

Delaware's oldest rocks are metamorphic crystalline rocks of the central Appalachian Piedmont Physiographic Province. Atlantic Coastal Plain sediments overlie the crystalline rocks of the Piedmont and range in thickness from a feather edge at the Fall Line to approximately 9,000 feet in the southeastern corner of Delaware. Sediments range in age from Early Cretaceous to Holocene.

Visit the Delaware Geological Survey at www.udel.edu/dgs

Delaware Geological Survey • University of Delaware • Newark, Delaware 19716-7501 • www.udel.edu/dgs

ADDRESS

Stamp