving.

He did so in 1982 and appointed her to serve as a member. She was also appointed to the Board of Directors of the National Commission on Drunk Driving.

In addition, Lightner is a member of the Editorial Board of Abstracts and Reviews at the University of California, and serves of the Safety Committee of the National Sheriffs' Association.

Lightner has been honored repeatedly for her dedication to drunk driving reforms and highway safety. In 1982, the California Jaycees recognized her as the first woman of the state's "Five Outstanding Californians."

She has received the Jefferson Award by the American Institute for Public Service and the President's Volunteer Action Award.

She is the recipient of the Freedom Foundation's Individual Achievement Award.

Lightner also received the prestigious Black and Blue Award from the Thomas Jefferson University Hospital Emergency Medicine Society.

In 1985, Lightner was honored by Time magazine as one of "Seven Who Succeeded" in accomplishing an important mission.

Parking ban ends

by Neil Thomas

An experimental ban on late-night parking along Main Street is over.

Newark City Council voted unanimously Monday night to rescind a five-month-old ordinance which eliminated parking on Main Street between Tyre Avenue and Elkton Road from 11 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The ordinance was passed in September 1985 in an effort to eliminate loitering and reduce the number of cars parked or stopped along the street.

However, city officials agreed the ordinance had not had the desired effect.

In other action Monday, council:

- Approved a major subdivision of .683 acres at Cleveland Avenue and Kershaw Street for construction of a proposed nine-unit townhouse condominium to be called The Commons of Kershaw.

The land is owned and will be developed by local attorney Edward J. Sobolewski. He told council, "An investment such as this will improve the area."

Several councilmen expressed concern that the city's Board of Adjustments had granted the development numerous variances from normal zoning requirements. Councilman John Suchanec labeled it "major surgery."

The problem, Suchanec said, appears to be that the city's current zoning classifications do not sufficiently address such projects as that proposed by Sobolewski. He suggested that Newark might see increased demand for such townhouse condominium projects as more and more people seek smaller houses, and recommended that council consider a new classification to cover such development.

"Maybe we need a new zoning classification to address this kind of thing from a larger point of view," Suchanec said.

The vote to approve the Sobolewski subdivision was 5-1, with Olan Thomas the sole opponent.

- Approved first reading of a bill to rezone a 1.01 acre parcel near Haslet Park on Chestnut Hill Road from townhouse (RR) to limited business (BL).

Owner William D. Johnson plans to construct professional offices on the site.

The public hearing and final action will come Monday, Feb. 24.

- Tabled a proposed ordinance to regulate the use of satellite dishes. The powerful antennas have been the subject of court cases nation-wide, and there is great question as to the power of municipalities to control them through zoning codes.

- Approved 4.3 percent pay increase for non-union city employees. City Manager Peter Marshall was also given a 4.3 percent increase.

- Agreed to provide the League of Women Voters $1,000 to cover printing costs of the organization's new "This is Greater Newark" publication. The booklet is updated every two-three years, and LWV volunteers are working on the latest edition.

- Learned that a Statue of Liberty event proposed by city businessman Fred Garyantes will be held April 19-20. The two-day festival will feature a dance, a biathlon and a torch relay. Gov. Michael N. Castle will be chairman of the event, and Chrysler's Lee Iacocca will be honorary chairman.

- Heard a report concerning police action on noise violations around the city, in the Park Place, Southgate Gardens and Wharton apartments.

"I think it is very important that anti-social behavior in the city be penalized," said Mayor William Redd. "This is not fun and games. This is a means, we hope, to make Newark a more livable place for all our citizens."

CARRY THE CARING CARD.®

Corbit Goff, president of the Chestnut Hill Estates Civic Association, spends many an evening conducting association business on his kitchen telephone.

Corbit Goff

Chestnut Hill Estates Civic Association president understands importance of family, community

by Neil Thomas

Among the lessons Corbit Goff learned while growing up in the beautiful but rugged mountains of eastern Kentucky were the importance of family, community, humility and hard work. They are lessons which have helped shape his life.

It was family which first brought Goff to Newark, and family and community which prompted his entry into public service seven years ago as president of the Chestnut Hill Estates Civic Association.

It is the good old American work ethic which enables Goff to put in 40 hours a week on the Chrysler Corp. assembly line, and another 40 on the telephone or in the community for the CHECA.

And it is humility which keeps Goff from taking more credit for helping build what is today one of the state's model civic organizations.

"You can forget about my title," Goff said recently, seated in the neat kitchen from which he conducts much CHECA business, fielding 10-15 telephone calls each evening.

"The title doesn't mean anything. I'm no more important than anyone else in Chestnut Hill Estates. The important thing is that we all work for the same goal, and if you work for the same goal you can't go wrong."

"The first time this becomes a one-man show, it's time to padlock the door and call it quits because we'll have lost the purpose."

The Chestnut Hill Estates Civic Association had lost its purpose about a decade ago, shortly after Goff moved to the community from his native Pikeville, Ky. He had married his wife here while visiting an aunt, uncle and cousins during a stint in the service, and decided to make Newark his home.

The Goffs settled in Chestnut Hill Estates, which had been built in the 1950s and which had seen its civic association go through a typical ebb-and-flow of activity.

"Every so often civic associations go down," Goff said, and by 1979 Chestnut Hill Estates "had one by name only."

That year, after repeated problems with vandalism and assorted minor crimes, the pastor of Our Redeemer Lutheran Church in the development put out fliers to try to stir up interest in forming a new civic association.

"I went up to see what was going on," Goff said. "They decided to form an active civic association, and so I decided to take an active part in it."

"I lived there, our son was very small at the time and we planned to be there awhile. I thought, 'What better way to help your family than helping the community in which you live?'"

The first year was the hardest, Goff said, because the new officers "had to convince the people we were here to stay."

They did and they are. The CHECA started rebuilding slowly, but with a high-profile program — the crime-stopping Community Watch.

Later, the civic association began making use of drunk drivers sentenced to perform community service in local projects, and then began securing government funds for summer jobs for Chestnut Hill Estates youth.

Gradually, using creative common sense, the civic association began attracting residents to its meetings. One night, for instance, after residents expressed concerns about the juvenile justice system, CHECA invited two state judges to the organization's regular monthly meeting.

Today, public officials wait in line to address the 50-100 Chestnut Hill Estates residents who show up for meetings in Our Redeemer Lutheran Church the first Monday of each month. The CHECA boasts nearly 400 members of a total house count of 465.

So well-known is CHECA, in fact, that when the organization held ceremonies to swear in new officers last November, it attracted a Who's Who of local and state government brass. The oath of office was administered by a U.S. Senator, William V. Roth. "Chestnut Hill Estates has a reputation from one end of the state to the other for being an active community," Goff said, explaining the interest of so many luminaries.

"We have a very active governing board, a very active Community Watch coordinator and very active residents who show up — and speak up — at our meetings," he said. "When you have that, you have something."

The growing feeling of importance and pride among community members has a snowball effect, he added.

"You don't see run down houses here, and you know that if you have a junked car on the street, it's going to be gone because people take pride in their community."

"They see that the civic association tries to do something to better the community. They see their neighbors involved, so they get involved — it's like a chain reaction."

That chain reaction benefits the civic association officers in that they can call on nearly anyone in the community for help. "They're help is there, all we have to do is ask," Goff said. "The majority of people in here are carrying the burden themselves. The group as a whole gets the credit."

Despite the help, being president of CHECA means long hours and lots of meetings and telephone calls for Goff. But he doesn't mind.

"I've had more happy experiences in this than I've had bad. It's really a pleasure to work with people who appreciate each other," he said. "I do it because I like it."

And, in an age of bad news, Goff has found in his civic association work something very positive. "You can't tell me," he said, "that there's not a lot of good left in people."

Senators meet Reagan

ALEC session joins state, federal officials

Two Newark state senators — James Neal and John Arnold — met recently with President Ronald Reagan in Washington, D.C.

The meeting, during which the two Republicans were able to discuss key aspects of the administration's federal and state initiatives for 1986, was sponsored by the American Legislative Exchange Council.

Also during the trip to Washington, Neal met with Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth R. Dole and Secretary of Health and Human Services Otis Bowen, while Arnold met with Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger and Assistant Attorney General Richard Willard.

Based on his meetings, Neal said he expects the administration will begin seeking changes in social programs. He believes there will be an end to financial incentives which encourage people to remain on welfare rather than seeking jobs.

Neal said ALEC is a bipartisan organization with 2,000 members which seeks to make sure Americans get the most for their tax dollars and to make sure governmental programs do what they are supposed to do.

Driving snow made driving difficult during rush hour Monday night, but by Tuesday it was the extreme cold and icy roads which had Newarkers worried. Conditions caused the Christina School District to open one hour late.

Ott's Chapel on agenda

Newark site considered for National Register

Ott's Chapel near Newark will be considered for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places this week.

It will be among four Delaware properties discussed during a meeting of the Delaware Review Board Historic Preservation at 1 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30 at Buena Vista.

Ott's Chapel is located on Sandy

Brae Road and was built in 1871 by Stephen Ott, a local farmer. It served as a nondenominational place of worship.

Other properties to be considered for nomination are:

- The Portville Lighthouse, a six-story cypress tower constructed by the late Judge Edward R. Koch, a New York State Supreme Court justice, as a summer retreat in southwestern Sussex County.

• The Mispillion Lighthouse near Milford, the sole surviving wood frame lighthouse in the state.

• P.S. duPont School at 34th and Van Buren streets in Wilmington, the neo-Georgian structure hailed as the "flagship" of the state's educational system when it was built in 1934.

'Made in Delaware'

In a variation on the national "Made in the USA" promotion, members of the State of Delaware's museum staff are preparing an exhibit highlighting objects handmade or manufactured in the First State.

"Made in Delaware" will survey goods made during the years 1700 to 1969. State archives are being culled for native products and merchandise, and the public is also being asked to contribute.

"We are really eager to borrow objects from the public that were made after 1940," said Dominique Western of the Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs. "I would love to hear from individuals who own Delaware objects that they felt would contribute to the exhibit."

Western may be contacted by calling 1-736-5316, or by writing: Bureau of Museums and Historic Sites, Rose Cottage, 102 S. State St., Dover, Del. 19901.

Host families needed

Newark area families are invited to have an international experience without leaving their homes.

The American Field Service student exchange program is seeking host families in the area for the 1986-87 school year.

Families may host exchange students from one of 65 different countries.

Although host families need not be rich to participate, consideration should be given to the cost of bed and board for a high school student. The IRS does permit AFS host families to deduct $50 a month during the time the student lives with them.

Host families vary in size, age and income, and include two parents with children, single parent families, young parents, single people and older couples. AFS students also come from diverse backgrounds.

AFS provides host families with a local and regional system of support services, including a 24-hour hotline in case of emergency.

The organization provides the international transportation costs to bring foreign students to the United States, covers the students' medical costs and provides them monthly allowances.

Newark area families interested in participating as AFS hosts should contact Beverly Stoudt at 368-9354, Leann Still at 453-0362 or Leanna Williston at 737-1416.

UNIVERSITY

Haley to address U.D. grads

Author of "Roots" chosen commencement speaker

Alex Haley, the world-renowned author of "Roots" and "The Autobiography of Malcolm X," will speak at the University of Delaware's commencement exercises on Sunday, June 1.

The free public ceremony, beginning at 10 a.m. in Delaware Stadium on South College Avenue in Newark, will be held outdoors, rain or shine.

Haley was one of the top choices in a student poll of potential commencement speakers, and his name was included in a list of possible speakers submitted by university seniors.

After researching the maternal side of his family back 200 years and six generations, Haley determined that his fourth great grandfather was Kunta Kinte, who, as a youth in western Africa, was kidnapped in 1767 and brought to the United States as a slave.

The chronicle of his family and his search, "Roots," became a national bestseller. It has been translated into 37 languages and has sold more than 6 million hard-cover copies.

A television mini-series based on the book in January 1977 attracted more than 130 million viewers.

Haley's first book, "The Autobiography of Malcolm X," was selected among "The 10 Best American Books of the 1960's Decade" and is now required reading in many U.S. high schools and colleges.

His writing has won him two of America's foremost writing awards, the Pulitzer Prize and the National Book Award, and he has received 17 honorary academic degrees and more than 300 special recognitions.

His new book, entitled "Hennings" and scheduled to be published this year, is based on growing up in a small American town during the 1920s and 1930s.

Martin Best

Best example of troubadours

Martin Best, the noted British singer, lutenist and musicologist, will give a lecture and recital on the troubadour tradition at 8 p.m., Friday, Jan. 31, in Room 006 of the Kirkbride Lecture Hall on the University of Delaware campus in Newark.

Called "The Troubadour's World," the free public performance will survey the life and times of troubadours and minstrels, their social role and influence, and particularly their philosophy of love.

Best has received many awards for his work. He has been a visiting lecturer at numerous universities and has made more than 150 television appearances around the world, including on the BBC, Swedish TV, ABC Australia and NRK Oslo. He has recorded for Argo, EMI, Sonet, Nimbus and Hyperion.

In 1984, Best founded Musica Humana, an educational project dedicated to the performance of medieval and Renaissance words and music in a theatrical environment. The institute is based at Clenston Manor, Dorset, England, and at Regents College, London.

During his three-day visit to the University of Delaware, Best will offer a one-credit short course, "Music and Songs in Shakespeare," and will appear in several university Winter Session courses. He will also interview students who may be interested in enrolling at Musica Humana during August 1986.

Principal performers are junior Naomis Ballis of Wilmington as the innocent Shen Teh and the shrewd Shui Ta; freshman Brian Goldfarb of Newark as an unemployed filer and lover of Shen Teh; senior Rena Maerov of Wilmington as the pilot's mother; junior Scott F. Mason of Wilmington as a Setzuan water seller who first meets the gods; sophomore James Simpers of Newark as the village barber who tries to seduce Shen Teh; junior Patricia Lake of Wilmington as the angry property owner who tries to evict her; and, as the Chinese divinities, freshman Thomas Stetina of Wilmington, freshman Julie Krug of Jericho, N.Y., and freshman Katherine Burke of Wilmington.

The quality of music education is of serious concern to many people throughout the United States. Even though our local schools, the former Newark School District and present Christina School District, are leaders in the state of Delaware in music education, parents and others interested in the future of music are still concerned about possible cutbacks.

In other school districts around the nation serious cutbacks have already eroded progress which had been very slowly and painstakingly achieved.

A significant new endeavor is underway to increase public awareness and understanding of the importance of an education in music for every individual. The Foundation for the Advancement of Education in Music, a joint effort of the music teaching community and music industry, hopes to establish and maintain national support for a concept of music study emphasizing development of basic music skills and fundamental knowledge of music through regular, extended instruction and study.

To do this, the foundation will develop a coordinated network of all organizations and individuals which value serious music study and provide a mechanism for this network to combine its resources for the promotion of intensive study of music.

The shared mission of the foundation and its members is to increase the number of students pursuing music study, the time devoted to education in music, and the quality and intensity of music instruction in both institutional and private settings. To accomplish this, the foundation's program during the early years will focus on the development and distribution of promotional materials that establish and reinforce the concept of serious music study.

Music organizations and individuals concerned with education will be encouraged to join this cooperative enterprise and disseminate the message that the study of music has as much intellectual validity and content as science, language or history.

According to Laurie Barton, administrative associate at the new foundation, several factors contributed to the creation of the foundation. There are many outstanding music education programs across the country and a strong tradition of music study continues to exist throughout the American education system.

The foundation is committed to preserving these programs and supports the premise that an education in musical skills and knowledge should be available to all students, not only the gifted and talented. However, distinct warning signals have been sent to the music education community, manifested in the decline in enrollment and general quality of music education programs at the elementary and secondary school levels.

In addition, there is significant public concern about the overall quality of education. This situation presents a unique opportunity for the music education community to articulate the importance of music study as a part of everyone's education. The foundation will coordinate a strong, sustained effort to reverse these unfavorable trends.

The operational plan of the foundation, the target audiences it is using in its efforts, and how it will function are shown in the accompanying chart.

The foundation is obviously trying to bring as many resources as possible to bear in working

THE ARTS

by Phil Toman

with this opportunity for the advancement of study in musical education.

Barton pointed out that since March of 1984, a small task force composed of music education and music industry leaders has met to formulate a direction and plan that would serve to unite all who value music in a concerted effort to change public perception of the importance of music education. These discussions resulted in the establishment of the Foundation for the Advancement of Education in Music.

A generous grant from the National Association of Music Merchants provided funding for a six-month development period, now underway. The foundation will become fully operational on May 1, 1986.

Initially the Foundation for the Advancement of Education in Music will be located in Reston, Va., in space made available by the Music Educators National Conference.

I think that all of us who are interested in music and in any of the arts would do well to lend our complete support to the Foundation for the Advancement of Education in Music. It is assuring our children and our children's children of an important musical heritage.

Wildlife

Urban conservation

The New Castle Conservation District is offering Newark area residents an opportunity to purchase seedlings which can be used to attract wildlife to the home landscape.

The seedlings are being sold in packets of seven, at $4.95 per packet. The packets include white pine, mount ash, dogwood, tatarian honeysuckle, European cranberrybush viburnum and linden viburnum.

Most seedlings are 12-18 inches in height.

Plant packets will be available in April at the New Castle Conservation District office in Peoples Plaza on Del. 896 in Glasgow.

Residents who are interested in receiving packets can get an order form from the office by calling 834-3533 or writing: New Castle Conservation District, 6 Peoples Plaza, Newark, Del. 19702.

The seedling sale is part of the District's campaign to promote ways the urban landowner can become involved in conservation efforts. The plants often attract birds, butterflies and other beneficial forms of wildlife.

Computers

Goldey Beacom College

Goldey Beacom College, a private business college located in the Pike Creek Valley near Newark, is attempting to prepare students for immediate employment upon graduation by familiarizing them with computers.

In September, Goldey Beacom added a microcomputer laboratory to its existing arsenal of three computer and word processing laboratories.

College Provost Mohammad Ilyas has steadily built the computer and word processing learning resources and the college currently boasts computer educational facilities among the most up-to-date in the area.

In 1984, Goldey Beacom purchased an IBM 4361 mainframe computer, thereby expanding the learning environments of its students to include the following configurations — personal computers, a personal computer network, personal computers integrated with a mainframe, minicomputers, and a mainframe.

One Penn's Plaza completed

A dedication ceremony for Two Penn's Plaza, marking the completion of a major project for New Castle Corporate Commons, was held Jan. 14.

The $7.5-million office building is the first of a projected series of six to be built on a 22-acre site adjacent to the Citicorp Building.

In dedicating the new office building, New Castle County Executive Rita Justice said, "I am very pleased to welcome Penn's Plaza to Corporate Commons. As the first speculative office building in the Commons, it adds a new dimension to a focal point of the county's economic development efforts. I look forward to a long and beneficial association with John E. Healy and Sons and Commonwealth/McConnell as future projects unfold here."

Commonwealth/McConnell has been appointed to coordinate leasing activities for Two Penn's Plaza.

The concept of New Castle Corporate Commons as a major economic development partnership between public and private sectors originated in the administration of Richard T. Collins, former county executive. Progress was spurred by the formation of the New Castle County Economic Development Corporation.

The continued growth of the office park is now one of the major priorities of the Justice administration.

Approximately half of the 100,000 square-feet of office space is presently leased. The anchor tenant is Digital Equipment Corp. Major tenants include Shell Oil Co.

The completed building and the ones to follow are expected to meet the projected needs of out-of-state corporations, either relocating or expanding present operations in New Castle County. The Penn's Plaza complex will eventually offer 500,000 square-feet of leasable office space.

Construction on the four-story building began in March, 1985 and was completed on schedule.

Philly to host annual toy show

Kids from all ages are ready to move in on the Philadelphia Civic Center Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 8 and 9. The reason for this mass migration? In a word, toys. A very special variety of toys to be sure.

On those two days Greenberg's Great Train, Dollhouse and Toy Show will take over both floors of the huge building at 34th Street and Civic Center Boulevard.

The event will provide an opportunity to see a vast area covered with train layouts of all gauges. Lionel trains will operate both days on the large standard gauge layout looping through beautiful landscapes and doll houses. A new feature of the show this year will be a Z gauge layout, the smallest operating gauge available. There will be every gauge of train between.

Attendees have been promised an exhibit of the LGB gauge European model trains as well. The popular small N gauge will have its own operating layout, too.

One of the most interesting features of the Greenberg show is the number of people at each layout to answer questions and help solve problems. It's all included in the one admission price of $4, children free with adults.

If you find something you like, it's probably on sale at one of the many dealers who come to the show. There are all kinds of vendors with trains, books, railroadiana, collectibles, doll houses, miniatures and more.

Another special feature of local interest is the show's Fallon Street Elevated Railway where Philadelphia trolleys run on a sophisticated layout.

If you have ever been interested in building a doll house, designers and builders will be on hand with lots of answers to lots of questions.

When you get tired, the Civic Center is a colossus of exhibit space, there are even movies for you to enjoy so you don't waste a moment.

The show runs Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 8 and 9 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

OPINION

POSTSCRIPT

by Neil Thomas

Delaware student newspaper, The Review, and a former editor of the Post — as spoken during a recent meeting of the Newark Historical Society.

"The story of the early Newark Post is largely a story of Everett C. Johnson. The Post was a small town weekly newspaper, issued each Wednesday, devoted to the news of the Newark area: personalities, humorous incidents, minor tragedies, news of Delaware College, and after 1921, news of the University of Delaware, news of the local merchants, and local civics.

"There was very little about the world outside of Newark — that was covered by the Wilmington and Philadelphia dailies. (Johnson) was well aware that there are no shortcuts to honesty or to excellence in publishing a newspaper, in first-class printing, or in upright living. For, although most of his life he was physically frail, he was strong intellectually and spiritually. So far as I know, his newspaper never published a slanted or dishonest news story. That, in itself distinguishes the Newark Post under Everett C. Johnson.

"Not many newspapers may be able to make the same claim of attaining to such excellence. Certainly one of his competitors, The Delaware Ledger, would not have been apt to claim such distinction, for it was politically devoted almost solely to the interests of an ambitious individual. And its motto was the somewhat exaggerated one of 'We Cover Delaware Like the Dew,' a statement some cynics translated as, 'They are all wet.'"

Sadly, Johnson, the driving force behind the Post for its first sixteen years, died on Feb. 20, 1926.

The current staff of The Newark Post is pleased to be serving the community in the tradition established by our predecessors — particularly the founder, Mr. Johnson — on this, the newspaper's 75th birthday.

As I got up this morning, the thought dredges were hard at work, sifting through the muck of the mind and stirring up document memories.

For some reason, they took me back to my elementary school days when space travel was new and alive and exciting. I recalled sitting in front of the television watching countdowns of the colorfully-named missions — Mercury, Apollo and Gemini.

How strange, I thought, that launches are so commonplace today that they go virtually unnoticed.

The thought dredges stopped work as quickly as they had started, and my mind snapped back to more mundane things like hoping my car would start and worrying about icy roads.

At work in our Elkton, Md. plant, I dove into the headlong deadline dash to get The Newark Post out on time.

Gradually I began to take notice of people huddled together, talking about something. A disaster? I heard one reporter say that no one had survived. Terrorists, I assumed. Another attack on some airplane in some Mediterranean country.

Then I heard the terrible news — the space shuttle had gone down in flames. Aboard was Christa McAuliffe, the teacher from New Hampshire who had been selected from among thousands of educators to make the flight.

Over the past few months, while working in Owensboro, Ky. and Cecil County, Md., I had interviewed about 20 teachers who had applied for the program. All were terribly excited about the opportunity. It was to be something special, and I had been caught up in the whole idea.

McAuliffe, too, was extremely excited. So were her husband and family. So were her students. All of which makes it even more difficult to cope with, much less seek to understand such a horrible loss.

There is here a very real and painful sense of loss.

Perhaps there is something — however small — we can do. The State Department of Public Instruction and Gov. Michael N. Castle had urged Delawareans to turn on their porch lights for the duration of McAuliffe's flight to signify their support for education.

I think we should go ahead with that suggestion and turn on our lights both as a tribute to McAuliffe and her fallen flight mates, and to show our support for the educational process to which she dedicated her life.

The Newark Post celebrated an important anniversary Sunday — its 75th birthday!

The very first issue of The Newark Post came off the press of founder Everett C. Johnson on Wednesday, Jan. 26, 1910.

Seventy-six years later Johnson's small-town newspaper survives, granted after a great many changes in both appearance and name.

For a look at those early years, I will turn to the words of Cornelius Tighman — a former editor of the University of

Fire escape plan

Can a fire happen in your home? Will you know what to do if it does? The Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. of Newark says these are important questions to answer. Your life may depend on it.

Most people believe a fire won't happen to them and they don't plan ahead. Since fires usually give only three to four minutes to escape safely, not knowing what to do can be deadly. Prepare a Home Fire Escape Plan and have the entire family practice it.

• Plan two ways out of every room. Your normal exit may be blocked.

• Test emergency exits. Make sure you can open windows and remove screens and storm windows from inside.

• Provide folding escape ladders from second story windows. Make them out of light rope or purchase metal ladders made for escape.

• Practice using emergency exits in the dark. Keep a flashlight next to every bed. Most fatal home fires start at night, while we are asleep and least likely to respond quickly.

• Install and maintain smoke detectors on every level of your home. Test them monthly and change batteries yearly.

• Teach the family to stay low in smoke to avoid poisonous gases. Crawl to exits. Eight out of ten fire deaths are due to smoke inhalation.

• Arrange a meeting place outside the home. Make sure everyone knows to get out quickly and go to the meeting place.

Newark nips 'Penn

May 'slam' sparks Yellowjacket spurt

by Bruce Johnson

Baseball and football scouts are already making mass pilgrimages to Newark to witness first-hand the talents of Newark High School's Derrick May. But area innkeepers may soon be adding basketball scouts to their room reservation lists if May continues to perform as he did last Friday night against William Penn.

May scored 17 points against the Colonials, including the winning basket and an inspirational slam dunk that sparked the 'Jackets to a 63-61 Blue Hen Conference victory.

May's late game dramatics were set up after the Colonials had cut the 'Jacket lead to one, 60-59, on Bruce Dawson's tip-in.

Then, with 37 seconds left in the game, Newark head coach Jim Doody ordered the 'Jackets into their game delay offense. With time running out, Newark's Abdul Bey (12 points) dribbled over to the right half of the court where he was momentarily trapped by the swarming Colonial defense. Somehow he dished the ball off to May, who pivoted towards the basket and simultaneously fired a shot the instant he was deliberately fouled.

Off balance, May's strength guided the 15-foot shot off the glass to seal the victory. With ten seconds remaining, May completed the three point play.

William Penn capped the scoring with an uncontested last second lay-up.

"I knew they were going to foul me," said the 6'4" May with a smile. "So when I went up and felt contact, I just threw it up."

But after the game, it wasn't May's last second shot that coaches and players were talking about, but rather the importance of his third quarter slam dunk.

"I think Derrick's dunk really excited everyone," said Doody. "It got the team up and brought us up on our toes defensively."

"It turned the game around," said Bey of his teammate's dunk. "It really excited us. He's missed a few earlier in the year but we just kept telling him to keep trying and we knew he'd get it."

May's dunk occurred at the 3:01 mark of the third period and gave the 'Jackets a six-point lead. May had darted down the court ahead

Vikings have heart

Christiana 'work horses' overpower Glasgow

by Todd Hickey

Christiana High School's basketball team may be known for its quick thoroughbreds, but it was the inside work-horses who enabled the Vikings to down cross-town rival Glasgow 98-81 in Blue Hen Conference Flight A action Friday night.

"We're quick, but we thought Glasgow might be a little quicker," said Christiana head coach Ron Hollis. "On the other hand, we felt we had a size advantage over Glasgow, so we worked on getting the ball inside to Moise (Pringle, the Vikings' star forward) and Aaron (Mack, the Vikings' center.)"

Hollis' game plan proved more than the Dragons could handle. Glasgow remained relatively even with Christiana in the first quarter, and time expired with the Vikings clinging to a scant 19-17 lead.

But when Christiana began exerting massive inside pressure in the second quarter, the troubles began. Mack ravaged the Dragon interior, scoring nine of his 20 points in the second quarter alone.

Mack's partner on the inside, Pringle, tallied six of his 16, and the Vikings went to the lockerroom at the half with a comfortable 47-37 lead.

"We played well the first quarter, because they didn't push the inside that much," said Glasgow head coach Scott Cressman. "But that second quarter, they really hurt us there. They pushed the ball inside, and their size advantage killed us."

Although Christiana wasn't as aggressive towards the inside in the second half, the damage was done. Yet the determined Dragons

Jazzercise Dragons wrestle with workout

by Bruce Johnson

It must have started out as a quiet evening at home for Glasgow High School wrestling coach Ray Higgins and his wife, pleasantly relaxing and chatting about the day's events. But when the topic swung to Jazzercise, Higgins had little idea of what the next few minutes of conversation would mean for him and his Dragon squad.

"My wife goes to Jazzercise and she is always talking about how great it is," said Higgins. "She told me that she didn't think the wrestlers could last through the 55-minute session. I just laughed and said, 'Surely they can do anything you can do.' So, she challenged me."

Higgins asked a local Jazzercise instructor to give a demonstration to his less-than-enthusiastic wrestlers. That was three years ago and Jazzercise instructor Deanie Padham is still being invited back.

"I really didn't want to do it at first," said Dragon wrestler Keith Truitt after a session Friday. "I thought it was dumb but I was really surprised. It really got me going out there and I was really hurting, in particular my shoulders and the backs of my legs."

"I used to think this was a girl's thing but it's really strenuous," said Jimmy Marvel. "Some of the exercises are a little weird and I don't have too much rhythm, but it was a good workout and it was fun. At the end I got a little too tired."

Jazzercise is described as a total fitness program that employs dance movement choreographed to music.

"Mr. Higgins is really ahead of his time," said the attractive Padham, wiping perspiration from her brow. "This is really wonderful for the kids, and I don't know of any other schools that are doing it. You hear about professional athletes who take ballet. Well, they do it to build their co-ordination and flexibility, and that's what we're doing here."

The Glasgow High Jazzercise program, which now includes the girls swim team, is organized by student-wrestler Andy Nich.

"She came the first time and everyone seemed to enjoy it so we decided to invite her back," said Nich. "We had everyone donate a dollar apiece, for those who could afford it, and we hope to bring her back again."

With a majority of the boys jockeying for position in the front row, the session began with everyone a bit shy and apprehensive. But with familiar music playing in the background, and with some encouragement from Padham, the students soon forgot their inhibitions and started enjoying themselves.

But about the 40-minute mark, the tell tale signs of exhaustion could be seen on even the best conditioned athletes. They were still smiling, but it was mixed with sweat and momentary looks of fatigue.

"I'm tongue tied," said Jackie Grant, trying to catch her breath. "It was tough. She made you work and sweat, but she made you get into it, which was fun."

As the class wandered off, weary but with happy smiles, all agreed it was a worthwhile 55 minutes.

"Some of the wrestlers couldn't do it," said Higgins, who admitted he was glad he wasn't out there. "But you know wrestlers, no matter how much pain they're in, they won't admit it."

Old friends among state's top wrestlers

Brandon Little, Tom Bockius recall childhood bouts

by Bruce Johnson

Years ago as neighborhood friends, Brandon Little and Tom Bockius would playfully wrestle with each other. Not understanding the fundamentals of the sport but simply enjoying the competitive nature of the ancient activity, neither realized that one day they would be considered the top wrestlers in their respective weight classes.

Although they have gone their separate ways Little (187 pounds) opted for a Catholic education at St. Mark's High School and became the most outstanding soccer player in the state, while Bockius (heavyweight) attended Newark High School, where his gridiron accomplishments earned him the reputation as the best lineman in the state — the two have remained friends.

Last Saturday at St. Mark's, they were re-united for the last time in dual meet high school wrestling competition. Both gained easy victories as St. Mark's defeated Newark 42-25.

"We didn't really wrestle because we didn't know what we were doing," said Little, who added that he is glad he doesn't have to wrestle Bockius today. "We were just kids, you know, goofing around and playing games."

"He lives right around the corner from me on the same block," said Bockius with a twinkle in his eye that recalled childhood memories. "We really weren't wrestling in the true sense of what we do here, but we'd mess around. We'd go down to the pool and play and stuff like that."

What started out as play has turned into serious business, in particular for opponents who have to face the dynamic duo. Both have recorded impressive records for the 1985-86 season, with Little at 16-2 with two pins and 14 technical falls, and Bockius at 16-0 with two defaults and 14 pins.

On Saturday, both won impressively. Little gained a technical fall in the second round over Andy Blank, and Bockius pinned Joe Rago just 44 seconds into the first period.

In other matches, Newark took an early 19-6 lead on the wrestling technique of Tyler Tomashek (100 pounds, who recorded a major decision over John Morneau), Kurt Howell (121, who ousted Dale Cover in the second round on a technical decision) and Brett Tomashek (who held off Doug Croll 11-8 in the most exciting match of the day).

But the heart of the St. Mark's line up is its most talented part, and the Spartans were able to win the next six matches to seal the victory. John McColgan (147) recorded a pin while Joe Anderson (134), Pat Maguire (140), T.J. Aube (157), Chris Shakespeare (187) and Little all recorded technical decisions.

"We knew they (Newark) had the potential to do that (jump out to an early lead)," said Spartan head coach Steve Bastianelli. "But we didn't think they would get that far ahead. Overall, I'm fairly pleased with the victory, especially when you consider that we had people move up in weights (Anderson, Maguire and Croll). And T.J. Aube looked fantastic out there, and he's a replacement."

Earlier in the week, St. Mark's defeated St. James 45-17 but neither the Spartan wrestler's nor the coaching staff were pleased with the performances.

Bastianelli implemented the more strenuous workouts to prove that conditioning is psychological as well as physical.

Earlier in the week, Newark defeated McKean 30-27 in a Blue Hen Conference match. Chris Nye (114), Brett Tomashek (128), Kurt Howell (134), Gabe Bannowski (187) and Bockius (heavyweight) all recorded victories for the 'Jackets. Newark's record is 3-1 in conference and 3-3 overall.

In other action this week, Glasgow gained a 32-21 victory over Delcastle.

Christiana was upended 41-18 by A.I. duPont but defeated Brandywine 31-25.

Newark's Tom Bockius works for a first period pin.

'Penn press a 'nightmare'

Newark win streak is snapped

by Bruce Johnson

For the Newark High School girls' basketball team, it must have seemed like a recurring nightmare.

Three weeks had elapsed since Delcastle had stunned the Yellowjackets by 29 points, primarily on the strength of the Cougar full-court press. But since that game, the 'Jackets had enjoyed the pleasant dreams of a five-game win streak.

Friday, however, the 'Jackets were rudely awakened when they collided head first with the William Penn juggernaut. Newark was outshot 70-30 in what sometimes appeared to be a repeat of the Delcastle game.

"They're the number one team in the state and they played like it today," said Newark head coach John Holland of the Colonials. "I thought our kids played well today at times, we just made some mistakes that cost us. I'm still confident and I'll never sell this team down the road. It's a long season and we're bound to stumble, but we'll pick it up and go forward."

Newark started off strong in the first quarter, taking the lead 8-6 at the four minute mark when Beth Brockell (13 rebounds) blocked a shot and fired the loose ball out to the streaking Tawana Williams (eight points). Williams had raced downcourt ahead of the Colonials for the easy basket.

The lead was shortlived as the Colonials bounced back to score the next 12 points. They never relinquished the lead after that outburst.

"In the first half it was the kind of game we wanted to play," said Holland. "We slowed it down. But the kids, they're young and it's hard to know when to run and when not to. That comes with experience. As we progress, they'll learn."

In the second half, the 'Jackets succumbed to the Colonial full-court and half-court pressure defenses. As in the Delcastle game, the experienced William Penn players proved too quick for the 'Jackets, who turned the ball over 43 times.

"It's common knowledge that a team with good guards will have success against us," said Holland. "But every team can't do what William Penn and Delcastle have done to us. No one has been able to upset us like they have and that tells you something right there."

"The 'Jackets also suffered from a poor afternoon of shooting. While basketballs seemed to sail in for the Colonials, 'Jacket attempts seemed unable to unlock the combination of the iron basket."

"We just couldn't get it in," said Holland. "There was a lid on that basket today but the kids kept hustling and they gave it all they had and that's important. We'll bounce back and get another shot at them."

Earlier in the week, the 'Jackets disposed of neighborhood rival Christiana 50-13. Williams paced the 'Jackets with 16 points while teammate Brockell added seven points, 15 rebounds and nine block shots. The 'Jackets finished the week with a 5-2 record in Blue Hen Conference Flight A and are 10-3 overall.

Glasgow also defeated Christiana, 52-23, to boost its record 3-4 in conference play and 5-7 overall. Jennifer Fox paced the Dragons with 19 points while teammate Kelly Kane contributed 14 points. Earlier in the week, the Dragons bested Concord 45-38 on the strength of Fox's 18 points.

St. Mark's played only once this week, losing to Archmere 52-47 in an important Catholic Conference match-up. The Spartans had a four-point halftime lead but were unable to hold off a late game rally by the Auks. Lois Bukowski paced the Spartans (1-1, 7-5) with a game high 23 points.

VIKINGS/ from 1b

would not die, narrowing the margin to 71-67 with approximately five minutes left in the game.

But it was not to be, for inspired offensive play by Christians forward David Chittum (30 of his game-high 30 points came in the second half), Pringle, Mack, and guards Dwight Roy and Andre Mills (15 points each on the night) enabled the Vikings to widen their lead to 11 points, 80-69, with 3:25 remaining.

Less than a minute later, though, Glasgow was knocking on the door again, pulling within eight. This time, however, a bench technical put the game out of reach.

Just as Christians' inside game was instrumental in the victory, so was the Viking defense. To attack Glasgow's speed, Christians "dropped back in the zone," said Hollis. "We'd let them shoot outside, but we didn't want them inside."

Cressman echoed Hollis' comments. "We just didn't do a real good job inside offensively."

Barred from the inside, the Dragons performed some superb outside shooting. "They must have been 75 percent from the 14-18 foot range," said Hollis concerning Glasgow's shooters. "That's great for high school." Leading the Dragons were forward Mike Mills (23 points), guard Derrick Duncan (21 points), forward Keith Leatherbury (16 points), and guard Bryant Wright (13 points).

But besides the inside attack and good defense, there was something intangible that contributed to Christians' victory. After the game, David Chittum was asked how he was able to have so much offensive success against Glasgow. He was quiet for a moment, looking around at his teammates gathered in a semi-circle outside the lockerroom. Then, with no signal at all, each and every Christian player raised his hand and pointed to his heart.

With the win, Christians rose to 5-2 in Flight A, 10-3 overall. Glasgow dropped to 1-6, 3-8.

In other action this week, Christians upended Newark 63-62 to give the Jackets their first Flight

A loss this season. Christians' Dwight Roy made a last second lay-up to seal the dramatic victory.

Aaron Mack paced the Vikings with 21 points and ten rebounds while teammate David Chittum poured in 20 points, with ten coming in the fourth quarter.

St. Mark's continued its winning ways, leading to their eventual showdown with Salem. The Spartans bested Avon Grove, Pa. 62-46 and Catholic Conference foe Archmere 66-56 to boost their record to 3-1. Scott Dyer and John Burton paced the Spartans in both games, with Burton scoring 41 points and Dyer adding 34 points in the two contests.

Against the Aukes, Scott Northey contributed 34 points.

of the Colonials after a turnover. Robert Haman spotted May under the basket, and May went high over a sprawling Colonial defender and slammed the ball home.

"I was just concentrating on catching it and putting it in the hole," said May of his first dunk this year. "All day long my teammates were telling me I was going to get one tonight (Friday), and it really got me excited."

The game began cautiously as each team concentrated on establishing a defensive tempo.

Newark shot poorly but played solid defense and took an 8-7 first quarter lead.

In the second quarter, both teams erupted with the up-tempo basketball game that everyone expected. The lead changed hands ten times in the quarter, with the Jackets finally taking a slim 23-25 halftime lead.

Donnie Wright paced the Jackets in the quarter with a series of long jumpers, scoring ten of his 16 points.

Newark had several breakdowns on defense, allowing the Colonials to drive the middle and the Jacket full-court press did not cause a single turnover.

In the second half, the Jackets abandoned their full court pressure and jumped out to a seven point lead and never trailed again in the game. Abdul Bey played one of his better halves of the season.

After a poor first half, the senior guard found himself in an unfamiliar place.

"I just wanted him to relax," said Doody of his temporary "benching" of Bey. "He missed a few shots early and the situation was calling him not to force any shots. I just wanted to give him some time to relax and have some time to think about what he wanted to do out there. He played a great second half."

Bey took charge of the Jacket offense, scoring eight points in the half and made several key passes that had the Jacket faithful cheering their approval.

"It was a good move," said Bey of Doody's decision to sit him down. "I wasn't shooting well and it gave me some time to think. He told me to go out and play a more complete game. Things opened up and I was able to penetrate."

With the win, the Jackets improved their conference record to 6-1 in Flight A and 9-4 overall.

Racing

Delaware Park

The Delaware Thoroughbred Racing Commission has approved a 100-day meet for Delaware Park race course. The meet will run from April 12 through Sept. 7.

The new dates reflect an earlier opening and closing for the Stanton track, which held a 99-day meeting last year from April 27 through Oct. 14.

"The track will open with a five day a week racing schedule for the first half of the meet," according to General Manager John E. Mooney. "Then we will reduce the schedule to four days a week after the July 4th holiday, and continue with that plan throughout the remainder of the meet."

The five day a week schedule, beginning opening day and continuing through July 6, will consist of racing Wednesday through Sunday. The dark days will be Monday and Tuesday.

The four day a week format, which will begin July 9 and run through Sept. 7, will schedule racing on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The track will be dark on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

Racing will also be conducted on Monday, May 26 (Memorial Day) and Monday, Sept. 1 (Labor Day).

A 1:30 p.m. post time will be in effect throughout the meet.

Delaware Park closed the 1985 meet with handle up 13.1 percent and attendance up 10.1 percent. The average handle was $522,134 and the average attendance 4,229 for the 99-day meet.

One of the bits of fallout from America's enthrallment with science is our fascination with facts, and accurate ones at that.

A while ago I read that one of the things people need to do to evolve into higher, more contented beings is to be less involved with the minute, factual, rigid details of life and to be more involved with the ebb and flow of feelings. I think the author was trying to say that we need to make sure that we consider the entire picture, not just focus on the interesting details in the corners.

Facts are like those interesting details. We spend so much time thinking about them and checking them that we neglect to notice what else is going on in the world.

The article made me aware that I, indeed, was a "factoholic." Using modern psychiatric parlance, I am now a newly-recovering factoholic. In the bad old days, I collected facts the way the New York Times collected typos. Did you know that a shark has enough hydrochloric acid in its belly to dissolve a horseshoe? Did you know that the deepest post office in the world is in the bottom of a salt mine in Poland?

Factoholics can't stop there. They need more. So, a shark can dissolve a horseshoe? Wouldn't it rather dissolve a horse? And why can't the miners mail the letters before they begin work for the day?

In the heyday of my factoholism, I found myself following facts where I didn't want to go. I learned things that I wasn't interested in and didn't need to know. But I was the belle of the Trivial Pursuit Ball!

I realized that I had gotten so enveloped in facts that I had lost touch with the reality that makes the world function. Thus, I am aiming for factophobia. It is hard, but I know I have to change. For starters, I stay away from the Guinness Book of Records, and I have forbidden myself to read the fillers in the New York Times. (For those who can't shake the habit, those fillers contain the most interesting, and possibly most useless, facts in the world.)

Now that I am recovering, I realize that an awful lot of the world has gotten along without facts for generations. And I might add, they have gotten along quite nicely. There are tribes in New Guinea and in the Amazonian jungle who have survived and even thrived without knowing that Halley's Comet comes every 76 years. People all over the world are managing quite well, thank you very much, without understanding either plate tectonics or DNA.

Recognizing that these people could live without facts was a big step, but an even bigger realization was just around the corner — the concept of incorrect and inaccurate facts. Until almost yesterday, I believed that the Fact God would strike people senseless with thunderbolts if they didn't have their facts straight.

Was I wrong? I have a friend who has lived a rich and full life. She has raised two nice children, never had an automobile accident, won prizes for her African violets, and has never been struck by lightning or thunderbolts, yet she thinks that Washington Irving was George Washington's uncle.

So, who says facts are necessary. Not I anymore. I took a major step in my non-factual existence around Thanksgiving as a workcrew began to replace the electric wires in our neighborhood. When a preschooler wondered what they were doing, I said, brash and bold as you please, "Well, Joey, it's like this. The electricity was

by Dorothy Hall

getting stale. If they don't replace the wires, the electricity will be so weak that the colored lights won't shine brightly on your Christmas tree. Now we're going to get fresh, clean electricity.

so your tree will positively glisten." Joey thought that over and allowed that it made good sense. Neither of us, so far, have been hit by lightning — stale or fresh.

LIFE FILE

Exercise

Prenatal workouts

Prenatal exercise classes will be offered through spring by the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation.

Classes will meet 7-8 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Downes Elementary School on Casho Mill Road. The fee is $15 for city residents and $17 for non-residents.

Participants must register at the Department office in the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkhon Rd. For information, call 366-7060.

Kids

Dental health

In celebration of National Children's Dental Health Month, the office of Dr. Jerome C. Kayatta will be inviting young Newark area children to visit for a hands-on demonstration of dental instruments and a fun ride in a dental chair.

The aim is to familiarize children with a dentist's office in a positive way.

Tours will be available from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays and Fridays. For information, call Linda Knight at 737-6761.

 PUBLIC BUILDING, WILMINGTON, DELAWARE, 19801

J.D. K-13, Page 303 No. 371 Term June 1985 (Letter) NOTICE OF EXECUTION (Certified Mail Return Receipt Requested) SELMA GOLDSTEIN Plaintiff, GERTHILDE TILLMAN and NELSON CHAMBERS Defendants TO: Gertrude Tillman, 719 Church Street, Wilmington, DE 19801.

(1) Judgment-creditor has requested the Superior Court to issue a Writ of Execution against you based on the confessed judgment entered on December 13, 1985.

(2) The judgment-creditor is claiming you owe $20,000.00 plus accrued interest of $1,500.00 to the date of judgment plus interest at the legal rate from the date of judgment plus attorney's fees of $750.00 plus costs.

(3) The judgment-creditor alleges that you waived your rights to the notice and hearing prior to the entry of judgment against you.

(4) The entry of the Court judgment has resulted in a lien against all your real estate and the means whereby the Sheriff, with the Writ of Execution which has been requested, can levy against your personal property and real estate for credit debt.

(5) A Writ of Execution can be used to attach wages in appropriate cases.

(6) You may appear in the Superior Court, Public Building, Wilmington, Delaware, Friday, February 14, 1986 at 2:00 P.M. at which time you may object to judgment having been entered and/or to the issuance of the execution process. If you object the Court will commence the procedure for a hearing. At said hearing the judgment-creditor will be required to prove that you effectively waived your right to notice and hearing prior to the entry of judgment and you may raise any appropriate defense.

(7) You are not required to appear but if you fail to do so, the Writ of Execution sought by the judgment-creditor, or other subsequent writ will be issued whereby the Sheriff could attach your wages in appropriate cases, or seize your personal property and real estate and ultimately sell them for credit against the debt.

(8) If you have any questions about these matters, you should consult a lawyer immediately. Yours truly, Margo Ewing Bane, Prothonotary.
