Home Economics Day Observed

PRACTICE DINING ROOM OPENED

The new practice dining room in Science Hall, Women's College of Delaware, was formally opened last Friday afternoon, when the students in the department of Home Economics gave a tea from three until five o'clock. The date December third, had been selected by the students in honor of the birthday anniversary of Janet Richards, the pioneer and the authority in the realm of Home Economics.

The attractive new dining room which adjoins the pantry and cooking laboratories, has afforded a splendid opportunity for the girls to put their theoretical knowledge into practice. Every detail of the furnishing and its equipment has been estimated upon, and discussed by the students of the department.

The walls and wood-work of the room have been finished in soft shades of brown to blend with the rug and furnishings of the room. The rug was selected by the girls themselves, from an assortment sent to the college, which afforded the students an opportunity to learn of the different weaves and relative wearing qualities of the rugs. The furnishings are of fumed oak. New silverware and china have also been added to the general equipment. Hand hemstitched curtains of ecru scrim, elegant in their simplicity, furnish a finishing touch to the windows.

Tea, candies, and dainty cakes, made and served by the girls themselves, added to the pleasure of the afternoon.

FIRE DAMAGES JEWELRY STORE

Baynard, Banks And Bryan Plan Reopening

A fire which threatened to destroy the big jewelry store of Baynard, Banks & Bryan, Fifth and Market streets, Wilmington, while inflicting serious damage last Friday night, did not put them out of business by any means, for even while a hundred or more firemen fought the flames the heads of the firm made plans to repair the damage and re-open Wednesday morning of this week. As a result of this grim determination in the face of disaster—for the fire did damage to the amount of possibly $30,000—the store was opened again Wednesday to take care of its regular Christmas trade. Workmen worked all day, Saturday night and Sunday, to get things in shape. All of which evidenced a real progressiveness and won the admiration of innumerable business men and customers of this well-known concern.

Class Games Now On At Delaware

Much interest in local athletic circles is centered in the inter-class basketball games being played off at Delaware this week. This year's players who have won their varsity "D" are not eligible for their class teams. The present senior class, which has won the basketball championship for three years, will be severely handicapped this year by the ruling of the athletic association. The regular varsity basketball season does not start until after the holidays. Yesterday the Freshmen met the Sophomores, the latter winning by the score of 20 to 9; today the Juniors and Seniors meet; and tomorrow the game for the championship will be played.

Indoor Meet

On Friday evening, December 17, the annual Sophomore-Freshman indoor meet will be held. The following events will be contested: lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight wrestling; running high jump, three entries from each class; tug of war, teams of seven men each, lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight boxing.

Class numerals will be awarded to the contestants winning their events.

Reception In Parish House Next Thursday

At a meeting of the Guild of St. Thomas church held in the Parish House on Monday evening, arrangements were completed for a reception to be given next Thursday evening, December ninth, when members of the Diocese and students at the college are invited to meet the Right Reverend F. J. Kinsman, Bishop of Delaware, and the Reverend F. M. Kirkus, rector of Trinity church, Wilmington.

W. C. T. U. Offers Prizes

Next Saturday evening, December 11, $30 in prizes will be awarded to students of the Women's College, by the W. C. T. U. of New Castle County, for the best essays written by students on a temperance subject. The prizes, to be awarded by Mrs. S. M. Donnell, the county president, will consist of $15 for the best essay; $10 for the next, and five $1 prizes. This is the first temperance essay contest held at the Women's College, and it is proposed to continue them yearly and to increase the amount of the prizes until the aggregate reaches $50 annually as it does at Delaware College.

Dr. E. V. Vaughn, Mr. E. W. Cooch, Mr. John G. Hayes of Wilmington will act as judges. The contestants are Miss Helen Barclay of Elsmere; Miss Thera Twitchell of Trenton; Miss Anna D. Scott, of Milford; Miss Susan E. K. of Milford; Miss Amelia Leichter of Wilmington; Miss Mary L. Powers of Rehoboth Beach.

The essays will be read in Residence Hall, Women's College, next Saturday evening at eight o'clock. All interested are invited to be present.

Interesting D. A. R. Meeting

The regular meeting of Cooch's Bridge Chapter D. A. R. was held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Cann, Saturday afternoon, Dec. 4 at 2:30 o'clock with the regent Mrs. Cooch presiding.

The meeting opened with prayer by the chaplain Mrs. Eleanor E. Pennington and the regular order of business was proceeded with. Mrs. Alrich was elected Treasurer to succeed Mrs. Whittier who had resigned. Mrs. Eleanor Pennington was elected Regent's Alternate to the State Conference to be held in Wilmington in February.

Mrs. Cann read a very interesting paper on the Causes which led to the Revolution and Miss Nellie Wilson rendered several piano solos which were much appreciated. Delightful refreshments were served and a happy social time was enjoyed by all.

Need For Federal Censorship

The International Reform Bureau, in a campaign to bring about a higher grade of motion pictures, publishes the following statement. Quoting from a letter of Carl Lammie, President of the Universal Film Company, the writer says: "Several weeks ago I published a straight-from-the-shoulder talk entitled, 'Which Do You Want?' asking the exhibitors of America to state whether they preferred clean, wholesome pictures or smutty ones."

"Instead of finding that 95 per cent favored clean pictures, I discovered that at least half, and maybe sixty per cent, want the pictures to be 'risque,' which is a French way of saying 'smutty.'"

"Personally I am against them from soda to hock, but if the demand for them is so overwhelmingly great, we will bow to the superior wisdom of the majority."

Surely every good citizen, the article continues, especially if a dutiful parent, teacher, or pastor, is bound to answer this statement by telegraphing his Congressman and Senators to rush through Congress in December, as a Christmas present to safeguard the homes of the land, the Hughes bill, to provide federal censorship of films, already half way to victory by a unanimous report in the last Congress.

Dr. J. L. Niles of Townsend, is about to occupy his new residence erected at a cost of $12,000.

Clifford Wilson, who during the past few years has been largely responsible for the building of the Aetna Hose Hook and Ladder Co., up to its present high class of efficiency has been renominated for chief Engineer for another year. "AG" PLAY GREAT SUCCESS

Cast Shows Result Of Experience Of Last Year

Training and Experience were without doubt the dominant features of the play given by the Agricultural Club at the Opera House on Friday evening. First nights are always trying especially to amateurs. But the performance on Friday evening under the stage management of Mrs. Herman Tyson did not have these crude touches so usual to amateur theatricals. Several of the cast this year were under Mrs. Tyson's training last season, the results of which were clearly demonstrated. So pronounced was this that the suggestion is again made for a permanent Play Club for Newark.

"Looking for Mary Jane" is a roaring comedy, which kept the smiles on the faces of the audience from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Miss Olive Heiser, the fetching young boarding-house mistress; Miss Katharine Bowen, the beautiful prima donna; Miss Dora Law, the fascinating widow, and Miss Edna Chalmers, the spunky little maid, all took their parts in a professional manner; Mr. Tracy Campbell, class '17, as the crazed composer; Mr. A. B. Thomas '17, the excitable husband and manager for the prima donna; Messrs. J. E. Edgar '17, J. F. Davis '18, H. W. Savin '18, as the young men traveling upon "Father," N. W. Taylor '18; C. S. Holland '18, as the Chinaman, and Marvel Wilson '18, as the expressman, portrayed their parts admirably.

Too much credit cannot be given the Agricultural Club for their splendid production. Mrs. Tyson, and the several ladies in the cast, were presented with flowers, by members of the Club.

J. A. Hopkins '18, as business manager, carried the play to a successful financial conclusion. J. H. Salevan '16, acted as stage manager, assisted by G. O. Smith '16.

NEW CENTURY CLUB NEWS

Mrs. Mitchell Presents Pictures From German History— Club Discusses Loan For New Club House

An interesting literary and business hour marked this week's meeting of the New Century Club of Newark. The order of the program was reversed and the afternoon begun with a paper by Mrs. Mitchell on "Pictures from German History." Mrs. Mitchell in a most novel and interesting way, presented the development of German history in a series of literary tableaux. Through this original method of presenting history she infused life and interest in what would otherwise be a dry and technical subject.

The first tableau brings us into what Mrs. Mitchell called the enchanting borderland between fable and history. It is 113 years before the birth of Christ when the Celts and Teutons invade Northern Italy. With the second tableau, fifty years later we come into the regions of history of which the annals of Tacitus now give us reliable information. The tribe of the Cherusci, under their chief Arminius have defied Rome, and Augustus Caesar has sent his general Varus to subdue them; but he was defeated by the Germans fighting for their fatherland. Mrs. Mitchell makes the curtain rise on one scene of this tableau, namely the meeting between Arminius fighting for the Germans, and his brother Flavius who has gone over to the Roman side. Arminius reminds his brother of the sacredness of Fatherland, of ancestral liberty, of the native gods of Germany. "To be Emperor of Rome would not tempt me to be—"

"The scene of the two brothers," Mrs. Mitchell adds, has lived in history, not only because of its heart interest, but because Arminius is typical of the German—simple, staunch devotion to Fatherland. The great German heroes from Charlemagne to Bismarck, are but the spirit of Arminius reappearing—just as in England John Hampden, Cromwell and Hauley are all manifestations of the same British doggedness and independence."

The next tableau brings us to the seventh century when Christianity was beginning to spread in Germany. It gives the story of Boniface and the Oak, and shows him like an Elisha on Mt. Carmel accomplishing the miracle that was needed to destroy the all pervasive superstitions of the heathens.

We jump eight centuries, and we find ourselves transported to the beginning of the Renaissance, the time of the great inventions. Gutenberg with his wooden blocks is the hero of our tableau.

Almost a hundred years have gone by and here is before us the picture of Martin Luther at the Diet of Worms, exclaiming in the faces of princes and prelates "Here I stand, I can no otherwise. God help me! Amen!"

The reformation, Mrs. Mitchell said, quoting the words of MacMuller, is not the work of Luther alone. "No really great man ever stood alone. The secret of their greatness lies in their understanding the spirit of the age in which they live, and giving expres-

FARMERS AND THEIR FINANCIAL NEEDS

DEAN HAYWARD BRINGS REPORT FROM CHICAGO CONVENTION

Dean Harry Hayward of the agricultural department of Delaware College returned Friday from Chicago where he attended as a delegate from this State, the third annual conference on Marketing and Farm Credits which was held in connection with the National Council of Farmers' Co-operative Associations.

The fact that Delaware was represented at this conference by Professor Hayward was fortunate just at this time as it was only last week that the Board of Trustees of the College decided to investigate the matter of marketing produce, to ascertain if the Delaware farmer could not be materially assisted in this way. The board appointed a special committee to take up this work of which Dean Hayward was made a member. Other members of the committee which will meet in a short time and start the work were Daniel Corbit, chairman, former Congressman William H. Heald, Frank C. Bancroft and Dr. E. V. Vaughn, professor in economics.

Dean Hayward, made the following statement of the work taken up by the conference which will be of interest to every farmer in the State.

"The purpose of the conference was to crystallize sentiment in regard to what is needed to relieve the financial situation among the farmers of the country both for the purpose of buying and equipping farms and for marketing farm produce. There were delegates from thirty-four states. These delegates for the most part were representatives of co-operative Farmers' Association that have been in existence and have had a successful history for a period of years. The slogan of the conference was better business, better farming and better living.

"There were many prominent speakers, among them being the Hon. Sir Horace Plunkett, the founder and president of the Irish Agricultural Organization Society, who presented a paper on "The Next Step in the Organization of Agriculture." Another paper that attracted much attention was by Charles J. Brand, chief of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture, the subject being, "Market Grade and Standards for Farm Products." This paper dealt extensively with the importance of grading cotton, the great staple of the south and it applied with equal force to the grading of wool before marketing.

Department of Farm Markets. Professor Hayward, stated that a paper by W. G. Scholtz, of Idaho on "Why a State Department of Farm Markets," which was freely discussed at the conference was of especial interest to the farmers of Delaware just at this time as it is along the line of work that the Board of Trustees of Delaware College recently appointed a special committee to investigate. Continuing Professor Hayward said: "It is not generally known that a number of states have a State Department of Farm Markets. The purpose of this department is to keep a close watch on the markets of the country; to be familiar with freight rates to various sections; advise shippers where not to ship as well as where to ship; give instructions as to grading, packages and the importance of uniformity; to make special markets for special products, etc. Mr. Scholtz, showed in his address how buyers and speculators were using the crop reports of the Federal government to fleck farmers of millions of dollars. A bureau of farm markets, is able to correct these misstatements in a very large measure and to correctly interpret the statement issued by the U. S. crop reporter. "In this connection the farmers of the state will be interested to know that the National Bureau of Markets has established a policy of providing trained men in marketing for various states on what is known as the half and half plan. That is, the government bears half of the man and the State the other half. In this way the state gets the advantage of a man who is acceptable to the government who has had the experience in the national field and who is in touch with the marketing situation throughout the country, at half his actual cost. It has been thought that in this State where conditions are so compact, if such a man could be obtained he could teach rural economics at the college part of the year and organize and direct a department of markets in the State the rest of the year.

"Another prominent speaker was Dr. Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture, who it will be remembered made an address at Delaware College when the National Grange visited the college last year. One statement made by Dr. Vrooman was that nominally the cost of shipping a bushel of wheat from New York to Liverpool is 4 cents but that during the past year it has been 40 cents. There is no law in force, which regulates the freight rates on the high seas and plans are under way by the present administration to overcome this economic fault during the coming session of Congress.

"Myron T. Herrick, former Governor of Ohio, outlined a plan for financing the farmer's business which was accepted by many of those in attendance sound and easily adapted to present banking conditions without much difficulty or expense. One only has to be familiar with the conditions of the farmer in other sections of the country to appreciate the need of a financial readjustment for the benefit of the man who produces the food for our nation. The farmers in Delaware who are not familiar with how the "other half" lives in agriculture have no appreciation of the extremely favorable conditions agriculturally in Delaware. For example there are thousands of farmers going to the new irrigation sections in the west who will have to pay $100 an acre for raw unimproved land that has been reclaimed twice by our National Government. Reclaimed once by irrigation which brought so much alkali to the surface that it was necessary to drain the land to carry off the irrigation waters that held alkali in solution. To think that such land hundreds of miles from the markets, miles from railroads, schools for churches, sells for more than highly improved land in Delaware, makes us wonder at the mistake of those who are land hungry."

In conclusion Professor Hayward stated that while much discussed at the conference would not apply to Delaware conditions, "it is unquestionably true that a few promiscuous bank laws would be of good assistance to the farmers in Delaware in financing their business. That all who are interested in the welfare and prosperity of our state should give this matter careful consideration goes without saying. While a few are willing to admit that the farmer should have access to government help, to the extent that is recommended by some, there are none want the farmer to be a better business man in order that he can stand on his own feet and can stand shoulder to shoulder with the urban business man in promoting the welfare of the nation."

Killed While Testing Tank

An accident somewhat similar to that which occurred at the Elkton Pulp Mill last Wednesday morning followed at the General Chemical Company's plant, near Claymont on Wednesday night, when M. E. Goodwin of Wilmington, was instantly killed and Patrick McGlone of Chester was fatally injured. The men were old and experienced hands and were making a hydrostatic pressure test of a new steel tank in the storage building. The tank was of 55,000 gallons capacity and was under a water pressure of several hundred pounds. Goodwin forgot about the pressure and left the building but returned and he and McGlone went to the top of the tank when the head of the pressure tank cylinder blew off, tearing a hole 15 feet in diameter in the roof through which it passed. The men were hurled against the roof and fell 25 feet to the floor. Part of Goodwin's head was blown off and McGlone was terribly injured about the head and body. He died shortly after reaching the Chester Hospital.

Gunner's Aight Arm Shattered

While gunning last Monday Harley Morris, a young farmer of the Seaford section, tripped over a twig, discharging his gun. The loads of the two barrels shattered his right arm and many grains entered his chest. Other gunners found him senseless from loss of blood. He was brought to Seaford where the injured arm was amputated near the shoulder.

Preachers Don Overalls

Wearing overalls and jumpers a number of ministers of Wilmington last Tuesday joined a force of about 75 workmen in preparing for the construction of the Tabernacle for the Lyon evangelistic services on the triangle along the boulevard beyond Washington street bridge. The services will begin on January 2 and will continue for seven weeks. All the men engaged in the construction work are volunteers and they had raised the frame and enclosed one side of

Robbed And Nearly Frozen

Early on Wednesday morning Constable Tinsman, of Richardson Park, found Edwin Sherrin, of Philadelphia, lying on the porch of William Lawton's home with his clothing frozen to his body and nearly senseless from exposure.

Sherrin said a negro had attacked and robbed him, near the B. & O. R. R. Commissary, and thrown him into the Christiana Creek. He got ashore and began running but when he reached Lawton's house he dropped from cold and exhaustion. The Lawton family gave him aid, and he was later taken to Delaware Hospital.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON

CORN FODDER

One great objection to the use of corn fodder has been the waste on account of the hard outer shell of this stalk, which prevented the cattle from getting to the succulent inside.

This has been overcome by the "PEERLESS FODDER SHREDDER" which does not grind the stalk, leaves and top into powder or chop into hard, sharp edged chunks, but crushes the entire stalk with heavy, blunt teeth, making every part valuable as food, easy to get at and leaving the waste in such a condition that it may be handled with a fork and used as litter.

We have a stock of these "SHEDDERS" on hand at No. 360 Maine Street.

NEW CENTURY CLUB

The next tableau unveils before us Frederic William the first, father of Frederic the Great, the great captain who collects from all parts of Europe 1500 giant guardians. Behind that is the shadow of the father who chastises his son the crown prince, and threatens to put him to death.

With the accession of Frederic the Great to the throne in 1740, when the national affairs got complicated with international ones, the films embrace not only pictures of German history but of the larger European history of which it is a part. One beautiful tableau is that of Maria Theresa standing before the Diet of Hungaria during the war of Austrian succession, holding up her infant son to the Hungarians and entrusting her fortune to their fidelity. One almost sees the diet rising and flashing their swords as they cry out, "We shall die for our King Maria Theresa."

The last historic tableau brings us to the year 1814 with the great Napoleon removed to Elba. The European powers had convened at Vienna to reshift the map of Europe which Napoleon had disturbed, when suddenly a messenger comes with the news Napoleon has escaped from Elba. I have called these tableaux, but they are more than that, they are moving and living pictures of German history.

Mrs. Mitchell did not touch upon present day German history, she said we were too near its making to be impartial judges. She concluded with a little poem on the victims of the war showing why we ought to give our undivided sympathy to all of them. The poem represents a Russian, Austrian, French, English and German soul, each one telling how he met his doom in defending his country and all ending in the same refrain, "I gave my life to freedom this I know, for those who bade me fight had told me so."

Following Mrs. Mitchell's paper a short recess was enjoyed after which an informal but important business discussion was taken up.

The question of how to raise a loan for the building of the clubhouse was the central topic of discussion. Most every one present took part in the discussion. Many means were suggested, the one, however, which seemed to meet with the approval of the majority was the raising of bonds bearing 5 to 6 per cent interest. It was also suggested that the bonds be put as low as five dollars each, to enable all those interested in the club house to take some. Mrs. Armstrong offered to take one hundred dollars in bonds if nine other members would do the same. Two members responded at once with a similar offer. It is hoped that by next Monday there will be more than ten responding to this offer. The president appointed a committee of three to investigate ways of raising a loan of about $4000 to $5000 dollars. Members are requested each one to think over the matter and come prepared next Monday to give suggestions as well as material help.

The members in charge of the children's Christmas celebration announced a moving picture benefit that will be held at the Opera House Wednesday, Dec. 7.

Eight new names were added to the club's membership.

Next week's program will be a talk by Miss Hossinger on "Recollections from Heidelberg."

WHERE IS YOUR GRAIN?

Suppose by hard work you had got together a bushel of very fine, very rare, very costly grain. You wouldn't put it in an old stove—you wouldn't hide it in some out-of-the-way place. Rats, mice or birds might destroy it—insects make it worthless—fire destroy it—servants steal it. You would keep that costly grain in a safe place, so that you could plant it and get a bounteous harvest. Why not use the same care with your hard-earned dollars? Keep them at the New York Trust & Safe Deposit Company. We watch your dollars for you all the time and you can get them any time. We are a Bank of Personal service.

Tuberculosis Week Being Observed

"Tuberculosis Week," December 6-12, inclusive, is being observed in Delaware. The chief aim in the observance of this week is to get the general public interested in the movement looking toward the prevention of tuberculosis to the extent that more persons in need of the attention given to tubercular patients at the clinics may be induced to visit the dispensaries. This goal is being kept in mind throughout the week. The fact is being brought to the attention of the public by posters—reproductions of a water color painting representing the Blue Hen and her chicks chasing the White Plague from Delaware.

The store of N. Snellenburg & Co., at Seventh and Market streets, Wilmington, is headquarters for the workers. The firm has given large window space to a display which will include two tuberculosis maps, one of Wilmington, and one of the State, showing existing conditions; water-color paintings, explained by appropriate verses (shown for the first time publicly for this occasion) as well as many pictures of model shacks, outdoor sleeping quarters, etc.

During the week free medical examinations for tuberculosis will be made in Wilmington by several doctors who have volunteered their services. They include: Drs. Robert Tomlinson, Bernard McEntee, George C. McElfatrick, H. C. Hickman, John Fisher, and P. R. Smith. The examinations will be made only during the afternoon and evening office hours.

The regular clinic hours during the week will be: Dr. S. M. Zion, on Tuesday evening, Dr. Conwell Banton, Wednesday afternoon for colored patients; Dr. Victor Nah, Thursday afternoon; Dr. Albert Robin, chief of staff, Saturday afternoon.

The regular patients of the dispensary are manifesting a great deal of interest in trying to bring new patients, who need attention, to the dispensary during the week and those in charge of the observance hope that the general public will manifest its interest in the same manner.

Through manifold channels very excellent literature pertaining to the aims and accomplishments of the anti-tuberculosis movement will be widely distributed to lodges and societies of all kinds. Next Saturday afternoon the Boy Scouts of Wilmington will assist in the distribution of this literature on the street and outside of the industrial plants. The Young Men's Christian Association and the store of N. Snellenburg and Co. will be stations at which the Scouts will obtain the literature.

On Friday afternoon of this week, the playlet called, "The Friends of Health," in which about thirty children take part, will be presented at the Y. W. C. A. building, Wilmington. This play points a moral relating to tuberculosis uplift.

It is hoped and expected that the public will take a great interest in the observance of the week end will lend their aid to the workers in fighting the dread disease, tuberculosis.

Arrangements are being made by the Anti-Tuberculosis Society to show pictures on various health subjects on screens in front of the newspaper offices during the week. The slides for this purpose will be secured from the United States Health Service and will include such pictures as those pertaining to Indian housing conditions, the United States health exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, conditions pertaining to milk supply and relating to the anti-tuberculosis work in general.

Struck Down On Street

Dr. John F. Brown left his home in Port Deposit on Saturday evening to visit a patient at Rock Run, on the outskirts of the town. Later he was found lying in the street unconscious and covered with blood, by Joseph Duke. He was removed to the Havre de Grace Hospital where his condition is reported as critical. Dr. J. H. Richards of Port Deposit found a hole in the back of his head and a cut on his forehead. Shortly before he was found a man halted his team at Burkin's store half a mile from the spot and called out that he had run over a man on the road and drove away. Duke says two other teams drove over the body despite his warnings. When found his pocketbook containing about $15 and his watch were missing. Constable Barrett thinks Dr. Brown was struck on the back of the head with a hammer or some other blunt instrument, robbed and left lying in the roadway.

Flee From Burning Home

Thomas Swayne, a farmer of Broad Creek hundred, Sussex county, awoke on Friday morning to find the bedroom in which he and his wife were sleeping, in flames. He managed to get his wife and children out of the burning dwelling before the upper portion fell to the ground. Neighbors took the family to their homes and supplied them with clothing and shelter. Mrs. Swayne was rendered ill from the shock and exposure. The loss is put at $4,000.

All the interests of the Arlington Company of Arlington, N. J., employing about 3000 hands in the manufacture of pyralin, a celluloid product, it was announced in New York on Friday, have been purchased by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company of Wilmington at a price ranging between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000.

MOUND PEACH TREES FOR WINTER

Timely Advice From Horticultural Department

Owners of orchards of young peach trees should see that their trees are mounded up with earth before winter sets in. On some of the lighter soils the severe storms of the past summer and fall have caused the young trees to be swayed so much by the wind that considerable space is open left between the trunk and the surrounding soil. Trees in such condition are liable to winter injury of the trunk just at or below the surface of the soil. Surplus water is liable to settle in these places and the freezing of a collar of ice about the trunk will often kill the bark; and if the tree is not killed outright, it will be severely injured.

Owners of young trees should also see that all borers are taken out before winter sets in. In cases where borers are removed the trees should be well mounded with earth. The work of the borer may have so interfered with the downward flow of sap that a soft sappy growth results just above the injury. This tissue may not ripen up sufficiently before cold weather begins, and a sudden drop in temperature often severely injures trees in such condition. Mounding earth about the tree for a distance of about four to six inches will often prevent such injury.

Many trees so injured were found in Delaware peach orchards last year.

Growing Reputation As Efficiency Engineer

In the report of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, there appears a paper by Robert B. Wolf, alumnus of Delaware College, on "Teaching Scientific Management in Engineering Schools." Among other speakers at the Boston convention were Harrington Emerson, H. K. Hathaway, Sanford E. Thompson, and other efficiency experts of international reputation.

Mr. Wolf for the last few years has made a special study of the science of efficiency as applied to the work of the engineer. On Monday evening, December 13th, he will lecture at Delaware College on "Individuality in Business."

The paper read at the Boston convention follows: "It is not my purpose to go into an elaborate discussion of the principles of scientific management but simply to give briefly my reasons for believing that it should be taught in our engineering schools. In this day of keen competition no manufacturing establishment can be conducted successfully by the old 'rule of thumb' methods. This is especially true in that class of manufacturing which has been established for some time and where competition and increased cost of raw materials have reduced the margin of profit. There are quite a number of establishments, such as machine shops, foundries, etc. where the principles of scientific management have been worked out to a very fine point by Dr. Taylor and others. Any one starting out in this line of work need not be put to the trouble and the expense of conducting a long series of costly experiments to determine such a question for instance, as the proper method of cutting metals. A thorough course outlining these principles can well be added to the curriculum of our engineering schools. This course should describe in detail the methods used in up-to-date machine shops, going into the subject of 'time study' work, story system, and general accounting, which will undoubtedly save many a young engineer from spending his time going over ground already covered by others. He could then devote his energies to extending the field still further for some industries the principles of scientific management have been so well worked out that it is hardly any longer a question as to what are the best methods to pursue. If the engineering schools will take up this subject it will enable the students to profit by the experience of others thereby tending towards ultimate economy in manufacturing methods. The very excellent treatise on the art of cutting metals by Dr. Taylor, might well be used as a text book, even though the student does not intend to follow machine shop work. A careful study of this book, so that the principles involved are recognized will assist naturally in pointing out the general methods that should be followed in pursuing any line of investigation. These identical principles have been adopted, for instance, in the cooking or boiling of pulp in sulphite digesters.

A course describing the methods in use in making motion-studies might be added, as this is as important part of scientific management. As an illustration of this, there is one large pulp manufacturing concern that was able to save over $200 per day in freight paid to the railroad companies, by a careful study of motion-study to eliminate lost time in the operation of its hydraulic press equipment for pressing moisture out of the pulp. There should also be included a course describing the various methods of rewarding men for their increased efficiency. This must be gone into very carefully in order to point out the danger of attempting any kind of piece work or bonus system, without scientifically determining in advance the best methods to follow. Mistakes made by imitators of scientific management might have been avoided if a more thorough knowledge on these subjects had been available. The methods for rewarding foremen and department heads so that they will be stimulated to their best efforts, should also be studied, as well as those used to determine the departmental efficiencies.

Another important subject is the use of graphical methods for analyzing the results of investigation and keeping track of operating conditions.

Considering the extreme simplicity of this method and the impossibility of obtaining intelligent results in any other way, it surely seems that this subject should be given a great deal more attention in our technical schools. There is nothing new, of course, about graphics, but its general application to business is new and should be studied. All of this, of course, involves experience and it is highly desirable that the subjects previously referred to in this paper be taught by men who have had experience in putting these principles into operation. In my judgment it would be improper and might be productive of harm rather than good if college instructors simply took up the subject by text-book and attempted to teach it. The true principles of scientific management cannot be comprehended in this way alone, as the practicable conditions can only be learned by actual contact with the work and have a great bearing on the final conclusions. If this subject must be taken up by the regular instructors in the engineering schools, they should be given permission and time to go into the manufacturing establishments now operating under the system, to become thoroughly familiar with it. After having done this they will be in a much better position to teach the subject in an authoritative and interesting way.

"After having acquired a knowledge of the mechanism of scientific management the student should also be taught the general philosophy of the subject and it would be well to include in this connection a course in biology and practical psychology, for the reason that the true test of scientific management is that it improves and elevates the mental and physical condition of the workman. A wrong impression has been given by some of the opponents of scientific management, who claim that it tends to make automatons of men. If this has been done in any of the industries it is because the true principle has been departed from and for this reason, if for no other, the treating of the subject in a comprehensive way in our engineering schools would be a great advantage and would tend to prevent mistakes of this character. "One other thing that scientific management has pointed out very clearly is that the physical condition of the men should be considered to its fullest extent and that the men who are overworked and working in unhygienic surroundings are in the very nature of things bound to be more or less inefficient. A general treatment, therefore, of hygienic law is necessary as well as a course in physiology and personal hygiene. A great many men are inefficient largely because they lack a knowledge of how to take care of themselves so that it is part of the system of scientific management to conduct a campaign of education along these lines. This, of course, cannot be done intelligently unless the men at the head of the organization realize to the fullest extent what this means. "It seems to me, in view of the fact that our engineering schools are turning out the men who become the heads of our large manufacturing concerns, that it is of the utmost importance that they send out their students thoroughly equipped with a knowledge of the principles of scientific management and in this connection I believe that the course should include visits by the students to establishments now operating under this system. This would not only tend to make the causes more interesting, but would fix in a more permanent way the things learned from the text books. In conclusion, I can say that the large progressive manufacturers of the country would welcome the thought of our engineering schools taking up this subject."
