The Zeta Sigma Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity has been very active on the Delaware campus since its organization in 1948.

The fraternity is devoted to the service of the student body, the youth and community, members of the group, and the nation. This year it has completed many projects of benefit to these four groups.

Alpha Phi Omega served the school by operating a used book exchange for all students, by helping with the Freshmen Orientation Program, by acting as guides for tours, and by serving as ushers for departments and organizations that requested help.

Alpha Zeta, the honorary agriculture fraternity, has been quite active since it was organized here at Delaware in 1949. Under the leadership of Chancellor Roscoe Exley, this group this year has performed many worthwhile functions and has donated its services wherever they were needed. It is the goal of Alpha Zeta to foster high standards of scholarship, character, and leadership and to promote fellowship among its members. The fraternity promotes the field of agriculture in every way possible and tries to render service to agriculture students and to the School of Agriculture itself.

This year, Alpha Zeta served as guides in the University Open House Program at Agricultural Hall, and also served luncheon to visitors during Farm and Home Week. This spring the fraternity held its annual banquet-dance, which will highlight its social calendar.

Omicron Delta Kappa is a national leadership honor society for men. The Beta Sigma Circle at the University was established in 1949.

Membership in the society is granted by election on the basis of character, leadership, scholarship, service in campus life, and consecration to democratic ideals.

The three-fold purpose of this society is to honor men who are outstanding in collegiate activities; to bring together members of the faculty and student body on a basis of mutual understanding and interest; and, through its members, to mold sentiment on questions of intercollegiate interest.

Bi-monthly meetings of the society are held to further this program.

PHI KAPPA PHI

Phi Kappa Phi, recently organized on the University of Delaware campus is a group constituted of the outstanding members of the Junior and Senior classes. Candidates for initiation into this Greek honor society are picked from the upper percentages of all of the various schools in the University. Their purpose is to provide recognition for the more adept students, provide incentive for all students and to promote good scholarship in general.

The social highlight each year is the Military Ball, sponsored by our organization. At this event the queen of the Ball is crowned as honorary Cadet Colonel. Other social events include smokers, dinner-dances, field trips and picnics.

Members of Scabbard and Blade assume the responsibility of raising and lowering the campus flag each day school is in session.

Tassel, the senior women's honorary society, was founded on this campus in the spring of 1950, with the aim of giving recognition to senior women of outstanding leadership, worthy scholarship and distinguished service to the University. At present, Tassel, a local society, is in the process of petitioning for membership to Mortar Board, the national organization. This year Tassel members were hostesses for an official visit by a member of the Mortar Board Council. Other activities carried out by this year's group include a chrysanthemum sale on Homecoming Day, listening parties during away football games, assisting with University Conferences and Open House, honoring freshmen Dean's List students at a tea, sponsoring a leadership conference, as well as other services to the University and community. Tassel hopes to be of service to the University, and to inspire women students to strive for membership in the organization by raising their scholastic aims.

Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering honor society, was founded to mark those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduates in engineering. The society also aims to foster a spirit of liberal culture in the engineering colleges of America. To be eligible, an undergraduate must be in the top eighth of the engineering class in his junior year or in the top fifth in his senior year. Careful consideration is also given to the number of campus activities engaged in. On the national scale, the major tangible objective of the society is its Fellowship Program for graduate students.

The Interfraternity Council at the University of Delaware exists with a twofold purpose: first, to stimulate interaction between the various fraternities on campus, promoting brotherhood among individual houses as well as amongst the brothers themselves in any one house; secondly, to activate worthwhile and necessary intercourse between fraternities and the school generally, the administration particularly. Noteworthy in their endeavor to improve fraternity-school relations are the articles published in the Review every year before rushing in an effort to acquaint the prospective rushees with the houses on campus and with their policies. This practice was initiated by the I.F.C.

On the lighter side of life, the I.F.C. holds its annual weekend each fall and it has become one of the high spots in every fraternity man's social calendar. Intramural sports, supervised by the I.F.C., provide an outlet for excess energy and bear all the benefits of competitive athletics. The I.F.C. playbill gives ample opportunity for fraternity men to display latent theatrical ability.

With the growth of the University, new fraternities will be added and old ones enlarged. The I.F.C. plans to expand correspondingly.

JUNIOR COUNSELORS

SEATED: F. Helms, K. Jester, J. Rodgers, J. Dick. SECOND ROW: E. Zippe, B. Lane, G. Katz, D. Messick, R. Prettyman, D. Tatman, R. Johnson, J. Maybee. THIRD ROW: J. West, S. Ezrailson, E. Riley, J. It is the job of the Men Junior Counselors to assist freshmen and transfer men in their first year of college life. Each counselor is assigned approximately ten students who have similar fields of study. Junior Counselors are selected in the spring, and are trained at various meetings during the spring semester. In the summer, each counselor writes welcoming letters to his group. During freshman orientation period, the Men Counselors are on the campus to help the new students get adjusted to their new way of life. Throughout the year, including the annual Parents Conference, the counselors are on hand to help new students with their problems.

Women junior counselors help entering students gain direction and meaning from their careers at the University.

They are selected on the basis of academic competence, knowledge of the University, interest in the program, leadership potential, and willingness to help new students.

Each junior counselor is assigned approximately ten counselees with whom she works in both group and individual situations. Serving as a liaison between the administration and the new student, the junior counselors cooperate with both faculty advisors and professional counselors and assist at various university functions.

During the summer, counselors and counselees get together informally to ask and answer questions before school begins.

STUDENT COURT

The Student Court at the University of Delaware was conceived and brought into being by Ron Nowland in the fall of 1957. Its original purpose was to handle student misdemeanors of a nature less serious than those which would require the consideration of the administrative body of the school and to work along with the deans and boards on greater problems of discipline, interjecting the opinions of students into these. Although the past year has been fairly successful in these aspects, the Student Court is looking forward to fulfilling its aims and goals to a fuller capacity as the organization matures and becomes more recognized. Although its youthfulness is a strike against it, we believe the students of Delaware can expect it to be well integrated and highly respected as it establishes itself.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

The main function of the Finance Committee is to prepare the S.G.A. budget for the fiscal year. Since this involves the allocation of approximately $30,000, it is quite an important job. The committee draws up the budget after careful examination of the requests of each organization and student activity. The final budget is approved by the Senate and the Dean of Men. A list of principles was drawn up by the committee of this year to aid in standardizing the methods of allocation in future years.

The committee also prepares progress reports reflecting the status of expenditures by organizations and student activities as of December 1, March 1, and May 1.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The S.G.A. Social Committee plans social events for the enjoyment of the student body. The responsibilities of this group include the engaging of bands for various dances and the planning and preparing of the decorations for these events. This year the committee attempted to bring more name bands to the Delaware campus. Some of the activities which this group sponsored were the annual Homecoming Dance with George Madden's orchestra, the Christmas Dance featuring Ray Eberle and his orchestra, and the Spring Dance. Many jam sessions were also held at which the students danced to the jazz and rock and roll of Lloyd, the Fatman and others.

CULTURAL COMMITTEE

The Cultural Activities Committee was formed in 1948 "to stimulate and promote the establishment of activities which would enhance the cultural life of the University Community".

The committee now consists of approximately fifteen faculty members and seven student members assigned to subcommittees working with the Artist Series, Art Projects, Visiting Scholars, and The University Book Store. The faculty chairman is Doctor Keesey.

DINING HALL

The function of the Dining Hall Committee is to work with the Student Senate and the University Dining Halls to maintain high standards of food and service.

During the first semester, the committee went to work on the possibility of having music in Kent Dining Hall. After much investigation this had to be rejected because of inadequate facilities.

At present, a plan is being worked out that should lessen considerably the time spent waiting in line at Kent.

The D.H.C. has passed on to the Dining Halls any worthwhile suggestions for improvements that have arisen from the student body.

SECOND ROW: A. Bugher, P. Jablonski, B. Hall, J. Wickham, M. Flumerfelt, M. Henson, A. Augustus.

The Campus Chest Committee is one of the smaller SGA committees on this campus. It is the desire of this committee to consolidate the charity appeals made to students into one campaign, to choose the charities most in need, and then to carry out the campaign.

Last year, the idea of personal solicitation, stressing education, was developed and this year's committee is again striving to carry this out.

It is hoped that by the end of this campaign, every person on campus will know something about each charity, and by knowing, will be willing to contribute and thus help us to obtain the real goal of the campaign — 100% participation.

FIRST ROW: J. Krumbeck, M. Riker, W. Rudrow, R. Hastings, M. Carney.
SECOND ROW: J. Collier, S. Adams, B. Lewis, J. Hennig, L. Watts, S. Baker.

The Publicity Committee was formed for the first time this year to insure the success of Student Government Association functions. The committee formulated various ways of advertising these activities, which included: the Homecoming, Christmas and Spring Dances and three jazz concerts. Members of the committee used their artistic talent in preparing posters, and constructing outdoor displays to promote interest and participation in the various activities. Further publicity was arranged as the committee prepared articles for the campus newspaper and utilized the university's public-address system. The success of the dances and jazz concerts was certainly due in part to the energies of this committee.

STUDENT CENTER

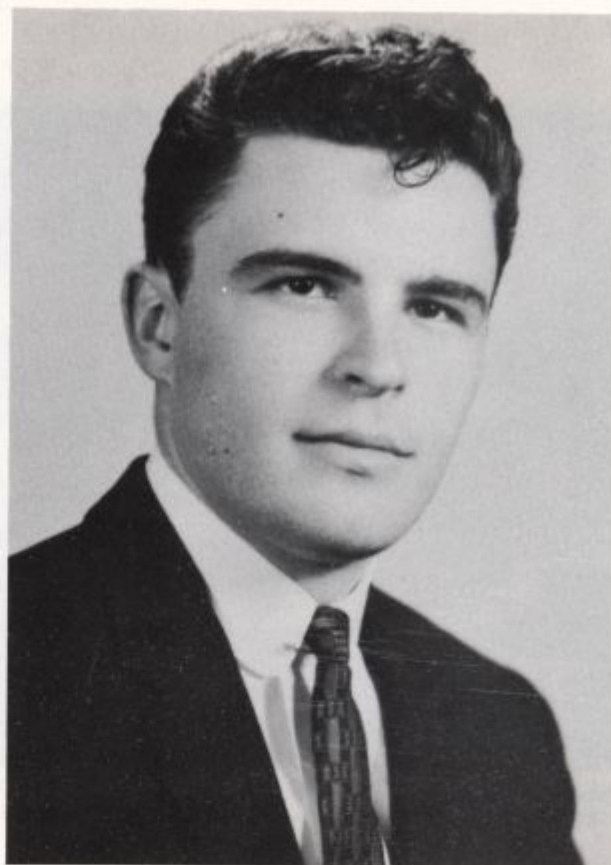

The new 1956-57 S.G.A. Constitution gave birth to the Delaware Student Center Board of Directors and Committee. This group's main responsibility was to make plans for the student occupation and the operation of the Delaware Student Center scheduled to open in the Fall of 1958. The writing of a Constitution and By-Laws, making decisions as to the use and control of the facilities, and the representing the student body's interests during the construction were all important responsibilities. In addition, supervision of the "Scrounge" was a challenging responsibility. The group placed and maintained an S.G.A. Suggestion Box and an S.G.A. Bulletin Board. The purpose of the former: to serve as an outlet for constructive criticisms and suggestions, and the latter: to fulfill the long-standing need for a central, all-inclusive source for information concerning campus events.

BLUE HEN

The staff of the 1958 Blue Hen has taken upon itself the task of producing a yearbook for the University of Delaware which is completely unique in respect to the ones of the previous years. We had several good reasons for attempting this. First of all, the administration made it known that they wanted something new, something different, something that would give a more inclusive insight of the university to those on the outside who will read it. Secondly, the students in general expressed a desire to have a book of even greater excellence than in the past, a book which they could show parents and friends with pride. Last of all, the staff, when it was chosen in the spring of 1957, mutually consented to a general policy, that of innovation. We wanted a book that would be more appealing to everyone concerned, from the people planning to enter Delaware to those graduated.

We think, prematurely perhaps but confidently, that we have accomplished our goal. Between the two covers you are now holding exists a book based on a format which is brand new relative to this school. We have added new sections and rejuvenated the old ones, at the same time trying to maintain a high degree of organization. Between these covers we have placed as many different pictures of as many different people as was possible and we have tried to make the pictures of the best quality within our control and budget. For this reason the book should appeal to the student body as a whole, not merely to seniors. Between these covers we have tried to capture, graphically and rhetorically, the essence of the year 1957-1958 and we think we have succeeded. The proof will come when this book is opened in years to come.

A good deal of credit for our endeavor should go to Mr. Marvin X. Lesser who gave us the initial shove and guidance. In acting as an intermediary between the administration and staff, he gave us something specific to set our sights on, told us what changes were needed and wanted, and then aided us in bringing them about. While laurels are being placed upon heads it may be proper to mention some of the people who patiently put up with our requests and coercions with little or no complaint. Mr. Milton Roberts, ("Milt," as he is informally known), could invariably be counted upon for answers to the many small but important and perplexing problems which continually plague yearbook staffs. These answers were given in a manner demonstrating Milt's sincere feeling for, and personal interest in, our success. The maintenance department was always sympathetic in obtaining equipment for us such as stools, mirrors, and folding screens when we needed them in a hurry. The secretaries in the various departments were always willing to take time out to answer questions or tell us where and when to get pictures of labs, etc. When a deadline was two weeks late, the Scrounge waitresses or Mrs. Mac were always ready to supply the suitable stimulant for our down-trodden souls. And last but no means least we are forever indebted to Lloyd Teitsworth, the campus photographer, whose pictures throughout this book demonstrate his exceptional artistry but not his even temperament.

THE REVIEW

Seventy-five years of service to the university and the student body was celebrated by the Review, the undergraduate newspaper, in 1957. Since its conception in 1882, the Review has witnessed continued growth and achievement in the comprehensive reporting of all phases of university and student life.

A staff of seventy students, spending from two to twenty-four hours a week on their respective jobs, publish the Review twenty-eight weeks in the school year. As the only student organization which consistently reaches all members of the university family, The Review plays an increasingly important role in communication among three groups: faculty, students, and administrative personnel.

VENTURE

Venture, the campus magazine, is published twice each year. It is composed of the best fiction, non-fiction, poetry, cartoons and art work submitted by the undergraduates of Delaware. As an outlet for creativity among the students, Venture has stimulated ideas and interest in literature, humor and art.

The Venture staff consists of an editorial board, editorial assistants, an art staff, and a faculty advisor. This year, Mr. Manheim of the English department, was selected the new faculty advisor. The editor of the fall issue was Dottie Pannell, who had also served as editor the previous spring. She was succeeded by the associate editor, Jack Jones, who started his editorship with an outstanding issue this spring. Working with Dottie and Jack, Jim Chowning, an old-timer on the Venture staff, lent a guiding hand.

A large amount of credit goes to Joan Hennig, who has been art editor for a year and a half. She was assisted by Bill Rudrow, who was also a member of the editorial board. The editorial board is the policy making body of Venture. It also functions in the selection of manuscripts to be published, and in choosing an associate editor each spring. This year, the board strove to represent the various interests among the student body, and to broaden the scope of contents published in Venture.

"The Needle and Haystack" is a joint publication of the School of Agriculture and School of Home Economics. This magazine, which is published in the spring, gives students an opportunity to develop their abilities in journalism and provides an inclusive picture of the activities of both schools.

This year the "foreward look" research here and at other colleges, and the students' preparation for it, is being emphasized. The co-editors are Elaine Stueber and Raymond Saatman. The faculty advisors are Mrs. Catherine V. Beiber, Home Economics Education and Mr. John A. Murray of Agriculture.

SLIPSTICK

The "Slipstick" in previous years has always been one annual publication, but the Engineering Council this year decided to turn out two issues, fall and spring. The aim of "Slipstick" was not changed, however, and it was designed to bring to the whole student body the happenings in the School of Engineering. Especially important this year has been the trend toward a magazine of a more technical and scientific nature. Though the general student often dislikes strictly informative writing, the "Slipstick" staff sees the need for a journal that will better reflect the position of the field of Engineering. Even though the "Slipstick" is small, it is felt that the first step has been taken toward making a top university Engineering magazine.

E-52 had its inception twenty-six years ago as an English course in which the students produced a play as part of the term's work. From this modest beginning, E-52 has grown into a University Theater ranking with the best in the country. For those interested in the program, E-52 offers wide variety — acting, directing, scenery designing, building, painting, costumes, make-up, props, lighting, sound, and box office.

Throughout the year, E-52 presents a varied program consisting of three major productions, two laboratory productions, and a Children's Theater Tour. Major productions run for three nights, with an average staff of fifty students. The laboratory productions offer two one-act plays in one evening, with emphasis on experimentation in new ideas and techniques for the beginner as well as the experienced person. The Children's Theater plays to approximately ten thousand children in Delaware and Maryland. Twenty performances are given in a seven day period.

The high point of the season came when the third major production, "The Tender Trap," was selected by the department of defense to tour the Second Army area, and the Far East. This is a fitting culmination to twenty-six years of excellent University-community theater productions. The itinerary will include Japan, Korea, Formosa, and the Pacific Islands.

UNIVERSITY BAND

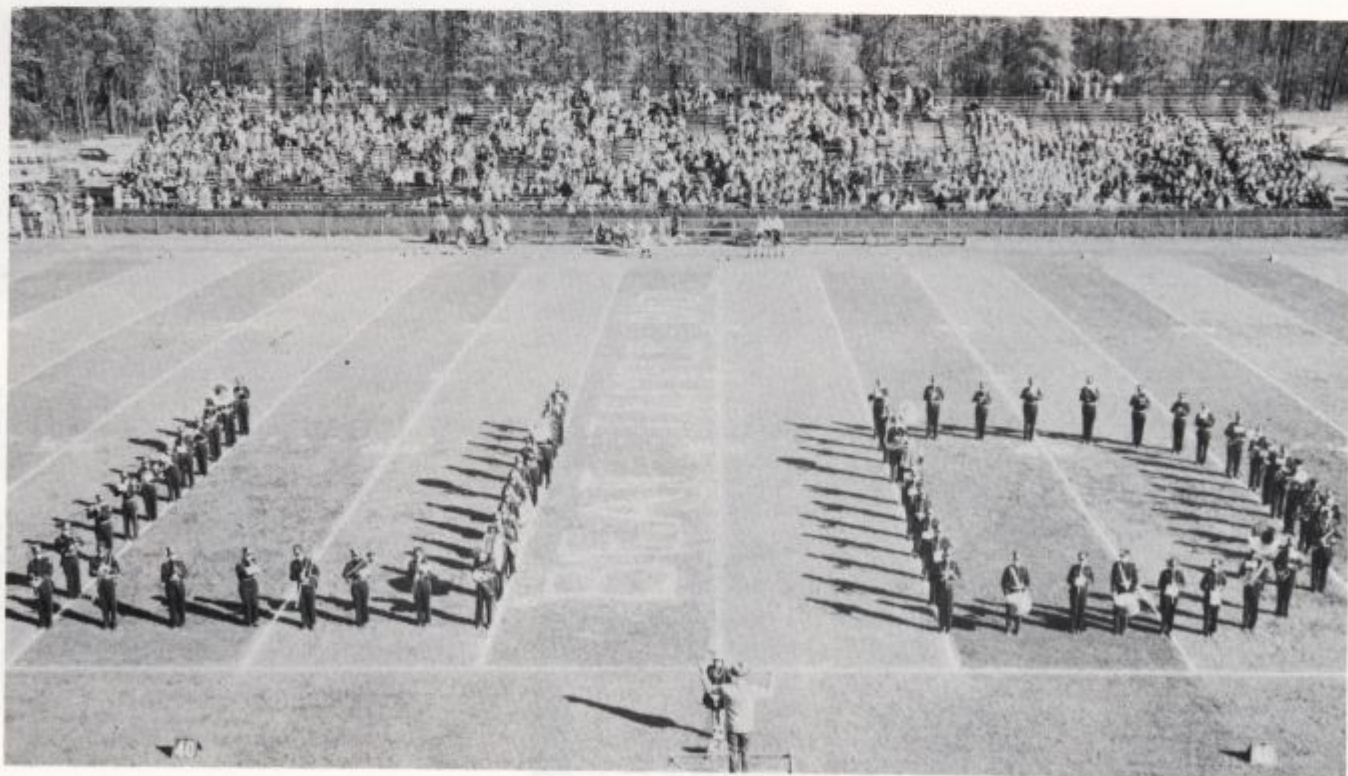

The University-Marching Band, organized in 1946 and under the leadership of J. R. King, is the co-ed band which performs at all football games. This band at its formation had only 15 members, but in the last six years, it has kept its membership at 60 or above.

Smart military-style precision drill replaces the popular trend toward musical pageantry in the band. It has continued to use Souza, Goldman, and Filmore marches which have become very popular with the student body.

In September the Marching Band spent a few days at Camp Tochwogh which helped to prepare it for a season of football appearances, tours, and concerts. It has performed with the duPont Employees Band at the Wilmington Playhouse, and in May holds its annual indoor and outdoor concerts. One of the main parts of the band's program is its tour of all the high schools in the state at which it performs and sets an example of the success which can accompany practice.

CONCERT BAND

The University Concert Choir consists of 70 selected voices, ranging from freshman to senior members. The choir held their second annual pre-season camp at Camp Tochwogh, on the Chesapeake in September. In October, they gave their fall concert which included Faure's "Requiem" in honor of one of its members. The Christmas concert presented Handel's "Messiah" and other selections found on the choir's R.C.A. Victor recording. In April, the Contemporary Composer's Concert presented the music of the winner of 1957's Pulitzer Prize for Music, Norman delo Joio. The 1958 season was concluded in May with the annual Pops Concert.

CONCERT CHOIR

The Concert Band of the university is composed of all undergraduates who show sufficient interest and ability with instrument to merit their acceptance into its ranks. The band plays several concerts a year, both by itself and in conjunction with the Concert Choir. In the spring, a concert of contemporary music is held usually featuring a song from some Broadway show. The band also makes tours of the state of Delaware.

Although the organization is usually under the capable direction of Mr. Robert King, occasionally one of Delaware's music majors may conduct a number.

WOMEN'S CHORUS

The Women's Chorus, directed by Dr. Ivan Trussler, is composed of one hundred and thirty girls. Membership is not limited, and all who love to sing are welcome. The group sang in the fall Festival of Choral Music. Plans for the second semester included a spring concert, and participation in the Pops Concert.

VARSIITY CHORALE

VARSIITY CHORALE

This past year has been the second one for the Varsity Chorale under the direction of Dr. Ivan Trussler. This group of undergraduate men was, until two years ago, composed of any male undergraduate who wished to join the chorus. This made the group rather large with a resulting downgrade in the quality of music at its concerts. Now, however, the Varsity Chorale is composed of men selected from many on the basis of the quality of their voices and musicianship. The result has been to limit the chorus to about sixty men with a definite increase in the quality of music performed. This year the Varsity Chorale performed in the annual fall concert, in the Gold Ballroom of the Hotel duPont, in a spring tour of New Castle Co. high schools, and in the annual alumni day concert.

The Independent History Club, newly formed this year at the University of Delaware, seeks to provide for its members an opportunity to freely discuss the events which alter and illuminate both past and present times. Meetings are frequently held in the small hotel near the B. and O. railroad crossing on West Main Street where the members are subjected to only an occasional intrusion by George or Duke.

Membership is limited to those possessing a keen interest in history or related fields or to those possessing an equally keen interest in the above mentioned hotel. Nonmembers are often invited to sit in on a round of discussion.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club strives to develop professional attitudes and abilities, widen cultural interests and broaden social experiences. The President of this year's club is Nancy Marsteller. Other officers are Mary Hoover, Vice-President; Sheila Fetter, Secretary; and Jane Walton, Treasurer.

It is made up of one representative from each fraternity and dorm. The council is assisted by the Director of Intramural Athletics, coach Harry Rawstrom.

For most sports two leagues are organized, a fraternity league and an independent league. This program assures that everyone interested in athletics may participate.

Trophies and awards are presented to the winning team in each sport, and overall trophies are awarded to the team and individual who score the largest number of points during the year.

MODERN DANCE CLUB

The Modern Dance Club is a group composed of girls with a common interest in dance as a method of expression. The executive committee was guided by this in scheduling the events for the year. These included a trip to hear the Philadelphia Orchestra, a visit to Longwood Gardens for an organ recital, and various guest entertainers at the monthly meetings. Social meetings included a fall steak fry, a Christmas party, and a spring picnic.

PSI CHI

Psi Chi is an organization composed of graduate and undergraduate students and professional men and women who are majoring or majored in psychology. Qualification for membership is based on scholastic record and interest in psychology. The aims of the organization are to promote interest in psychology and further scientific investigation in various fields of the subject. In fulfilling these aims, Psi Chi works together with the university psychology club to obtain well known scholars to lecture and to plan field trips for their members throughout the year. Psi Chi is trying to do its part to aid in the advancement of one of the younger of the new sciences of precision.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB

The Psychology Club was sponsored last year by Psi Chi, the honorary psychology society. Membership is made up of undergraduate and graduated majors in psychology. The club seeks to promote interest in the field, and to bring together those students and faculty members who have a mutual interest in psychology. The group enjoys guest speakers, discussions, and social functions at their monthly meetings. Activities also include a field-trip to a nearby hospital or institution. In the spring the club holds its annual picnic.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

The Sociology Club seeks to promote interest in the field of sociology and to bring together in fellowship all interested students and faculty members. Movies, guest speakers, panel discussions, field trips and dinners are some of the club's activities. The highlight of the year is the annual field trip to New York City.

WEEKEND ACTIVITIES CLUB

The Weekend Activities Club is one of the newer clubs on campus, having been formed during the spring semester of 1956. The organization has as its purpose to prepare and present social activities which will supplement the regular campus calendar by providing entertainment for those students not involved or not interested in concurrent events on campus. It also strives to eliminate gaps in the college social program by scheduling events on weekends when little or no other activities have been planned.

As the members of the club prepare to adjourn and conclude their work for another school year, they can look back and boast of having planned activities which have become increasingly popular on the Delaware campus. Among the most memorable and successful events presented during the 1957-58 school year were the September Co-Rec, the late autumn Open House in Brown Residence Hall, the pre-Christmas hoedown, and the social dance in January with the Delatones featured as the evening's musical entertainment.
